FIGHT FOR PACT LONG.

Ratification Seems More Remote.

Obstructionist Tactics are Indicated in Johnson Amendment Scrap.

Men Who Opposed War Busily Engaged in Blocking Path of Peace.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Doubt began to grow at the Capitol today as to wether the Senate would reach a final decision on the peace treaty at the present session of Congress.

Senator Hitchcock, the administration leader, tried to get unanimous consent for a vote today on the Johnson amendment giving the United States as many votes in the league as the British Empire. Senator Johnson promptly objected because, he said, Senator Reed of Missouri, who is ill, wanted to speak on the amendment next week. Senator Hitchcock then proposed to vote Monday. Senator Johnson objected to this, also. Senator Hitchcock asked a vote Tuesday. Senator Knox of Pennsylvania objected. Senator Hitchcock suggested Wednesday, but Senator La Follette objected, and the effort to fix a voting day was dropped.

Senator Lodge led in person today the fight for the amendments against an opposition which for several days had made its defeat virtually a foregone conclusion. He argued that while the Johnson proposal would not accomplish completely the equalization of voting power in the league, it or some similar provision was necessary to protect American interests.

The amendment was opposed as impracticable and unworkable by Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, and by Senator Thomas, Democrat, Colorado. They both urged a reservation on the subject, but Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, argued that the situation could best be met by amending the treaty.

TELL HALF-TRUTHS.

Senator McCumber said those complaining about the voting arrangement in the league had "persistently refrained from telling the whole truth."

"They always forget to tell," he continued, "that the only power vest-

SKIRTS SO SHORT THEY SHOW CHIC GARTERS, 100 PER CENT. BARE BACKS, FASHION EDICT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—New York designers will go the limit in their sartorial creations this winter. And the limit, according to the confessions of some of them today, will be enough to make father hide behind his paper and mother keep young looking. The papal decree is to be utterly disregarded.

Far from striking terror into the hearts of the brave men who make the fashions, the Pope's pronouncement against the modern "indecency" in dress has given some of them a fillip. One prominent designer was bold enough to say that the Pope's hints at modification and restraint would send women scuttling in the opposite direction, just as prohibition made some people want to drink who had never tried it before.

If skirts are to be, well—short, and bodices low, the creative gentlemen are willing to take full responsibility. They freely admit that some women besides Gaby Deslys will wear skirts above their knees with pretty silk garters entwining their hose and that a great many will have one hundred per cent. backless dinner gowns, always providing that legs and backs will stand this kind of exposure.

"The trouble is the Pope lives too near Paris," commented D. I. Nomerov of Russek's. "If he knew how American girls are dressing he probably wouldn't have found it necessary to voice this indictment on women's clothes. We don't look at things here from the viewpoint of the Pope and I do not see that his statement can conceivably have any effect on American styles. We are certainly not going to make a laughing stock of our women here and the average American looks askance at the extremes to which the French occasionally go in dress. The designer does not want to show anything that is not beautiful to the eye, and personally I do not conceive the knee-length dress and garter to be beautiful nor yet the roll-top stocking, but there is a certain demand for these things.

"Possibly a dozen prominent women will strut around in these and there will be much talk about it as if every woman in New York had donned them.

"The chief objection is the unsuitability of this kind of dress to the American type. A petite, dainty French woman can mince along with a knee-length befrilled dress, a silly little creation that looks well on her and would seem atrocious on the average American girl who is especially tailored.

BONDAGE OF STYLE.

"But the woman hasn't so much to say in it after all. It is entirely a question of what the designer tells her she must wear. If I tell our customers that their skirts must be cut at the knee, why then, they want them that way. Why should we look to France? Let France look to us because of our wonderful women. The designers do not believe in hiding the personality of the American girl.

"But we can't stop the coming of the short skirts. It is inevitable, and three inches below the knee is likely to be a common average. Elbow sleeves will continue to be worn. The entire back will be displayed in dinner gowns. In some respects we will outrival Paris."

M. G. Bernard of the Maison Bernard Fifty-seventh street and Fifth avenue, persists that French modes still have the upper hand and that extravagance in dress was never equaled, even in the brocaded days of Louis Quinze.

"From the designers' point of view, these extremes are desirable," said Mr. Bernard, "for the simple reason that the short skirt and kindred devices give a youthful appearance, and that, of course, is what is most wanted.

EXTREME IN DISPLAY.

"This winter we anticipate the most extreme display of extravagance and elegance ever witnessed. It is a reaction after the uniforms and modest dress of war-time. There is a rush on frilly feminine things. Brocades and expensive fabrics are being bought as if they were cotton. Fur, at fabulous prices, adorns everything. The perfectly bare back with the slim, harness-like strap is the vogue. Skirts short as they can be, of course—yes, and chic garters on view. Sheer materials will continue to be popular. Women want those things because French women are wearing them, and what they want they must have."

And Maurice Mendel, who looks after the needs of plenty of footlight belles, says they just naturally don't want anything that is "nice," that he refuses to sell gowns with shoulder straps, and that even if he had them his customers would not ask for them.

NOT RELIGIOUS ISSUE.

"I have a diversified clientele and I can honestly say they don't want anything that even borders on the indecent," declared Mr. Mendel today. "No designer really wants to sell clothes of this kind and a mighty small percentage of one's customers would stand for them. I do not know why the Pope has taken this matter up. It isn't a religious question at all and every woman is going to wear what she wants, anyway, so long as it is the fashion.

"The short skirt is coming, but I don't believe it will take very well in New York. One of the strongest reasons is that women won't be able to get boots high enough to wear with extremely short gowns and suits, for the boot manufacturers have set limits, if the dress designers have not."

Organized Labor to Meet and Discuss Retaliation for Anti-Union Legislation.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Organized labor intends to preserve the right to strike, officials of the American Federation of Labor said today in warning that passage in Congress of the anti-strike legislation proposed in a pending railroad bill would result in an immediate general walkout over the country.

William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, second largest union affiliated with the federation, said "direct action" might be resorted to if all other means of advancing the interest of the unions failed. He referred particularly to what he termed the efforts of employers to shut out unions by binding their workers with individual contracts.

Mr. Johnston announced that with the passage of the anti-strike legislation he would order immediately a vote on a strike of the 350,000 members of his association, and predicted that the heads of the other 112 international unions in the American Federation of Labor would take similar action.

It was said today that this legislation was one of the principal reasons the heads of the unions in the federation were to be summoned here for a conference in the near future.

Officials of the four railroad brotherhods conferred today with Samuel Gompers, president, and other officers of the federation. Present at the conference also were representatives of the following farm organizations: The National Board of Farm Organizations, the Federation of Milk Producers, the American Society of Equity and the National Farmers' Union.

Mr. Gompers issued the following statement at the conclusion of the meeting:

"General discussion ensued regarding the legislation pending in Congress inimical to the rights and interests of industrial and agricultural workers. Further discussion ensued regarding legislation which should be urged at the hands of Congress in the interests of the above.

"It was decided that the call for the conference determined upon by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, should be jointly issued by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods. It was decided that the conference should take place in Washington, Saturday, December 13.

"The representatives of the farmers' organizations, although in entire sympathy with the discussion and purposes, stated that they had no authority from their organizations to join in the call for the conference, but that their conventions, which would be held within a month from now, would be glad to receive invitations upon which to act and select delegates for the December 13 conference."

Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' Union and one of the farmers' representatives in the national industrial conference here, issued an appeal today to the farmers to "be prepared to aid our beloved country in her present hour of need."

"Menaced by intrenched privilege on the one hand and a perilous 'red' propaganda on the other," said Mr. Barrett, "the nation is facing the most dangerous situation since the Civil War."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 25.—A tunnel cave-in on the Southern Pacific Railroad on the Tehachepi Mountain near Merced, thirty miles east of Bakersfield, is delaying traffic south for the next twenty-four to forty-eight hours. Southern Pacific eastbound trains are running by way of the coast line. "Stub" trains are running between San Francisco and Bakersfield and trains leaving for the south tomorrow night will have to transfer around the tunnel. The cave-in was caused by an engine being derailed and running into the side of the tunnel.

PRESIDENT IS HOLDING RECENT HEALTH GAINS.

NEUROLOGIST MAKES WEEKLY VISIT AND OPTICIAN FITS NEW SPECTACLES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—President Wilson spent a quiet day and his physicians said he continued to hold the gains he has made recently.

The one exception to the "no-work-today" rule applied by Dr. Grayson was a report from the Cabinet, which held morning and late-afternoon sessions to discuss the impending coal strike. Dr. F. X. Dercum, the Philadelphia neurologist, made his weekly visit.

Postmaster-General Burleson called at the White House and asked Dr. Grayson to lay before the President some official business, but the physician did not do so, as he did not wish to deviate from his rule that the President spend the day in quiet.

The curtailment of bulletins on the President's condition began tonight when the usual 10 o'clock announcement was omitted.

During the day an optician called at the White House to fit the President with spectacles to replace his nose glasses, which had been troubling him by slipping off.

"President Wilson is slowly gaining in strength," said a bulletin issued earlier today by Drs. Grayson and Stitt and Dr. Sterling Ruffin of this city.

Dr. Grayson said he did not approve of the President being bothered with business cares today, and this was taken to mean that the prohibition enforcement bill would not be placed before him until next week.

ROOSEVELT'S ESTATE VALUED AT $810,607.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINEOLA (N. Y.) Oct. 25.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt left an estate valued at $810,607, according to affidavits filed here today with Transfer Tax Appraiser Gehrig by executors of the will.

After approximately $24,000 has been deducted for funeral expenses, counsel fees and debts, the entire estate will go to the widow of the former President in trust to be distributed among their children in any proportion she may determine.

A trust fund of $60,000 given to Col. Roosevelt by his father to be used by Mrs. Roosevelt during her life will revert to her children after her death.

Sagamore Hill, the Roosevelt estate at Oyster Bay, where the colonel died last January, is appraised at $180,500. The estate also includes corporate bonds valued at approximately $394,000, the largest of which is $30,000 worth of First Liberty Loan Bonds. The bonds also include a $1000 subscription to the Canadian Victory Loan and a $3000 Republic of Mexico bond, which is listed as worthless. Stocks owned by the former President are valued at approximately $184,000.

Royalties to be derived from publication of the colonel's books were estimated at $7000, while a value of $21,537 was placed on his libraries. One of the smallest items is one of $285, which represents the value of jewelry owned by the former President.

BARON AVEZZANO IN A FAREWELL AUDIENCE WITH KING BEFORE SAILING.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PINA (Italy) Oct. 25.—Baron and Baroness Romano Avezzano are here today awaiting a farewell audience with the King at his chateau in San Rossore near here, prior to sailing for America, where the Baron will assume the ambassadorial duties of the late Count di Cellere.

Rome regrets the departure of the Baroness, who was very popular in both Italian and Anglo-American circles. She came to Italy a bride, having married the Baron in Greece, where he was formerly Ambassador. The Baroness is an American and prior to her romantic marriage abroad was Miss Jacqueline Tyler of St. Louis. Her mother is now Mrs. Frederick E. Clark of New Brighton, Staten Island.

DENIKINE WINS ON LONG FRONT.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Heavy fighting is going on along Gen. Denikine's entire front. The fighting extends for 700 miles from Tsaritsyn to Kiev. The chief of the British military mission with Gen. Denikine reports under yesterday's date that the battle so far is going successfully for the anti-Bolshevik forces.

"It appears," says a report to the War Office, "that the Red armies, in a vehement attempt to restore the morale of the retreating troops, were concentrated on narrow fronts against important cities and junctions. They scored successes in the capture of Voronesh and Orel, but the occupation of these two places failed altogether to stem the general progress of Denikine.

"Between Tsaritsyn and Voronezh, the Don army has advanced from forty to fifty-five miles on a front of 120 miles during the past few days, taking many prisoners and much material.

"Yeliez, 230 miles southeast of Moscow, was captured Thursday. Volunteers, attacking Orel, have reached the southern outskirts of the town, where fighting is going on at the present time.

"Further west, volunteers are concentrating for an attack."

TROTZKY ALMOST TAKEN.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 25.—The entire staff of Leon Trotzky, Bolshevik Minister of War and Marine of Russia, has been captured at Tsarskoe Selo, according to a Reval dispatch to the National Tidende. Trotzky himself escaped by clinging to a railroad car and later fleeing from the scene in an automobile.

Troops of the Northwestern Russian army pursued the Minister and fired upon his car, but Trotzky succeeded in reaching Petrograd.

The left flank of Gen. Yudenitch's army is reported to be under fire from the Bolshevik dreadnaught Poltava, which is lying in the Neva River, inside of the limits of Petrograd, and shooting over the housetops.

TROTZKY BULLETIN.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik Minister of War and Marine of Russia, in describing the soviet counter-offensive and capture of Pavlovsk, south of Petrograd, and the repulse of anti-Bolshevik forces in the Pskov sector, says:

"The danger hanging over Petrograd has been driven back, but not yet definitely removed," according to a wireless dispatch received here from Moscow.

CLAIM THRUST PARRIED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Rallying under the command of Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik Minister of War and Marine, troops of the Russian soviet government have savagely attacked the lines of the Russian northwestern army and have succeeded in parrying, for the moment at least, the thrust of the latter against Petrograd, according to reports reaching this city. Tsarskoe Selo and Pavlovsk, south of Petrograd, have been recaptured from the forces of Gen. Yudenitch, it is claimed, and the advance of the Bolsheviki continues.

South of Moscow, where Gen. Denikine's advance has menaced to a certain degree the hold of the Bolsheviki on the ancient city of the Czars, fighting is going on, but nothing as to results obtained has been learned. Reports indicate, however, consideration by the soviet leaders of a plan to withdraw all Bolshevik troops into Turkestan and to abandon Moscow. Siberian forces are on their way to Odessa to assist Gen. Denikine in his campaign.

Tobolsk, Western Siberia, is said to have been captured from the Kolchak army by the Bolsheviki. This report, if confirmed, would indicate an advance of the soviet army in that sector, as last reports showed them quite a distance to the westward of Tobolsk.

SHADES OF BURNS! SCOTLAND DRY NEXT

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Scotland is going dry next year, according to the Rev. J. H. Jowett, who sailed on the Adriatic for England today after preaching a month in his former pulpit at the Fifth-avenue Presbyterian Church.

"A country," he said, "which has prohibition will become 80 per cent. more efficient than one which has not, and the drink-ridden countries across the sea will have to follow in the footsteps of the United States or fall behind in the economic race."

RECALL IS DEMANDED

Attack on Society, Says President.

Declares Action Morally Wrong and Blow at National Life.

Emphasizes that Walkout is not Sanctioned by Vote of Workers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—President Wilson issued a formal statement tonight with the approval of the full membership of his Cabinet, declaring the projected strike of bituminous coal miners under present circumstances "not only unjustifiable, it is unlawful."

The statement called upon officers of local unions to recall orders for the strike and added:

"I can do nothing less than to say that the law will be enforced and means will be found to protect the interests of the nation in any emergency that may arise out of this unhappy business."

The President declined to enter into the merits of the controversy between the miners and operators, but emphatically declared that the strike, which he characterized as the most far-reaching proposal in the nation's history to restrict production and distribution of all necessaries of life, had apparently been ordered without a vote of the individual miners concerned.

The President had earlier, through Secretary Tumulty, summoned the Cabinet in special session to consider the strike of coal miners. Director-General Hines of the Railroad Administration met with the Cabinet to present the situation from the standpoint of the railroads.

Secretary Lansing was confined to his home with a cold and could not attend. All other members of the President's official family were present and Secretary Glass presided. Secretary Tumulty was present to convey the views of the President on the situation.

In the Senate Senator Thompson introduced a resolution calling upon the executive branch of the government to "vindicate the power and majesty of the law" in the threatened strike. The resolution, which is to be called up Monday, declares the strike would "provoke violence, bloodshed and insurrection."

WILSON'S STATEMENT.

The President's statement follows:

"On September 23, 1919, the convention of the United Mine Workers of America, at Cleveland, O., adopted a proposal declaring that all contracts in the bituminous field shall be declared as having automatically expired November 1, 1919, and making various demands, including a 60 per cent. increase in wages and the adoption of a six-hour work day and five-day week; and providing that in the event a satisfactory wage agreement should not be secured for the central competitive field before November 1, 1919, the national officials should be authorized and instructed to call a general strike of all bituminous miners and mine workers throughout the United States, effective November 1, 1919.

"Pursuant to these instructions, the officers of the organization have issued a call to make the strike effective November 1. This is one of the gravest steps ever proposed in this country, affecting the economic welfare and the domestic comfort and health of the people. It is proposed to abrogate an agreement as to wages which was made with the sanction of the United States Fuel Administration and which was to run during the continuance of the war, but not beyond April 1, 1920. This strike is proposed at a time when the government is making the most earnest effort to reduce the cost of living and has appealed with success to other classes of workers to postpone similar disputes until a reasonable opportunity has been afforded for dealing with the cost of living.

INNOCENT VICTIMS.

"It is recognized that the strike would practically shut off the country's supply of its principal fuel at a time when interference with that supply is calculated to creat a disastrous fuel famine. All interests would be affected alike by a strike of this character and its victims would be not the rich, but the poor and the needy as well—those least able to provide in advance a fuel supply for domestic use. It would involve the shutting down of countless industries and the throwing out of employment of a large number of the workers of the country. It would involve stopping the operation of railroads, electric light and gas plants, steam railway lines and other public utilities, and the shipping to and from this country, thus preventing our giving aid to the Allied countries with supplies which they so seriously need. The country is confronted with this prospect at a time when the war itself is still a fact, when the world is still in suspense as to negotiations for peace, when our troops are still being transported and when their means of transport is in urgent need of fuel.

"From whatever angle the subject

Inside Story of the President's Work at Paris; Why He Collapsed.

WILSON'S FIGHT LONG AND HARD

Grilling Months of Struggle Great Physical Strain.

Tremendous Tasks Demanded Day and Night Work.

Reports Fail to Show Vital Details of Endeavor.

SHOWS RESULTS NOT PROCESSES.

Executive not Given to Dramatizing His Efforts.

Misunderstood Because He is not Playing for Laud.

Fails to Tell of Intricate Mass of Details.

RAY STANNARD BAKER, CLOSEST TO WILSON, TELLS OF STRUGGLE.

Here is the story every American has been waiting for—the inside details of the tremendous task of President Wilson in Paris, the greatest struggle any statesman has ever faced and how its immensity brought the collapse which has resulted in the President's serious illness. This is the first of six installments of a personal, non-partisan narrative dealing with Mr. Wilson's work in the Peace Conference.

The author is Ray Stannard Baker, the man most eminently fitted to present to America the gigantic fight waged by the President, a fight in which his ideals were in clash with the age-old selfishness of European nationalism. It shows Wilson day by day, working with a super-human strength, fighting foes abroad and backbiters at home.

William Allen White, fearless and brilliant newspaper editor, a man who stands at the height of his profession in America, has this to say of Mr. Baker, the author of this series:

"The newspaper men, however, did not get their best impressions of the President from Col. House, but from Ray Stannard Baker, who had charge of publicity for the American peace commission. There can be no doubt that Mr. Baker was closer to the President than any other man in the Peace Conference. He was with him every day and clearly had his confidence, and we reporters had access to Baker every hour of the working day. And we felt that Baker was upon better terms with the President than any other man in Paris. He came more nearly being intimate, if such a phrase may ever be used about as remote a man as Woodrow Wilson. And it is to the President's everlasting credit that the intimacy, or such a substitute for intimacy as could exist between the President and the chief of publicity, left Mr. Baker unshaken in his faith in Woodrow Wilson, the man.

"Baker is no courtier. He owed the President nothing, he asked the President nothing—and served him well. He was with him daily—sometimes many times daily — during the whole ordeal in Europe, and kept faith in Wilson, the man. During the days when the President was fighting a lone fight—and there were many of those days after he returned to Paris from America in March—Baker gave us the impression that the President was a rather sad, disillusioned but determined man."

The next installment will appear in Friday's Times.

BY RAY STANNARD BAKER.

President Wilson has returned from his western tour in behalf of the treaty and the League of Nations, and is still seriously ill at Washington. His task has broken him down, worn him out. He is as truly a casualty of the Great War as any man who fell in the line of duty.

Many people dislike the President—hate him, if you like. But no one who really saw him in action in Paris, saw what he did in those grilling months of struggle, fired at in front, sniped at from behind—and no one who has seen what he has had to do since he came home, with no opportunity for rest or relaxation—will for a moment belittle the immensity of his task or underrate his extraordinary endurance, energy, courage, both mental and physical.

More than once, there in Paris, going up in the evening to see the President, I found him looking utterly worn out, exhausted, often one side of his face twitching with nervousness. No soldier ever went into battle with more enthusiasm, more aspiration, more devotion to a sacred cause than the President had when he came to Paris; but day after day in those months, one saw him growing grayer and grayer, grimmer and grimmer, with the fighting lines deepening in his face.

BATTLE WITH FOES.

That story of what the President did at Paris, the battle he fought there, the kind of foes he had to meet, and the poison gases they used, has never yet been told. People do not see the forces that have brought him low, worn him out. The President himself has not told of the fight—he is constitutionally unable to do so.

Here was a man 63 years old—a man never rugged or strong, who came into the White House in 1913, far from being a well man. His digestion was poor and he had a serious, painful case of neuritis in his shoulder. It was even the opinion of as great a physician as Dr. Weir Mitchell of Philadelphia that he could probably not complete his term and retain his health. And yet such was the iron self-discipline of the man—that story has also yet to be told, and it is a wonderful human story—and such as the daily watchful care of Dr. Grayson, that instead of gradually going down under the tremendous tasks of the Presidency in the greatest, most crowded moments of our national history, he steadily gained strength and working capacity, until in those months in Paris he literally worked everybody at the Peace Conference to a standstill.

It is so easy and cheap to judge people, even Presidents, without knowing the problems they have to face. So much of the President's alleged aloofness, so much of his unwillingness to expend energy upon unnecessary business, unnecessary visitors—especially the visitors—was due directly to the determination to husband and expend his too limited energies upon tasks that seemed to him essential.

TREMENDOUS WORKER.

As I say, he worked everybody at the Peace Conference to a standstill. He worked not only the American delegates, but the way he drove the leisurely diplomats of Europe was often shameful to see. One day he suggested a meeting of the big four at 9 o'clock in the morning in Paris. Clemenceau shook his old head and looked despairingly at the President, as though giving him up as hopeless.

Sometimes he would have two meetings going on at the same time. Once I found a meeting of the big four going on in his study, and a meeting of the financial and economic experts—twenty or thirty of them—in full session upstairs in the drawing-room—and the President oscillating between the two.

It was he who was always the driver, the initiator, at Paris, he worked longer hours, had more appointments, granted himself less recreation, than any other man, high or low, at the Peace Conference. For he was the central figure there. Everything headed up in him.

Practically all of the meetings of the council of four—the "Big Four"—were held in his study in the Place des Etats-Unis. This was the capitol of the Peace Conference; here all the important questions were decided. Everyone who came to Paris upon any mission whatsoever aimed first of all at seeing the President. Representatives of the little, downtrodden nationalities of the earth—from eastern Europe, Asia and Africa—thought if they could only get at the President, explain their pathetic ambitions, confess their troubles to him, all would be well.

I remember vividly one such delegation which symbolized the instinctive trust of the smaller nations in America, and their hope in Wilson's leadership. I came into the office one morning and found two as extraordinary figures as ever came to Paris. They were Polish peasants, clad in their own homespun natural wool, red embroidered, with Cossack caps of shaggy black fur. They had with them a Polish priest to tell what they wanted. It seems that they were from a little pocket settlement of Poles in the mountains of Northern Austria, and that in the boundaries that had been set at Paris they were included in the new nation of the Czecho-Slovaks.

They told, and the priest interpreted, how they had heard in their mountain homes that the American President who was at Paris had said that people should be free, should have a right to determine how and by whom they should be governed. They wanted to be in Poland, not in Czecho-Slovakia, and so they had set out to walk to Paris to tell the President so. As soon as they got out of their own native mountains they lost their way—so they told me—and turned aside to inquire of a Polish sheepherder. He was a man," said the priest, "who knew the stars, and the way to go." This sheepherder, when they told him their story and what they were going to do, said he, too, "wanted to be free," (so the priest expressed it) and came along with them to watch the stars and point out the way to go.

A LONG PILGRIMAGE.

They walked some hundred or more miles into Warsaw, where their story attracted the attention of a patriotic Polish society, which sent them on to Paris. And they came down the boulevards straight to the Crillon Hotel to find President Wilson. They actually did find him. I saw the three of them—the two peasants and the astronomer who knew the stars, and the priest who talked for them—going up the carpeted stairs of the President's house and into his book-walled study. And I could smell the very odor of their thick-woven wool garments, redolent of the soil, in that unfamiliar place.

I think that no one who was in Paris will ever forget the way in which the people of the little oppressed nations of the world turned to America for leadership or staked their passionate hope in the principles of justice laid down by President Wilson. And it now appears that there are those in America who would shake off every claim to such leadership because it involves new duties and responsibilities!

Well, the President saw and heard scores of such foreign delegations; he received patiently the representatives of many organizations of working men, business men, journalists, women; he saw groups of Jews, Irish, Armenians, Poles, and I don't know how many others; he labored day after day with disputatious experts of all the delegations; he attended innumerable committee meetings.

WORKED EVERY NIGHT.

In addition to meeting all the problems that Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Orlando had to meet, he took upon himself, as his especial task, the chairmanship of the League of Nations Commission, which, in order not to interrupt the regular sessions of the council of ten or the council of four, often met at night, with the discussions sometimes extending far beyond midnight. It was the hardest worked commission at the conference.

I saved the list of the President's appointments for a single day (May 12, 1919.) on which there happened to be no meeting of the council of four. It gives a vivid glimpse of his activities. Here it is:

ONE DAY'S JOB.

At 11:00 a.m. — Prince Charoon and the Siamese delegation of the Peace Conference.

At 11:30 a.m.—Dr. A. Markoff and the Carpatho-Russian committee to present the situation in Carpatho-Russia.

At 11:45 a.m.—M. Olivier, president of the National Union of Railway Men of France, to explain the humanitarian and sanitary programme of the national union of French and Belgian railway men.

At 12:00 m.—Mr. J. Jacob, president of the Celtic Circle of Paris, to present an anthology of national bards and poets.

At 12:15 p.m.—Dr. Juan Antonio Buero and M. Jacob Verela Acevedo, delegates to the Peace Conference from Uruguay.

At 12:30 p.m. — Turkhan Pasha, president of the present government of Albania, to present the claims of Albania.

At 12:45 p.m.—Senor Villegas, ex-Secretary of State of Chile, Minister of Chile at Rome.

At 2:15 p.m.—Dr. Edward Benes and M. Kramar, to discuss the problem of Silesia and the Teschen coal basin.

At 2:30 p.m.—M. Damour, French Deputy, chairman of the committee to explain the plans for the erection of a statue at the mouth of the Gironde River to commemorate the arrival of American troops in France.

At 2:45 p.m.—A delegation from the Parliament of Kuban, in Northern Caucasia.

At 3:00 p.m.—The archbishop of Trebizond, M. Chrysanthos.

At 3:15 p.m.—Gov. Manning of South Carolina.

At 3:30 p.m.—M. Joseph Reinach of the Paris Figaro.

I recall asking, when I received this list of appointments: "Is this all?"

DUAL RESPONSIBILITY.

No, it was not all. He had had guests in for luncheon and he had completed on that day his important message to the extraordinary session of Congress, which he had called to meet on May 20. This was a document of some 3500 words and he had written it himself on his typewriter. It must not be forgotten, in thinking of the President's task at Paris, that he was constantly required to face problems and make decisions regarding affairs at home, some of them requiring much time and thought.

Besides all of these things, he was called upon as no other man of any nation at the conference was called upon—almost forced—to attend public functions of various sorts, to make speeches, to visit neighboring countries—and he was often bitterly censured because he did not do more of this, did not visit more frequently the devastated districts of France, did not review this parade, or accept that exhausting hospitality. How he stood up to these stupendous responsibilities, these innumerable tasks, day after day, month after month, is a marvel to those who were there and really knew what was going on.

Once, as is well known, he broke down entirely and was ill in bed for several days at a very critical moment in the Peace Conference. Yet such was his power of self-discipline, and such the care of Dr. Grayson, that he recuperated swiftly, and each morning seemed as full of energy and as eager to go on with the fight as ever.

Even when hardest pressed he never failed to make a powerful impression upon everyone who came into contact with him. I saw many of his visitors soon after they left him, and the reaction was unfailing. I remember asking a famous Dutch editor—a man who had come into personal contact with nearly every important leader in Europe—what he thought of the President.

"I have never met any man," he said, "who gave an impression of greater distinction and dignity than your President. He has outward strength and inward gentleness."

Whatever may be said by his enemies at home—and he has plenty of them—the President never upon any occasion whatsoever, no matter how difficult, failed to represent America and the American people with distinction. He never represented what was cheap or crude in American life, but unfailingly what was highest and best; and he was not less successful in capturing the critical audience at the Sorbonne, where he made one of his notable speeches, than he was with the mass of the workers who swarmed around the Crillon Hotel On May Day shouting "Vive Wilson, vive le President."

BLURRED IMPRESSION.

In spite, however, of all the discussion and inquiry that has been going on at Washington during the last three months, in spite of all the President's own explanations and speeches, his exact service at Paris, so it seems to me, has never been properly understood. A vast mass of facts regarding the conference and the treaty have been poured out before the American people—one cannot see the forest for the trees!—but there has been no clear or definite picture of what the President actually did at Paris, why he did it and what his influence meant in the deliberations.

For this want of a popular understanding and appreciation of his own service the President himself is no doubt largely responsible.

There is no man living in the world today who is such a master of the art of presenting ideas, ideals, arguments, reasons as President Wilson; no man more captivating. But with all this mastery he has no gift at all for dramatizing events so that people can see and feel them. I think he has never characterized a personality in public (though sometimes delightfully in private) so that it caught in men's minds; never hit off a specific situation in which he had acted so that it could not be forgotten. He can express—and no one better anywhere—what he thinks; but not what he did, or why or how. Examine his speeches and you will find them full of "I think," "I believe," "I feel," "I hope," and far less frequently "I did," "I went," "I fought." He has not the art of presenting a situation with all its heroic aspects—as Roosevelt had, as La Follette of Wisconsin has in still higher measure—the dark forces ranged on one side and the angels of light on the other—and himself the leader with a shining sword. Lloyd George today owes much of his success in England to this gift for dramatization.

CRAVE DRAMATICS.

When people complain vaguely that they have not been given the "facts" it is this that they mean: they want to see and feel what happened: they do not so much care to think about it.

Day after day, as I went up to him after the meetings of the council of four it seemed his desire to have the events of the day—which he often related in private with the greatest freedom and with color and humor—go out in the smallest possible capsule; and give only accomplished results, not the process by which they were brought about.

He acts vigorously; he has unlimited courage to do when his mind is made up, and he is not afraid to assume the most towering responsibilities — as he showed again and again at Paris—but he cannot tell about it afterwards! When he came home to America in February, bringing the first covenant of the League of Nations—a dramatic moment, if ever there was one—a President returning for the first time from a foreign country bringing in his pocket a new constitution for a government of the world—and made his speeches in Boston and New York—greatly as he presented the case, the arguments, the reasons, for the league—one felt a vague popular disappointment at not getting more specific reports of what had happened at Paris; what the actual situation had been: what were the forces at work and the how and why of the various articles.

CLASH AND STRUGGLE.

Now, there was a wonderful and highly dramatic story of the fight for the league. Some of the ablest men in the world sat in at those night conferences in Col. House's office at the Hotel Crillon; there were dramatic clashes between powerful personalities symbolizing the struggle between fundamental conceptions of international policy—like the clash on the race question, which ran throughout the sessions of the League of Nations Commission like a crimson thread. The history of the origin of the covenant itself is profoundly interesting; and the building of various articles by subcommission, with suggestions from every side, is in itself a fascinating story. Much of this could have been made public without injuring any cause or even bruising any susceptibilities.

It is not far from the truth to say that the covenant, when first presented to the American public, surprised and shocked many people. It shocked people as any hard, cold, specific, practical realization of a beautiful ideal must always shock people. It falls so far short of the warm imagination of hopeful liberals; it goes so far toward confirming the worst fears of the conservatives, that it disappoints both extremes, discourages one, alarms the other. But if the ordinary reasonable American could have sat in at those conferences of the fourteen nations in Col. House's office at the Hotel Crillon day after day—or failing that, had had the proceedings presented so dramatically and vividly that he could really understand—he would have seen all the forces at work against the lurid background of a suffering Europe, would have been why, with such warring ideals and interests, there had to be much give and take—much of what the President calls "accommodation"—and would no doubt have come out about where the commission came out and would have adopted much the same kind of covenant.

DELICATE SITUATION.

But there was no such dramatization—with the result that there has had to be a stupendous fight here at home. There are many reasons, of course, outside of the President's constitutional inability to dramatize people and events, why such publicity would have been very difficult. Few people realize how tremendous and explosive was the situation throughout Europe during the conference. All the governments were shaky; a little mis-step on the part of Lloyd-George, Clemenceau or Orlando, and their ministries might have gone down. They were all sensitive to publicity; all desperately afraid; all dominated by the old European system of diplomacy, which hates publicity.

And while Mr. Wilson had not that problem to face, for he was assured of the stability of his own situation until March, 1921, nevertheless he was sitting in "common council" with these men; and if it was to be a real conference with any real result there had to be a genuine working together, give and take. Moreover, it has been more difficult to inform the American public than the English public, for example. We have been, throughout our history, detached in our interest in foreign affairs; we had not the basic information regarding international affairs to begin with; and everything that reached America promptly had to go through a few over-crowded cables or an over-loaded wireless system at an enormous cost for tolls. Under these circumstances, with the affairs of the entire world under review, with hundreds of committees at work and scores of nations represented—it was next to impossible to give any connected idea of what was happening without going to a length of explanation that the cables could not carry and the people at home would not read.

RETROSPECTIVE VIEW.

But it is possible, now that it is all over, to look back along the troubled history of the Peace Conference and to measure with a little clearer vision what it was that happened there and what President Wilson did. A public man is perhaps best exhibited at the critical and decisive moments where all his forces are engaged, where he is tested to the uttermost.

As one looks back, there appear clearly five crises in the Peace Conference, five decisive battles. Each one of them centered upon some point in the President's leadership and arose directly out of the clash between President Wilson's principles and ideals with the interests of other nations or groups of nations.

In at least three of these crises the Peace Conference was much nearer breaking up than the world yet knows. Some of these crises, like the one that centered around the Shantung decision, are fairly well-known to the public, while others, though equally important, like that which attended the struggle to decide the future colonial policy of the world, attracted almost no attention either at the time or since—this largely because the discussions were kept so secret. These five crises briefly were as follows, in the order in which they occurred:

FIVE CRISES.

First, the settlement of world colonial policy by the adoption of the new mandatory system.

Second, the fight between those who wanted the League of Nations covenant made an integral part of the treaty and those who wanted it left for discussion after the treaty was adopted. It was really the struggle between those who wanted an effective league and those who did not want one.

Third, the crisis of May, which led President Wilson to order the "George Washington," and to consider the possibility of the withdrawal of America from the conference.

Fourth, the President's note to the Italian people regarding the situation at Fiume, which caused the Italian delegates to withdraw from the conference.

Fifth, the Shantung settlement.

A brief account of each of these crises—to be presented in following articles—will show with some clearness exactly what Mr. Wilson did at Paris and why he did it.

STYLE IN CLOTHES

CONSCIOUSLY or unconsciously, man wants style in his clothes. Some manufacturers embody more style, or good looks, in their clothes than others.

It is the merchant with a lifetime of experience that naturally has a superior knowledge regarding the makers who can produce the best looking garments—well designed, better tailored and most attractively finished.

This knowledge may be viewed as protective knowledge—it means that his patrons in wearing the clothes so carefully selected are protected against undependable clothes and that they are assured of style and wearability.

There's a Story Told by Every Comb and Brush

—And more often it's the sad story of falling hair and dandruff. Why is it so many men and women absolutely neglect their hair, except to brush it two or three times a day—asks Prof. John H. Austin, of Chicago, 40 years a Bacteriologist, Hair and Scalp Specialist. If only the hair could ache or cause pain, there would be fewer cases of baldness and more people would have a luxuriant growth of beautiful, lustrous hair.

—Prof. Austin, who is now at Hamburger's, says that people who are at all troubled with any kind of hair and scalp trouble, such as

—Itching Scalp
—Falling Hair
—Excessively Oily Hair
—Dry and Brittle Hair
—Dandruff
—Split Hair
—Gray or Faded Hair

—Should have their hair examined at once under his powerful microscope.

—Prof. Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

—During the past four years at Hamburger's Prof. Austin has made thousands of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp.

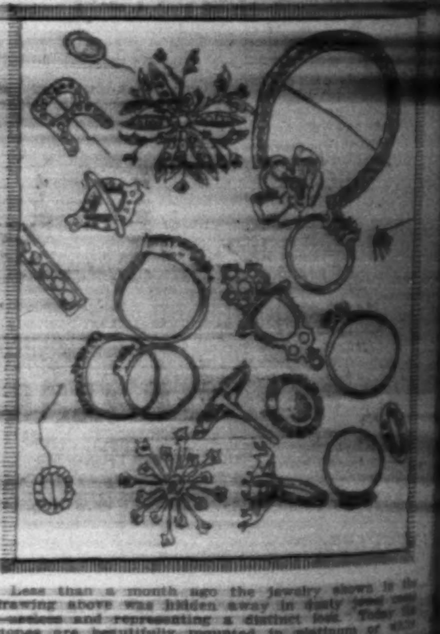
—Prof. Austin invites both men and women to take advantage of the FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp this week in his private office on the second Floor of Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 and 2 to 4 daily.

Re-creating Jewelry

Styles of today are vastly different from [illegible] of a few years ago. Your jewelry, fashionable when you bought it, may now be [illegible] out of date. Naturally you hesitate to [illegible] it and just as naturally you dislike to [illegible] investment.

Why, then, do you not have it RE-CRE[illegible]ATED—made into the beautiful barpins and rings and lavallieres you see on so many [illegible] dies of fashion? The work need not be [illegible] pensive, and you shall say about the styles for our artists will make you designs [illegible] quote you prices while you wait.

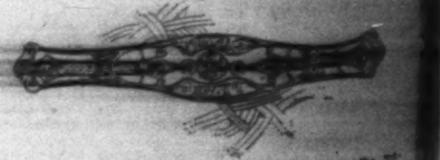
Permit us to suggest that when you call [illegible] bring your out-of-date jewelry with [illegible] our estimates may be exact. This [illegible] without charge.



Less than a month ago the jewelry shown in the drawing above was hidden away in dusty jewel cases—ancient and representing a distinct loss. Today the stones are beautifully mounted in platinum or [illegible] gold, such as you see in our show windows.

Examples

An antique diamond horseshoe brooch, made of old gold, furnished the material for this charming [illegible] gold and platinum bar pin. The large center stone was from our stock of unmounted gems.



This charming barpin was fashioned from the material found in two old platinum top cluster rings and a man's scarfpin. The cut does scant justice to the beauty of the design.

The diamonds from one of the [illegible] some years ago furnished all but two of the [illegible] quired for this barpin. Made of platinum for an out-of-town customer who ordered by mail.

SHIPYARDS ARE IN NEED OF AID.

Reduction in Steel Rates to Coast is Urged.

John T. Scott Points Out Necessity of Action.

Must Have Opportunity for Fair Competition.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Pacific Coast shipbuilders may be placed on a basis to compete with the other shipbuilding yards of the country by a new rate of 81 cents per 100 pounds on steel needed in shipbuilding from Pittsburgh to Coast points. Director of Traffic Chambers and Director of Public Service Thelen of the Railroad Administration today promised some relief from the present rate of $1.25 per 100 pounds, but would not indicate how much of a reduction would be made. They said that action would be taken promptly.

When the committee of the Pacific Coast Shipbuilders' Traffic Association appeared, headed by John T. Scott, they were accompanied by Senator Phelan of California and Senator Jones of Washington, Congressman Osborne of Los Angeles, Congressmen Nolan, Raker and Elston of California, Hawley and McArthur of Oregon, Miller and Hadley of Washington.

COAST FACES SHUTDOWN.

Two hundred thousand deadweight tons of steel ships for private parties have been ordered since the armistice, Mr. Scott said, and of this great tonnage the Pacific Coast has only secured fifteen per cent. Government work is being completed and many of the ways are becoming empty. By March, unless steps are immediately taken to get new business, all the ways on the Coast will be empty, he added. One hundred and fifty thousand men are employed in round numbers on the Coast in the shipbuilding industry. Mr. Scott pointed out that the west coast yards during the war furnished 53 per cent. of all steel vessels built for the Emergency Fleet Corporation and that this was done with only 15 per cent. of the capital necessary supplied by the government, whereas in the East many of the yards were entirely financed by the government. Mr. Scott and other members of the committee declared that when 85 per cent. of the capital and all of the enthusiasm necessary in developing a great industry had been furnished by the patriotic men of the Coast they at least should have an even break on freight rates.

He declared that the competition of Japan would have to be met in some other way, but that the Pacific yards, by the reduction of the rate on steel shipments to the figure asked, would at least be on a parity with the eastern yards and be enabled to get half of the business instead of a trifling 15 per cent. He said the great shipbuilding plants were an incentive to all other lines of manufacturing and were helping the Pacific Coast to become a manufacturing center.

AID MUST COME.

Congressman Nolan showed how the whole industry had been developed and that aid must be given promptly or the shipbuilding industry built up by the war would shrink and die out as it did when the competition of the East forced it under in the 90's after a stimulating differential allowed by the government in the price of ships was withdrawn.

In order to prevent the steel rate reduction from being a general reduction on all steel and iron supplies the contention was narrowed to one for steel used in ships exclusively. The committee submitted this proposed tariff definition for the purpose of securing the low rate asked for:

A suggestion for an additional item in the tariff covering steel used for shipbuilding purposes.

SIBERIAN TRADE IS CONFERENCE THEME.

RUSSIA'S RAPID RECOVERY FROM BOLSHEVISM IS GENERALLY PREDICTED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 24.—Because of the rapidly increasing interest in Siberian trade conditions, the Pacific Coast delegates on the last day of the International Trade Conference devoted a great deal of time to the committee of Russians appointed by the embassy at Washington in acceptance of the United States Chamber of Commerce invitation to attend the sessions. Delegates desiring first-hand information on Russia kept the newly-arrived guests busy.

M. Eugene Schneider, head of the French mission, who yesterday in the course of remarks on Bolshevism said, "It is only too true today that in the grip of that mad force Russia is slowly dying," desired this morning to more clearly express the real meaning of this statement.

"Russia will continue to die only so long as the evil of Bolshevism remains upon her," said Mr. Schneider. "Bolshevism is taking her best men and women, which is ruinous to a nation, but I want the business men of America and the world to know that I think Russia will blow away the fog of Bolshevism and enter a period of reorganization within a year. Russia will more quickly recover if all nations owing her so much for what she did in the war will co-operate in aiding her restore herself, for we cannot forget the thousands of Russian soldiers who, during the first years of the war gave their lives for the cause of civilization. I have faith in the future of Russia and gratitude for her past."

Maynard McFie of Los Angeles called upon members of the Russian committee this afternoon. Pending trade relations were discussed. In the party is M. Oustinoff, Consul-General of Russia in New York; P. Routsky, G. Tahirkov, counsels of Russia; V. Ananieff, assistant commercial attache, and Ilia Kostelianetz. Another interesting Russian registered at the convention is V. N. Baskiroff, managing director of the Siberian Creamery Association, accompanied by V. S. Kolyesnikoff, executive secretary of the American Committee of Siberian Agricultural Co-operative Unions of New York.

The Russian committee and various western delegates were dinner guests of Phil Norton, adviser on trade conditions to Russian and American commercial institutions who are interested in developing trade relations.

HEAVIEST RAINFALL IS SOUTH OF TEHACHEPI.

OF INCALCULABLE VALUE TO STOCKMEN--FROST PREVENTION PLANS MADE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—The first general rain of the year fell yesterday from the southern boundary of the State to Red Bluff in the north. The precipitation has been light, with more rainfall south of the Tehachepi than in Central California. The storm was central over Southern Nevada, and is local in character.

E. A. Beals, in charge of the local Weather Bureau, said that another storm was central over Colorado, while an area of high pressure, accompanied by unusual cold, lay over the North Pacific States. If the Nevada storm moves northward, Beals predicts continued rain; while, if it moves east, fair weather will return to California.

NO DAMAGE REPORTED.

No damage caused by the storm has been reported. The Weather Bureau believes that some damage may have been done to the tomato crop and possibly to rice, but the benefit that will come to the stockmen through the increased feed on the ranges will more than offset any harm done.

Several inches of snow fell at Reno yesterday. Snow was also reported throughout Idaho and Montana. At Helena the thermometer reached two degrees below zero, a record-breaking temperature for this season of the year.

The rainfall in San Francisco amounted to little more than intermittent showers.

POMONA GETS FROST MAN.

In anticipation of the freezing temperatures that begin to come in some parts of the State at this time of year, F. D. Young, government specialist in preventing damage to citrus fruit by frost, is leaving for Pomona, where he will be in charge of the prevention of crop damage in the southern orange belt. He has prepared a set of charts which show that frost is more liable to come near the ground than at the top of trees. The government expects to reduce the loss of fruit by freezing to a minimum this year, Young said.

DRINK AND VICE LAWS ASKED BY NAVY HEAD.

PEACE-TIME CONTROL SHOULD SUPPLANT WAR MEASURES NEAR NAVAL CAMPS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Peace-time authority to suppress vice and the sale of liquor in the vicinity of naval training stations is asked by Secretary of the Navy Daniels in a letter to the House. He transmitted a bill making permanent provisions along this line applying to naval training stations, as contained in sections 12 and 13 of the Selective Service Act.

"The benefits derived by the navy from the protection afforded naval training stations through the efficient administration of the provisions of the law during the present war are so fully appreciated by the Naval Service that it is desired to have said acts continued in force for the protection of the naval training stations which must be operated in time of peace as well as in time of war," said Secretary Daniels in his letter. "The fact that the same immoral and degenerating forces operate in time of peace as in time of war, and require the same application of combative forces if they are to be overcome, is too self-evident to require an explanation."

URGENT ORDERS FOR MAJ. EDDY.

Col. William A. Shunk, army recruiting officer in Los Angeles, has just received a telegram from the Adjutant-General of the army concerning Maj. A. J. Eddy, Coast Artillery. Col. Shunk is anxious to have Maj. Eddy get into immediate communication with him as the matter is of the greatest importance.

FIGHT WATER CASE.

Suit to Decide Rate Rights of City-Owned Systems.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Whether the Owens River aqueduct, the Hetch Hetchy water system and all other municipally owned utilities operating outside the limits of their respective communities should be brought under the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission was to be decided in an action taken to the Supreme Court by the city-owned electric and power system of Pasadena, Douglas Brookman, attorney for the commission, announced here today.

The Pasadena plant was declared a public utility and made subject to the commission's regulation because of extensions made beyond the city limits into South Pasadena, where a competing company protested.

Pasadena filed the action in the Supreme Court to overturn the commission's ruling and place the sole rate-making and regulatory power in the city. It was expected that the preliminary hearing would take place at the present session of the court in Los Angeles.

Cured Her Fits.

Mrs. Paul Gram, residing at 916 Fourth street, Milwaukee, Wis., recently gave out the following statement: "I had suffered with fits (epilepsy) for over fourteen years. Doctors and medicine did me no good. It seemed that I was beyond all hope of relief when at last I secured a preparation that cured me sound and well. Over ten years have passed and the attacks have not returned. I wish everyone who suffers from this terrible disease would write R. P. N. Lepso, 94 Island avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., and ask for a bottle of the same kind of medicine which he gave me. He has generously promised to send it postpaid, free to any one who writes him."—[Advertisement.

Tongue Scrapers
Ear Sponges Eye Cups
and Leeches

These are strange names to most people and yet they, with a considerable number of others, emphasize the thought of thoroughness in The Owl Drug Company efforts to properly serve the public. The articles mentioned above are in the same category with—

Sick Feeders—Scientifically shaped porcelain urns for giving liquid food to the bed-ridden.
Vaccination Shields—A necessary and welcome protection.
Camel's Hair Brushes—For applying Iodine and other liquids.
Nose Cups—For cleansing the nostrils.
Ice Bags—For intensely cold applications.
Night Lights—Perfectly safe, dim-burning tapers.
Ear Stopples—For swimmers who are bothered with water in the ears.
Blackhead Removers—For eliminating these undesirables.
Cupping Cups—For facial massage.

The busy, bustling Owl Drug Stores give out the impression that everything in stock must be finding a ready sale. But the fact is that the articles mentioned above and many others are called for but a few times a year in each store. They are carried in stock to meet the unusual requests that are made upon drug stores. From a profit-making standpoint they are entirely eliminated—but profit is not the only thought in directing minds of The Owl Drug Company.

FANNY WARD'S PRICES TOO HIGH FOR PAREE.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Oct. 24.—Fanny Ward, who had been doing film work in France, promised Leon Volterra to appear at the Casino de Paris and do an act before she returned to the United States. Finding herself free for a couple of weeks, Miss Ward phoned Volterra and made an appointment.

"How much salary do you demand for a ten-minute act and nine performances a week?" Volterra inquired.

"I don't know. How much did you figure on?" Miss Ward replied.

"Perhaps about a 100 francs each performance," Volterra said.

"That's 900 francs a little more than a $100 per week," replied Miss Ward. "Why, I could not be bothered to appear for less than $100 each performance."

So Paris will have to be content with seeing Fanny Ward on the screen only, as French managers can't and won't pay American salaries.

Horse show. Special events for children, riding and driving; championship high jump; prize events for special classes.

Today is the last, biggest and best day of the Live-stock Show at Exposition Park, the last chance this year to see the finest exhibit of prize stock ever assembled in Los Angeles.

An immense crowd is expected, by reason of the three big features which will give the wind-up of the fair a carnival aspect. A horse show composed of the combined cards scheduled for yesterday and today will be followed by a racing matinee in which some of the world's fastest horses will compete. Then the final pageant, a serpentine parade of all the winners in the horse and cattle classes, will be staged before the main grand stand.

In anticipation of a record-breaking throng, the grounds will be opened at 8 o'clock a.m. It is suggested by the fair management that those attending come early so as to see the live-stock exhibits before the big events of the afternoon begin.

WINNERS' PARADE.

In the parade will be 500 prize-winning horses and cattle. Each will have an attendant leading it. Mrs. Anita Baldwin's prize winners, forty-five strong, will be led in review by forty-five uniformed attendants. The parade will begin at 1:30 p.m.

The prize winners will serpentine before the main grand stand until there are five lines marching and counter-marching before the spectators, then the serpentine parade will unwind and the live stock will be returned to their exhibitors' sheds where they may be again seen at close view.

A special championship high jump, open to all, will feature the horse show. There are nine entries for this event. The winner will get a handsome silver trophy donated by Maurice de Mond. Other horse show events are: Class 7, children's ponies, not to exceed 13 hands 2 inches, driven by children; Class 13, children's riding competition for all children under 16 years of age, to determine the best boy or girl rider; special class for short-tail harness horses; class 20, groups of six saddle horses, property of riding schools and horses actually used for livery purposes to be judged by their fitness to do the work required of them and one of the group to be ridden by the exhibitor; class 25, $300 prize donated by the Rosslyn Hotel, champion three-gaited saddle horse open to first and second-prize winners.

DOG SHOW FEATURE.

In striking contrast to old-fashioned county fairs where homely heifers gazed with sad-eyed longing at wisps of hay dripping from the hair and clothes of bucolic spectators was the ultra-smart dog show which featured yesterday's programme. Instead of Farmer Jones driving up to the fair in his one-horse shay, madame drives to the show in her high-powered limousine. Instead of listening to a recital of the merits of "my cow Maude" by Farmer Jones, one hears madame discussing the endearing traits of her toy Pomeranian with some other social queen.

Sunshine and fair weather brought a crowd estimated at 8000 to the show yesterday. The streets surrounding the entrance were packed with machines and the dog show tent was so jammed with Los Angeles society that it was exceedingly difficult to move from one exhibit to another.

Canine aristocrats, reared in the lap of luxury and exhibited on silken cushions attracted the crowd to the dog show. There was always a throng gathered about the judging ring, where the pets of numerous social leaders competed for honors. Feeling ran high; the lucky winners being swamped with congratulations and the losers surrounded by condoling friends.

KETTLE RAILS BLACK POT PACKERS' CHARGE.

"BIG FIVE" SEEKS TO PUT THE BLAME FOR GROCERS' COMPLAINT ON THE RAILROADS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—The "big five" packers today made an effort to put the blame on the railroads for alleged poor service rendered the wholesale grocers in the Iowa-Nebraska, territory, but representatives of the railroads objected and the matter was dropped.

The incident occurred during the hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission which is investigating complaints made by the National Wholesale Grocers' Association that 317 railroad companies are giving discriminatory service to the packers to the detriment of the grocers.

HAYNES CITES POOR SERVICE.

J. H. Haynes, commissioner of the traffic bureau of the Sioux City Association of Commerce, was on the stand being examined by Attorney Barry Hilbert, representing Cudahy & Co., about an exhibit submitted by the witness showing a comparison of time in transit for over 1000 shipments.

"In several instances," said the attorney, "I notice that it took three and four days for shipments from the packers as well as from the grocers to move less than 100 miles. As a matter of fact, doesn't that show that it is a case of poor service on the part of the railroads rather than special service? And doesn't this poor service affect the packers as well as the grocers?"

OBJECTIONS TO TESTIMONY.

Before the witness could answer, however, Attorney James Stillwell objected. The chairman directed that line of questioning be dropped.

Mr. Haynes was asked by Attorney Clifford Thorne, representing the wholesale grocers if he knew of any independent packers who were successfuly operating privately owned refrigerator cars and the witness replied that there were many, notably the Evansville Packing Company of Evansville, Ind.

W. E. Tackabery, president of the Tackaberry Wholesale Grocery Company of Sioux City, testified that the packers were cutting into his business greatly because of their superior service and C. D. Mowen, commissioner of the traffic bureau of the Fort Smith Association of Commerce testified concerning the special service rendered the packers in Arkansas and Oklahoma. The hearing will be resumed Monday morning.

Soldier of Fortune to California.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 25.—Delphin M. Delmas, former British sergeant-major who was awarded the Victoria Cross for bravery at Gaza, Palestine, 1915, and who recently was paroled by Gov. Hart, after being convicted at Aberdeen, Wash., of a charge of breaking jail, said today he expected to go to California to work on a newspaper as soon as the Governor will permit him to leave the State. Delmas, a one-time Texas bank cashier, was arrested in 1911 and charged with forgery. He broke jail and joined the British army. At one time during the war, he says, he escaped from a German prison camp.

Widows and Orphans Should be Protected.

Last winter thousands of men died who intended "later on"—at a more convenient season—to insure their lives. Procrastination in many instances spells privation and want. Men hurry to insure their inflammable assets, but are woefully careless about protecting their families or making their wills. Is your family adequately protected? If not, see our policy—monthly income for your family when you die, for yourself in old age or if totally disabled before age 65. MASSACHUSETTS MUTUAL LIFE, F. E. SMOKES IN PARIS UP; NO MORE FROM A.E.F.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Oct. 24.—The American peace commission is wondering where it is going to purchase cigars, cigarettes and candy after November 1, following an announcement by the American army sales commissary that it will sell nothing more to Hotel Crillon after that date.

Since the Peace Conference opened last December the cigar stands at the Crillon have provided smokes and candy for everyone attached to the commission. It afforded a great saving, as French cigarettes and cigars are tremendously expensive and hard to find at any price. An ordinary package of French cigarettes costs 4 or 5 francs, and the cheapest cigar costs 2½ or 3 francs.

The management of the Crillon is trying to buy a big stock of cigars and cigarettes from the A.E.F. sales commissary and the War Department at Washington has been appealed to so far without result.

The Sun Drug Co.

-if Vivaudou makes it "The SUN" has it

We are proud to be able to say that "The SUN" stores are headquarters for VIVAUDOU products in Southern California. To be so recognized brings to this institution a prestige which really means more to us than the profit we realize through the sale of vast quantities of perfumes and toilet requisites from this famous maker. We cannot too highly recommend the various VIVAUDOU lines, not alone for their supreme quality, but because of the beauty of the packages which so gracefully contain the preparations.

"LADY MARY"

"Flowers of France, Flowers of France," Lady Mary Perfume seems to sing as one breathes its wondrous fragrance in Creme and Face Powder, Talcum, Sachet, Toilet Water and even in Soap! The genius of Vivaudou has created these remarkable toilet requisites for those whom experience has taught discrimination and who have learned that the touch of a French "maitre de parfum" is inimitable.

"MAVIS"

Mavis has been called the "Harmony of Flowers," and true it is that the symphony of its floral fragrance has never a harsh note. Mavis typifies not the crash of cymbals, nor yet the grandeur of stringed pieces, but rather the simplicity of a sweet voice—the lyric melody of the full-throated lark among the blossoms singing to its mate: "Oh! Mavis, Mavis, Mavis, the birds are calling you, sweet."

SILVER DOLLAR'S DAYS NUMBERED?

State Treasurer Richardson Predicts Speedy Exit.

Paper Money to be the Rule in a Few Months, Fear.

Says it is Patriotic to Turn "Iron Men" to Banks.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 24.—Predictions that the silver dollar will soon pass from the exchange market as quickly as did the larger gold coins were made by State Treasurer Richardson with the receipt of a bale containing 4000 one-dollar bills late this week.

"Paper money will be used almost universally except in making change of less than a dollar within a few months," Richardson said.

Richardson urges that silver be turned over to the Federal Reserve banks now, as he urged that gold should during the war, as a patriotic duty of every citizen to conserve the supply.

All State warrants will be paid in Reserve notes, except for the fraction of the dollar, Richardson announces. He has ordered more paper money from the Federal Reserve Bank in San Francisco, and has delivered several consignments of silver dollars in exchange.

The State Treasurer argues that gold and silver in the Federal Reserve Bank gives the nation financial protection which is especially needed at this time.

During the war, Richardson turned over millions of dollars to the Federal banks in gold, and he now proposes to duplicate this action with silver dollars.

The license of Dr. May R. Miniker to practice medicine was revoked by the State Board of Medical Examiners in their session here this week, when evidence was offered which proved that she performed a criminal operation on Mrs. Jedwida Jezewicz of San Francisco, which caused her death.

Dr. John R. Clark, autopsy surgeon at San Francisco, gave damaging testimony against Dr. Miniker here and urged the board to revoke her license. The woman physician was acquitted by a jury in a trial in the San Francisco courts.

Charges against William Lewis Grant of Los Angeles of advertising venereal disease remedies, contrary to law, were dismissed.

The application of Dr. Gideon L. Freeman of Los Angeles for a rehearing of his case was denied. He had been found guilty in the Federal courts of using the mails to defraud and fined $1500.

Dr. George H. Richardson of Los Angeles made an unsuccessful effort to secure the restoration of his license, which was revoked several months ago for alleged unprofessional conduct.

Charges of habitual drunkenness against Dr. Irving L. Ward of Yreka were dismissed, it being shown by the testimony that Ward had never treated patients on those rare occasions when he was indisposed. Future good behavior was promised.

The license of Dr. John Lafayette Berry, known as "Bloodless Berry" of Modesto, was revoked for using a name other than his own.

Upon hearing the testimony of a midwife who witnessed an illegal operation performed by Dr. James E. Thompson on Frances Markovich at Oakland, August 5, 1919, and of the doctor's nurse, who claimed that the operation was justified by the woman's condition, the board resolved to ask that Thompson be brought before them at their next meeting for a hearing. He is now in jail in Oakland, in default of $20,000 bail, after having been brought back from Mexico for jumping bonds under a criminal charge.

Sentiment throughout the State is practically united in favor of the League of Nations, says Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who has returned from a two weeks' tour of the State.

He points out, as indicative of the sentiment in the Bay region, the action of that section of the California Teachers' Association in approving the league without amendments.

"In Los Angeles the people are at least ten to one for the league," said Wood.

Public institutions have 348 fewer inmates in California at the present time than they had at the same period last year, according to the report of the State Board of Control.

Except in the reform schools, losses are noted in every instance. The largest proportionate decrease is in prisons, there being now 2860 against 2997 in 1918. Hospitals for the insane have 10,040 patients against 10,318 last year. The industrial home for the adult blind has 138 inmates, against 143, the home for feeble-minded 1293, against 1319. There are 753 juveniles in reform schools this year, while in 1918 there were only 659. The number of inebriates in State hospitals has been reduced noticeably, the last report showing only 115.

"No more liquors are sold," exclaimed H. Stanley Benedict, member of the board of control. "When they get drunk now they go to the cemetery instead of to the asylum."

A test case may be necessary to determine whether Atty.-Gen. Webb of the State school department is correct in the interpretation of the law governing the transfer of pupils from one high school district to another district within a given county.

If a ruling announced by Webb stands, all the students of a district could attend school in another district if they so desired and the district in which they lived would continue to receive State money on the basis of their daily attendance in the school which they attended.

Webb's decision comes in response to a request from Supt. Wood that the Attorney-General amplify a ruling made last February for the District Attorney of Santa Clara county.

By the system previously in vogue, under a law that has been on the statute books for fifteen or twenty years, a pupil could be transferred within one county only on agreement between the trustees of the districts involved, and the school which the pupil actually attended could claim the daily average attendance.

The medical superintendents of State hospitals for the insane, in session here this week, decided henceforth to accept no more voluntary patients, either insane or inebriates.

One reason for the action is that volunteers under treatment for alcoholism are prone to leave the institutions before the cure is completed. Another cause is the crowded condition of all the wards. It was the unanimous belief of all the superintendents that they should accept persons only regularly committed by the courts.

Dr. P. T. Phillips of Los Angeles was re-elected president of the State Board of Medical Examiners in its session here this week. Dr. Charles R. Pinkham succeeded himself as secretary-treasurer and Dr. Harry V. Brown of Glendale is vice-president, succeeding Dr. Herbert B. Campbell.

EDUCATED WIVES ONE OF POST-WAR NEEDS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Another world demand which the war has rendered greater than the available supply is for educated wives, according to reports from foreign missionaries received today by the inter-church world movement of North America.

"The demand," says a statement issued at inter-church headquarters, "is particularly great in the Orient and Africa, where millions of men have returned from the armies of the Allies, after having had a glimpse of occidental marraige relations and found them desirable.

"According to one missionary's report a young moslem sheik offered to pass up the four native wives allotted to him by the Koran if the missionary would bring him an educated American girl to share his salt and his camel's hair tent."

Chinese Ask a United Country.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 25.—Chinese of Seattle, at the annual dinner of the China Club here last night, made public for the first time an appeal from the Chinese of America to the people of China for a united country. Fifty thousand copies of the appeal, it was said, are to be printed and circulated throughout China.

Just What She Needed.

"I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets some time ago and they proved to be just what I needed," writes Mrs. Volta Bankson, Chillicothe, Mo. "They not only relieved me of indigestion, but toned up my liver and rid me of backache and dizziness that I had been subject to for some time. They did me a world of good and I will always speak a good word for them."—[Advertisement.

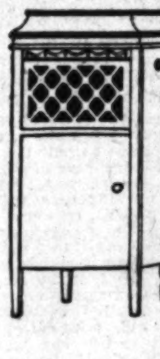
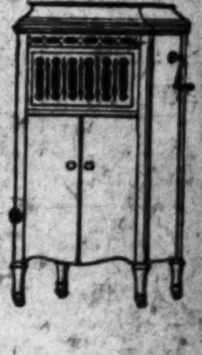
in our Demonstration Rooms the difference between the Pathe tone and that of any other make. We will play the same Records on both machines and you may judge for yourself. Any of these machines will be sold to you on the usual payment down and small weekly or monthly payments thereafter—and, remember, the PATHE

Plays All Makes Records



Cabinet Model
The Pathe artistic standard is well illustrated in this model, refined in its simplicity, dignified in the harmony of its proportions. Mahogany or Oak; all exposed parts nickel-plated; Universal tone arm; Pathe perfect tone control; Pathe reproducer, Sapphire Ball; double spring motor—$100.

Large Cabinet
Refinement and dignity are expressed in every line of this design, made in Mahogany or Oak. All exposed parts nickel-plated; Universal tone arm; Pathe perfect tone control; Pathe reproducer, Sapphire Ball; double spring motor. This is a model of the highest type, priced exceptionally low—$150.



Pathe Advantages

1. The full, clear tone of each individually toned instrument is produced by the all-wood violin tone chamber and the famous Pathe Sapphire Ball.

2. No needles to change on a jeweled Pathe. The Sapphire Ball never wears out.

3. Play all makes of Records and plays them better.

4. The Pathe Controla enables you to play all records loudly or softly with the same Sapphire Ball.

Jacobean Art Model

Your First Consideration

Your first CONSIDERATION when buying a phonograph is the make; we sincerely believe the Pathe to be superior to any other machine; secondly should be the reliability of the firm where you buy. Our reputation is founded on the thousands of satisfied customers we have in Southern California. We are the leading Pathe dealers in the retail furniture district, and cordially invite you to visit us.

This Is the Famous Sapphire Ball

The Pathe Sapphire Ball which does away with old-fashioned steel needles glides smoothly around the record like a drop of water. This round polished jewel fits exactly into every record groove and accurately reproduces every shading of the selection.

The music flows off; isn't scratched off. No needles to change; no needles to buy; always ready to play. No wear on the records; every Pathe record is guaranteed to play 1000 times.

MRS. PATTERSON GAINS 20 POUNDS

Had Almost Given Up Hope of Recovery.

Was Almost Helpless for Two Years.

Tanlac Ends Trouble — Is Strong and Well, Now.

"The way Tanlac has overcome my troubles and restored my health is wonderful," said Mrs. E. M. Patterson, who lives at Brawley, California, while talking to a Tanlac representative in Los Angeles a few days ago.

"When I commenced taking Tanlac," continued Mrs. Patterson, "my stomach was in such terrible condition that everything I ate would cause me to suffer afterwards. Even a bite of cracker would cause me to have severe cramping pains in the pit of my stomach. Gas would often form so bad that it would rise up into my chest and cause me to have sharp pains around my heart, and this interfered with my sleep, and I would go night after night without closing my eyes.

"In order to get my mind off my troubles, I read a good deal and when the papers came in every day I would read everything in them. Now that is how I came to take Tanlac. I saw the statements that were being published in the papers and as this medicine seemed to be helping so many people I made up my mind to give it a trial. Well, I must say that it is simply wonderful the way my troubles disappeared after I began taking Tanlac. Why, I have actually gained twenty pounds and never felt better in all my life. I have a fine appetite and eat just anything I want and my stomach is in such good condition that everything I eat digests perfectly. I never have a sign of gas and those awful pains in my stomach never bother me any more. I sleep fine every night. I own a ranch and as labor is scarce, I have to superintend it myself, and I am so well and strong now that I can attend to this work with perfect ease. I am glad to give this statement, for I want to let others who suffer as I did know about this wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Los Angeles, Pasadena and San Diego by the Owl Drug Co.—[Advertisement.

Sure Way To Get Rid Of Dandruff.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—[Advertisement.

RHEUMATISM

A home cure given by one who had it.

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

TAKE HAIR OUT NOT OFF THE SKIN

Hair is bound to grow out coarser and stiffer when merely removed from the surface of the skin. The only common-sense way to remove hair is to attack it under the skin. DeMiracle, the original sanitary liquid, does this by absorption.

Only genuine DeMiracle has a money-back guarantee in each package. At toilet counters in 60c, $1 and $2 sizes, or by mail from us in plain wrapper on receipt of price.

FREE book mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle, 129th St. and Park Ave., New York.

Best Way to Wash the Hair

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist's, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.—[Advertisement.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength,) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

CALCIUM LIGHT UPON FLOWERS.

Officials Going Deep into "Club" Head's Affairs.

After Arrest and Attack on Deputy of Woolwine.

Much Data About Automobile Organization Secured.

Further inquiry was made yesterday by Deputy District Attorney Clark regarding the affairs of J. Monroe Flowers, president of the so-called "Automobile Club of America, International," who was arrested Friday in the District Attorney's office on a charge of obtaining money and property under false pretenses. The arrest was made after Flowers had attacked Mr. Clark with a cane and Mrs. Flowers had scratched Mr. Clark in the face with her fingernails.

It was said yesterday that as a result of the subsequent inquiry one or more new complaints may be made against Flowers.

After arraignment Friday, he furnished $2000 bonds and was released.

Investigation yesterday showed that Flowers is a familiar figure in courts of this county. Mr. Clark has traced his activities since 1892.

DATA ABOUT CLUB.

Information in a publication gotten out by Flowers shows that the defendant has recently taken over the name "Automobile Club of America, International," similar to the name of the Automobile Club of America, a national organization with headquarters in New York and with several million dollars' backing. The Flowers organization, it was shown, is not affiliated with the Automobile Club of America, and is, in fact, not incorporated.

It is operated as a trust, and was previously known as the "Auto Club of America."

Recently Flowers published a booklet called "Handy Route and Information Book of the Automobile Club of America, International—The World's Greatest Automobile Club." The club rooms are mentioned as being at 132 South Hill street and the business office at 125 South Broadway.

The Automobile Club of America, the national organization, is reported to be the largest of its kind in the world.

CHANGE OF NAME.

In his booklet, Flowers explains the change of name from the "Auto Club of America" to the "Automobile Club of America, International," by saying that the club, in July, 1917, the time of the change, expanded to Canada, England, France, Mexico and Cuba.

The specific charge against Flowers is that he made false representations to Richard Rinker that he (Flowers) was the owner of a printing plant at 729 West Ninth street, belonging to J. W. Martin, and thus obtained from Mr. Rinker as part payment on the plant $135 in cash, Liberty bonds valued at $100 and a motor car valued at $400.

Flowers's hearing on the false pretense charge will be called tomorrow afternoon in Justice Hinshaw's court.

COMMON-LAW WIFE TO GET HALF OF ESTATE.

JUDGE RULES IN FAVOR OF WOMAN WHO TOOK CARE OF AGED MAN FOR YEARS.

By a decision of Judge Wood yesterday, Mrs. Mamie Harlan will be awarded one-half of the estate of the late C. A. Willard. The estate is valued at $40,000. Mrs. Harlan sued to enforce the terms of an agreement under which she claimed Mr. Willard agreed to will her half of his estate for her care of him.

When Mrs. Harlan was 20 years old, she was working as a waitress and met Mr. Willard, who was then 40 years old. He engaged her as his housekeeper and at that time she agreed to become a member of his family, caring for him the remainder of his life. In return he was to give her half of his estate at his death. They did not marry but Mr. Willard told her she was his common-law wife and she believed him, she said. He died May 23, 1918, leaving no will.

Mrs. Harlan petitioned for letters of administration as the widow and her claim was opposed by Edgar H. Willard, a son, and Dorothea Laura Blodgett, a daughter, alleging that Mrs. Harlan had no interest in the estate.

Judge Wood held that Mrs. Harlan's application to administer the estate had harmed no one.

COMBINATION SUGAR SALES NOT ILLEGAL.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL DECLARES LOCAL METHODS BETTER THAN RATIONS.

The practice of local grocers requiring customers to buy additional groceries before they can purchase sugar is not illegal, according to a telegram received yesterday from Attorney-General Palmer. The telegraam was in reply to an inquiry sent by United States District Attorney O'Connor inquiring if it was a violation of the Federal food conservation act for the grocers to boost their sales.

In his reply the Attorney-General stated that the plan of the grocers to sell sugar only with other purchases is preferable to limiting the sale of sugar, unless it is shown that the purchasers are required to buy more of any article than they can really use.

It is understood that some of the methods used by the local stores to sell sugar and other articles will be investigated this week by the government and the ruling was received from the Attorney-General as a guide in the investigation.

Several chain stores are reported to be selling sugar on the basis of a pound of sugar with each dollar's worth of merchandise, and others are exercising other restrictions.

HOLD RANCHER TO SUPERIOR COURT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Oct. 25.—J. C. Berry, a well-known rancher of this district, is out on bail following his arrest on a charge of grand larceny. The complaint was sworn out by J. C. Kendrick, a stock buyer here, who alleges that Berry stole a number of sacks of wheat. Berry, in declaring his intention to fight the case, says the grain, alleged to have been stolen, was sold to him by Kendrick's brother.

CITIZENS SELECT SITE FOR FEDERAL BUILDING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, Oct. 25.—At least seven distinct and separate sites have been selected for the new postoffice building by groups of interested citizens. Postal Inspectors F. E. Chance and F. A. Jarvis are now in the city gathering data on the best possible location.

Realizing the value of having the post office located close to their places of business, there is a merry fight on between the different cliques of the city to convince the inspectors that their particular location should be the one chosen.

Decision will not be made until the latter part of November.

SURVEY MOUNTAIN ROAD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 24.—The Board of Supervisors have appropriated $1750 for a survey of a proposed new mountain road from The Forks, east of here in the foothills, to Camp Nelson, in the heart of the Sierras. The work is to be carried on as rapidly as weather conditions will permit.

Expense of the road, which is expected to be a costly one, comparatively speaking, is to be met jointly by the county and the United States forest service.

BUY BUSINESS SITE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Oct. 25.—The seventh transfer of Monrovia business property since the first of this year came yesterday through the sale by Mrs. R. D. Lowry of Los Angeles to J. E. MacIntyre of Monrovia and Joseph F. Rhodes of Pasadena of the northwest corner of Myrtle and White Oak avenues. The property is occupied by a three-story apartment house, but it is understood this will be moved to make way for improvements.

STRIKERS USE VIOLENCE.

Workman Seriously Injured and Home of Another Badly Damaged.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Oct. 25.—Another outbreak of violence in connection with the longshoremen's strike here occurred today when an assault was made upon Wilbur F. Lilja, 21 years old, living at 209 East Sixty-third street, Los Angeles, while on his way to work as a longshoreman at the outer harbor.

Lilja was beaten up by two men who had accompanied him from Los Angeles and left him lying unconscious in the Southern Pacific freight yards.

After he had been taken to the receiving hospital and treated by the police surgeon for a one-inch scalp wound and minor scratches on his face and head, he declared that he had applied for a position at an employment agency at 206 Court street, Los Angeles, and that he had been cent to the Outer Harbor Dock and Wharf Company, San Pedro, where a strike is in progress. Another man, who gave his name as Smith, also obtained a card for work at the same place, and the pair proceeded to the Pacific Electric station, where they were joined by a third. The three men proceeded to San Pedro together, but when they arrived at the Southern Pacific yards, the other two men, without warning, proceeded to "beat up" Lilja, leaving him unconscious, according to the report he made to the police.

A surprise attack upon the home of James McVicar, 424 Fourteenth street, San Pedro, employed at the Los Angeles shipyard, by a party of men who dashed by in an automobile and hurled a volley of bricks, stones and other missiles from their machine, was reported to the police late last night.

Five windows in the McVicar home were broken during the bombardment. Two half bricks, a large rock and an old dry battery crashed through the glass. The attacking party disappeared in their machine before a description of them could be obtained. Resentment against McVicar for returning to work at the Los Angeles shipyard is believed to be the cause of the attack.

INSPECT ORCHARDS.

Experts Find Trees in Tulare County Free From Pests.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Oct. 25.—C. F. Collins, Horticultural Commissioner of Tulare county, has been touring all the fruit districts under his jurisdiction in company with A. C. Wilbur of the University of California, making a collection of fruit woods which show the result of infestation either by fungi or insects. At the same time E. G. Branigan, field deputy of the State Department of Agriculture, was conferring with the local commissioner to discover if there have been any outbreaks in Tulare county of the dangerous and destructive citrus blast.

As far as can be learned from this preliminary work there are no new invasions in the orchards of Tulare county which will require special attention at this time.

BADGERS TO MEET.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOLDIERS' HOME, Oct. 25.—On Monday, October 27, the Wisconsin Society of Los Angeles will meet at 2 p.m. in Markham Hall. Comrade Barnes of Sawtelle, Comrade Shattuck of Westgate and Col. F. W. Spear of Santa Monica and other prominent Badgers of Santa Monica are actively employed in boosting the promised event. An interesting programme of music and talk will be features, to include an address by Col. Spears, who will tell of early days in the Badger State and of the activities of Wisconsin in the Civil War.

The climate at Hermosa Beach is ten degrees warmer, in winter, than the interior cities.—[Advertisement.

WALNUT HARVEST ON.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Oct. 25.—The walnut harvest is now on in full swing throughout this section and cars are being shipped to the markets daily. One car forwarded by the O. M. Carter Packing-house sold for $10,000 and the next day a second car brought $9500.

Nuts are being shipped into Pomona from Ventura, El Monte, Burbank and many other walnut growing sections and while the season is expected to be short it will probably show a record for the amount of the nuts handled.

You'll not be disappointed in Hermosa Beach. Bungalows and apartments, reasonable rates.—[Advertisement.

RED CROSS OFFICERS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ANAHEIM, Oct. 25.—At the annual meeting of the Anaheim Chapter American Red Cross, Mrs. V. D. Loly, Mrs. H. M. Adams, Mrs. E. H. Boyd, Mrs. R. L. Coons and H. A. Dickel were elected as directors to serve for three years. At the close of the annual meetings the board of directors met and selected the following officers for the coming year: President, W. T. Wallop; vice-president, Mrs. R. L. Coons; treasurer, A. B. McCord; secretary, Mrs. E. H. Boyd. H. H. Benjamin has been appointed chairman of the annual Red Cross roll to be held in November.

ARREST YOUTHFUL FORGER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Oct. 25.—Sheriff Webb of Greene county, Mo., arrived here to take into his custody Ben E. Jones, 17, who is wanted in Springfield for alleged forgery of a check. While Jones is accused specifically of passing but one piece of alleged worthless paper, Sheriff Greene says a large number of bad checks were written and cashed by him.

COMPLETE INSPECTION.

Executive Officer Compliments Sawtelle Soldiers' Home.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOLDIERS' HOME, Oct. 25.—Col. O. K. Marshall, assistant inspector-general of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers', who arrived in camp at the beginning of the week, on the semiannual inspection of this branch, having completed the work, left today for inspection of Battle Mountain Sanatorium, Hot Springs, S. D.

Col. H. H. Markham of Pasadena, member of the board of managers and local manager of this branch, and Gen. George H. Wood, president of the board, who assisted in the inspection of the home, left earlier in the week, the latter to enjoy a few days' visit in Southern California. Referring to matters in the home, he said: "I find every department of the branch in excellent condition; above all, too much cannot be said of Capt. Murrary, quartermaster, whose management of the farm and orchard, especially, has been productive of abundant supplies for the veterans' messes. Fruits and vegetables, products from the home farmland, have been available every day throughout the year. No other branch of the home can equal his farm in that respect. The recent establishment of a cannery on the farm is greatly to his credit. The products thereby preserved during the year totalled 17,000 gallons."

If you are looking for a place to live come to Hermosa Beach. A city of homes.—[Advertisement.

BUY CITRUS TRACT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Oct 25.—Col. A. C. Sharpe, retired army officer, who for several years has been the manager of the 80-acre orange grove in West Highlands owned by a group of army officers, announces that the last of the tract has been bought by the Great American Fruit Company. Tom Pepper handled the transfer for the American Fruit Growers Corporation, which is buying citrus lands under the name of the Great American Fruit Company.

THE OUTS GET IN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Oct. 25.—At the conclusion of a spirited contest, which was the outcome of a controversy which raged recently over disposition of its treasury funds, the members of the local chapter of the Red Cross competely routed the candidates named by the nominating committee and elected the following directors:

H M. Shreve, S. H. Rosenthal, J. P. Murphy, Mrs. H. C. Powell and J. B. Southwell.

The directorate as proposed by the incumbents was J. T. Crowe, G. T. Paston, G. W. Zartman, Louis Woodward and Mrs. W. D. Cook.

WESTMORLAND.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WESTMORELAND, Oct. 25.—Following an entertainment at the Christian Association, the officers of the year were chosen: H. C. Field, president; A. R. Andre, vice-president; Mrs. H. J. Ingram, secretary; H. J. Ingram, superintendent of the Sunday-school; Fred Hoskins, treasurer, with G. A. Webb and C. W. Seymour as members of the advisory board.

Led by J. A. Storm a rancher living west of town, vigorous protests against the flooded condition of roads about Westmoreland were made this week. It is hoped to bring some of the offenders before the law.

Westmoreland stores will hereafter close at 7 o'clock each evening of the week except Saturday, when they will remain open until 9. All stores, with the exception of the drug store, will remain closed on Sunday.

About seventy-five men are employed by the State Highway Commission constructing a link of the State highway about seventeen miles west of Westmoreland. Much material is arriving at this station daily for their use.

A local loan company has made more than $35,000 in loans in the last thirty days, and if the applications now on record are approved the amount will total more than $100,000.

The sixth grade boys defeated the eighth grade girls at indoor baseball after six innings, by the score of 24 to 21.

The Westmoreland baseball team to be in the Imperial Valley League is practicing twice each week.

PAPA'S IN BAD.

Boy Tells Court Parent Loved the Housekeeper.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, Oct. 25.—"I saw father kiss and hug his housekeeper," testied the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Roberts of Winterhaven, before Judge Phil D. Swing in the divorce action brought by the husband against the wife today.

This proved to be the most damaging bit of testimony introduced in what is proving a bitterly-fought case. The couple are in the court contesting for the custody of the boy and the disposition of some property. They have been separated for two years.

Mr. Roberts hinted broadly that when it came his turn to testify he would tell several sensational tales concerning the wife. The case has been continued.

OFFER TRAINING TO EX-SOLDIERS.

Knights of Columbus Plan a Rehabilitation School.

Will Continue War Work for Soldiers in the City.

First Classes on the Coast to Have Many Courses.

A rehabilitation school, the first of its kind on the Pacific Coast, is to be established here by the war activities branch of the Knights of Columbus. The school will be open to all ex-service men and many vocational and educational subjects will be taught. The registers will be opened on October 28 and as soon as 300 members are obtained the school will be opened. No tuition is to be charged.

Plans were formulated yesterday at a meeting held in the Knights of Columbus Auditorium. Frank G. Fanning, southern representative of the branch, told of the plans of the national organization. Similar schools have been opened in Boston, Chicago and Denver, he said. The work is a continuation of the service done by the Knights of Columbus during the war. A. G. Bagley, organizer of the eastern schools, will arrive shortly to make the final plans.

Instructors have been engaged and courses laid out for many kinds of work. These will be added to from time to time. Automobile and practical shop work will be specialized in. Commercial Spanish is one of the educational features of the school. Two subjects that are of interest to Los Angeles, foreign trade and technical motion-picture work, will be taken up. A department for the aid of the men is to be established. Experts will examine men for special work and will advise them.

The school has the co-operation of the American Legion in notifying ex-service men. Should the local school be successful, others will be started on the Coast, it was stated.

SOLDIER SETTLERS MEET.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—A meeting of the California land settlement board was called here today to discuss purchases of tracts of land throughout the State for the purpose of settling former service men upon them. No tracts were selected, it being announced that they might be chosen at another meeting next Saturday.

GET DELAYED CHECKS.

War Department Cleaning Up Cases Involving Allowances.

Lieuts. E. P. Werner and A. R. Lopez today are distributing checks which the Soldiers' and Sailors' Replacement Bureau obtained within the past few days for dependents of service men. In all the cases allowances were withheld, as the result of an error. Chairman E. H. Bagby took up the cases with the Bureau of War Risks in Washington, and with aid obtained from Mayor Snyder, interested Senators and Congressmen.

Today Mayor Snyder received a telegram from Senator Phelan, announcing that a check is being mailed to Mrs. Florence Wiedemeyer, New Maryton Hotel, Los Angeles. Very few cases of delayed checks remain unsettled now, it is stated.

U.S.C. MAKES THE GRADE.

Pomona Football Team Fails to Show Any Symptoms of Life.

BY PAUL LOWRY.

The U.S.C. football team played the Pomona eleven off its feet in the first quarter yesterday, and won by a score of 6 to 0. The Trojans came on the field full of fight and paralyzed the Sagehen forwards in the first five minutes of play. A touchdown on a short forward pass across the line from Leadingham to McMillan furnished the only score.

Pomona didn't have a chance to score. The Blue and White only made first down once in the entire game. That came in the closing minutes of the fourth quarter, after U.S.C. had hammered the oval down to the Pomona 5-yard line. McClain intercepted a forward pass, and it was first down on the Sagehen 3-yard line. Quarterback Stover here got away for a 25-yard line, and gave the Pomona supporters their only opportunity to cheer. Dean of U.S.C. retaliated by intercepting a Pomona forward pass and it was U.S.C.'s ball on the Pomona 25-yard line as the whistle blew.

NOT THERE AT ALL.

Pomona's heralded backfield played as if in a trance. Chambers and Covington had been proclaimed as backs who would drive rifts and tunnels in the U.S.C. line, but the best they did during the whole afternoon's pastime was to budge through for a yard or two at a time.

If Pomona had any offense the team that represented the Blue and White yesterday failed to reveal it. Pomona grads who sat in the bleachers were dumbfounded. They had been told that their alma mater had the best material since the famous team of 1912. What they saw was a Pomona line that opened wide before the terrific charging of the Trojan forwards and a set of backs that bounced back from a dense and impenetrable wall.

Pomona's split bucks, criss-crosses, straight line plunges, end runs, forward passes—U.S.C. smeared them all.

Though his backs could gain nothing through the U.S.C. forwards, Quarter-back Stover of Pomona persisted in sending them in on futile charges. He tried only one forward pass in the first three quarters. Realizing that the game was gone almost beyond recall Stover opened up in the last period, but it was too late. The Trojan secondary defense was prepared for that last resort. First McMillan and then Dean it was who intercepted those aerial passes and ran them back for appreciable gains.

U.S.C. surprised the ample crowd of 2000 persons, most of whom were in the press stand, by its varied attack. Driving line plunges, mixed with tackle around plays, end runs and short forward passes that the Trojans almost invariably made good all contributed to the U.S.C. advance.

RAH FOR HIM!

In enumerating the heroes of the day we find ourselves repeating the name of McMillan with much fluency and familiarity—Walter McMillan, in fact—whereas yesterday morning we couldn't have told whether it was a breakfast food or a piece of machinery. Mr. McMillan is famous. Mr. McMillan is justly so.

It was in the early cool of the afternoon that Mr. McMillan received a forward pass from the hands of John Leadingham and planted the pigskin behind the Pomona posts. Mr. "Swede" Evans essayed to kick the goal, but his attempt hit the uprights and bounced back onto the field of play.

Thereafter Mr. McMillan was much in the limelight. Oft-times a Cardinal and Gold jersey would fall on a fumble and the Pomona eleven would fall on that same jersey. When the pile was uncovered McMillan would be found with the oval tightly nestled to his breast.

McMillan's most sensational play, perhaps, came in the last three minutes of play. Chambers threw a forward pass to Voorhies, the Sage Hen right end. Just as the latter was about to gather it in Walter came streaking in like a bolt of lightning and literally snatched the ball away from Voorhies. It was a great play and warmly applauded.

COACH HENDERSON.

Fight! That's what did it. I knew if I could instill the spirit of fight in my team U.S.C. would be returned the victor. The men went on the field determined to outfight Pomona—and they did. Their game was not polished. There are lots of rough spots there, but they'll be smoothed out before we start another game. I am well satisfied with the result of our first struggle.

MISS LOS ANGELES COPS SPEEDBOAT RACE.

DUSTIN FARNUM'S ENTRY WINS FIRST HEAT OF NORDLINGER TROPHY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Oct. 25.—Dustin Farnum's new speedboat, the Miss Los Angeles, won the first heat in the Los Angeles Motorboat Club classic for the Nordlinger trophy, held at the Outer Harbor today, in forty minutes.

The sea sled Kenupshau, entered by the Boering Airplane Company of Seattle, took second place and the Cad Hill, owned by Capt. George Hill and Dr. C. J. Cadwell, finished third.

Frank Garbutt's new boat, the Mystery V., was not finished in time to enter today, but will probably be in the lists tomorrow when the second and final heats are run.

The other entries were the Mystery IV, Frank Garbutt's other speedboat, the Fellows III, entered by Joe Fellows, the Grey Ghost, entered by Brandenburg, Johnstone, of of Pasadena; the Myth, entered by Cecil K. Sherman and Geta, entered by "Doc" Salisbury.

The Mystery IV, a strong favorite, broke down before it had completed the first lap, and had to quit the race.

Last year the Mystery IV won the Nordlinger cup for Frank Garbutt.

TACOMA WANTS IN THE LEAGUE.

Application Comes as a Distinct Surprise.

One Pennant Proved too Rich for its System.

Unsettled Conditions Obtain in Big League.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Tacoma's expressed desire to get back on the baseball map as a member of the Pacific Coast League came as a distinct surprise, especially to those who have followed the rise and fall of certain cities in this circuit.

Tacoma is an example of a town which failed absolutely in a baseball sense. One pennant proved too rich for its system, and it went the way of Denver, although it took a number of championships to send the Colorado metropolis into baseball decay.

ONE OF BEST.

In 1904 and 1905 Tacoma had one of the best clubs produced in the early history of the Coast League. Under the leadership of the inimitable Mique Fisher it finished in front in 1904, and gave Los Angeles a hot battle for the pennant the following year. That season the race was divided into two parts. Tacoma won the first half, and Los Angeles the second.

Then in the playoff, the Angels defeated the northerners. The Tacoma club at that time played an exceptionally smart brand of baseball, due largely to the presence on the team of such men as Perle Casey and the late Hap Hogan. Perle and Hap were bunkies, and laid awake nights figuring out new ways to trick the opposition. Overall also was a member of the club.

A "COME BACK."

But Tacoma for some reason ceased supporting baseball, and the team was later transferred to another city. Possibly that city has "come back" in a baseball sense, but the powers that be in the Coast League are still in a Missouri frame of mind.

Occasionally a city seems to lose its interest in the great national pastime, while others which have been in a state of lethargy suddenly lift up their voices and become loud supporters of the game. Detroit, which, after winning three pennants seemed to degenerate into an indifferent baseball town, has thrown off a threatening cloud of coma, and last season the Tigers played to great crowds.

CAN BE TRACED.

These changes sometimes can be traced to definite causes such as a change of parks which proves unpopular, while a renewal of interest frequently results from the influx of an additional population due to the creation of new industries. Sometimes, however, the transformations must be passed up as unexplainable phenomenae. It is because of these mutations that baseball circuits are never stable, and they explain the shifting scenery with which the history of baseball is replete.

Things are even unsettled in the big leagues, whose circuits have been intact so long that the public had come to regard them as permanent and as fixed as the solar system itself. St. Louis has experienced trouble supporting two clubs, and there has been talk of transferring the Cardinals to Milwaukee. This condition is believed to be the after-effects of an overdose of baseball during the life of the Federal League. With three clubs St. Louis was almost baseballed to death. Prior to that it was regarded as one of the staunchest baseball citadels in the country.

LIVED ON HOPE.

What will be the effect of a pennant and a world's championship on Cincinnati is problematical. Some claim that Redville cannot stand so much prosperity. The fans of that city, always intensely critical, lived mainly on hope since the Civil War. Now that they have realized their ambition, and tasted victory, those familiar with their temperament doubt that they ever again will tolerate a loser.

An indication of this was seen after the White Sox won the sixth game of the series. Major league players now in Los Angeles, state that after this victory the Redville fans quit cold, despite the brilliant work of the Reds. The attendance the following day dropped down to 13,000—a figure which is indicative, at least, of a rapidly cooling ardor.

If the Reds get away poorly next season it is a sure bet that Pat Moran's picture is turned with its face to the wall in most of the homes in Cincinnati.

HARVARD HANGS IT ON UNIVERSITY VIRGINIA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Oct. 25.—The Harvard eleven found no difficulty in overcoming the University of Virginia today, making touchdowns almost at will and rolling up a score of 47 to 0.

For the greater part of three periods, the visitors never stepped foot on the Harvard side of the field.

PLAY TO A TIE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HAVANA, Oct. 25.—The Pittsburgh National League baseball team played eleven innings to a tie with Havana today. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Pittsburgh	4	14	3
Havana	4	9	3

Batteries—Pfeffer and Krueger; Acosta, Tuero, Hernandez and Gonzales.

BY COACH NIXON.

I think U.S.C. put up a remarkable brand of play considering that it was the initial contest of the season for them. I wouldn't have believed it possible had I not seen the game. It was too bad Covington didn't block his man on Stover's long run. The latter might have scored. I don't believe it did my team any good to play on a wet field.

WILLIE HOPPE STILL THE CUE CHAMPION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Willie Hoppe defeated Jake Schaefer in the final match tonight of the professional 18.2 balkline national championship billiard tournament, 400 to 214. This left Hoppe with a perfect record for the tournament with six victories and no defeats. His grand average for all the games was 47.5.

YALE EASILY TAKES TUFTS INTO CAMP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN (Conn.) Oct. 25.—Yale had little difficulty defeating Tufts, 27 to 0, today. Coach Sharpe's eleven apparently had recovered from the blow received last week from the Boston College and the rearranged team displayed in improved brand of football. Loose playing and fumbles, however, still marked the Eli attacks.

Yale's scoring consisted of five touchdowns, four goals and one goal from the field. The latter was a dropkick by French in the first period.

Score by periods:

Yale	10	6	7	14—27

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WHITTIER, Oct. 25.—Throop defeated Whittier, 19 to 0, here today. The Pasadena eleven scored all of its points in the second half after injuries to the Poet first-string men had forced substitutions. Winston, Woodward and Johns went out of the game in the first half and Rogers and Stewart in the second.

Renshaw and Kemp scored for Throop in the third quarter. Black intercepted a forward pass in the final quarter and galloped over the Whittier goal line for the last touchdown. Whittier was badly outweighed. The line-up:

Throop.		Whittier.
Renshaw	L.E.R.	Pickett
Rohloff	L.T.R.	Madden
Hellinger	L.G.R.	Winston
Hembrook	C.	Rayburn

STANFORD DEFEATS THE OREGON AGGIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CORVALLIS (Or.) Oct. 25.—Stanford's football warriors sprung a surprise on the Oregon Agricultural College eleven here today by winning a hard-fought game, 14 to 6. The Californians showed excellently in the open style of play, long runs featuring their victory.

It was estimated that 7000 persons saw the game.

W. H. McCARTHY IS THE COAST LEAGUE PREXY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Selecting William H. McCarthy, well-known local sportsman, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Allan T. Baum as president, the Pacific Coast League virtually wound up all important business of its annual meeting here today.

Several candidates were considered for the position, including Harry Williams, a Los Angeles newspaper man, and Timothy Healy, local attorney and former newspaper man. On final consideration, however, McCarthy was elected unanimously. His name was proposed by the San Francisco club.

Representatives of Vancouver, B. C., and Tacoma, Wash., were present at today's sessions, seeking to secure franchises for ball clubs in those cities. They proposed the enlargement of the league to ten clubs. No action was taken on the applications.

CORNELL FAILS TO STOP DARTMOUTH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Dartmouth defeated Cornell, 9 to 0, today. At no time was the Green goal line in danger, Cornell making only three downs. Score by periods:

Dartmouth	0	0	6	3—9

SOUTH PASADENA DOWNED BY CITRUS.

Citrus Union football team did the expected today by beating South Pasadena by a score of 27 to 0. A touchdown was scored in the first and third quarter and two in the last quarter. The play was almost entirely confined to South Pasadena territory and but for the staying qualities of South Pasadena, three or four touchdowns would have been scored.

SAN DIEGO BOWS TO WHITTIER

Whittier High defeated San Diego 17 to 14 at Whittier yesterday. Touchdowns by Ehrich and Nichols, a drop kick by the latter and two kicked goals comprised Whittier's winning score. Wingart and Nichols starred for Whittier.

SISTER NORTE WINS BIG PACE.

Takes Two Straight Heats at Exposition Park.

Despite Cool Day Big Crowd Views Races.

Patsy Mack Loses Field in Final Scramble.

BY ED O'MALLEY.

The following are the entries for today's races at Exposition Park:

First race, 2:09 trot, three heats: Dr. Bainbridge, Lena Bond, San Pedro Girl, Zolock Zar.

Second race, 2:07 trot, three heats: Pegasus, Edith Carter, Little Jack, Miss Frisco.

Third race, five furlongs: Artemis, 109; Borel, 109; Cy Merrick, 112; Duly Fashion, 109; Desert Rose, 109; Forum, 109; Impression, 114; Oklahoma Irish, 109; Royal Johnnie, 109; Satalla, 109; Tommy Chandler, 104; Von Dillon, 109.

Fourth race, six furlongs: Bon Santa, 104; Bas Blanes, 109; Col. Boyle, 101; Dot H., 109; Delaney, 109; Ethel, 106; Muriel's Pet, 106; Pajarita II, 106; Ringleader, 106.

Sixth race, Ed R. Smith handicap, five furlongs: Ben Payne, 112; French Nurse, 112; Little Miss, 112; Lago Vista, 112; Miss Paulina, 112; Tom O'Day, 112.

Despite the fact that the weather had a kick in it yesterday, an unusually large crowd was on hand at Exposition Park to witness the day's sport. The track proper, which is one of the best in the Far West, had dried out considerably by the time the first harness race had been called, and while not any too fast was perfectly safe.

The first racing event of the day was the 2:10 pace for a purse of $1500. The winner turned up in Sister Norte, cleverly directed by C. Guoin. The mare won in two straight heats, with Julia M. second, and Main Direct, third.

The 2:20 trot furnished one of the best contested events of the meeting. Kitty Bon won the first two heats, but succumbed to Sterling Lou in the last heat in what looked for a moment like a dead heat. The latter, however, poked her aristocratic nose over the wire in the last stride amid a deafening shout of enthusiasm.

WANT RUNNERS.

The runners, however, were what the spectators wanted and they grew somewhat impatient for them when the first race was delayed for a spell. The bugle call brought eight starters to the post. Some of the wisenheims thought that if Cruzados, Jr., who, by the way, is a rattled-pated actor at the post, could get away on his stride he would daylight his field in the first quarter, but the aged gelding was again in a fractious mood and failed to get his nose to the barrier.

L. Gentry, who had shown a fair race over at Ascot Park several weeks ago, got off like an airplane and just tip-toed the others until well into the stretch. Here he began to sprawl, and when Aline B. challenged him a sixteenth out he bore her over toward the outside rail. Gentry was a pretty tired animal in the last few strides and just did stagger over the line by the shortest of margins in front of Aline B., with Duly Fashion third. Time, 1:02⅗.

Commendation had little trouble disposing of a mediocre bunch in the second race, a six-furlong dash for 3-year-olds and upwards. Chanteur finished second and Curtis Warren third. Time, 1:16.

THROUGH THE GLASSES.

A man with a good pair of glasses that had carefully watched the races at the present meeting would have had no trouble in picking the winner of the last race, a six-furlong scramble. On Saturday, October 18, in the final race of the day (a mile dash,) a horse named Patsy Mack ran a cracking good race for seven furlongs with three or four of the best horses at the track in the field. Patsy ran well up clear to the last sixteenth.

Here was a choice morsel, yesterday, that was entirely overlooked. He was pitted against as poor a bunch of feed consumers as ever sucked wood from a manger, and the distance only six furlongs. Off none too well, he just loped along in third position to the head of the stretch; then came through on the inside rail with a great burst of speed and fairly romped away from his field the final sixteenth, winning almost pulled up to a walk. Time, 1:14⅘. Bon Santa was second and Desert Rose third.

The summaries follow:

First race, 2:10 pace, purse $1500:

Sister Norte, b.m., Del Norte (C. Guoin)	1	1
Julia M., b.m., El Angelo	2	2
Main Direct, b.m., Merry Direct	3	3

Time 2:10, 2:09.

Second race, 2:20 trot, purse $1500:

Kitty Bon, b.m., Bon Voyage (W. G. Durfee)	1	1	2
Sterling Lou, ch.g., Kinney Lou	2	2	1
Garrett B., blk.g., Wildnutling	3	4	3
Anna Conn, b.m., Worth While	4	3	4

Time 2:14 2-5, 2:14, 2:13½.

PREPARE FOR BIG CROWD TODAY.

Special preparations are being made to take care of the big crowd that is sure to attend the live-stock show at Exposition Park this afternoon. As a special feature the management has put on two harness and four running races and this of itself should insure a record attendance. The people of Los Angeles want horse races again; a fact that has been proved by the generous support they have given to the Ascot Park and Exposition Park bangtail entertainment.

AL STRIKE IS NLAWFUL ACT.

Says it Attacks Rights of Society.

Take Measures to Keep Miners at Work.

it is Unsanctioned and Morally Wrong.

is viewed, it is apparent that such a strike in such circumstances would be the most far-reaching plan ever presented in this country to limit the facilities of production and distribution of a necessity of life and thus indirectly to restrict the production and distribution of all the necessaries of life. A strike under these circumstances is not only unjustifiable, it is unlawful.

"The action proposed has apparently been taken without any vote upon the specific proposition by the individual members of the United Mine Workers of America throughout the United States, an almost unprecedented proceeding. I cannot believe that any right of an American worker needs for its protection the taking of this extraordinary step, and I am convinced that when the time and money are considered it constitutes a fundamental attack which is wrong both morally and legally, upon the rights of society and upon the welfare of our country. I feel convinced that individual members of the United Mine Workers would not vote, upon full consideration, in favor of such a strike under these conditions.

PUBLIC INTEREST FIRST.

"When a movement reaches a point where it appears to involve practically the entire productive capacity of the country with respect to one of the most vital necessities of daily domestic and industriall life, and when the movement is asserted in the circumstances I have stated, and at a time and in a manner, calculated to involve the maximum of danger in the public welfare in this critical hour of our country's life, the public interest becomes the paramount consideration.

"In these circumstances I solemnly request both the national and the local officers and also the individual members of the United Mine Workers to recall all orders looking to a strike on November 1, and to take whatever steps may be necessary to prevent any stoppage of work.

MENACES NATION.

"It is time for plain speaking. These matter with which we now deal, touch not only the welfare of a class, but vitally concern the well being, the comfort and the very life of all the people. I feel it is my duty in the public interest to declare that any attempt to carry out the purpose of this strike and thus to paralyze the industry of the country with the consequent suffering and distress of our people, must be considered a grave moral and legal wrong against the government and the people of the United States. I can do nothing else than to say that the law will be enforced and the means will be found to protect the interests of the nation in any emergency that may arise out of this unhappy business.

"I express no opinion on the merits of the controversy. I have already suggested a plan by which a settlement may be reached, and I hold myself in readiness at the request of either or both sides to appoint at once a tribunal to investigate all the facts with a view to aiding in the earliest possible orderly settlement of the questions at issue between the coal operators and the miners, to the end that the just rights, not only of those interests, but also of the general public, may be fully protected."

There was no direct intimation of what steps the Cabinet had discussed to prevent stoppage of work should the President's solemn warning to the miners to rescind the strike order fail of result. It was regarded as significant, however, that attention was drawn in White House circles to the statements made by Secretary Baker in a recent address in Cleveland when Mr. Baker announced that department commanders had been directed to furnish troops at the request of Governors without referring the matter to Washington. Maj.-Gen. Wood in the Central Department has already exercised that authority in the steel strike situation.

LEWIS STARTS HOME.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, worn out by a week's session of scale committees, had left here tonight for Springfield, Ill., before the President's statement was issued, to take personal charge of the strike.

"The situation so far as the miners are concerned is unchanged," Lewis said. "We are still ready and willing to negotiate a new wage contract before November 1."

He made no suggestion as to how this might be done.

Senator Frelinghuysen, New Jersey, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, which investigated the coal situation, announced that he would not summon Lewis or other labor leaders.

Thomas B. Brewster, chairman of the Operators' Scale Committee, issued a statement tonight, also before President Wilson's statement was made public, saying:

BREWSTER'S STATEMENT.

"The miners' leaders have said again and again that nothing could stop a general strike but unconditional acceptance of their demands. The operators believe acceptance of these demands would not only wreck the coal mining industry, but threaten a national breakdown of basic industrial standards and relationships. In the face of these demands, the operators, therefore, have consistently stood out for the recognition of these cardinal points, the maintenance of which they consider even more vital to general public welfare than to the interests of the operators themselves:

"First, the continuation of coal production during negotiations; second, recognition of the existing wage contract and its observance to its legal termination; third, the operators believe that the public is vitally interested in the production of sufficient coal to meet its needs at the lowest possible cost. The miners' demand for a reduction of working time at the times below the standard forty-eight-hour week now in effect would greatly reduce production and greatly increase the cost and consequently the prices of coal.

ARBITRATION LIMIT.

"Up to yesterday the operators have expressed their willingness to negotiate, and, failing agreement, to arbitrate all the other demands made by the miners, except the three foregoing."

Referring to President Wilson's message to Secretary Wilson yesterday, saying to both operators and miners: "It is a duty that they owe to society to make an earnest effort to negotiate these differences and keep the mines of our country in operation," Mr. Brewster said.

"Under the circumstances, the operators decided that there was no proper course but to accept the President's proposals without reservations, and thereupon informed the Secretary of Labor of their acceptance.

"The operators still hold themselves and their properties ready and willing to serve the public in any practical way which may be evolved a a solution of the problem."

Director-General Hines was warned today in a letter from the National Wholesale Coal Association that while the coal dealers did not question the right of the railroads to confiscate coal mined for the dealers, they would demand compensation for such action not merely on the basis of the fuel's value, but also on the basis of damage to business and other factors affecting the reputation of the dealers.

ed in either the Council or Assembly, in case of a dispute, would be first to attempt a settlement, and then, if that failed, to make a report embodying recommendations. They always forget to say that even in making recommendations, Great Britain and all her colonies would be excluded from voting entirely whenever she was a party to the dispute."

QUOTES CANADIANS.

Replying to Senator McCumber, Senator Borah quoted from British and Canadian statesmen in an effort to show that the British dominions regard themselves as occupying in the league the position of absolutely free nations, and that as such they would be eligible to election to the Council. Any question as to the construction placed on the covenant by the British government, he said, easily could be settled.

"The Senator from North Dakota," said Mr. Borah, "is in touch with the League to Enforce Peace, and it is in confidential communication with the British authorities, as I have telegrams to show. I think we should be able to find out, by that means, just where the government stands on this proposition."

Taking issue with Senator Hitchcock, Senator Lodge said his own belief was that "the great mass of the American people today, if we could put it to a vote, would be against the league without change."

OPPOSE PUBLIC'S VIEW.

"It is worse than idle," he continued, "to contend that those of us who oppose the treaty in its present form are Bolshevists, anarchists or pro-Germans, and let me add that there are a majority of Senators here who are not to have their votes determined by guesses at public opinion. No outside pressure will have the slightest effect upon them. Least of all, will they be guided by being told what Europe wants. The mischief of this treaty is that it was made with the sole view of the interests of Europe.

"The proposition that the Senate must not amend this treaty is equivalent to nullifying the power of the Senate. The Senate has amended some seventy treaties in the past and the amendments have been accepted and the treaties became effective."

ANTI-BRITISH FEELING.

Once of the league was accepted, Senator Lodge said, it would be under its terms "virtually unamendable." His construction of the covenant's language, he said, was that every member would have to accept an amendment before it became effective.

Senator Lodge said he had no quarrel with Great Britain, though she had furnished the plan upon which the league was drafted.

"I do not blame Great Britain for looking after her interests," he said, "but I regret that we had nobody who looked after our interests as Great Britain did.

"What I cannot accept is the principle involved. You may turn and twist it as you please, but it remains that Great Britain and her possessions have six votes and we have one."

LODGE "REGRETS."

Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, declared he very much regretted that no vote had been reached and served notice that he would endeavor Monday to keep the Senate in session "as long as it will stay with me" in an effort to force action. Nevertheless, action is considered unlikely before the middle of the week.

When the Johnson amendment is out of the way only one more committee amendment will remain to be disposed of. Many individual Senators, however, are planning to introduce amendments, particularly relating to the labor sections, and indications are that the amending stage of the fight will not be passed before the end of next week if then. This will carry the fight into the first week of November.

THEN THE RESERVATIONS.

The Foreign Relations Committee's fourteen reservations will then come up. These will be considered one by one, and some of them, especially the one dealing with Article X, will precipitate days of debate. Numerous substitutes and mild compromises are likely to be offered from the administration side and these will have to be voted upon. A day apiece for the reservations would consume two weeks. Then there are to be numerous individual reservations, some of which probably will cause prolonged debate. This will carry the Senate to the point where most members of Congress begin to demand an adjournment in order that they may collect their mileage.

But even after all the reservations are settled, another important stage of the contest will remain. The administration forces insist they will fight to the last ditch to prevent the ratification of the treaty with the reservations attached, while the "rejectionists" on the Republican side declare they must have their inning to urge the defeat of the entire treaty. If even a "bluff" deadlock develops, it is considered unlikely the tangle can be straightened out before the expiration of the session and the treaty will have to be taken up again at the beginning of the next session.

PEACE RESOLUTION?

Such a situation may result in the introduction of a resolution declaring the war at an end so that the Senate could give its attention to such pressing domestic questions as the railroad bill, while it is working out a settlement of the peace treaty contest.

Administration circles professed today to be highly elated over the sudden discovery of an "ace," which they never before knew they held. The exact nature of the "ace" was not disclosed. It is to be dropped like a dynamite bomb on the opposition and will result in the utter collapse of the anti-treaty forces, it was said. It was generally believed that the administration leaders had discovered that with Vice-President Marshall in the chair they could create a preliminary situation that might prove embarrassing to the opposition. The information was not the least disconcerting to the opposition Senators, who declared closer inspection of the "ace" would disclose that in reality it was merely a deuce.

Senator Shields of Tennessee, Democrat, today offered a textual amendment to the league covenant proposing to reduce every nation's representation to one vote. The amendment provides "that when imperial and Federal governments and their self-governing dominions, colonies or states are members of the league, as originally organized, or heretofore admitted, the empire or Federal governments and dominions, colonies or states shall collectively have only one membership, one delegate and one vote in the council; and only three delegates and one vote in the Assembly."

Senator Johnson is also framing a new amendment to cover the objections raised by certain "mild" reservationists who have declared they could not support the pending amendment because it is inadequate. The amendment will not only establish equal representation, but will also prevent all parts of the British empire from voting in a matter affecting one part.

COUNT TERAUCHI COMES TO LIFE.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, Oct. 21.—(Delayed.) Field Marshal Count Seiki Terauchi, former Premier of Japan, whose death was reported here yesterday, is still alive, his physicians announced today.

When the aged diplomat sank into a coma yesterday his physicians believed that death had overtaken him, and news of his demise was given to the world.

Camphor injections given the Count as a precautionary measure restored consciousness and he was able to partake of milk and ice cream.

Count Terauchi's death had been officially pronounced and posthumous honors had been bestowed upon him by the imperial court.

AMERICA'S RATIFICATION VITAL TO WORLD PEACE.

Great Powers Mark Time, Realizing that the Force of the United States Must Support the Treaty.

BY HENRY WALES.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Oct. 24.—The Supreme Council is stalling for time in the vain hope that the United States may ratify the treaty of Versailles within the next ten days. Nobody wants to begin the functioning of the peace treaty with Germany until Americans can sit in and take part. That's why the French, British and Italians are finding various problems which must be completed and various plans and propositions which must be prepared before the treaty ratifications are exchanged and the world actually and technically becomes at peace again.

France and Great Britain want the United States to be among those present when the peace treaty begins to function, because certain important inter-Allied missions must begin working then, and they are scheduled to make some very important decisions.

REALIZE NEED OF AMERICA'S POWER.

It is occurring to the French, British and Italians that if the French, English and Italian delegates alone reach these decisions and make their claims upon Germany there is a very strong chance that Germany may refuse to recognize them, or at least to carry out these demands. It is beginning to be feared that, unless the weight of the President and the reputation for fair play of the United States is represented on these commissions, they may run up against serious snags with Germany.

Everyone, even the French, gradually recognize that they cannot resort to armed force to make Germany live up to the promises she made in the armistice and treaty. For a while it was hoped a commercial embargo and economic blockade and financial pressure might be used as weapons against her if she failed to make good on her promises. But it has been seen that no one will or can tie up his country to boycott another power without war being declared, as witness the Rumanian-Italian-Russian situations. Neither Clemenceau nor Lloyd George would dare try to prevent the French or British from doing business with Germany now.

GERMANS TRUST IN WILSON.

The Germans, too, want the United States represented on the Rhineland's reparations and other commissions, because they have greater confidence in American experts and technical advisers generally than in those representing other nationalities. The Germans are anxious for the world to get back on a pre-war basis for economic and commercial reasons, but prefer to struggle along a few weeks more under existing circumstances than to begin functioning the Versailles treaty without America being represented.

There is every indication that the Peace Conference will try to stall along a couple of weeks, in the hope that the Senate will ratify, before actually holding the ceremony of restoring world peace.

OPEN FIELD FOR G.O.P. FAVORITES

Republican Leaders Favor Unpledged Delegations.

Chairman Hays's Plan Believed to be Acceptable.

Political Prognosticators are Waxing Plentiful.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Republican leaders who will be important factors in the Republican National Convention next June desire a convention composed largely of uninstructed delegates. They hope for a "deliberative body" that can sit in calm judgment upon the merits and claims of the various Presidential candidates. In substance they wish the national convention to nominate a candidate for President who can enter the campaign morally certain of election in November.

This is the corner-stone of the policy National Chairman Will H. Hays has advocated ever since his election as head of the National Committee. It was developed during the week just ending as a tacit agreement among party leaders who were in conference in Chicago. The agreement, it is believed, reflects the views of such Republicans as former Postmaster-General Frank H. Hitchcock and Joseph B. Kealing of Indiana, and of men in a position to speak for the Republican organizations in such States as New York, Ohio and Massachusetts.

STILL A FREE-FOR-ALL.

The Chicago agreement, however, is not intended to shut off the managers of Presidential candidates from going as far as they desire in getting instructed delegates, particularly in the direct primary States or in convention States where there is a clearly apparent trend of sentiment toward any particular candidate. This would mean that Illinois, unquestionably, will send a solidly instructed delegation for Gov. Lowden, and that Iowa, which may have no candidate of its own, will line up early in the pre-convention fight for Lowden. California, it is figured, may instruct its delegates for Senator Johnson. Washington may instruct for Senator Poindexter.

Minnesota, in the course of political events, readily would give an instructed delegation to Senator Frank B. Kellogg. Kansas may be found behind Gov. Allen, but Gen. Wood's managers expect that State to set the ball rolling for Gen. Wood. South Dakota, the first direct primary State to act, will be fair ground for all of the starters.

The rest of the country, however, barring a landslide that may set in at any moment for one of the above candidates, would be placed in the "uninstructed" column in any table of States made up by men who have been playing the national political game during the months leading up to the Chicago confab of last Wednesday and Thursday.

Senator Harding's self-elimination, the Republicans say, has made it practically certain Ohio will be represented by an uninstructed delegation. New York has no candidate for President since it has been made known that neither Charles E. Hughes and Elihu Root desires to figure in the equation. Pennsylvania might offer Senator Knox.

NEW ENGLAND SILENT.

New England has not offered a candidate, unless New Hampshire is put forward as the real home State of Gen. Wood. On the present form sheets this takes care of all of the States that may have Presidential entries excepting Indiana. Indiana just now would be classed with the "uninstructed" States. If the State were to act tomorrow, a delegation instructed for Gov. Goodrich would

ES A STATE ANTI-JAP LAW.

Says Special Session Should Frame Act.

inted in Stephens's Procrastination.

People Should Demand Protection of Land.

RT B. ARMSTRONG.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NGTON, Oct. 25.—Senator disappointed that Gov. Ste- in his call for a special ses- mber 1, did not include as matters for the consideration of the Legislature of California Japanese land questions, tonight made public the following statement:

"I am greatly astonished that the Governor should have called an extra session of the California Legislature without including the enactment of laws necessary to protect the soil of California from ownership by the Japanese. I believe legislation is the imperative demand of the entire State and the most serious domestic problem which confronts any State in the American union. I cannot understand why an aroused people do not require the Governor to do this even now, because he can easily issue another call for an extra session, including the enactment of laws on this subject. Cannot the patriotic sentiment of California accomplish this, or, failing to move the Governor, immediately propose initiative legislation on the subject?

MUST HAVE SUPPORT.

"I am trying to regulate the evil in Washington, and if the Governor does not see fit to do his part at home, or the people refuse to compel him, it cannot well be said that California is behind Federal legislation. It is vital to have both Federal and State lands. The Federal government can restrict legislation, but the Federal government cannot protect the passing of the soil into the hands of Japanese, which is the more important question at this moment. I have absolute information that the Japanese, now rich from feeding off our substance, and profiting by high war prices, are buying all the available land within their means. The State law forbids it, but the land is put in the name of their native-born children or in the name of a corporation. The State alone can prevent the corporation being used to defeat State laws. The State can also revoke the right now being granted to Japanese to lease agricultural land.

"I believe the facts are so well known that the Governor is merely temporizing with the matter when he orders an investigation by the State Board of Control.

DOING HIS PART.

"I have bills in Congress absolutely prohibiting Japanese immigration and providing for the better protection of the frontiers to prevent surreptitious entry, and I shall immediately introduce a constitutional amendment denying citizenship to persons born upon the soil whose parents are ineligible to that honor and privilege; but this is a slow process and the State can act at once. Action by the Legislature would create so strong a public sentiment in California with the sincere and hearty support of the Governor that no man would dare sell or lease his agricultural land to Japanese.

"A united people can save the State. In Australia there is no prohibition against Japanese, but there are certain qualifications required for admission, easily complied with, but the public opinion is so strong that I am told if any immigration official attempted to admit a Japanese his official head would fall immediately. The Japanese are now making a drive for our soil, and is it not within the power of our people to stop it? I trust the Governor will be required by an overwhelming sentiment to include land law legislation in his call for the extra session. When the women of the nation have woman suffrage, which, with California's assistance, is not very far off, the appeal for help against the Japanese will be heeded because it involves the preservation of the home and the very existence of the boys and girls of future generations."

BANK WILL OBSERVE "CHRISTENING DAY."

November 15 is to be "christening day" at the Hollywood National Bank. Then it will become officially the Security Trust and Savings Bank, Hollywood branch. The occasion is to be formally observed by a reception at which the special guests will be the stockholders. It will be a reception to the public as well. The lobby of the bank will be decorated with blossoms and there will be entertainment, including music.

Announcement of the sale of the Hollywood bank to the larger institution was made some time ago, but necessary legal requirements had to be met before the change could be made official.

MOTHER OF SLAIN SONS ACTS AS PICKET TO KEEP NEW YORK FROM HEARING GERMAN OPERA.

BY HARNEY FARNHAM
Of the Ninetieth Division, A.E.F., Veteran of the Argonne, Meuse and Champagne Offensives.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Does America want a recrudescence of German opera, sung by German stars in the language of the men who crucified American soldiers and who suffocated them with poison gas? EMPHATICALLY NO!

Not only did the mass of returned service men who rioted in Lexington Square this week in protest against the music of the as yet technical foe, demonstrate this, but New Yorkers—who in large measure represent the pulse of America's thought and emotion—generally indicate their antagonism to this dealing with the enemy—for Germany is an enemy yet, as the peace treaty is not signed.

Conservative New York did not riot. That was the demonstration of red-blooded Americans, men who saw comrades gasping in the agony of gas poisoning, who saw mangled bodies of their "buddies," who passed Red Cross nurses shot down while on their mission of mercy. Conservative New York remained at home and refused to patronize the songbirds from the land of assassins, the songbirds whose kinsmen ravished Belgian and French girls and killed poor helpless old peasants.

German opera drew less than 1000 persons Thursday night. It was the third performance and was given after Supreme Court Justice Bijur had reserved decision in the matter of a permanent injunction to restrain the Mayor from interfering.

Although the inner doors were not opened until 7:45, fifteen minutes later than usual, there were only about fifty persons at any time in the lobby. Some of these were detectives, of whom Inspector Underhill had 100 in and about the theater to aid the uniformed police in suppressing either riots or egg throwing, such as took place at previous productions.

One of those in the lobby was a woman in black, with a band of crepe on her arm. She walked on her toes restlessly. Her face bore marks of grief. To one of the detectives who asked her at last if she was looking for anyone, she said:

LOST TWO SONS.

"Yes, I am looking to see for myself what kind of persons go to hear German opera sung by Germans. My two sons were killed in France, and I thought that if I could find out what business some of the men coming here tonight were in I would start a boycott against them."

The police did not interfere with her and she resumed her scrutiny. So far as could be observed she recognized no one.

When the curtain went up at 8:30 o'clock there were 800 persons in the house. Fifteen hundred had bought tickets, according to the management. The cover of every programme had been torn off before the audience was admitted. On the inside of the cover there had been an advertisement of a fund to buy food for the starving babies of Germany in which reference was made to the spirit of the German people which cannon had been unable to break.

TAKES GOOD ADVICE.

Harry H. Herts, business manager of the Star Opera Company, said the cover had been torn off on the advice of counsel after a complaint concerning the advertisement had been received.

The opera produced was the same as on the preceding evening, "Zar und Zimmermann." Hermann Weil, who escaped four eggs without missing a note Wednesday night, came on without a sign of perturbation. His confidence was justified. No eggs were thrown. There were twenty-five or thirty detectives in the audience, keenly alert for eggs, but even they could find none. Otto Goritz, the German who celebrated the sinking of the Lusitania with song, was greeted with cheers when he came on the stage.

It was not until the performance was over at 11:30 o'clock that the police found any use for their night sticks. By that time, in spite of the unfavorable weather, a crowd of nearly 1000, many of them in uniform, had collected at Fifty-third street and Lexington avenue, just beyond the lines established by the police. While the performance was going on they had marched west to Broadway, back to Third avenue, by way of Forty-second street, and then north again to their old post, adding to their numbers as they marched.

VOLLEY OF BOTTLES.

Mounted patrolmen and a platoon of foot police were sent to disperse the crowd. They were greeted with a volley of bottles and brickbats, but once the police got close quarters, the drenched rioters became discouraged. Thereafter it was a matter of keeping small groups on the run and preventing individuals from getting back through the police lines.

When Capt. William Duggan of the East Fifty-first-street police station was chasing several men through Fifty-third street, there was a report of a revolver and a bullet sang high over the captain's head. No one was arrested and on one injured.

Mr. Herts was asked if it was probable an attempt would be made to complete the eight weeks of the engagement in New York if the attendance continued to be so light. He said discontinuance of the opera season was something which had not yet been considered.

MANAGER A SERGEANT.

In Mr. Herts's office are framed certificates bearing on the subject of his army service, into which the American Legion, leader of the opposition to German opera, has talked of making inquiry.

One shows that Mr. Herts enlisted in the Army Reserve Corps November 14, 1917, and held the rank of sergeant.

Two more show that he was honorably discharged as sergeant February 23, 1918, and obtained the rank of second lieutenant in the Quartermaster's Corps February 13, 1918. The fourth shows he was honorably discharged from the service May 25, 1918, at Atlanta, Ga., under the provisions of Section 9 of an act of Congress of May, 1918.

A man who was arrested as John Doe at the Lexington Theater Wednesday night for throwing eggs was convicted of disorderly conduct as "John Doe" last night in the night court and fined $10. Magistrate Teneyck made this disposition of the case without seeking to compel the prisoner to reveal his real name, after an attorney, also anonymous, had had a whispered conversation with the magistrate.

The attorney told him, Magistrate Teneyck said later, that the prisoner had a commission as lieutenant in the expeditionary forces, that his brother, his closest friend and two cousins had been killed, and that he had sworn an oath of vengeance at their graves.

INTERVENTION IS SENATE DEMAND

recover and have immediately the said Jenkins, alive, or his abductors, dead.

"The Department of State," says the official announcement from Assistant Secretary Phillips's office, "has given instructions to the American Embassy at Mexico City to insist that the Mexican government definitely advise the embassy what action has been taken with a view to liberation of William O. Jenkins, the American consular agent who was robbed and kidnaped at Puebla, and to advise the Mexican government that the United States government expects it to take effective steps to obtain the release of Jenkins unharmed even though payment by Mexico of the ransom demanded be necessary.

HELD BY REBELS.

"Jenkins is understood to be held by rebels under the leadership of Frederico Cordoba and Juan Uberra, near Puebla. At the instance of Cordoba, a representative of Jenkins left Puebla yesterday to confer with Cordoba regarding Jenkins's release."

No definite news concerning Jenkins reached the State Department today. President Carranza has ordered the authorities at Mexico City to make every effort to bring about his release, and the Mexican Foreign Office has assured the American Embassy that energetic action is being taken.

ROB OIL COMPANY.

The government is also manifesting concern over refusal by the Carranza government to permit foreign oil companies to transport pay rolls from Tampico to the bandit-infested oil fields. A report to the State Department today tells of the robbery of a camp by Carranza soldiers, to whom had been intrusted a pay roll.

President Carranza flatly refused to permit the use of airplanes by foreign companies and it was specifically stated by Mexican government officials and suggested by Ambassador Bonillas in Washington that the paymasters of the oil companies were implicated in the frequent robberies. This charge aroused the companies and particularly the employees of the companies in Tampico, who claimed that their lives were endangered every time they took the pay rolls to the camps. An apology was demanded by the men from the Mexican officials, but their demand was unanswered.

According to the report just made to the State Department, one of the companies decided to accept the government's offer which was that if the companies would turn over the pay rolls to the military authorities in Tampico, they would see the money was delivered to the camps. This company, the report says, on September 24 turned over to the military authorities the pay rolls for Naranjos, Potrero and Tanguijo, in the southern oil fields. The soldiers succeeded in getting the money as far as Naranjos, the nearest of the three points to which the pay rolls were destined.

At the end of two weeks a military escort of 250 men delivered the belated funds at Tanguijo, although a substitute pay roll had already been despatched and safely delivered by the companies' agents.

To be sold at mere fractions of their former selling prices, to make this store for Women's Ready-to-Wear, Broadway's Greatest Bargain Store. The story and reason for all these wonderful opportunities at this wonderful store is as follows—Read what we have to say! This is an organization with headquarters in this city, operating a chain of Ready-to-Wear stores and in order to keep ahead of the big volume of business, must have a way to distribute these big surplus stocks which accumulate in these various stores. In the past, at our stores we held sales to distribute these stocks, a change of policy necessitated other means of distribution. Therefore, this wonderful store, which was opened just five weeks ago, making it a permanent shop where we have shown and proven in this short time, to thousands of our patrons who have purchased, that you the women of Los Angeles, can purchase seasonable, Ready-to-Wear merchandise always at prices far beyond expectations. We say, come, see, look for yourself; examine our Garments, prices marked on each ticket plainly in Blue Pencil. Remember when entering our store you won't find it carpeted with beautiful rugs, or beautiful fixtures, but you will see racks and racks of merchandise, which, we say, will be a surprise to you.

A. F. Osterloh, Vice-President of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. in Los Angeles, Cal., says:

"I intend ultimately to round out a California organization from men TO BE SECURED HERE. In its initial stages, however, our work will be carried forward under the direction of men from Akron, who are thoroughly familiar with the several branches of our manufacturing enterprise.

"Their employment will be only temporary and their function will be only to impart their knowledge to LOCAL MEN."

¶ Something for YOU to think about. How many trained executives do you think this corporation will need in their twenty-million-dollar local plant? Will they have the difficulty all large organizations have in finding men for managerial and accounting positions paying big salaries—salaries, we venture to guess, from $3,000 to $10,000 per year?

¶ They want Los Angeles men IF POSSIBLE. Heretofore such men have had to be brought from the eastern business centers because those with adequate training were not available here.

¶ Southwestern University School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance has been training men during the last seven years to meet such demands—but there have NOT BEEN ENOUGH. Southwestern graduates are meeting with extraordinary success in important capacities throughout the Southwest, and are in great demand.

¶ Will YOU not also expand your ability by a little extra effort—a little study, a little practical instruction—and thus find YOUR PLACE IN THE SUN?

—and now we read of four more plants of Goodyear calibre coming. This is only the beginning. Oh, let us PREPARE NOW!

Southwestern offers a complete curriculum of Book-keeping and Accounting, preparing for C.P.A. examination, Law, Business English, Advertising, Credits, Natural Resources, Economics, Industrial Organization, Real Estate, Salesmanship, Foreign Trade, Money and Banking, Corporation Finance, Insurance and Investments.

BLAMES BUREAU FOR HIGH COSTS.

Brown Says Organization of Farmers Responsible.

Attacks Market Director in Debate at City Club.

Charges Egg Shipments Cost Consumers Thousands.

Charging that combinations were formed among farmers with the object of maintaining high prices to consumers and that these combinations were fostered by Col. Weinstock, manager of the State Market Bureau featured the debate between Col. Weinstock and State Senator Brown on the market question before the City Club yesterday.

Senator Brown has been a consistent opponent of methods used by Col. Weinstock. He said that what was needed was the proper distribution of food and asserted that State markets properly conducted would solve the high costs problem. Senator Brown was the author of the State Market Act of 1915.

Col. Weinstock asserted that Senator Brown was unable to get indorsement from the Legislature of the views he held. He argued that proper method of distribution was to organize the producers in their various classes and have the organizations themselves handle the products instead of depending on commission or consignment concerns. This method he has followed, he said.

CHARGES PRICE BOOSTING.

Senator Brown asserted that the combinations organized under the direction of Col. Weinstock were boosting prices and creating the very conditions that the State Market Act sought to prevent. He referred particularly to the distribution of eggs and said that approximately $250,000 was added to prices here in 1918 by the sending of large shipments to New York by the association.

He said that similar conditions existed in the marketing of milk, that in the north the combination charged distributors 31 cents per gallon and paid the farmers only about 25 cents.

The Senator pointed out that if the State was to interest itself in the proper distribution of foodstuffs it should seek to benefit both producer and consumer. At present, he said, the State is furnishing money to organize one class of citizens, the producers, at the expense of another class, the consumers.

ORGANIZE CONSUMERS.

He said that if it be a correct theory for the market director to spend taxpayers' money in organizing food-selling combines, then in justice he ought to also form consumers' buying organizations and instruct them how to buy for the lowest prices.

The speaker described State markets as self-sustaining clearing houses to which producers might consign their products and to which buyers might come. State commission markets, he said, would be prepared to receive and sell products consigned to them after the manner of any first-class commission merchant. These markets would sell products for the farmer and remit to him all the returns less a reasonable commission to be used for maintaining the markets.

BAND AT UNIVERSITY.

Pre-War Organization Being Revived; Fifty in Chapel Choir.

One of the most popular post-war activities at the University of Southern California is the brass band, being organized to take part in student rallies and at football games. Before the war the U.S.C. band was one of the popular student activities. In 1917 ten members of the organization joined the navy and J. Paul Elliott, director, went with them and became bandmaster on the United States steamship Pueblo, which position he held two years.

Rehearsals have commenced and a large amount of talent is manifest.

Another popular innovation at the university is the chapel choir of fifty voices which made its first appearance last Wednesday. Prof. Horatio Coggswell is director.

MEDIATOR FAILED.

Mother-in-Law Called in Dispute to Testify in Action.

Judge Taft yesterday postponed a decision in the divorce suit of Mrs. Mary C. Meadows against Lyman C. Meadows until Mr. Meadows's mother-in-law could be summoned as a witness.

After their marriage, it was stated, the couple lived with the mother-in-law. Then they started their own home, but quarrels resulted and the mother-in-law was called in as mediator by Mrs. Meadows. She asked Mr. Meadows why he stayed out nights and he told her, according to the testimony, that his domestic affairs were none of her business.

STRIKER LOSES WIFE.

Longshoreman Disliked Dances and Beat Helpmate, Too.

Otto Fahler, a longshoreman, is not only out of work because of the strike, but he also lacks a wife, Judge Crail yesterday having granted Lucille Fahler a decree of divorce. Mrs. Fahler told the court that her husband beat her and tore her waist to pieces because she had been out to a dance.

The court granted the wife the custody of the daughter, 4 years old, and ordered Mr. Fahler to pay $6 a week for her support.

If BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications. —[Advertisement.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 10c and 25c—[Advertisement.

SEEK AWARD OF SEVEN MILLION.

Owners' Value North Island in Government Suit.

Oppose Condemnation for an Army Aviation Field.

Answer Denies Easement on San Diego Property.

Setting a value of $7,500,000 on North Island, in San Diego Harbor, and asking for a judgment of that amount in case condemnation is authorized, attorneys representing the Coronado Beach Company, owners of the property, yesterday filed their answer to the government's condemnation suit in the United States District Court here. The company opposes condemnation. The government is anxious to obtain the property for use as an army aviation field. It has been a training station for aviators since the beginning of the war.

Accompanying the answer was a certified check for $500 in payment of the fine assessed last Monday by Judge Trippet upon Herbert W. Clark, a lawyer appearing for the defendants, for contempt, the court holding that he made a frivolous excuse for not filing an answer to the government's bill.

DENIES EASEMENT.

In the answer now on file the Coronado Beach Company recites the history of the property, showing how it came into the possession of the company and denying any claim or easement on the part of the government. It states that the island property is owned by the company clear of any incumbrances and notes that the United States has had the use of the island by virtue of an executive order signed by President Wilson on August 1, 1917.

It is stated that on April 20, 1852, by virtue of an act of Congress, Frederick W. Billings, Jesse R. Bolton and Henry W. Halleck filed a claim for the land involved in this suit before the Board of Commissioners on Private Land Claims in California, and that the claim was rejected by such board. The claimants appealed and in 1856 the judgment of the board of commissioners was reversed by the United States District Court. The court held that Billings, Bolton and Halleck had a good and valid claim to what is now designated as North Island.

An appeal was taken from that judgment by the government to the United States Supreme Court, where it was dimissed and a decree of confirmation followed.

IS BAR TO CLAIM.

It is alleged that this is a bar to so much of the present action as seeks to determine in the United States court an easement for any purpose whatever.

It is further asserted that on June 11, 1896, the government issued a patent to Archibald C. Peachey and William Aspinwall, successors to the original claimants, and that the present defendants in turn are the successors to Peachey and Aspinwall.

It is asserted that the question of an easement on North Island, if it exists at all, accrued more than five years preceding March 4, 1896, and that it is therefore barred.

FILMS IN FACTORIES BUILDING UP MORALE.

Y.M.C.A. EXTENDS PICTURE SHOW CAMPAIGN TO THE WATER FRONT.

Use of the motion picture in shops and factories as a means of building morale and Americanism among employees has spread throughout the United States to such an extent that films are being shown in 125 places under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, according to a report prepared by that organization for the fortieth international convention of the Y.M.C.A. to be held at Detroit, November 20 to 23. Work carried on by the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. for shipyard workers will be supplemented this week with pictures projected by a portable machine.

Stanley Baker, industrial secretary for the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A., stated yesterday that a programme for industrial workers of the city would include motion picture shows given at night and even at the noon hours, under proper light conditions. The projector will be used first at Los Angeles Harbor among shipyard workers. At the main plant of the Hammond Lumber Company, where a new recreational programme is just beginning, it is hoped to introduce also a series of motion picture programme.

In the plants of Worchester, Mass., it is announced in the industrial Y.M.C.A. report, the attendance of workmen at motion picture shows during August was 60,000. At Newport News, pictures are shown at eighteen points each week to men employed in factories and shipyards. The demand is said to be growing in industrial plants throughout the United States. During the first seven months of 1919, it is shown, 2577 showings of films were made with a total attendance of nearly 1,000,000 workmen.

English classes often show marked increases in enrollment in factories where films are shown, and community singing is encouraged.

PLAN NEW PARKS IN HOLLYWOOD SECTION.

THREE SITES SELECTED ARE REPORTED FOR APPROVAL TO ASSOCIATION.

Teh report of the committee working out a park and playground system for Hollywood has been submitted to the Hollywood Memorial Park and Playgrounds' Association. It proposes sites in three sections. One is the large sunken tract at Sanburn junction, between Santa Monica and Sunset boulevards. A second is the thirty-acre Beesmeyer tract between Sunset boulevard and Fountain, Bronson and Wilton avenues. The third is the area of the north side of Fountain, between Fuller and Formosa avenues.

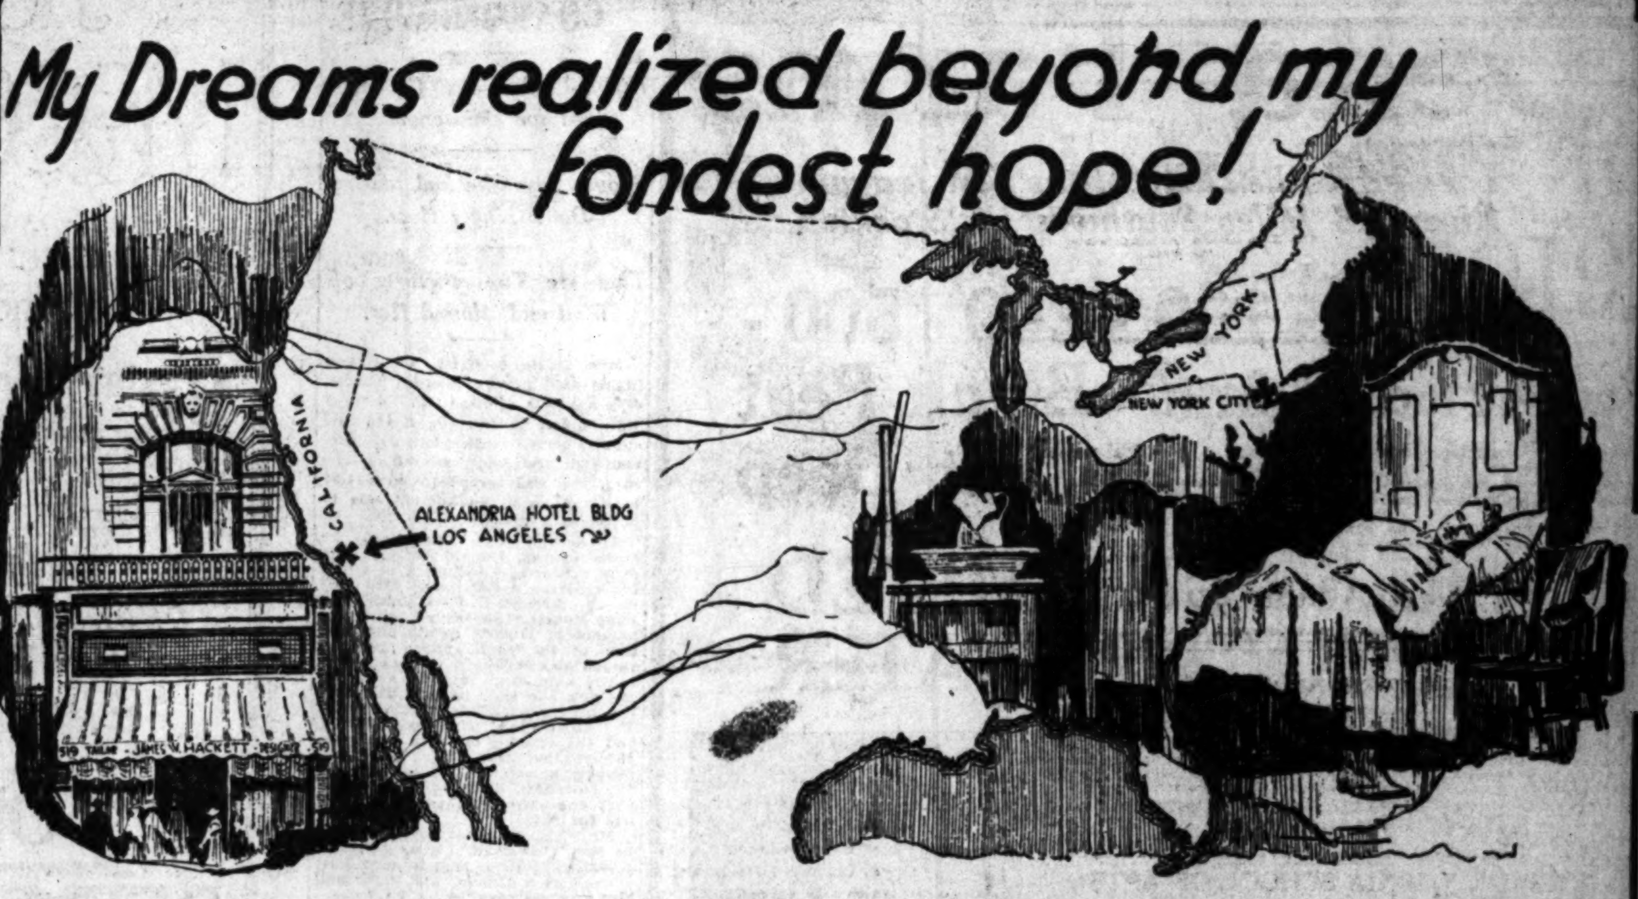
The executive committee of the association has approved the sites and a recommendation was adopted that an addition of $150,000 be made to a proposed bond issue, $50,000 of which would be used to obtain a community center park for the vicinity of Vermont avenue, a similar amount to acquire a tract in Hollywood boulevard adjoining the Woman's Club, the other $50,000 to be used for a center park and boulevard in Vine street between Wilshire and Hollywood boulevards.

McCLELLAN TO TELL OF TRIP TO ALASKA.

Supervisor McClellan, who headed the recent expedition sent by Los Angeles county to secure Alaskan material for the museum at Exposition Park, will tell the story of the party's experiences to members of Hollywood Post, American Legion, tomorrow evening. This will be the first public description of the journey that Supervisor McCellan has given. His talk will be illustrated with photographic slides prepared from negatives secured by members of the party.

All former service men will be welcomed at the lecture, which will be given at the Hollywood Post headquarters at Toberman Hall, 6412 Hollywood boulevard.

My Dreams realized beyond my fondest hope!



Do Dreams Ever Materialize? Read This

On opening my new shop in the Alexandria Hotel Annex June 16 last I only dared hope to equal the success I had formally achieved in New York City where most of my life has been spent in perfecting myself in my chosen avocation, Tailoring for Exacting Men

To my surprise, a most pleasant one, the announcement of my opening, in the leading papers of this city, brought the Greatest Number of Clothes Buyers who ever came, in so short a period of time, to any Exclusive Tailoring establishment, even in the largest cities of the East.

To give you, gentlemen, an idea of the great volume of my business in this beautiful city, I will say that during the first ten days after my opening I was forced to close the doors on several occasions for an hour or two in order to properly serve my throng of customers and to make room for others. I have instructed my salesmanager, Mr. Sidney Cowen, to select several hundred more Seventy-five-Dollar patterns of all-wool domestic and imported fabrics for this price. Mr. Cowen, who is thoroughly acquainted with the clothes buying public of the city and who has a well defined knowledge of what is correct, has charge of my selling force and is authorized and instructed by me to see that every customer gets a Square Deal.

It was a REAL SENSATIONAL SUCCESS, and they are still coming.

I do not wish to boast, but would only say as modestly as possible that I feel grateful, indeed, to all my past patrons and wish to thank in advance those who will follow in their footsteps and give me a chance to serve them.

I attend personally to the making and fitting of the garments, perhaps the most important part, although I have in my employ a most Efficient Corps of assistants.

PERSONAL ATTENTION, HONEST WORK and SINCERITY have been the basis of my success in New York, and I am sure the same principle will win here as well.

ALL MY TAILORS ARE WORKING; THEREFORE, YOU ARE ASSURED THERE WILL BE NO DELAY IN FINISHING YOUR ORDERS.

In appreciation of this most liberal and quick response I will for an indefinite time feature my Seventy-five-Dollar all-wool garments for FIFTY DOLLARS. My guaranteed All-Wool Seventy-five Dollar values for

SOLDIER DEAD SOON TO BE BROUGHT BACK.

THOSE IN FRANCE, HOWEVER, CAN'T BE TOUCHED UNTIL LAW IS CHANGED.

The bodies of American soldiers who died in Europe, except those buried in French soil, may be brought back to this country soon, according to a report received yesterday at the army recruiting station in the San Fernando Building. At the present time there is a law in France forbidding the removal of any bodies of soldiers. For that reason any relatives here who want to have returned the bodies of men buried in France will have to apply to the War Department so that arrangements can be made through diplomatic sources for permission to remove the bodies.

It was stated, however, that American soldiers who died in Russia, Germany, Italy or any other country except France would be returned in a short time, and that the War Department was anxious to hear from relatives of the soldier dead regarding the disposal of the bodies when they are brought back to this country.

NEW CLASSES HERE.

Extension Division Plans Practical Work in Civics Course.

Among a number of new courses annousced by the Extension Division of the University of California is a class in civic problems designed especially for teachers of civics in the city schools. Practical work in visiting city institutions and making a survey of city government is being given in the course.

The Extension Division also is offering a new course in the history of Mexico and new classes in advanced commercial Spanish. One class meets in the Knights of Columbus hall Thursday evenings and the other on Tuesday evenings in the library school room, in the Metropolitan Building.

In order to give students of the French Classes an opportunity for more conversat on members of the various classes are organizing a French club with headquarters in the Metropolitan Building. They meet Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

ACTOR MISERLY, CHARGES WIFE.

Highly-Paid Film Caveman Sued for Maintenance.

Spouse Says She had to Buy Dollar-ninety Hats.

That He Tore Pictures off Wall and Abused Her.

Mrs. Marie S. Crisp, wife of a highly-paid moving picture actor, says she was allowed $25 a week with which to run the house and supply herself with clothing. Because of the small allowance, she says, she was forced to buy $1.98 hats and go to an auction sale to purchase a dress.

These and other allegations are made against Donald Crisp, film prize-fighter and caveman, in a suit for separate maintenance filed yesterday through R. J. O. Culver and Paul Mourse. She asked for maintenance of $1000 a month and one-half of the community property, valued at $60,000.

The complaint sets up a list of clothing she says he paid for during her married life of two years. The total price paid was $286.48, and the articles included one coat, $32.50; one dress, $29; one dress (bought at auction) $20; one smock, $5; two hats, $1.98 each; one hat, $12; one skirt, $21; one fur, $135; one fur $30.

Mr. Crisp is a leading character in the "Clansman" and "Broken Blossoms." He is said to earn $600 a week as a director and actor and also receives royalties.

CALLS HIM MISERLY.

Mrs. Crisp, who is suffering from nervous prostration and, on the advice of her physician, is in a hospital, asserts that Mr. Crisp is penurious. She charges he refused to provide her with a maid or a cook; forced her to do all the work in an eight-room house; compelled her to walk to the store for groceries; required her to awaken him in the morning when his bath was ready; sulked and became abusive if she neglected personal attentions to him; called her a "liar" and "hypocrite."

He accused her of being intoxicated, which she denied, and when she became highly nervous, she declares, he seized her and threw her violently against the wall; roughly pushed her through the door of their hotel room into the corridor and forced her to accompany him to the public dining-room against her wishes.

He bought a Liberty Bond when she requested him to do so, she relates, but adds that he deducted $2.50 a week from her allowance to pay for it.

PICTURES SMASHED.

Mr. Crisp is alleged to have torn down the pictures from the walls of Mrs. Crisp's room and thrown them violently on the floor. She says he jerked the scarf from the dresser and scattered her toilet articles on the floor. He went into the closet with matches and threatened to burn all the clothing, the complaint recites. Another charge is that he would not permit her to order supplies over the telephone.

The day of the separation, Mrs. Crisp states, he forced her to pack a portion of her clothing and sent her to her mother's home in an automobile.

Mr. Crisp has been cited to appear in court November 3, to show cause why he should not pay temporary alimony and also why he should not be restrained from disposing of stocks, bonds and other securities.

The Crisps were married December 15, 1917, and separated October 17, 1919.

WAS THEATER OWNER.

Services Today for Friedlander Amusement Company Head.

Funeral services for S. H. Friedlander will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Breese Brothers Chapel. Interment will be at the Home of Peace Cemetery.

Mr. Friedlander was 71 years old. He was well known in this city and in San Francisco where for a number of years he was engaged in the theatrical business. He formerly owned and operated the Columbia Theater at San Francisco. During the past six years he has lived in Los Angeles conducting the Friedlander Amusement Company, a boxing organization. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Laurer, and a brother, Louis H. Friedlander.

AS WARSHIP'S GUESTS.

The cadets of the Urban Military Academy will be the guests of Capt. Willard of the flagship New Mexico this afternoon. After visiting the ship, the cadets in turn will act as host to Capt. Willard and party at an informal dinner given at the Virigina, Long Beach.

WOULD HASTEN CLOSE OF U. S. GRAIN CONTROL

WHEAT EMBARGOES SHOULD BE ANNULLED, SAYS CHAIRMAN BARNES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—While defending embargoes against wheat exports and imports, Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the United States Grain Corporation, told the Senate Agriculture Committee that the embargoes should be annulled as quickly as possible. Action either by the President or Congress would be necessary, he said.

Mr. Barnes explained that the embargoes had been ordered by President Wilson in an effort to hold down the cost of food. It was agreed last August to remove them, but this action was rescinded, "owing to the acute agitation on the high cost of living and the possibility of an advance in the cost of food if the embargoes were lifted."

NOT BARNES'S POLICY.

Mr. Barnes emphasized that the embargoes were not his policy.

"I have felt," he said, "that this government injection into business should be stopped at the earliest possible moment."

Shipping board rates on grain export are so much higher than those of foreign ships that practically no government vessels are used in the wheat trade, Mr. Barnes said. Some of the government rates are four times British rates, he added.

American wheat is being exported as rapidly as is desirable, Mr. Barnes said, adding that without the government guarantee, much wheat would sell at lower prices than now prevail in this country.

WOULD LOWER FOOD PRICES.

Lifting of the embargoes, Mr. Barnes said, would result in a decline instead of increase in American prices.

The government grain agency cannot be ended without some "distress, dislocation and profit and loss to somebody," he declared. It should be done as soon as possible, he added, but in a way to cause the least interruption to production and marketing.

Grand Jury Rests in Newberry Case.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

GRAND RAPIDS (Mich.) Oct. 25.—Adjournment was taken yesterday until Monday by the grand jury investigating campaign expeditures of United States Senator Truman H. Newberry. Twenty-one witnesses, mostly from Grand Rapids, were examined yesterday, and the total thus far in the hearing is forty-nine.

MILK GOES UP SATURDAY.

Milk prices will be raised 1 to 2 cents a quart next Saturday, November 1. This was announced by local retailers last night following notification by the Southern California Milk Producers' Association to the local creameries that raw milk will be advanced to $1.10 a pound butter fat on that date. This is a rise of about 40 cents on forty-five quarts of milk.

The creameries recently granted the producers an increase without any demand. This was due to the fact that a number of dairymen were selling their herds and closing up their businesses. The local men faced a shortage and saw that the city would soon be short of milk unless something was done to preserve the supply. The producers found the increase inadequate and recently Thomas H. Brice, secretary of the organization, told the creameries that an increase was necessary. Br. Brice says that large dairymen in this section are selling out. Several ranches owning a 100 or more cows each have sold out within the last week, and others have announced their intention of doing so.

Mr. Brice said last night that within the last two months, the dealers here have given the dairymen two advances that were not asked for. No change was made in the selling price here due to strikes and unsettled conditions and the creameries absorbed the loss. When the new price goes into effect, he says, they will be forced to raise at least a cent a quart to cover the increase. The farmer is asking $1.10 a pound for butter fat. There is four pounds of fat to each 100 pounds of milk. In liquid measure this is forty-five quarts. As the advance is 40 cents on forty-five quarts, the creameries are expected to raise 1 cent per bottle.

Using eucalyptus poles for rafters, palm leaves for thatched roof, flat stones for porch floor, old photograph negatives to make French glass windows, a local man has erected a model bungalow cabin that money can hardly duplicate in town. Ask to see it. The outdoor living-room is merely the drooping branches of a live oak tree, lit by electricity and furnished with rustic benches. The idea is carried further in other buildings near here, in the making of concrete (interlocking) shingles. He recently saw some rustic bedsteads while away at Bear Valley and he is fitting his guest room in rustic

As the green grass and the Maypole belong to springtime—as the warm sand and the foamy wave, the forests and the mountain trail belong to summer—so THE HOME belongs to fall and winter.

And the Holidays that come in the months when the hearthfire glows are the holidays of light and warmth and sparkle, the holidays of the heart and love, the holidays of HOME!

So from Hallowe'en to New Year's Day, the Home is, in a very special way, Headquarters for Festivity! The open fire, the beguiling depths of soft davenports and easy chairs, the beautiful shining of shaded lamps upon scenes of lively merriment or quiet joy, the radiance of smooth white linen and the sparkle of silver and lustrous china when happy parties gather for the holiday feast—these are as inseparably a part of the festive season as are the jack o' lantern, the stuffed gobbler and the Christmas tree.

Oh, if you knew the plans that are afoot to make hundreds of homes ready to star gracefully in THE HEARTHSIDE FESTIVALS OF 1919, you'd be thrilled with the thought of what it means!—and we think you'd be more than ever eager to fill your own abode with more of beauty, comfort and the capacity for inspiring happiness in the folks who live there. Please come in and tell us what we can do to help!

It Takes Love--and a Clock to make the World Go Round

At least the business and pleasure of life move with considerably more smoothness and satisfaction when there's a good Clock "on the job."

And especially true is this if the Clock in question is a fine old "Grandfather."

The influence of an admirable floor clock in a home is all for good. Some parents even say they'd as soon bring up their children without a piano as without a "family clock."

The "lieutenants" of the Grandfather Clock are, of course, the smart, obedient, good-looking timepieces that have their post upon wall, mantel, desk or dressing-table.

There's fascination in Clocks of character and we shall be proud to introduce you properly to "Clock-Land" at Barker Bros.'—before you decide upon your Christmas gifts.

Whether the Love of Lace is a Woman's Whim or whether it is a primitive instinct given to the home-making sex for the sake of fostering beauty in the world is a matter of opinion.

The fact of the matter is, however, not debatable. Women do love lace—perhaps because they know that almost anything (from a pretty arm to a view through a window) looks more attractive when veiled with lace.

And so it is a genuine joy to tell of a marvelous treasury of Pattern Curtains that are jeweled with real laces from across the seas!

They are of every type, including pure period styles to harmonize with Italian Renaissance, Adam and other distinct spirits of decoration.

They are of Irish Point and Tambour, Venise, Cluny and Filet. They are the sort of curtains that make you catch your breath and sigh, "How beautiful!"

They are in our Drapery Section, waiting for you to see and love them.

Lovely Frames for Christmas —and Pictures! —and Gift Goods!

All in that dazzling gallery of lovely things that beauty-lovers know as Barker Bros.' Picture and Gift Department!

A Frame to protect and enhance the charm of a dear photograph—a Picture that will spur the imagination to interesting and happy thoughts—a Lamp or bit of Marble Statuary or colorful Vase or classic Book-Blocks—these are gifts that make Christmas a glad fete and a delightful memory.

Barker Bros.' Department of Pictures and Art Objects is a wonderful place to buy beautiful gifts at practical prices—especially now (and now is not too soon!)

Hallowe'en Thrills for Wednesday's Story Hour

There isn't a solitary little kiddie who should be made to miss the Story-Hour next Wednesday and I'll tell you why! There'll be ghost stories and lantern stories with the wind whistling around corners and pumpkins with great big eyes and huge mouths that shine with flaming lights—and if you are real curious about Hallowe'en you'd better come. Story-Hour free each Wednesday, at two o'clock, and Saturday, eleven o'clock.

Barker Bros.' Sincere Service Department exists to rectify any error or straighten out any misunderstanding that may arise in transactions between our customers and this store. Delay in delivery, imperfection, damage or any other mistake or oversight is a matter for this department's INSTANT attention and IMMEDIATE correction.

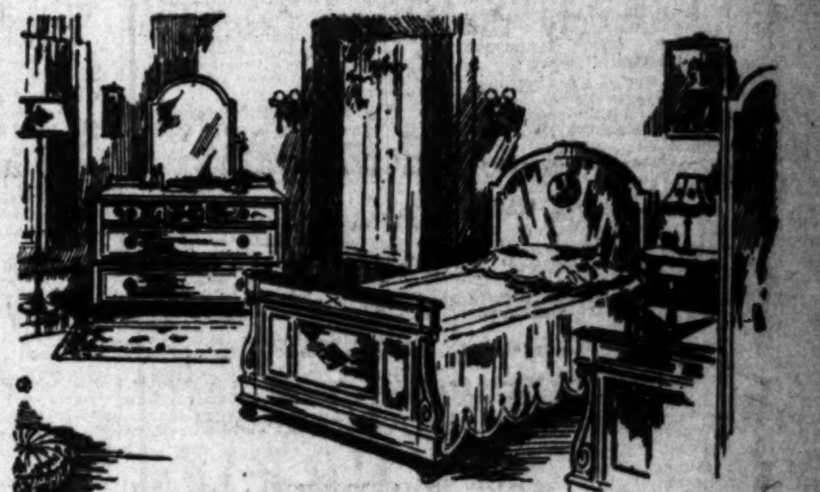
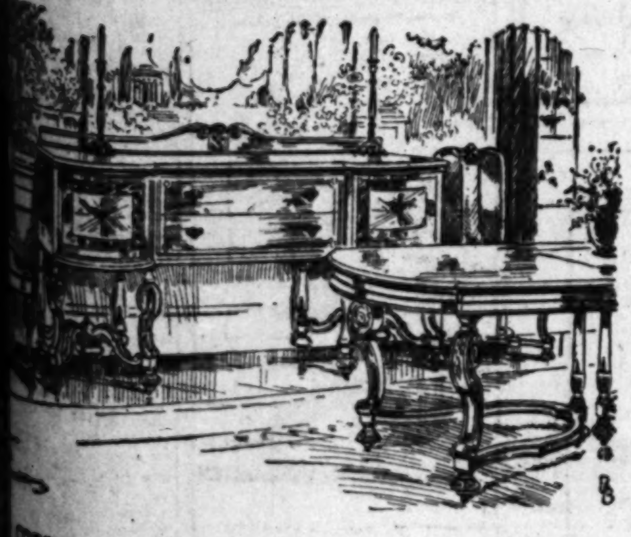
Should you have cause for disappointment or displeasure, we respectfully request that you call directly upon the SERVICE DEPARTMENT.

Not to leave undone a single thing that shall make and keep our friends is Barker Bros.' policy and plan.





Something Substantial, Something Distinctive and, withal, something quite agreeably priced is a new Dining Suite, partially pictured at the left, and displayed for you to see, in its entirety, upon the floor of dining-room furniture at Barker Bros.' tomorrow.

One virtue that naturally can't "show up" in the sketch is the unusual comfortableness of the chairs—another is the exceeding beauty of the inlaid cupboard fronts, half-eclipse in shape.

But you can see how handsomely the legs and stretchers are designed and you can imagine how effective the whole suite would be in either walnut or mahogany, relieved with burl, and crotch—adorning your dining-room this autumn!

Some entirely original and stunning shapes and ideas in dining-room furniture have just come in—and how we'll love to watch your face when you first see them!

The Difference Between a Smile and a Frown is Often Merely a Matter of Wall Paper

Harmonizing backgrounds mean so much in your home-beautiful scheme that it is impossible to give too much care to the selection of wall papers. To be true in its blending of colors, and effective both in day light and lamp light are two characteristics of the well-chosen wall covering.

We have in our Wall Paper Studio artists who understand the effect and harmony of wall decorations and who really love to study out original, pleasing ways of papering your walls to increase the beauty and happiness of your home.

An Artist Had an Inspiration —and this Furniture is the fruit it bore!

Surely, nothing short of inspiration—and that the inspiration of a genius—could have produced a pattern so utterly sublime as that of this certain suite of Walnut Bedroom Furniture (it glorifies one of our windows today).

What a pity it is that, when eyes can see so plainly and hearts adore so deeply, still words can speak so feebly of the beauties that are in the world!

Merely to breathe the air of a room furnished with this lovely Italian Renaissance chamber furniture would be pure joy. Each piece is, in point of artistic interest, a "studio production."

Much other beautiful new Bedroom Furniture, of antique flavor or frankly modern origin, is charmingly disposed about awaiting your word—at Barker Bros.' this week.

TRIPLE CELEBRATION FOR ARMISTICE DAY.

MUSIC COMMITTEE ASKS AID OF WOMEN'S CLUBS FOR PARK GATHERING.

Letters will be sent out tomorrow by the music division of the Tribute Day Committee, to 400 women, advising them of the plan to hold a celebration on Armistice Day, November 11, at Exposition Park. The letters are addressed to every woman's club and organization in Los Angeles and to many individual women.

The grand stand at Exposition Park will be reserved for women, particularly members of the war organizations, such as the Red Cross and Y.W.C.A.. The Red Cross nurses are expected to appear in uniform. A space in front of the grand stand will be reserved for former service men.

The music committee calls attention to the fact that the celebration is really threefold in character as it will be in the nature of a tribute to women for their part in the war; a tribute to the former service men and national song day of the women's clubs. The service men will be officially represented by the American Legion.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Oct. 25. — [Reported by H. B. Henry, Meteorologist.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.99; at 5 p.m., 30.01. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 58 deg. and 60 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 86 per cent.; 5 p.m., 65 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 2 miles; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 12 miles. Highest temperature, 62 deg.; lowest, 51 deg. Rainfall for season, 1.95 inches; last season to date, .67 of an inch. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The area of low pressure, central in Southern Nevada yesterday morning, has moved eastward and now covers Utah, Northern Arizona and Western Colorado. This has caused general rains in Arizona, Utah, Nevada and California during the past twenty-four hours. Intensely cold weather covers Nebraska, Wyoming, the Dakotas and Montana, Havre, Mont., reporting a minimum of 4 deg. below zero this morning. Fair weather will prevail in this vicinity Sunday, with slightly higher temperature.

ORCHARD REPORTS.—Minimum and maximum temperatures from the orchards, reported yesterday to the Los Angeles office of the U. S. Weather Bureau, were as follows:

IN SEVEN MONTHS.

The task the Goodyear construction forces have set out to accomplish is to have the rubber factory ready for business by June 1, 1920, which means that seven months hence the first unit of the gigantic enterprise, employing nearly 4000 operatives and with a production output of 7500 tires a day, will be actually in operation. This building, 580 by 300 feet, faces on Central avenue, a short distance south of Slauson avenue, less than a mile from the Ascot Park grand stand and on ground that for years was valued only as a market garden. The foundations of the structure, resting on a solid base of concrete, are already laid and the brick walls are well above the ground. The present steady progress, the engineers say, will bring the building under roof by midwinter, unless there is an unforeseen delay in delivering the structural steel on the ground.

While work on the rubber factory is being pushed, construction also is going forward on the cotton factory. The foundation has been dug and many of the concrete building supports laid. This building, also fronting on Central avenue, will be 350 by 150 feet. It will house 33,000 spindles capable of turning out 150,000 yards of cotton fabric every week, and under its roof will be employed more than 2000 operatives.

These two buildings will be connected with an immense warehouse by a thirty-foot tunnel, through which the raw products and supplies will pass from one building to another. The object of the tunnel is greater speed in handling factory products and to insure protection from dust and dirt.

Around these buildings will be grouped the service buildings necessary to complete the two plants—the power house, storage warehouse, administrative offices, transportation building, service departments, etc.

The arrangement of this mammoth group of structures has been worked out from the experience gained by the Goodyear executives in more than twenty years of manufacturing at the Akron (O.) plant.

ENORMOUS JOB.

An idea of the stupendous size of the building construction involved in the Los Angeles Goodyear plant is gained through an estimate of the three principal materials—lumber, cement and brick—required for the job. More than 500,000 board feet of lumber will be used in the construction of the tire factory alone, while the total for all the buildings will probably reach 4,000,000 feet. Large quantities of this lumber will be used in making the moulds into which the concrete is poured. Approximately 2,000,000 feet of maple flooring will be required. All the buildings will be of reinforced concrete and brick construction.

The foundation and walls of the buildings call for the use of approximately 10,000,000 bricks. The item of cement, all of Southern California manufacture, as is the brick, will perhaps approximate 50,000 barrels. In addition to these materials, approximately 6000 tons of structural steel will be used.

A large part of the lumber, cement and brick is now on the ground, and the balance of the order is being trucked to the site as rapidly as the work can proceed. Nearly sixty acres of ground are included in the scope of the present building operations, much of this space being piled high with assembled materials.

Two giant concrete mixing machines, stationed near the center of operations, are mixing thousands of pounds of this material daily, and through long steel chutes, elevated nearly 100 feet in the air and supported by steel cables, it is poured directly into the foundation excavations. This method eliminates hauling and enables the work to proceed with great rapidity.

THOUSAND AT WORK.

In all, about 1000 men are on the job, including carpenters, bricklayers, cement workers, engineers, surveyors and helpers.

In advance of the completion of the plant, temporary structures were erected to house the forces of the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Company, the contracting firm which has the general building contract. Here are located the offices of W. D. Hunkin, president of the Hunkin-Conkey Company; W. R. Urquhart, assistant chief engineer of the Goodyear company, and the company's drafting department and paymaster's office. At the south end of the tract is a huge temporary warehouse, in which are stored such smaller building materials as hardware, wire cable, rope and tools, etc., together with the incidental tire-making machinery which has already arrived from the East.

The tracks of both the Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific Railway have been extended directly to the work, and over these lines are being hauled train-loads of mate-

OVERALLS RUN GOODYEAR.

Seiberling Lieutenants All Geniuses of School of Hard, Tireless Work.

Genius of the kind associated with industrial needs has nothing in common with the poetical brand that waits for "inspiration" before getting into action in the opinion of F. A. Seiberling, head of the great Goodyear interests that are bringing millions and an enormous enterprise to this community.

Industry—the long-sustained kind that rises promptly and smilingly to its feet when knocked to its knees—is the big brother of genius, Mr. Seiberling declares. And he likes to think of genius dressed in overalls rather than a dress suit, preferring in the men around him a bit of honest grime to highly polished finger nails. This also is gospel with Mr. Seiberling, though he thinks highly of Kipling as a poet and once owned a volume of Robert Browning.

All of the Goodyear executive staff—those men to whom Mr. Seiberling passes the credit for building that organization into the mighty thing it is today—belong to the "overall school" of genius. They are men to whom work gravitates as naturally as water runs down hill; otherwise, he says, they would be elsewhere than in the Goodyear fold. The Goodyear policy and management are in the hands of a working triumvirate of these men—to eliminate President Seiberling for the moment. They are the company's three vice-presidents.

G. W. Stadelman, vice-president and sales manager, directs the sales and advertising policies—unhampered by anyone. Mr. Stadelman furnishes the inspiration for all the great advertising "copy" that continuously appears in American newspapers, magazines and trade journals. A Chicago advertising agency places the "ads".

BEST RUBBER MAN.

P. W. Litchfield, vice-president and factory manager, to whom Mr. Seiberling paid this tribute: "Litchfield, a self-made college man with one foot in Akron and the other on Plymouth Rock, is the best rubber man in the world—bar none"—stands watch over the quality and volume of the Goodyear production. He has been with the Goodyear organization twenty-one years. Mr. Seiberling "discovered" him, then 23 years old, at the head of a factory

TO START GREAT AIR DERBY HERE.

Commission Arranging 'Round-the-World Flight to be Shown Here Tomorrow by Scientific Data that Local Wind Conditions are Best on the Coast.

Facts showing that Los Angeles provides the only ideal air conditions to be found on the Pacific Coast for the jumping-off place for the starters in the first aerial Derby around the world will be laid before Commodore Louis D. Beaumont and members of the commission arranging the flight at a luncheon to be given the visitors tomorrow noon at the University Club.

Dr. Carpenter, manager of the department of meteorology and aeronautics of the Chamber of Commerce, will explain data that he has been accumulating for years. This shows that, unlike any other city in the United States, for more than 300 days of each year aviators and balloonists may fly here because of the steady winds, which seldom exceed five miles an hour in the city proper, increasing to six, seven, eight and nine miles an hour in the direction of the ocean.

When it is recalled that the across-the-Atlantic aviators lingered at St. John's, Newfoundland, for weeks, waiting for favorable weather conditions the superior advantages of Los Angeles can be realized. Dr. Carpenter will give the visitors complete data concerning aeronautical conditions at Los Angeles, a service that no other city in the United States is able to perform for its territory and which was made possible by the establishment of his department by the Chamber of Commerce.

GOING AROUND WORLD.

The commission of which Commodore Baumont is the head includes Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America; William G. Sharp, former United States Ambassador to France; Col. Jefferson De Mont Thompson, chief of the New York City aerial police; Lieut.-Col. S. Herbert Mapes, his deputy; Henry Woodhouse, vice-president of the Aerial League of America; Maj. Charles J. Glidden of Boston, executive secretary of the special commission, and a pioneer balloonist, and Benjamin Hillman. The party is starting on a trip around the world to arrange for landing places and other details of the aerial derby.

This event, which will be the most important flight since the airplane was invented, is being arranged as a result of the co-operation of the American Commission, the International Aeronautic Federation, which has its headquarters in France; the Aero Club of America and the Aerial League of America. If Los Angeles is chosen as the Pacific Coast jumping-off place for the trip, the importance it will assume throughout the world as an aviation center cannot be overvalued.

Dr. Carpenter has prepared a complete air and wind survey of Los Angeles, for the information of those who intend to establish aviation or landing fields or to undertake balloon or airplane work, and which is of great value, industrially, in aiding those who intend to establish industrial plants here.

CITY'S "VENTILATION."

In these revolutionary days science is making gigantic strides, and the public is accustomed to new things. Therefore, when Dr. Carpenter, in outlining some of his discoveries, speaks of "the ventilation of a city," referring to the air currents over and above the city, no one is surprised, although the statement might have caused comment ten years ago. Speaking of this charting of the city's air currents, Dr. Carpenter said:

"Climatic surveys of municipalities are necessary. In these days of rapid advance in commercial aviation no city can be without one or more landing fields for aircraft. It is needless to dwell upon the vital necessity of knowing beforehand both the direction and the velocity of the wind for such fields. There are a dozen or more landing fields in the vicinity of Los Angeles and only those which have been selected on account of meteorological conditions will survive. The others will revert to previous uses.

"Expensive and annoying litigation consequent upon the encroachment of factories to the windward of high-class city properties would be effectually prevented if an intensive climatic survey was conducted by a competent and experienced meteorologist.

TO LOCATE FACTORIES.

Wind movement and direction should be an important factor in industrial locations. Pacific Coast cities are beginning to become known as industrial centers and for the protection of the residential districts, as well as occupancy of their own logical locations, factory sites should be designated only after scientific survey and careful study of prevailing weather conditions. Los Angeles is happily located in that the proper placing of factories

Why It's a Mistake to Delay
Your Purchase of a
NEW EDISON

Most everything you buy wears out eventually. An automobile, for example — or a suit of clothes. So the longer you delay its purchase the longer you'll have it to enjoy.

Not so with a New Edison. It will outlive you anyway. Every month you delay is just one more month gone from your life—another month in which you might have had your life enriched by music—but didn't.

Under our new plan by which payment can be made so much a month there's no reason why you shouldn't be enjoying your New Edison right now.

"Call any day for a demonstration. "Send it out to the house" will be your verdict.

SEIBERLING SEEKS MEN OF MERIT.

Workers Who Have Only "Pull" will Have no Chance in the Great Goodyear Enterprise Here, Says Human Dynamo Who Prizes Spiritual Values.

BY GUY W. FINNEY.

"No human being ever wins in life except through resistance! It is resistance that makes men—lack of it, failures. Pull is one of the world's great vices. It should never be used in business. Merit alone is the element that counts!"

In the light of the fact that F. A. Seiberling, presiding genius over the great Goodyear enterprise that has come to this city avowedly to shift the axis of the world's rubber industry from Akron to Los Angeles, has paved the way for a substantial livelihood for several thousand men and women workers, it may be well for those who hope to enlist under the Goodyear banner to con over these significant lines and then carefully commit them to memory. They are Mr. Seiberling's words, exactly as he meant them, except that as they lie on the printed page they lack that element of sound, precisely like the crack of a rifleman's piece, with which they smote the listener's ear as Mr. Seiberling spoke them.

They happen to be big in their interest to Los Angeles just now because they form the intrinsic groundwork, so to speak, of Mr. Seiberling's business philosophy; and it is this philosophy—evolved along the highroad of human experience, thick with bumps and discouragements, as he will tell you—that he intends to apply in his dealings here. Moreover, it is the one that has stood unfailingly by him through the labored process of building an organization which is today one of the wonders of the industrial world; an organization representing the assembled energies of some 24,000 men and women at Akron, whose products touch every phase of our commercial and recreational life and which functions through a business arm so powerfully constructed that it reaches to the remotest corners of the civilized globe.

MAMMOTH ENTERPRISE.

In Akron, the present rubber "capital" of the world, Mr. Seiberling is known as the creator of the world's largest individual rubber manufacturing enterprise—one that covers all of 100 acres of factory floor space that has a daily output of 27,000 tires and an annual business turnover of $150,000,000. To bring the picture nearer to home, Southern California boasts of not less than three cities supporting a population comparable with the Goodyear Ohio plant, but if the comparison were carried further, all three cities combined could not muster an industrial output that would measure against this Akron enterprise a showing that would sound louder than a rattle in packing box.

And now, almost overnight and with the least resistance he has ever encountered in his astonishingly active career, Mr. Seiberling has become the most interesting figure with whom Los Angeles has had to deal since the world began to move on rubber tires. Along with the compelling personality which is his, Mr. Seiberling has brought the magic of a city-builder that promises to make a deeper impression and play a bigger part in the industrial expansion of Southern California and the Pacific Coast than the enterprise of any man drawn here on a similar mission. It was, in fact, the opening of a new page of industrial and commercial advancement for Southern California, world-wide in scope, that brought Mr. Seiberling here.

BEGINNINGS HERE.

The beginning of what he and his associates expect to accomplish is found in the work already under way on the site at Ascot Park; a combined rubber and cotton manufacturing enterprise, capitalized at $20,000,000, that will mean the employment of some 8000 workers. This in itself, without count of the immensity of allied and subsidiary activities that such a mammoth enterprise will involve, is a fair duplication of what has been created at Akron after twenty years of toil which at times was so accentuated by opposition that a spirit less robust that F. A. Seiberling's would have gone down in defeat. But defeate is a word long since put to rout from the Seiberling lexicon.

SPIRITUAL VALUE.

The spirit of enterprise — as it flowed not merely from himself, but from the army of men around him—is, under his reasoning, to be given full play. Spiritual value, as he firmly understands it, is the element that makes big stature, whether you are confining your building to self or to man-made enterprise. He has applied this rule—which he regards as superior to any law of business that merely touches profit — with such unswerving fidelity that he regards the welfare work done for and in connection with the Goodyear operating forces as of major importance in that gigantic enterprise, which explains why he will, at most any time of his working day, turn aside from pressing business matters, involving thousands of dollars to the company, and discuss any subject concerned with the comfort and contentment of his men—housing, recreation, a new baby in the foreman's household, wages, a musicale given by the Goodyear orchestra or any one of countless other things related to the lives around him.

INTERVIEW SOUGHT.

No such activity as the Seiberling activity driven by such a powerful personality as the Seiberling personality can ever hope to escape newspaper inquiry. He literally exudes story material. Every day he lives some act of his could be woven into narrative form that would carry its own lesson. It was to learn something of the "human" side of the man and to get him to reveal more of the great plan of city-building he has undertaken in Los Angeles that I sought him out and asked this interview. And here follows a seeming paradox when I say that the most accessible man in the world—for that is what Mr. Seiberling appears to be—can at times be the least accessible.

I found him shortly after 8 o'clock, rising from his breakfast at the Alexandria, prepared for his foray into the business day. Obviously, he was in a mood for a quick getaway, the reason for which I later learned. The dynamo which generates the tremendous flow of current that energizes and illuminates this remarkable man had already begun to hum.

Would he give me an interview? Certainly! His "certainly" was sincerely and convincingly spoken. Mr. Seiberling has either never acquired or long since forgotten that transparent art which habituates many lesser men—of pretending to be too big and too busy to be interviewed. At any rate, his submission to my aims was complete.

But, he regretted to say, the day ahead promised topheaviness with business—and I might have to take my interview on the run.

My legs have not been enfeebled by lack of exercise, yet it took a runner's pace to keep the stride of the head of the Goodyear enterprise as he negotiated the two blocks from the Alexandria Hotel to his business office at the Washington Building. The hurry of that walk left but little time to gather impressions from Mr. Seiberling, save that he was delighted with his reception here and the weather certainly was of the kind reserved by heaven for special benefits.

RUSH OF AFFAIRS.

At the office a human cordon flanked Mr. Seiberling's desk, each waiting to get in his own idea of the world's most pressing need. In the group were contractors, architects, book agents, specialists in this or that or the other thing, rotarians, officers of a civic and a business organization, three newspaper men, cement and lumber agents, a man seeking to dispose of a large cotton acreage in Arizona, and several members of the Goodyear chief's own executive staff, besides his personal secretary, waiting with important letters and telegrams in hand. The outlook for "close-up" reportorial work appeared in drab prospect, indeed. The question of retiring to a place beyond the reach of the others until such a moment as the mob spirit should possess them, I tactfully referred to Mr. Seiberling. He turned to me with a smile which is at once the most winning and disarming in the world.

"Would you mind letting your matter wait until I can see you after dinner?" he suggested, indicating by a quick thrust of his arm that he foresaw a lengthy session ahead. Of course I waited.

Promptly at 6 o'clock I connected with the end of a telephone that led to Mr. Seiberling's room at the Alexandria.

"Oh, yes," he remembered our engagement, but he had consented to address an organization of business men at a banquet at 6:30 o'clock in the hotel ballroom. Would I mind seeing him when that was over, about 10 o'clock, as he guessed? I realized that the Rotarian or the man from the commercial organization in the morning's group had beaten me to it and captured the lion.

STILL GOING STRONG.

At 10:15 that evening I again sought Mr. Seiberling, this time as he was trying desperately to break away from a crush of men around him, following the speech he had just finished. There was but little chance of an editorial wedge prying him loose—I decided to wait. The chance came at last just at 11 o'clock, when Mr. Seiberling's auditors around the banquet board had exhausted themselves physically and by flow of their own questioning words, almost to a man. But Mr. Seiberling appeared as fresh and as vital as when I had greeted him at breakfast that morning. He backed away from the last group of banqueters and motioned me aside.

"How about having our talk in my room?" he suggested cheerfully. "I think I can guarantee quiet up there," and there we went.

All this is related merely to indicate how the currents ran during Mr. Sieberling's recent momentous stay. One day was as replete as another. The air about him was fairly turgid with requests for speeches before this or that organization, advice on this or that subject—mostly having no relation to the business of building a rubber factory—offers to sell nails, soap, steel, lumber, harbor lots, a mansion on Wilshire boulevard; but throughout the ordeal he remained surprisingly unruffled and serene. Having seen Mr. Sieberling pass through much of this public dissection—the usual 'What?—why?—wherefore?—whence?" process to which it seems men in the public eye must submit themselves—I suspect strongly that somewhere in Akron lies safely buried his goat. Certainly, Los Angeles saw no evidence that he ever possessed one. Not only did he grant me this near-midnight interview, but he invited it. The next day, not long after sun-up, he was gone.

MAN OF IRON.

During the entire interview, which lasted well beyond midnight, and during which he kept up a continuous flow of fascinating, illuminative talk, interspersed with more than one lively anecdote, he showed no signs of weariness or desire to cut it short, despite the fact that his day had begun at 6 o'clock and had involved the most fatiguing use of mind and body. Certain subjects of which we talked, as I discovered, lie very close to Mr. Sieberling's sense of justice. These refer largely to his attitude toward issues which are vital to his men—living and working conditions, hours of labor, wages, homes, recreation, chances of advancement, the right of workmen to a voice in shop management, pensions and the hundred and one problems inseparable from the lot of employers, big or small.

"The boy or man who comes to me looking for a job and backed only by a 'pull' hasn't a chance," he said. "The use of pull is my idea of inefficiency, and no business can survive inefficiency. It would be fatal to any employer to hire men on the strength of pull or because some good-natured friend had written them a letter of recommendation. Such a system as that would wreck the business of a Rockefeller in two years."

MERIT ALONE COUNTS!

"Do you believe in good wages?" I asked him.

"Emphatically I do. Men should be paid every dollar they are worth to a business. That's the only fair rule. To underpay a workman is simply to reduce his efficiency by won't have to worry and won't even have to get out his silk hat for the Sultan of Llang-Llang is not half as bad as his name would indicate. The Sultan business is just as new to him as it would be to Mayor Snyder and there is no fear that in a burst of generosity he will insist on distributing some of his extra wives as parting gifts.

ANG-LLANG'S SULTAN IS COMING.

For until a few months ago when the old Sultan of Llang-Llang (sounds like a fire alarm, doesn't it?) died, the new Sultan was merely Robert A. McLean, native of California, sergeant in that hard-boiled fighting aggregation, the United States Marine Corps, and doing his daily stunt at the typewriter in writing those "Join the Marines" ads that young men find it impossible to resist.

One day came Senor Fernando Gorgas of the Philippine Commission. When the Senor was admitted, it was a pretty package of trouble he handed the sergeant, notifying him that the old Sultan had died and had made McLean his sole heir. The new Sultan finally got excused from being a marine and has been visiting in Washington, brushing up on Philippine history and the latest quotations on pearls and generally getting ready for his new job. Before sailing from San Francisco, the new Sultan will visit friends here and at Berkeley, where he lived before he joined the marines. He is leaving New York for the west coast next Saturday.

How comes it, asks the reader, that this here old Sultan picks out this marine for his heir? All right, boys, pull up your chairs closer, and we'll tell the yarn just as the new Sultan told it himself before he left New York for the long trip to the Philippines.

MET THE SULTAN.

"You see it was this way," says Bob, the ex-marine, now Sultan, "I was stationed with twenty marines on the island of Polloc. We often went hunting deer and wild hogs. On one of these trips we met the Sultan of Polloc and his guest, the Sultan of Llang-Llang. The latter was 80 years old then, and that was six years ago. He could speak English and was quite a lively old bird at that. He invited me and my two friends to visit him. So we hired a canoe and dropped over from Polloc to make the call.

"We found the island of Llang-Llang to be about three miles in circumference, and there the Sultan lived, the master of all he surveyed, which included the island, his twenty-room, two-story house on stilts, eight feet high, many cows, pigs and chickens, 2500 natives and forty wives. I did not see the harem, but I was told they were good-looking, for when they grew fat and past 30, the Sultan traded them off.

MADE SULTAN'S HEIR.

"Well, the old Sultan seemed to take a fancy to me, for I had already become a Mohammedan since I went to the Philippines, so he announced one day while we were visiting, that he had made me his heir.

"In the throne room of his house, in the presence of my friends and the Sultan's chief advisers, the Sultan bared his breast and mine, slashed his own breast with a small knife, then slashed mine, and taking a drop of blood from his chest mixed it with mine, and I was his adopted son. Selah! I came back to the United States and almost forgot about the entire incident until the messenger from the commission notified me of my inheritance."

"What are you going to do with your wives?" the Sultan was asked.

"I'll sell 'em."

"What are you going to do with Llang-Llang?"

"Appoint a sub-Sultan."

"How about the pearls? You know you are entitled to 10 per cent. rake-off of all pearls brought in by your loyal subjects."

"Behold! I am the Sultan when it comes to the pearl bonus. My assistant will duly send me the monthly sultanical rake-off or, by the beard of the Prophet, I'll return from New York and cut off his ears."

WILL DISCUSS WORK OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

CHURCH LEADERS TO ADDRESS SUPERINTENDENTS DURING SESSIONS HERE.

A special session of the Sunday-school superintendents of the Southern California conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held here November 20 to arouse new interest in the Sunday-school work. The session was announced yesterday as the most important meeting of its character to be held in Southern California in many years.

The opening session will be held at Trinity Auditorium, when Prof. John G. Hill of the University of California will speak on conditions relative to religious education.

In the evening, following a supper at Christopher's, addresses will be given by Bishop Leonard of San Francisco, Dr. Matthew J. Treenery, representing the Chicago board of Sunday-schools, and Dr. Jesse Lee Corley, superintendent of Sunday-schools of the Southern California conference, who was recently called here from Ohio.

USE MILK BOTTLES FOR NEW SERVICE.

MONEY TO BE COLLECTED IN AID OF NEEDY CHILDREN OF LOS ANGELES.

The milk bottles in which have been collected a large amount of money in pennies for Belgian and French war orphans are to be used to provide food and clothing for needy Los Angeles children. This announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Grant Goucher, president of the Southern California Child Welfare Service. She says the method proved to be highly satisfactory in a financial way for the orphans and that the Welfare Service believes a large amount can be collected for the local children.

The bottles are on many downtown corners, in stores, theaters and at places where pennies are given in change. It is thought the public will respond liberally for the home children. Mrs. A. D. Spreckels of San Francisco, former head of the Commission for the Aid of Civil and Military France, has been elected honorary head of the new organization. It was through her efforts that the Welfare Service secured the bottles. The same slogan is being used: "Drop a penny, we need many." Offices have been opened in room 304 Frost Building and the service has issued a call for ten volunteers to collect the pennies now in the bottles.

Overworked Women

It is the never ceasing treadmill of household duties — washing, ironing, cleaning, mending, cooking; the house to keep tidy, children cared for and well dressed, church and social duties to perform — that so often overtax a woman's strength, and she falls a prey to those dreaded female ills.

How Mrs. May Recovered Health

"I never heard a piano with such lovely tones. Each time that I use it I am the more surprised and pleased with it. Until I became acquainted with the HAINES BROS. PIANO I believed it an impossibility to find such pure quality and volume of tone in any instrument but the concert grand."

Marcel Journet Says---
"The bell-like clearness of the tone of the HAINES BROS. PIANO and its sympathetic sweetness mark it as an Art Creation of the highest order."

Marguerite Clark Says:
"The Haines Bros. Piano is certainly one lasting wonder. I am delighted with it."

The Artist's Choice

G. Campanari Says:
"Times without number have I personally witnessed the intrinsic worth of the HAINES PIANO in conjunction with the human voice and never have I found the sympathetic resonant tone, together with the other laudable qualities it possesses, to falter or waver in the slightest degree."

The HAINES PIANO is the choice of many artists for private use in their own homes.

—this is a most significant tribute.

—the tone of the HAINES PIANO has excited the admiration of the musically appreciative everywhere, and is the choice of such celebrities as Adelina Patti, Ole Bull, Marcel Journet, Yvette Guilbert, Mrs. Leslie Carter, G. Campanari, and scores of others who have reached the high peaks of fame.

Ole Bull Says:
"The HAINES BROS'. PIANOS, used in my concerts, are very fine. Permit me to express my satisfaction and congratulate you upon your success."

TROUBLE BREWING.

The State will officially frown on private irrigation projects. It is hoped that this does not mean any invasion of the sanctity of the home cellar.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT.

Nowadays when a wife sues her husband for divorce on the grounds of habitual drunkenness a lot of folks prick up their ears in curiosity. They wonder where he gets it.

CROSS-EYED MINDS.

Victor Berger, who has been officially denied a seat in Congress because of treasonable utterances, declares that his work has always been constructive. How is it that all these socialist minds get destruction for construction in their dictionaries?

THE FIREBRAND.

The fact that some of the Pennsylvania steel strikers are turning to arson and the torch as weapons indicates that they are not merely dissatisfied with wages or working conditions. They are genuine revolutionaries and anarchists. A man who hopes or expects to return to his work does not attempt to burn down the plant that will furnish him employment. No honest or worthy union would urge the retention on his job of a striker who had sought to wreck or destroy the property on which his position was dependent. As well expect a man to pin a medal on the Lothario who violates his home.

BONDS AND BUDGETS.

It is indicated from administration circles that, as a partial result of the loss of revenue through the prohibition law, another bond issue will be necessary to meet the extraordinary disbursements required. The financial press of the East is inclined to the belief that the situation calls for a show-down and that the time has come for a strong and intelligent supervision and direction of official expenditures. Some papers have gone to the extent of urging that the people withhold their credit until Congress and the government do their part and install a budget system that shall take note of the income and needs of the nation and regulate the appropriations accordingly. The word should be: "No budget, no bonds." There should be no more spending of the public money in blind indirection. A centralized authority and responsibility in expenditures is necessary before any economy can be shown.

NARROW-MINDED.

It must be understood that the labor representatives who bolted President Wilson's industrial conference are merely federation laborites. They represented one-tenth of the actual labor of the country. The great forces of independent labor are virtually without direct representation in this council except for their recognition by the public group. The Labor Federationists left the conference because of refusal to adopt a plank which would practically prevent any collective bargaining save through a labor union. They will not recognize even the existence of the open shop although independent labor is in the great majority in the nation. A business man can have social and commercial relations and live side by side with his business rivals, but a union workingman must hate a worker who does not belong to his union. While this strange condition exists organized labor can come into no conference with clean hands.

DID THE RIGHT THING.

California has a right to be proud of its State Bar Association. That organization has just held its annual convention in Pasadena, where it was received with the hospitality for which the Crown City is famous. During its three-day meeting the convention discussed matters of great importance, not only to the members of the bar but to the whole State, and its deliberations were marked with that serenity and luminousness which characterizes the official gatherings of California's distinguished lawyers.

The convention gave its approval to several desired changes in criminal procedure, but it wisely deferred going on record at this time in regard to the proposed changes in the Constitution and the establishment of a State constabulary. These are matters concerning which there is bound to be a wide difference of opinion and the members of the bar did the right thing when they postponed action until their next meeting.

It is probable that most people will be in sympathy with the suggestion that a convention should be convened to draft a new State Constitution. The present one dates back to 1879 and since then a large number of amendments have been ratified by the voters. The proposal to establish a State constabulary will, on the other hand, be sure to give rise to a considerable opposition, especially among the lawless element, and it is desirable that time be given to the people to study the operations of such bodies in other States and thoroughly weigh the proposition. There is much to be said in favor of such an organization; at the same time our present forces, police and militia, ought to be able to cope with any possible emergency.

LET THE TEST COME.

President Wilson's Industrial Conference has not been barren of results, although they are not of the nature that the President had desired. The conference has publicly demonstrated the futility of the hope of peaceful compromise with the officials and members of the American Federation of Labor while in their present state of mind, traceable directly to radical and revolutionary domination.

Sam Gompers and his associates went to the conference, not to discuss, but to threaten. They began with two demands—that the conference should resolve itself into a body to arbitrate the steel strike, and that the conference should indorse the principle of collective bargaining, to be conducted not between the men and the employers of any industry, but between the employers and the representative of the labor unions. In other words, they would not consent to take part in the deliberations of the conference unless the conference would first formally indorse the policy of the closed shop.

When their closed-shop resolution was beaten they withdrew in a body, treating in high contempt President Wilson's sick-room message asking them to remain in the conference "for the development of that full programme touching the many questions within the broad scope of your investigations." Gompers's notice of withdrawal contains a new example of the rule-or-ruin policy which has actuated the American Federation of Labor ever since the radical and foreign element gained temporary control. Replying to an urgent appeal from a member of the group representing the public not to break up the conference, Gompers said:

> The word you have spoken here means nothing. You have defeated the labor group in its declarations, but we will meet you again in conference, AND WHEN WE DO MEET YOU THERE YOU WILL BE GLAD TO TALK COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.

Such is the threat of Gompers and his associates to the industrial conference called by the President, and at the same time to the country at large. It meets high favor with the reds and the Bolshevik emissaries in this country, for they regard it as a declaration of industrial revolution. It has been a familiar defeatist cry of the radicals through the centuries. Gompers had evidently been reading in preparation for that speech—if it wasn't handed him direct by some parlor Bolshevist. For it is a cheap imitation of the "I go . . . but I will return" of an old Roman radical. The adaptation is a bit unfortunate, however, for history records that the epigram did not occasion any change of policy on the part of the Roman senate, and that Rome managed to rule the destinies of the eastern world for something like a thousand years thereafter.

Such threats have often brought submission from weak-kneed monarchs; but the republics that endured never paid the slightest attention to them. If Gompers seeks a test of strength between the unions forming the American Federation of Labor and the Federal Union he probably will get it; but the progress of the present steel strike indicates clearly that the public has nothing to fear, except temporary inconvenience, from such an encounter.

All Americans are devoutly desirous of industrial peace; but they are not all for peace at any price. It must be a peace of justice, based upon the principles of liberty and equality. They will not consent to the abridgement of the right of every man to dispose of his labor on terms mutually agreeable to him and his employer. They will not consent that the industries of the country shall be closed to all but those holding membership cards in labor unions. The right to labor is included in the right "to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Foreigners, intoxicated by their sudden release from political bondage, may find happiness in a reign of blood and terror, but they cannot force that cup past the lips of the American workman. He is too intelligent to be imposed upon by such quack doctors. He is capable of reading, and of reflecting on what he has read; and he is too well aware of the ghastly failure of soviet rule in Russia and Hungary to be prevailed upon to aid in its establishment here.

Gompers has announced that he has gone forth to throw the whole influence of the American Federation of Labor back of Foster and his steel strike, a strike which all the country knows was forced by the foreign elements in the steel workers' unions. It is as vicious in principle as the policemen's strike in Boston, a strike that Gompers officially indorsed and sought to bolster up when it collapsed. Commenting on that strike, the Chicago Tribune says, editorially:

> Americans are not willing to enter a social revolution. They believe Foster was, and when they find him and the radical Fitzpatrick in charge of a strike against an essential industry they naturally inquire whether the strike is one for the betterment of labor conditions or for a proletarian revolution.
> They inquire whether Foster would not infinitely prefer to have Lenine's opportunities and whether, if he had them, he would not endeavor to do here what was done in Russia. They look with suspicion upon the activities of the strike leaders because they suspect that social politics may lie behind this economic conflict.

Yet Gompers has gone forth to throw the support of the American Federation of Labor back of this strike. When he chooses such company he must not be surprised if the American people regard him as tarred with the same stick. The Times has always regarded Gompers as a labor-union politician who is willing to traverse any road, provided he is permitted to ride. He is well portrayed in the following lines from Henry VI:
regarded Gompers as a labor-union politi-
"I can add colors to the chameleon;
Change shapes with Proteus, for advantage
And set the murd'rous Machiavel to school."

But the conservative element in the unions themselves are in no mood for such leadership. They were Americans before they became members of the labor unions, and they have not forgotten the formulas of liberty through learning the bylaws of their organizations. If Gompers desires to cast his lot with the radicals and foreign emissaries in the unions, that is his privilege; but in such company he must not expect to voice the sentiments either of the public or of a majority of the American membership in organized labor. It may be well to remember that Gompers is himself an expatriate.

THE BIBLE AND THE "UNWRITTEN LAW," SO-CALLED.

In the words of the preacher (Ecclesiastes,) the son of David, King in Jerusalem, there is no new thing under the sun

What has popularly become known as the "unwritten law," employed so many times, and successfully, too, to shield murderers from the consequences of their crimes, is as old as civilization. From the days of the children of Israel up to this hour it has been invoked as a refuge and excuse for killing.

Delphine Delmas, the eloquent advocate, set the country by the ears when he employed the doctrine of Dementia Americana to account for the murder of the New York architect, Stanford White, on a summer night's roof garden, but he offered no new theory. The pages of that storehouse of biblical history, the Old Testament, furnish ample evidence that, while there might have been no smart lawyers among the tented cities of the children of Israel, there were those who knew the universal appeal and its power, and employed it as occasion required.

The theory, as old as creation itself, that the mate of a man or the opposite sex generally must be safeguarded, and that he who would despoil them must suffer with his life, has been invoked with more or less success through all the years that have come since Jehovah thundered out of Mt. Sinai, where the chosen people were given the tablets of stone containing the law.

But there was David, that father in Israel, set up as an exemplar for the young, a solo harpist in the camp of the Israelites. He was a sly dog, if the truth be known. One morning he rose from his couch to indulge an ingrowing thirst, when he looked over the city and saw a beautiful woman in her bath. She was the wife of Uriah, and the name of her calling card was Bathsheba. She was the daughter of Eliam, and David wronged her. But, in order to avoid scandal over the back fence in the neighborhood, he put up a job on Uriah, the Hittite, her husband, by sending him into battle and stationing him in that part where the gas attack was fiercest. The consequence was that Uriah "went west" and David married the bereaved widow. David was the first man in all history to beat the game. Now, if Dr. Ernest E. Roberts had—but that is another story.

David was never arraigned in the local police court for his offense. It was generally understood in the select circles of the Israelites that he had done a scurvy trick to Uriah, by loving his wife and then having him killed; but David was one of the leading citizens and nothing was done about it.

There is no more sodden history of man's perfidy and unbridled passion in the Old Testament than that of Amnon, brother of Absalom, who seduced their sister, Tamar. She is described in the Good Book as very "fair," and it is presumed that she was one of the debutantes of that time. Her picture was likely on the most of the society pages. But Tamar would not fall for Amnon, so he got Jonadab, who is described as a subtle man, to fix things for him, which he did. He had Tamar take some of her cakes (the kind that her mother used to bake,) to Amnon as he lay in his tent pretending to be sick, and her ruin followed.

And how sore Absalom got about it! He organized the sheep-shearers of Baal-hazor against Amnon, and when Amnon became merry standing with one foot on a brass rail in one of the neighboring emporiums, from indulging too freely in 2.75 per cent wine, some of the gang that accompanied Absalom on the rail fell on Amnon and he was not. Then every one of the king's sons got his mule and fled, as the street cars were not running that day, being tied up in a strike over a dispute about collective bargaining.

Was Absalom "pinched?" Not a bit of it. He quietly went to Gesher, until the affair blew over, and David sent him word that he was well pleased "seeing that Amnon was dead." There was no chance for the sob-sisters to visit him in jail, present resolutions of regret and allow the briny tears to fall in a rushing flood down the back of his neck.

The story of Dinah, daughter of Leah, is recalled in this connection. Schechm, the son of Hamor, the Hivite, who carried the vote of the second ward in his pocket, fell in love with her, and she surrendered the most priceless gift that a woman can give a man. Jacob was confidentially told by a "friend" what had happened, and the old gentleman got very angry and sent word to Schechm that he would thrash him within an inch of his life if he met him.

Hamor wanted his son to marry Dinah, but it seems that Jacob thought his daughter was too good to tie up with the Schechm trash, and he filed an objection that could be heard throughout the whole length and breadth of Israel. He had a lot of other reasons and among them was that his proposed son-in-law had not obeyed all of the commandments given the Jews, as to circumcision.

While Jacob was studying about what he should do about it, two of the girl's brothers, Simeon and Levi, slew both Hamor and Schechm, thinking they might as well clean up the entire family while they were at it. They not only put both men to the sword, but plundered their herds, consisting of some of the best strains of sheep to be found anywhere in that township.

Was there unbridled indignation among the people on account of the murder? Scarcely. Both the Canaanites and the Perissites held mass conventions and accorded the freedom of the tented city to Simeon and Levi. The last-named set up a pawnshop therein, and has been in business ever since. The papers of that time merely ran a two-line nonpareil funeral notice, giving the hour of the interment, and asked that no flowers should be sent.

But there was one incident wherein it was not thought worth while to enforce the "unwritten law." It was after Rachel had given birth to Benjamin, the travail which caused her death, when the Israelites had spread their tents beyond the tower of Eder. Then it was that Reuben, son of Leah (for Jacob married both Leah and Rachel, daughters of Laban,) had a little affair with Bilhah, his father's concubine, and Israel heard about it. But nothing was done. The Israelites thought that possibly it was a strict family matter and there was no occasion for interference. Which is an indication that some men can get away with things better than others.

GARBING THE GIRLS.

This question of standardizing the raiment of the high-school girls furnishes a number of perplexities. Even when the parents and teachers reach an agreement through their associations there are pupils who will not be bound by its terms unless they are to be enforced by the Board of Education. There is good argument both for and against the plan. Of course the big idea is to get a lot of girls to dress down to an average. There are a lot of them with money at command and they want to spend a wad of it with the dressmakers. This is supposed to make the moneyless bunch of students miserable and it is the wish to avoid this unpleasantness. With everybody in a ten-dollar outfit no one need be jealous over somebody else's more lavish apparel.

The fault is in the assumption that girls think more of clothes than anything else. It may be a fact, but it is a fault to assume it just the same. Anyhow, it need not be advertised. The way some of the girls leave off their clothes one would think they didn't care anything about them at all. Just a wee strip of some thousand-dollar fur and a dab of georgette will be plenty, thank you. Girls don't think anything more about their clothes than a man does of his right eye. But the fact that man still has his right eye prompts the girls to concern themselves with their clothes.

Whichever way the thing jumps it will be hard to decide upon a satisfactory uniform. They may agree upon cut and color and then the pupils will employ their personal tastes and purses in determining the materials. There are weaves at ten dollars a yard and there are others at a dollar. Sometimes the dollar girl will make a sweeter picture than the ten-dollar damsel, but that is no sign that she is satisfied with herself. She is still believed to hold some envy of the girl in the high-priced raiment.

Now that so many people seem to think extravagance a virtue, it is hard to keep the shoolgirls in check. Learning to spend money is the easiest thing in the world. It is hardly necessary to go to school at all to acquire the rudiments, but the knowledge certainly comes quick when the pupil is in an environment which includes a million-dollar educational plant and a flock of associates who come to the school in their own limousines.

What might be more practical would be the use of a few simple regulations in the interest of modesty and economy and then let nature take her course. Attempts to standardize our girls, even in the little matter of their apparel, may be unsuccessful.

JUST A SUGGESTION.

Said Clerk No. 1 to Clerk No. 2: "I notice you always reach the office a little ahead of time and that you stick around half an hour after quitting time—and yet I don't see any difference in the size of our pay envelopes. Furthermore, you'll grow gray-headed trying to please the boss and by that time you will have outgrown your usefulness and out you'll go to make room for a younger man." Said Clerk No. 2 to Clerk No. 1: "Your first statement is perfectly correct. You and I are receiving the same salary now and may continue to do so for some time to come. But remember that while you are out playing pool I am here learning the company's business and by the time I'm gray-headed I'll know just how things ought to be managed and, furthermore, I'll be managing things and getting ten times as much money as I'm getting now. Furthermore, I'll deserve my success, while you will still be deserving, and receiving, exactly what you're earning now."

THE FIRST.

What's the matter of this hat? It
Surely never fit like that Before, I've worn it every day
For a year and a half, and
It always covered my head.
But this morning, confound it all,
That blamed thing perches like
A foolish bird right on top and Won't come down where it belongs.
What ails this vest? It, too, was Big enough to breathe in yesterday,
But now the blasted thing
Won't come together on my chest.
Feel kind-o-funny when I walk,
Like I had springs, and I want to Yell.
Something seems to make folks
Grin when they see me, and all of them
Say the same old thing
And it makes me smile and smile;
My mouth is stretched from ear
To ear, and stays there, won't come Back, I think it's queer.
I am a silent man, and yet
Inside where I always try to Hide my feelings, a big Brass band just seems to pound and Pound, and march as proud
As anything, and my heart is
Swelled to twice its size.
But when I walk through the town
I guess they'll speak to me and
Take their hats off and stand aside,
For I'm a GRANDAD.
Who'd ever thought t'would be
A handsome boy and look like ME?

MAIDENS FAIR.

In old-time books the damsels swooned whene'er they had occasion; and when with loving knights they spooned, it was with shy evasion. They were such coy and modest things, as hoar romance discloses, that if you spoke of wedding rings they'd blush to beat the roses. They languished in their virgin bowers, embroidering, crocheting or spent the long and luscious hours the spinet softly playing. They all were known as "females" then, the maid and wife and widdy; and when girls looked on bearded men, it made them pale and giddy. But times have changed; no more we greet the girls of Scott and Cooper; but in the modern tale we meet the woman known as "super." She doesn't care a picayune for dulcimer or needle; you couldn't coax this girl to swoon, no odds how much you wheedle. To her the old-time arts seem vain and old traditions phoney; she goes up in a monoplane or rides a bucking pony. She's struck our fiction with a rush, and when a yarn is finished, it is the bearded men who blush and hide their heads diminished. I know it's treason, if not rot, but, tired of women "super," I long for blushing belles of Scott and swooning girls of Cooper.

A Matter of Address.

Considerably out of practice, he was endeavoring to play golf at the Muncie Country Club, and in his first attempt at a drive sliced the ball miserably. The words he used, although spoken in an undertone, were sufficient to make the caddy look up appreciatively, accustomed as the boy was to the use of eloquence by players under such circumstances.

A short distance away was the player's wife, who inquired ever so gently, "Did you say something to me, Fred?"

"No, I was just addressing the ball," he replied.

"I am afraid if the ball goes to that address it will melt," she remarked, still gently.—[Indianapolis News.

Two cases in the local courts brought by women against women for heart's ease—wives trying to retrieve $50,000 for the lost love of husbands! No wonder the male of the species manages to maintain a superior opinion of himself in spite of everything.

One frequently, even in these days, hears of cases in which a husband has sold his wife for a trifling consideration or gambled her away in a game of poker, but I can't recall a case in which madame has parted with her husband, no matter how inferior his breed, in a like manner. She has, of course, been known to buy a husband. And when he gets lost, stolen or strayed she certainly sets a high value on him.

In all these heart-salve damage suits the financial capacity of the co-respondent and defendant plays a large part in the value of the lost love. Even a husband is apt to appraise the value of his wife's lost love at a dizzy figure, if the "other man" is well fixed. And yet, on the face of it, it is pretty obvious that the love, before it wandered, was scarcely of the substantial, for-all-eternity type.

There are two kinds of preposterous and disgusting litigation—family rows over wills and heart-balm suits. Both of them degrade humanity's most priceless treasures, LOVE AND FAMILY LOYALTY, to the level of mere profit and loss.

Mary Pickford, in a recent interview, confessed to horrid indigestion. She said the poor little girl could enjoy her food, but, alas, the poor little rich girl could not. Now, Mary, my dear, I have your welfare at heart. You really must not allow America's sweetheart to bask in stomach trouble. There is nothing, positively nothing, so hopelessly unromantic. There never was a sentimental author, who knew his business, that admitted his heroine suffered from anything worse than a nervous headache. Strictly nervous. Not stomachic. We will concede you a little moderate heart-trouble, a touch of neuritis or something moderuly refined if you must have a complaint, but we insist upon your angel food, obviously your only diet, agreeing with you.

We are concerned for the refined manners of royalty. A young woman in Santa Barbara who served King Albert with an ice-cream soda testified that when he was introduced to her by Mr. Nye he said "Pleased to meet you."

And to think that one of the first things the young bloods learn at college, that stylish young ladies learn in exclusive seminaries, is that it is bad form to say "Pleased to meet you." The correct greeting is "Charmed. How do you do?" Albert and his democratic ideas will simply ruin American society if this sort of thing goes on.

Which reminds us. Is it true that a certain prominent dame boxed Mr. Nye's ears when he sought to jeopardize her right of precedence when Their Majesties were here?

The parsons are considering the abolition of the collection-plate system in favor of a budget. It is a ticklish question. If people could only be coaxed to place as high a value on spiritual ministration as certain court litigants place upon romantic affection the churches would thrive, indeed.

The pledge plan has a good deal to recommend it. Many a worshiper who puts a dime in the plate and considers his duty to religion thereby discharged would hesitate to pledge less than $10 a year.

And if the small country towns that now support half a dozen competing Christian creeds very inadequately could sink their small technical differences and combine in one first-class united church the budget might prove distinctly worth while and the brand of salvation be immeasurably improved.

The California Art Club's exhibition was highly illuminating on the opening day. All the artists were there and, without exception, they stood near their own pictures, but with their backs turned ostentatiously thereon. They were all eagerly pointing out the virtues of other artists, and generous praise and retiring modesty were positively rampant.

However, the strain told. At the club's meeting afterwards the reaction set in. And what the new school thinks of the old school and what the old school thinks of the new school was mentioned out loud without fear or favor, and when the artists speak their mind there is no equivocation.

REPUTATION FOR PROMPTNESS.

An old Englishman, James Scott by name, traveled about on business until he was nearly 80 years of age. He became celebrated for his punctuality and methodical habits. Upon one occasion a gentleman stopped at an inn much frequented by Mr. Scott and saw a fine fowl cooking.

"That is very good," said the hungry guest. "You may serve that for my dinner."

"You cannot have that, sir," replied the landlord. "That is being cooked for Mr. Scott, the traveler."

"I know Mr. Scott very well," said the gentleman. "Is he stopping here?"

"Oh, no, sir," answered the landlord. "But six months ago he ordered a fowl to be ready for him at precisely 2 o'clock today, and we are expecting him every minute."—[Youngstown Telegraph.

HOW EVENTS LEADING TO DEATH OF ROBERTS.

TO NEW YORK.

went to New York, the war began, he was in the employ of the General Motors Company. This company had important war contracts and army officers assigned to the plant watched Stokes and knew his ability. He had no difficulty in obtaining a commission in the army and served in various cantonments as an instructor on tank work and other motorized war material.

Shortly after leaving college Stokes, while working in Los Angeles, went to a social function one night and there was introduced to Miss Josephine Dunkelberger. She was the daughter of Col. J. R. Dunkelberger, U.S.A., who was postmaster here for eight years and who was one of the pioneers of Los Angeles. He had moved here from Pennsylvania before the Civil War. After a brilliant war service he remained in the Regular Army and fought in a number of Indian campaigns. At one time he owned large tracts of land in the vicinity of West Ninth and Figueroa streets. He died about fifteen years ago.

When Stokes met Miss Dunkelberger she was living with her mother, Mrs. Mary Dunkelberger, who, before her marriage, was the daughter of the late Judge J. S. Mallard. Councilman Walter Mallard and Cad Mallard of the County Auditor's office were her brothers. Also living at the Dunkelberger home were two sons, Coey and Rothmel Dunkelberger, who still live with their mother.

ROMANCE BEGINS.

Josephine Dunkelberger was 20 years old when Stokes met her that night. Their friends say it was a case of love at first sight and the marriage occurred shortly after at the Dunkelberger home.

The couple went to live in a house they purchased at 1011 Fourth avenue. Their married life apparently was very happy and there was no evidence of any trouble up to the time Stokes went East a few months before the United States declared war.

While he was away the second meeting that was to play such an important part in the lives of the three persons involved in the case occurred at Coronado. Mrs. Stokes and her brother, Coey Dunkelberger, went there for a short vacation staying at Hotel del Coronado. There one day Mr. Dunkelberger saw Dr. Roberts, whom he knew slightly.

Dr. Roberts was about 44 years old and had lived with his wife for many years in Sawtelle, where at the time of his death he was a Health Commissioner. He obtained a commission in the medical department of the army when war was declared and was sent to Camp Kearny. Coronado was a favorite place of army officers stationed at the camp and Capt. Roberts went there frequently.

At a social affair at the hotel one night Mr. Dunkelberger introduced Dr. Roberts and Mrs. Stokes. The brother and sister soon returned to Los Angeles and Mrs. Stokes and her children divided their time between the Stokes home and the Dunkelberger house, which at first was the old family residence at 1200 West Ninth street, though recently the family moved to 1932 South Hobart boulevard, where they now live.

GETS HIS DISCHARGE.

Dr. Roberts obtained his discharge from the army and came back to live in Sawtelle. He began paying attentions to Mrs. Stokes. Members of the Dunkelberger family objected to the apparent friendship developing between Mrs. Stokes and Dr. Roberts and he was called to their home one night for a conference at which he was told that he must see Mrs. Stokes no more. He is said to have promised that he would keep away from the Stokes home.

Stokes obtained his discharge last July and came directly home. He had been informed in letters from the Dunkelbergers that Dr. Roberts was paying attention to Mrs. Stokes and when he arrived here he questioned his wife concerning her relations with the physician. What she told him has not been made public.

Capt. Stokes admitted to Policeman Littell on the night of the murder that he had placed a revolver and a wooden club covered with rubber, which he had made, in his garage.

Then one night came the third meeting. Capt. Stokes returning home found Dr. Roberts's automobile in front of his house. Then he is said to have obtained the revolver and the club and when Dr. Roberts drove away the former army officer jumped on the running board of the automobile and began the quarrel that later resulted in the physician's death at La Brea ravine after Dr. Roberts is alleged to have told Stokes that he had won Mrs. Stokes's love.

DENTIST MUST RETURN HOME.

Doctor Who Came Here with Girl Companion to be Tried at Boston.

The removal proceedings against Dr. Frank L. Goodspeed, the dentist, and his companion, Miss Pearl Rose, were finally determined by Judge Trippet yesterday, who ordered the couple back to Boston, Mass., for hearing on an indictment charging them with conspiring to violate the Mann white slave law. The court ordered that the pair furnish $500 bond each for their appearance at Boston for trial.

Dr. Goodspeed deserted his wife and two children when he came West with Miss Rose, who was an attendant in his dental office. It was shown in the preliminary hearing that after the couple arrived here, the doctor introduced the girl to a number of his friends as his wife, and that they lived as man and wife.

ULSTER SOCIETY TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT.

In observance of Guy Fawkes day members of the Ulster Society of Los Angeles are planning an entertainment, which they have designated as "the gunpowder plot" for next Saturday evening. The entertainment will be under the auspices of the Purple Star, Loyal Orange Lodge and the Ladies' Orange Auxiliary. It will be held at Garfield Hall, 730 South Grand avenue.

MUSICIANS IN CLUB'S BENEFIT PROGRAMME.

A benefit entertainment will be given tomorrow night in Blanchard Hall, 232 South Broadway, by the Sojourner Truth Industrial Club. Three musicians are listed on the programme. Miss Margaret Gray McKee, a whistler, will give a number of selections. Miss Grace Grubb, soprano, will sing and Master Herbert Atwell Rose, violinist, will play several selections.

FOUND JOBS FOR THOUSANDS HERE.

Third of Applications for Entire State Filled by Local Bureau.

Figures made public by State Labor Comissioner McLaughlin show that the Los Angeles office of the Public Employment Bureau placed nearly one-third of all persons who were given positions through the public employment bureaus of the State from July 1, to October 18.

A total of 80,951 persons were given positions through the bureaus all over the State. Of these 25,274 were placed by the Los Angeles office. The State figures include those for San Francisco and Oakland.

HEARST REPORTERS JOIN UNION; ARE DISCHARGED.

Summary Dismissals Within Day After Signing of Charter Raise a Howl Against "Friend of Labor."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—This city is enjoying the aftermath of the formation of a news writers' union, which was followed within a few hours by the summary discharge of "organized" reporters from the Examiner, owned by William Randolph Hearst, the professed friend of labor organizations as represented by the A.F. of L. Writers who openly opposed the union, and did not join, still work for that paper.

The discharged men say they got their walking papers because they signed the International Typographical Union charter. The managing editor of the Examiner declines to be quoted. And the president of the union declares twelve members thereof are working for the Examiner "under cover."

An amusing sidelight is furnished by Fremont Older, that champion of labor-unionism, who is now the editor of Hearst's Call. Mr. Older was not exactly enthusiastic about the reporters going into the union.

All of which is entertaining, in view of the Hearst papers' stand on labor-unionism as a general proposition.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

The News' Writers Union in this city was organized at a public meeting at the St. Francis Hotel. Several employees of the Examiner, who still work on the paper, spoke against the union. Other Examiner men signed the roll. That night and the following day, Francis Cliff (employed on the Examiner nine years), Arthur MacLennan, Robert Piercy and R. W. Harwood, all members of the new union, were handed their walking papers. Jack Densham, Examiner water-front man for years, also went at this time. He is said to have resigned.

Of these men, Densham, Cliff and MacLennan saw service in the recent war, and Harwood was a veteran of the 1914 campaign on the border. Golden State Post of the American Legion sent the managing editor of the Examiner a protest against the dismissals.

Mr. Cliff made a written statement, filed with Secretary Shanedling of the union, in which the following conversation with Managing Editor Coblentz of the Examiner is set forth as having preceded Mr. Cliff's discharge:

"Mr. Coblentz: Cliff, were you at that meeting today?

"Answer: Yes.

"Mr. Coblentz: Did you sign the membership roll?

"Answer: Yes, I did."

Then follows a long argument. Half an hour after Mr. Cliff says this conversation took place, he was discharged.

In a written statement giving the circumstances of his discharge, Mr. MacLennan says this conversation with William Hines, night city editor of the Examiner, took place by telephone:

"Mr. Hines: Mac, did you sign that charter membership roll today?

"Answer: Yes, I did.

"Mr. Hines: Under those circumstances, Cobby instructs me to tell you that your job is declared open."

Mr. Harwood, who also signed a statement, asserts he was discharged by Albert Clark, Oakland editor of the Examiner.

Mr. Clark, he says, quoted the city executives of the Examiner as saying there would be no "temporizing" about the union. Then Mr. Clark telephoned to the San Francisco office.

"What did they say?" Mr. Harwood asked.

He quotes Mr. Clark as having replied: "Well, that you can't remain with the union outfit and work for the Examiner."

The situation on the other San Francisco daily newspapers, according to the statements of officials of the News Writers' Union, is: Bulletin, 100 per cent. organized; Daily News, 100 per cent. organized; Call, only two nonunion writers on the staff; Chronicle, fourteen union members working "under cover."

There were summary dismissals from the Chronicle staff at the same time the exodus from the Examiner took place. These, also, have left the air a little thick around the Newspaper Writers' Club.

So far, the new union has made no demands on the employers. But a proposal for demanding a minimum salary of $50 a week will be put to a vote of the members soon. A $60 minimum was demanded by a similar union in Seattle.

Meantime, working cards have just been issued to the union reporters, copyreaders and editors, in exchange for an initiation fee of $5. Headquarters are maintained at 525 Market street.

FOR NEEDY VETERANS OF WAR WITH SPAIN.

Roosevelt Camp, No. 9, United Spanish War Veterans, will give a public benefit at 8 p.m. next Tuesday at Fraternal Brotherhood Hall, 845 South Figueroa street, to raise funds for worthy members who are needy. Some 40 per cent. of the men of the camp also served in the recent war with Germany, as volunteers, just as they served in 1898. The entertainment for their benefit will include enjoyable vaudeville and dancing.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

Seems a good deal like counting chickens before they're hatched, but even now the game has begun of reckoning noses of those who stand in line for a seat in the City Council—IF Councilman Langdon gets the appointment to the State Board of Equalization, and IF he then resigns from the city's lawmaking body.

Dr. Langdon tells me he will immediately resign from the City Council should he be appointed to the vacancy on the State board, and that he believes he has very good chances to get this position. That would mean that the other eight members of the City Council would have the duty of naming a successor to Dr. Langdon.

Already the line-up shows more or less activity on behalf of E. J. Delorey, former member of the Board of Supervisors; James P. Britt, E. D. Seward, Ernest Braunton and Frank Cleaveland.

Dr. Delorey has been slated as an opponent of "Jack" Bean in the race for Supervisor next time, but if he had a chance to become a Councilman he might forget this other ambition. James P. Britt for several years has been superintendent of the municipal markets, and has taken an active part in civic affairs. He was a candidate for the Council at the last election. Messrs. Seward, Braunton and Cleaveland were also candidates. Any one of these men would make a good Councilman, in my opinion.

Democrats Milling 'Round.

Well, what's the matter with the Democrats? Within the past few days William M. Humphreys, a wheel-horse of the Bourbons, has retired from the chairmanship of the Democratic County Central Committee, and has undertaken to resume his seat on the City Civil Service Commission—where political activities are supposed to be especially taboo—while "Ham" Cotton takes his place on the committee. Now comes the news that F. Ray Groves, son of Ben F. Groves, register of the United States Land Office, will resign as secretary of the Democratic County Central Committee to join his brother, E. C. Groves, in the newly-formed firm of Chase, Groves and Groves, acting as special income tax advisers. E. C. Groves recently resigned as deputy collector of internal revenue.

Ray Groves has been a popular secretary, having many friends in both the Democrat and Republican camps, and it is rumored that he is taking the "dope" of William Gibbs McAdoo in getting established before the Republican victory in 1920. Groves, however, will continue to act as secretary to the Democratic State Central Committee and be on the firing line for the Democrats in San Francisco headquarters next June.

Kettner for Senator?

Now comes a possible side light on the reasons for Congressman Kettner of San Diego telling his close friends that he would not be a candidate for re-election from the Eleventh Congressional District. This is the report that Congressman Kettner has ambitions to be a candidate for the United States Senate, and that he believes he would have the solid backing of the district he now represents in Congress, and a good chance to win the support of other counties of Southern California. Newspapers of the San Francisco bay district are discussing this new possibility and declare that Kettner would make a formidable opponent to Senator Phelan.

Action is Resented.

Up from various sections of Orange county come complaints against the action of the Orange County Republican Central Committee in indorsing the candidacy of Dr. C. H. Ball of Santa Ana for delegate to the national convention. Dr. Ball is considered to be an ardent follower of Hiram Johnson and one who would willingly support Johnson's candidacy for the Presidential nomination.

But it is declared that Orange county, as a whole, is overwhelmingly in favor of the League of Nations covenant without amendments.

San Francisco's Registration.

San Francisco has registered 192,340 voters for the municipal election which will be held next month. The return of sample ballots indicates that at least 30,000 of these will be disqualified by reason of change of residence. Only once in the history of the Bay City has there been a vote of 100,000 polled. At the election of last July on a good roads bond issue, only 18 per cent. of the qualified voters registered. The total registration of Los Angeles for the last municipal election was 198,285, and the total vote for Mayor was 72,915.

Mrs. Fickert Working.

An interesting phase of the campaign now in progress in San Francisco is the activity of Mrs. Fickert, wife of Dist.-Atty. Fickert, who is standing for re-election, on behalf of her husband. Mr. Fickert has been very ill, and is in no condition to participate in the strenuosities of the campaign, but Mrs. Fickert is addressing woman's clubs and other gatherings, and her work may prove very effective in vote-getting.

At the City Gates.

Closer home, the municipal campaign at Santa Monica presents aspects of interest. There are at least five prospective candidates for Mayor. They can file their nominating petitions up to November 12, and the election will take place December 2. Mayoralty candidates in prospect include Chief of Police F. W. Ferguson, Charles H. Brown, J. C. Steele, G. B. Dickinson and T. H. Dudley.

Mr. Steele, who has served as City Trustee and who was twice a candidate for the Mayor's chair, frankly states that he favors the joining of Santa Monica with Los Angeles.

"Annexation is the thing for Santa Monica," says Mr. Steele, "and my only hope, if elected Mayor, would be to resign in a few months to give way to the Los Angeles city government."

Activities for Kent.

The campaign for William Kent for United States Senator has begun. Kent headquarters have been opened in San Francisco, and announcement is made that Los Angeles headquarters will be opened as soon as the former Congressman returns from Washington. His organization is proposing to form "Kent Clubs" in many cities of California within the next ninety days. Looks like the big contest may be between Kent and Meserve.

Governor's Latest Move.

Constant prodding by women's organizations, insistent that Gov. Stephens call a special session of the State Legislature to act upon ratification of the suffrage amendment, apparently is getting results. The Governor has been reluctant to call a session, because he knows that he would be overwhelmed with demands that other matters than that of suffrage be included in the call. His latest move is to send invitations to the Governors of Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming, asking them to join with him in calling their respective legislatures in extra session at once, to ratify the suffrage amendment. This "at once," according to statements credited to Gov. Stephens, would mean before Thanksgiving Day.

THE WATCHMAN.

FOR NARCOTIC USERS.

Collector of Internal Revenue Arranges San Diego Clinic.

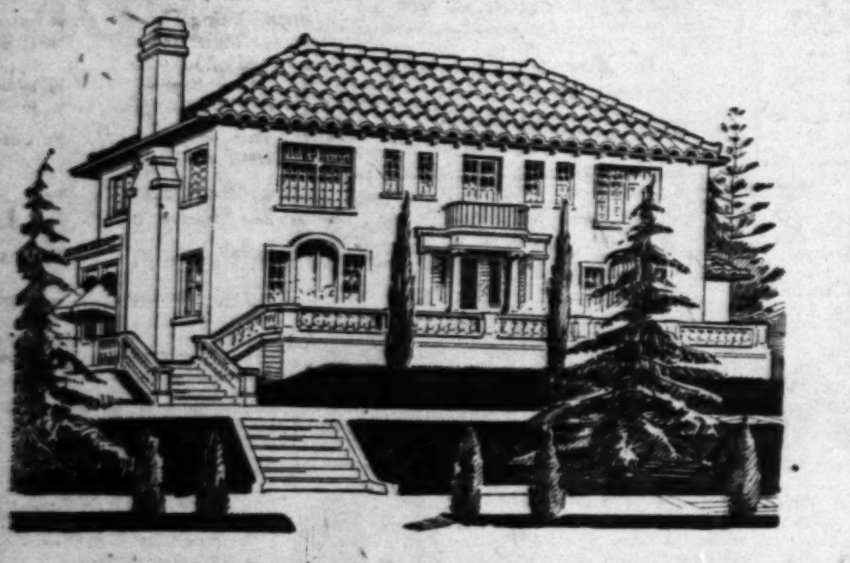
Collector Carter returned yesterday from a week's trip to San Diego, where he inaugurated plans for the establishment of a narcotic clinic in that city.

The collector says he met with the greatest encouragement from physicians, business men and officials and co-operation and assistance were freely offered. The collector will return to San Diego Tuesday, when the matter will be laid before the Board of Supervisors with the view of securing a small appropriation of public funds to get the enterprise started. It is believed that it will be self-supporting after but a short time.

No arrangements have been made for the establishment of such clinics at San Bernardino, Bakersfield and other points in the local internal revenue district, but it is understood that in the smaller communities the local health officers will be placed in charge of the clinic with directions to deal out narcotics to addicts requiring the stimulant under rules to be provided by the internal revenue department.

Sparks from a chimney or sparks from an adjoining fire will not ignite a tile roof.

A roof like this not only protects the building, but the household goods and human life as well.



Tile is a non-conductor of heat and cold. Tile gives a distinctive and artistic effect and enhances the beauty of the entire structure.

"More conflagration losses occur from shingle roofs than anything else."
—National Board of Fire Underwriters.

16 States and 97 cities have already passed laws prohibiting the use of wooden shingles.

Protect yourself against the future — build permanently. A Hollow Tile house with a Tile roof will not deteriorate in value and is always more salable.

Peggy Dear:

You'll be glad that I couldn't come tonight, for I am sending such a worthy substitute—a box of sweet goodies from Sterling's. Sometimes business interferes even in the best regulated love affairs.

Only eight more days until the little gold band will tie us together for better or for worse—but eight days is an awfully long time. Yet it seems only yesterday since that afternoon at the beach when I met you—nearly two years ago.

It's wonderful what a little red haired girl can come to mean to a fellow—a confirmed old bachelor like myself. What is the secret of your spell, little siren? Is it a potion of laughing eyes, red lips and flashing teeth? That's a problem wisest men have failed to solve—the why of lovers' sighs. Surely an ordinary fellow like myself cannot hope to find an answer. Yours,

BOB.

Huge Tire Plant to Start Producing in Seven Months.

GOODYEAR BUILDING JOB GIGANTIC UNDERTAKING.

Four Million Feet of Lumber, Ten Million Bricks and Fifty Thousand Barrels of Cement Needed.

rials. A single train-load of lumber is quickly swallowed up in the work. Another improvement already accomplished is the paving of Central avenue south to Sixty-fifth street and Sixty-fifth street east to South Park avenue, both of which are important transportation arteries to and from the plant.

Speed is the watchword at the big job, which is going forward in a way to fulfill the inspiring prophecy of President F. A. Seiberling that a great "city within a city" would soon be a reality at Ascot Park.

CITY'S FUTURE BRIGHT.

"Los Angeles is a great city and its future is so full of promise that no one can foretell to what commercial importance it will rise in the next ten years. We all know it is going ahead amazingly, that it stands in a position of commanding importance with relation to the Far Eastern markets, and that if we are to realize the best from our opportunities, we must unify our effort and base it on the idea of community benefit."

This is how A. F. Osterloh, vice-president and general manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, who will be in direct command of the great Goodyear factory organization now taking form in this city, views Los Angeles' opportunity to establish its position firmly in the Far Eastern commercial field and thus realize the prosperity that the city's progressive steps have foretold.

Mr. Osterloh is one of the group of keen-visioned executives who started with F. A. Seiberling in the struggling days of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company at Akron, and has since been a big factor in building it into one of the great outstanding enterprises of the rubber world. At 42 years of age, after eighteen years of unremitting labor with the Goodyear company, combining a close study of rubber production, of the world's selling field and of the management of an army of workers, he has come to Los Angeles to take the helm and guide the operations of a mammoth factory organization employing more than 8000 operatives and turning out a product the total of which will run far into the millions annually.

It was Mr. Osterloh who formed in Los Angeles in 1912 the Goodyear company's first selling organization in this field. He saw then, he says, that this city's great industrial and commercial future was assured, and its remarkable progress along these and other lines has, he believes, fully vindicated his earlier judgment.

Mr. Osterloh's preliminary work in organizing the great rubber and cotton enterprises that are soon to be in operation here will be to assemble his army of workers. Of the 7000 or 8000 men and women to be employed, only about 500, he says will be brought from the Akron plant. These will be the "key workers," all trained in some special department of rubber or cotton manufacture, and around them will be built the complete factory organization.

"Our idea," explained Mr. Osterloh yesterday, "is to make this plant a Los Angeles enterprise. We will employ the bulk of our workers, ultimately between 8000 and 9000, right here in Los Angeles, paying them well and giving them all the advantages that the Goodyear company is known for. Those who are coming here from Akron will be picked employees, who are familiar with our factory systems and field operations, and around these comparatively few the future structure will be built."

Touching on the significance of such an industrial enterprise as the Goodyear plant to Los Angeles Mr. Osterloh predicted that it is one of many large manufactories that would come, drawn here from the East in the wake of this one.

"The people of Los Angeles may not yet realize it," he said, "but there is no doubt that the establishment of the Goodyear plant here will mean that others will follow quickly. Our business is so large that we must draw on other agencies to link with it. For instance we use an immense number of iron molds in tire making, and these molds are purchased from another factory."

TRADE OUTLOOK.

Los Angeles' greatest present commercial opportunity, Mr. Osterloh believes, lies in pushing its manufactured products into the markets of South and Central America, the Orient and Russia.

"This city's opportunity in these fields," he declares, "is stupendous. Whether we realize it fully or not, these markets are open to us if we will work to capture and keep them. It is logical that the products most needed in these countries should be manufactured here. It is both wasteful and economically unsound to manufacture in eastern cities what can be manufactured here and then ship it across the continent and overseas to the Far Eastern market. We expect to do millions of new business in this foreign field and are building our plans accordingly."

By way of reminding the city that it must prepare properly for its incoming population—the natural result of its industrial development—Mr. Osterloh adds:

"If Los Angeles is to keep pace with its factory and commercial development it must provide adequate housing. It is highly important that the city make its living conditions right. Newcomers are entitled to that, and an important advantage to a city is overlooked if they are drawn here only to find the conditions disappointing."

You Cannot Hide Your Fat

Overfatness is the one misfortune you can not hide from yourself or from those around you. If too thin, your dressmaker or tailor can supply the deficiencies, but the overfat carry a burden they can not conceal. There is one sure way to reduce your weight safely and quickly. The harmless Marmola Prescription, which changes the fatty tissues and fat-producing foods to solid flesh and energy, helps the general health and digestion, permits you to eat and live as you like, and leaves the skin clear and smooth. This famous prescription is now condensed into tablet form. Each tablet contains an exact dose of the same harmless ingredients that made the original prescription capable of reducing the overfat body at the rate of two, three, or four pounds a week without the slightest ill effects. Take but one tablet after each meal and at bedtime until the normal weight is reached and the bodily health completely restored. Ask your druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, or send to the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., and you will receive for $1 a full case—enough to start you well on your way to slimness and happiness.—[Advertisement.

Doctor Issues Warning And Tells How to Stop Tobacco Habit

New York: Dr. Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: I am often asked if I know anything to stop the tobacco habit and I always recommend Nicotol, which I have prescribed with great success. Nicotol contains no habit-forming drugs, is absolutely harmless and produces astonishing results in a very short time. The use of tobacco saps the vitality, vim, vigor and ambition of the slave who is enthralled by its seductive effects. It undermines the health and leaves the victim an easy prey to general debility, throat and lung troubles, nervousness, insomnia, heart trouble, kidney trouble, headache, tongue and lip cancers and even blindness. Physicians the world over often trace the start of the above diseases and many others to nicotine poisoning.

If you want to free yourself from tobacco go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets. Take one tablet after each meal and in a short time you will have no desire for tobacco—the carving will have left you. With the nicotine poisoning out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note: When asked about Nicotol tablets, one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit—away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol is sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists including all the Sun, the Logan, and the Chambers Drug Stores.—[Advertisement.

REAL WORKERS RUN GOODYEAR.

in the East which he had literally "raised from prospective wreckage" into a prosperous organization. Mr. Litchfield's reputation as a factory organizer opened the door of opportunity for him—Mr. Seiberling did the rest; and today the enterprising New Englander, onetime working student and later graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is applying his genius toward systematizing the great factory now rising at Ascot Park.

"Mr. Litchfield came to the Goodyear company on exactly the same basis that every man does—absolute merit—and has made good. My own son would have to prove himself in exactly the same way." In proof of which, it is a fact that Mr. Seiberling's son, Willard, one of the six young Seiberlings, entered the factory on leaving school and first learned the useful art of sweeping floors before he was intrusted with more important tasks. He is on the Goodyear pay roll as a "workman," with no higher rating than any other whose ability runs parallel with his. There may be something Spartan in this principle, but it is Mr. Seiberling's method of applying the acid test to his boys.

C. W. Seiberling, a brother of President Seiberling, is vice-president and head of the Goodyear purchasing department, a weighty job, requiring rare judgment and an almost uncanny knowledge of price and material conditions.

FITS 'EM IN JOBS.

C. Slusser is the factory man in charge of personnel; in other words, the man who fits other men to their jobs. He works on the theory that "a round peg is misplaced in a square hole" and vice versa, that a prospective employee should be given a "survey" of his mental, physical and moral qualifications before being fitted to his job, and that once fitted, he should not be displaced, but encouraged to do his best. Once a man acquits himself well in the Goodyear organization, he sticks if such is his desire.

"We believe the old system of firing a good man just because he has failed in one job is all wrong," explained Mr. Seiberling. "Try him out until you get him placed exactly right. By doing this the chances are you'll turn up a valuable employee. Another Goodyear principle is to give every man in our employ a chance to prove himself and an opportunity to be heard when he has something to say or a suggestion to make. Some of our best ideas have been obtained from men in the ranks. If a man develops an idea which is profitable to the company, he is rewarded. This makes him feel the sense of close association we aim to foster. Without it, there is no such thing possible as efficient organization."

OTHERS OF STAFF.

Five other members of the executive staff whose work has a direct bearing on the Los Angeles Goodyear plant are William Hunkin, in charge of factory construction, who is the "big boss" around Ascot Park; D. J. Koonce, treasurer of the company; M. E. Morris, manager of the salesmen's department, who selects the "star" men for the vastly important "sales field," and H. S. Quine, manager of the company's educational department, which covers both sales and welfare work. Mr. Quine quit daily newspaper work twenty-two years ago to become Mr. Seiberling's secretary, and has remained in close association with him ever since. F. A. Steel, assistant production superintendent, is relatively a chief aide to Mr. Litchfield. He will supervise the local production in Mr. Litchfield's absence.

Mr. Seiberling stands in relation to the Goodyear forces as "the father of the family," a descriptive phrase which probably fits him as well if not better than any large American employer of his day. Although entering his late fifties, he works as if reinforced by a double system of dynamos—and with a dash, spirit and enthusiasm that betokens the most roseate outlook of youth. Two factors have operated always to heighten his optimism, he says. One is work—by which he means a variety of daily tasks associated with the needs around him—and the other recreation, though the Seiberling kind of recreation does not depend for its outlet upon fishing, golfing, boating and the like.

"Recreation for me," he explained, "means romping with my children or some first-rate indoor sport like that. Mrs. Seiberling and I like to get our neighbors around us at home and enjoy some good music. Our house is always open to our friends, and we manage to have some very pleasant times. Do you know, a man can do much better work if he has some music every now and then."

BROWNSON HOUSE TO GIVE STREET DANCE.

A Halloween street dance will be given by the Brownson House Settlement, 711 Jackson street, the evening of October 31.

As part of the institution's Americanization work, the directors plan to purchase a projecting machine in the near future so that throughout the winter they may exhibit educational and recreational films to adults and children.

One of the features of the entertainments will be community singing, the entire affair being under the direction of Miss Mary Workman, president of the board of directors.

The Brownson House Settlement is one of the social service agencies which form the bureau of Catholic charities.

Electrical League Plans Dinner in Welcome for R. H. Ballard.

In recognition of the services of R. H. Ballard, president of the National Electric Light Association in obtaining for Southern California the 1920 convention of the association the members of the Electrical Co-operative League are planning a banquet for Mr. Ballard when he arrives here from the East. It will be in the nature of a welcome-home celebration.

The dinner will be held at the Hotel Alexandria next Wednesday. Plans for the convention in Pasadena, beginning May 18, indicate that it will be the most important business convention ever held in the Southland.

reducing his self-respect and his ability to make progress. This applies equally to men in the ranks as it does to executives. Literally, a man should be paid all he can earn.

"What you don't want in this city is low-wage industries." Speaking with emphasis, he thrust an arm forward and brought his hand sharply on his knee. "I never saw a city of low-wage industries that amounted to anything. Low wages attract a foreign element that is not desirable. You want American citizens here. To make this a high-class American community is not only our opportunity, but a duty."

HOMES FOR WORKMEN.

With Mr. Seiberling, the building of comfortable homes amid attractive surroundings for employees has long since advanced from the doctrinal 600 acres of land here in a continuous piece and has options on more. He wants to see Goodyear workmen contentedly housed in advance of the time when factory expansion would make this impossible. He intends to build some 800 model homes on the tract here, besides establishing a 160-acre recreation grounds to be known as Goodyear Park.

"Los Angeles," he advised, "needs home-owning citizens. The more she has, the better this city will prosper. Tourist travel is all right and should be encouraged, but it is more important to encourage and make easier the ownership of homes. A home-owner makes a better citizen, and the community is better for his presence. I wouldn't care to live in a city that did not contain a large body of intelligent, home-owning citizens. Don't overlook the fact, too, that along with homes, industries that can thrive are needed."

ABOUT BOLSHEVISM.

Mr. Seiberling has unbounded faith in the future of America, and he has little patience with the man who turns aside from his work to talk of "Bolshevism being a menace to this country."

"There need be no menace of any kind to our national prosperity," he said in parting, "if we preserve the habit of thinking of America as America really is. We are not going to be dominated by any doctrine of destruction. Such a principle is utterly foreign to real American character. We can enjoy undiminished prosperity if we keep steadily at our work. We hear a lot about 'unrest' in the world, but that is nothing more nor less than evidence of growth. If you hear any of these soap-box fellows talking Bolshevism in this country, tell him for me to forget it and go to work."

ON MAIL CHARGE.

Mrs. Aurelia Wood, who runs an apartment-house at 823½ West Pico street and who is accused of having opened the mail of one of her roomers, D. M. Parkhurst, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Long, and held in $1000 bail and committed to the County Jail.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—[Advertisement.

"What matters it if the sun is ng on the surrounding hills or suburbs if the residence district of a California city is covered by of smoke? Californians may complain of being cheated out ing vouchsafed them by if their allotment of sunshine is artificially cut off. An artificial created cloud of smoke a few feet thick and a mile or so may effectually change climate of a town so far as and purity of the air is ed.

most cases there need be no cause for the smoke nuisance on the Western Coast if the problem is studied and the city's industrial districts be properly located. Cities on the Pacific Coast are geographically most favorably located with reference to the general drift of the air currents.

"Through a study of ventilation of a city there may result such a distribution of industrial centers with relation to the immutable laws of nature as to prevent undue contamination of the air and serious reduction in the normal amount of sunshine locally received.

"Los Angeles probably has the least wind of any city of its size in the United States. The following table shows the average velocity of the wind during the past five years: 1914, 5.6 miles per hour; 1915, 5.7; 1916, 5.6; 1917, 5.5; 1918, 5.8.

"These figures are compiled from the records of the United States Weather Bureau and are from the wind registering instrument, the anemometer, on the top of the Central Building which is in the center of the business district on the corner of Sixth and Main streets. The wind apparatus is 156 feet above ground, or about fifty feet above the tops of the surrounding office buildings.

AN IDEAL LOCATION.

"Los Angeles and vicinity is ideally located so as to take advantage of both the land and sea breezes and the mountain and valley winds. Both are primarily caused by the unequal heating of the land and water areas, and the elevated and depressed land. When the sun shines on the land the air is heated and rises, allowing the cooler air from the sea to flow in; when the land cools off, at night time, the reverse movement takes place.

"Those living near the foothills notice that, ordinarily, there is always a downward movement of air at night, or early in the morning, caused by the colder mountain air sliding down the canyons. When the sun warms up the broad valleys, the wind flows back and up the mountain sides and thus constitutes an ebb and flow as regular as the clock and with a velocity dependent upon the temperature differences."

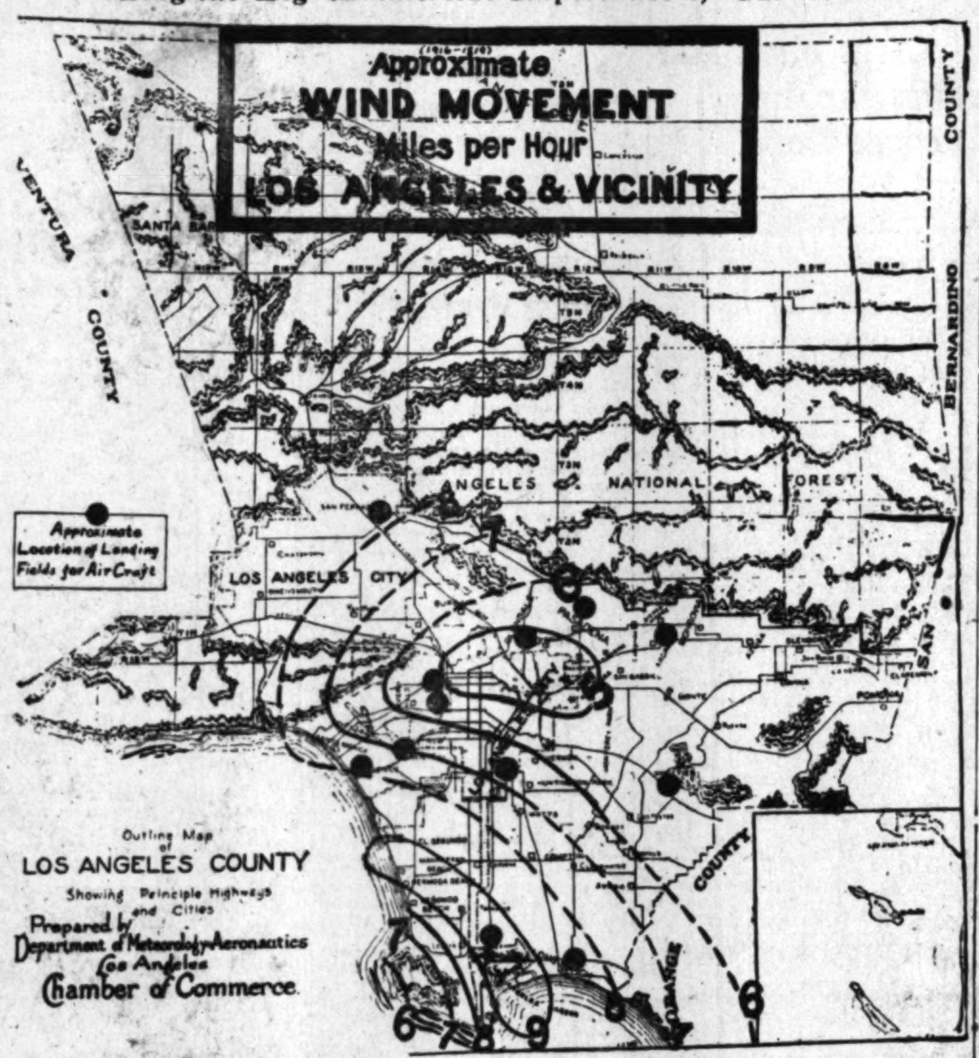
Showing the Big Commercial Importance of Our Winds.



Wind Charts Prepared by Dr. Ford A. Carpenter,

Of the Chamber of Commerce meteorological bureau. The figures on the curves in the big chart show miles per hour wind velocity. Note its variations with regard to residential and industrial (harbor district) sections. The black spots are available air landing places. In the middle-sized chart the uprights represent hours of southwest wind, varying through the year. The smallest chart compares the wind of San Pedro with that of Los Angeles proper, showing the former to have the right wind for industrial purposes, but not for airplanes, and that of Los Angeles right for residences and air work, but not for factories. The upright lines show hours from 1 a.m. to midnight and the horizontal wind velocity in miles per hour.

WANT WORKERS' HOMES.

San Pedro Chamber Plans More Houses and Parks at Harbor.

A campaign to encourage the building of houses, the buying of homes by workers and general city improvement is back of the big membership drive being conducted successfully by the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce. The plans for civic improvement will be promoted by a yearly fund of $25,000 to be devoted entirely to this purpose.

According to Ray Mitchell, president of the chamber, and one of the leading merchants of San Pedro, the harbor district has caught the spirit of progress and is moving forward. He says that a great awakening has occurred there, due to the wonderful activity in the way of shipbuilding and commerce which the city developed during the war.

"What we want most in San Pedro," said Mr. Mitchell, "is business activity. We want three or four parks and recreation centers. The San Pedro Chamber of Commerce thinks it knows at least three park sites which can be purchased at reasonable prices and turned over to the Los Angeles park department. Wilmington has no park, and we are willing to join with her in getting one. Up near Harbor City I believe we can get land cheap for another park. These propositions might all be tied together in one big bond issue."

HOMES ARE NEEDED.

Mr. Mitchell asserted that one of the big problems in San Pedro is that of providing homes for the increasing population. The town is growing fast, he said, and shipbuilders are compelled to spend their wages for interurban transportation and live in Watts, Compton, Long Beach and other cities when they had rather reside in San Pedro near their work.

"It is our intention to get the addresses of the owners of all the vacant lots in San Pedro," said Mr. Mitchell, "and as soon as we obtain such a list we expect to convince them that it will pay them to improve their holdings. We also intend to get in touch with non-resident owners of homes and put them in touch with people who want to buy homes here. Our aim is to make this an industrial and residence city in which a large majority of the citizens will own their own homes."

MEMBERSHIP INCREASES.

The San Pedro Chamber of Commerce set out to increase its active membership from 400 to 1000. It has already obtained 624 members.

In the opinion of those who are interested in the industrial welfare of the harbor district the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce paved the way Thursday for an era of progress by declaring itself unequivocally in favor of open-shop working conditions.

Until recently the chamber tried to maintain neutrality in industrial conditions, but a long series of costly strikes, which forced many merchants to carry the accounts of idle workmen on their books for long periods caused some of the business men to decide that moral support of strikes was unprofitable. It is said that many of the strikers, after running big bills at San Pedro stores, moved out of town.

Strikes become so prevalent and agitators so arbitrary in their demands, that the best element of the community felt compelled to take a decisive stand and break the hold that unionism was gaining at the harbor.

BRINGS US BIG BUSINESS.

Our Quartermaster's Depot Too Great an Asset to Lose, Say Merchants.

In response to telegrams received from the supply officers of Southern California army camps and posts advising the amount of turkey that will be required for the Thanksgiving holidays, the local quartermaster's depot is advertising for bids on approximately 5000 pounds of turkey, the estimated amount required to supply the camps served by this office.

The amount of turkeys required by the camps served by the San Francisco quartermaster depot is estimated at 10,000 pounds, making a total of 15,000 pounds. Southern California poultry raisers are offered the opportunity to bid for the entire contract for all of the army camps in California, and it is hoped that they will enter into active competition with poultry raisers of the northern part of the State in order that this large contract may be handled through the Los Angeles quartermaster depot.

The opportunity to bid on the turkey requirements for the soldiers is being offered primarily to the farmers of Southern California. The requests for bids are being mailed to the farmers and turkey raisers of this district, and farmers who do not receive these requests can obtain them by application to the Los Angeles quartermaster depot.

Last year the matter of making the awards for the turkey contracts was left to the local depot, but the system has been changed this year, and the purchasers will be controlled by the packing-house products branch of the quartermaster department at Chicago. The bids received both by the Los Angeles and San Francisco offices will be telegraphed to the packing-house branch at Chicago, accompanied by the recommendations of the local office. The office forwarding the lowest bids will receive the contract, not only for the camps in its own district, but for the camps throughout the State; consequently, the local office is anxious to receive as many advantageous bids as possible. The average price paid by the government for turkey last year was 44 cents per pound.

BIG BUSINESS.

That farmers have an equal opportunity to share in the business brought to this part of the State by the local depot is shown by the contracts that have been let to date for hay and grain since October 1. Farmers are always notified that these contracts are to be awarded, and urged to bid, since the local depot is anxious to deal directly with the producer whenever possible, but they have not availed themselves of this opportunity to any extent. As a result, most of the contracts for the current month have gone to hay and grain dealers of Los Angeles, contracts that amounted to many thousands of dollars.

Nicholls-Loomis Company received an order this month for 200 tons of oats to be shipped to Camp Hearn, the contract amounting in value to $12,000. To other camps in Southern California this company shipped grain to the value of $4882.76. The Globe Grain and Milling Company filled contracts this month for the hay and oats requirements of Camp Hearn and Camp Kearny amounting to $7750.55. Erwin and Company of San Diego supplied $364 worth of hay to Rockwell Field and Campo. In addition to these orders filled by Southern California firms, Hyde Brothers of El Paso, Tex., were awarded a contract amounting to $5932 by the Los Angeles office for oats for Camp Hohn H. Beacom and for Campo. The total value of the orders placed by the Los Angeles office of the Quartermaster for the present month amounts to more than $30,000, and the greater part of these contracts were placed with local hay and grain dealers.

Albert E. Nicholls, president of the firm of Nicholls-Loomis Company, is taking an active part in the campaign, which is being waged by the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association to keep the local quartermaster's depot open. "They are doing the city and Southern California a great injustice by closing this office," declared Mr. Nicholls yesterday. "It is a great commercial asset, and it will help everyone here, either directly or indirectly. It is important that we give the organizations that are working to keep the office open all the support possible, and I am more than willing to do my share."

PLAN NEW INDUSTRY HERE.

Ore Survey May Make City a Chemical Manufacturing Center.

The Chamber of Commerce committee on manufacturing met yesterday in conference with representatives of the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Institute of Mechanical Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Institute of Chemical Engineers, and the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, to inaugurate a campaign for the development of the chemical ore industry with raw products of the Southland.

An advisory committee representing all branches of engineering, to work in co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce committee in making a survey of the raw materials of Southern California and plans for their development, was suggested and approved.

James H. Hill of the committee, who presided at yesterday's meeting, stated that firms proposing to establish industries here call upon the chamber frequently for accurate figures in regard to chemical ore possibilities. He said that the gathering of these figures should be the initial work of the advisory committee.

Los Angeles as a potential chemical manufacturing center was brought into the limelight during the war, when it was found that large deposits of chemical ores were available in this section. Subsequent research work has proved that Southern California holds large promise for this branch of industrial development.

HOT WATER FOR SICK HEADACHES

Tells Why Everyone Should Drink Hot Water With Phosphate in it Before Breakfast.

Headaches are caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood excite the heart, which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilid, aspirin or the bromides, which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.—[Advertisement.

Manufacturer of Famous Medicine Tells Ingredients, So Public Can Appreciate Pure, Reliable Medicine.

Many people fear to take medicine to check and absorb colds, cure coughs, catarrh, etc. This fear is groundless with all the products of The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio. Not one contains opiates, narcotics or harmful drugs. Mentho-Laxene, for coughs, colds, catarrh, and all distress following a cold, is a compound of Wild Cherry, Tolu, Cascara, Grindelia, Menthoe Ammonium Chloride, and alcohol sufficient to preserve and keep in solution.

Every ingredient is in concentrated form and the medicine is so strong that only ten-drop doses are to be taken in the "raw" state. But the ideal way is to make into syrup by emptying a 2½-oz. bottle of Mentho-Laxene into a pint bottle and then fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made by dissolving a pint of sugar in a half pint of boiling water. It is said by thousands that this makes a most effective home treatment for all cold troubles. The manufacturer guarantees it to please or money back. Sold by all good druggists.—[Advertisement.

Here's a Fine Tonic Laxative, Says Druggist

Every other night for three weeks it's your duty to brew a cup of this great vegetable tea—that is, if you want better blood, clear complexion and sparkling eyes.

Get a package today. It costs but a trifle, but as a health builder is worth its weight in gold.

Normal bowel action, perfect working stomach and sweet breath follow its use.

The children drink it and enjoy it, and it's the gentlest acting laxative they can take, especially good when they are fretful, cross and feverish.—[Advertisement.

Lesson in Scientific Complexion Renewing

Everyone has a beautiful skin underneath the one exposed to view. Bear that in mind and it will be easier to understand the correct principle in acquiring a lovely complexion. Nature is constantly shedding the top skin in flaky particles like dandruff, only much smaller in size. In abnormal conditions, or in advancing age, these particles are not shed as rapidly as in robust youth. The longer they remain the more soiled or faded they become—that's the immediate cause of a "bad complexion."

It has been discovered that ordinary mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store, will absorb these worn-out particles. The absorption, while hastening Nature's work, goes on gradually enough to cause no inconvenience. In a week or two the transformation is complete. The fresh, healthy-hued, youthful underskin is then wholly in evidence. You who are not satisfied with your complexions should get an ounce of mercolized wax and try this treatment. Use the wax nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.—[Advertisement.

BELGIUM OFFERS A FERTILE FIELD.

At Request of King Albert, "The Times" Gives Facts and Figures Showing Wonderful Opportunities for American Capital to Aid Upbuilding of Ravaged Land.

King Albert's tour of the United States, though primarily made to strengthen the bonds of friendship between this country and Belgium, has induced American financiers and business men to investigate more thoroughly the wonderful opportunities that await American capital in the ravaged country.

These opportunities are set out in a series of bulletins published by the Central Information Office of Belgium, which have been personally vised by the Belgian monarch and which King Albert upon his departure from Los Angeles requested The Times to publish.

The bulletins tell of the general reconstruction of Belgium and the return of this small though important, country into the world of commerce. They tell of the systematic pillage and destruction of Belgium's resources and industrial equipment, of the demolition of cities and great manufacturing areas, and of railroads destroyed.

FARM RESTORATION.

One of the most important projects for the general reconstitution of Belgium is that of agricultural restoration, which provides for taking over farms at their 1914 value, putting them in good condition and returning them to their owners. The government is also authorized to proceed with appropriations for public utilities without recourse to previous inquiry, to arrange maps of public routes and water courses, create new ways, effect sanitary work and reparcel land in the devastated zone.

In that zone the Fonds du Roi Albert has done good work in providing shelter for homeless people. Huts have been erected in the ravaged areas. Thus far 12,000 have been built, housing 60,000 persons. At the time of the armistice 100,000 homes had been destroyed and 300,000 persons deprived of shelter. To solve completely this problem 250,000,000 francs are estimated to be necessary.

Regarding the restitution of Belgian industries, the speed with which operations are being resumed is due to a great extent to the rapid recovery from Germany of machinery and material stolen by the invaders. The statistics for last July showed that a total of 39,521 tons had been restored to the rightful owners. The estimated value of this recovered machinery and material is 49,401,250 francs. Assisted by the recovery of this equipment and material, government statistics show the following percentages of production attained at the end of last July:

PRODUCTION FIGURES.

Coal, 83.5; coke, 46.41; cement, 37.07; blast furnaces, 19.56; iron and steel, 16.83; raw zinc, 9.77; refined sugar, 91.34; cotton for spinning, 44.12; cotton for weaving, none; flax for spinning, 28.79; flax for weaving, none; paper and cardboard, 30.70.

The greatest task that confronted the Belgians at the time of the armistice was the recovery of the stolen machinery and material equivalent to that destroyed on the spot or taken by the Huns. Machines have since been returning to factories all over the country in the last two months at the rate of 3000 tons a week, the total amount recovered being 39,000 tons.

The work of recovery has been in charge of the Service de la Restitution Industrielle. While the home office is in Brussels the operating office of this Belgian organization is in Wiesbaden, Germany. It is interesting to note how this service proceeded.

During the war two German organizations, known as the Rohma and Wumba, carried on the pillage of Belgian industries. The Rohma destroyed the Belgian and French factories, while the Wumba attended to the theft of machinery and material, dismantling the plants and transporting the loot to Germany, where it was sold to the highest bidder.

RETURNING LOOT.

With true German efficiency the organization kept accurate record of their work b ya card file system. It was this card file system that was called into use by the Allies for recovery of Belgian and French machinery. The same men who directed Rohma and Wumba during the war are now being compelled by the Allies to return the loot to their victims. The figures for August show the rate at which recovery is being accomplished thus:

Demands from Belgians for return of property, 6092; number of machines restored to owners, 1807; finished products restored to owners (kilograms,) 90,000; raw material restored to owners (kilograms,) 95,715.

Belgium's needs at the time of the armistice embraced all kinds of products. The destruction and requisition of industrial equipment by the Germans has been estimated at 5,754,000,000 francs. Inquiries into the immediate needs of various industries have brought forth the following deductions:

Coal: Active during the war with production reduced, it has suffered little, relatively.

Manufacture of oil products: Affected similarly to the coal industry, with a great lack of coal tar pitch.

Coke manufacture: The coke manufactories, which are a part of the coal mines, are in good condition. Sulphuric acid and freight cars are needed.

SUGAR FACTORIES BUSY.

Quarries: A lack of an outlet for the products and difficulties of transportation has slightly injured this industry.

Sugar industry: Apart from the refineries of Snaeskerke, Bacsrode and Peruwelz, destroyed in military operation, all sugar establishments have been operating during the war, though some material in copper has been lost and there has been much wear on rolling stock.

Ceramic industry: Resumption is slow, due to a lack of raw material, lack of markets, and labor questions.

Textile industries: The theft of goods was only partial, and at the present time most of the factories have been able to work. The great obstacle to resumption has been the lack of raw material, but the situation is improving.

Manufacture of cotton and woolen sheets: A partial resumption of this industdy is possible. The industry is still idle, though, as a result of an almost total lack of raw material.

Manufacture of Portland cement: Out of eighteen factories, seven factories are operating at present.

Leather industry: While in the region of Tournai almost all the establishments have been destroyed, those around Liege and Luxemberg are almost all prepared for normal production.

Match industry: This has developed greatly, as 70 per cent. of all production is exported. Only two factories entirely destroyed. Resumption is hindered by the lack of chloride of potash and paraffin.

STEEL INDUSTRY.

Iron, steel and metal industries: These industries have suffered much. The damage to the steel and iron mills, the demolition of equipment and the stealing of machines were on such an enormous scale that complete reparation will take a long time, but, despite all difficulties and the uncertainty of the future, work is being resumed in nearly all factories, plants are being rebuilt, foundations for machinery are being laid and equipment taken to Germany is being recovered. It is estimated that steel production is now 27 per cent. normal, and iron production 51 per cent. normal.

Zinc and lead industries: With regard to zinc and lead, of eight zinc factories in the province of Liege five are entirely inactive. Three have partially resumed work. The production of zinc factories is greatly reduced and cannot start again on its normal activity as long as its provisioning in minerals is unassured. In the provinces of Limbourg and Antwerp there is a complete cessation of activity in four foundries due to German destruction and lack of raw material. The sulphuric acid industry is at a standstill.

Diamond industry: War stopped all activity in the mines and in the production of diamonds. Belgian diamond cutters migrating to Holland was one of the causes of the industry being paralyzed.

REPAIR RAILROADS.

Railroads: Belgian railroads, damaged or destroyed during the German occupation, are being rapidly repaired and re-established and on many lines schedules have become practically normal. Bridges and equipment have been reconstructed or replaced by temporary works so as to assure the operation of the largest number of lines. When the armistice was signed 1500 kilometers of railroads had been destroyed, but so rapid has been the work of repair that only fifty-five kilometers of destroyed railroad lines remain.

Regarding Belgium's finances, a report read before the Belgian Chamber of Representatives on August 20, contained the general budget of receipts and expenses of Belgium for 1919. Here are the figures:

Debts previous to the war, 4,887,254,000 francs; debts resulting from German exaction, 2,347,800,000 francs; debts contracted or to be contracted, in order to carry out budget agreements, 10,147,600,000 francs; debts contracted or to be contracted to fulfill budget agreements, 4,745,000,000; grand total, 19,780,054,000 francs.

This debt would have been still greater had not France, England and America freed Belgium of nearly 5,000,000,000 francs, the amount of the advances up to November 11, 1918. The American advances, which were annulled, totaled 889,820,420 francs. Since the signing of the armistice, France, England and America have advanced to Belgium a total of 1,307,352,308 francs.

The budget of 1919 tells in figures the consequences of war. It reflects the various aspects of the catastrophe; enormous debts, persistent charges, destructions, increases in everything, reduction of producing activity.

Belgium's great desire now is to go into financial partnership with the United States. Whatever may be done in the matter of large, short-term bank credits to Belgium, or small loans to industrials, the fact remains that the field for the most profitable cultivation in future relations between Belgium and the United States is that of straight financing.

Belgium possesses a financial genius by reason of years of experience in foreign fields. Her bankers have intimate knowledge of conditions in all countries. During the fifteen years before the war Belgian bankers exported about 4,000,000,000 francs in gold to Africa, Russia, China and South America, exploiting railways, tram lines and coal mines in those countries.

The field for investment in Belgium is a fertile one. There is more money in Belgian banks today than before the war, but this money represents assets which before 1914 were invested in merchandise and stocks of all kinds, and must be reinvested in raw materials and machinery with a purchasing power diminished 150 per cent., before the wheels of industry may be set to going again. It is this surplus that Belgium needs the increased cost of replacement, which is estimated at 2,500,000,000 francs. Germany has agreed to pay the bill—but in a distant and hazy future—and Belgium with its tireless energy wants to get started at once.

What remains to be understood is the wonderful opportunity for investment presented in Belgian enterprises, both in and out of the country.

Ten thousand dollars invested in Belgium today means 85,000 francs, which goes a long way.

BANKER'S WIFE DIES.

Services for Mrs. Hiddleson Will be Held Here Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Mrs. Robert M. Hiddleson, known in musical and dramatic circles in Southern California as Gertrude Williams, will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in the chapel of Bresee Brothers, 855 South Figueroa street. Mrs. Hiddleson, who was 32 years old, died at her home in Sierra Madre Friday.

Mrs. Hiddleson was a graduate of Cumnock School here. Later she attended the University of Southern California. She lived in this city for nineteen years. Up to the time of her marriage she lived with her mother, Mrs. Fannie A. Henderson, 502 South Hobart boulevard. She leaves her mother, her husband, Robert M. Hiddleson, of the Guarantee Trust and Savings Bank, and a sister, Mrs. Bernadine Waddington.

Youth Arrested Here for Auto Theft Wanted in East.

Frank Schwartzman, 17 years old, arrested in this city by Detective J. H. Ervin of the automobile club, charged with stealing an automobile, will be taken to New York to face a charge of stealing $1200 from his employer, Carl Damschinsky, of that city.

R. F. Sullivan of the New York Police Department came on to Los Angeles to get the lad on requisition papers and yesterday obtained an order from Judge Reeve of the Juvenile Court for the release of Schwartzman.

OFFERS CHANCE FOR REAL GOOD.

Seek Contributions for New Maternity Hospital.

Fifteen Thousand Needed to Build First Unit.

Will Enable Institution to Extend Useful Work.

Progress of the movement to extend maternity aid to poor women who cannot afford to pay large medical and hospital bills is apparently limited only by a lack of understanding on the part of the general public, say those who have the project in hand. They believe that seldom has such an opportunity been presented to fill a great need, and accomplish so much real good for the amount of money invested, as they now offer.

It is proposed to raise $15,000 to build the first unit of a Maternity Hospital on a lot adjoining Maternity Cottage, 127 South Utah street. Only a part of the amount has been raised, and there is as yet no money for equipping the hospital. Those behind the campaign say that at this time, when the cry is for more and better babies, the work of Maternity Cottage looms large in importance and value; much larger than is indicated in the modest title.

Maternity Cottage is conducted for the use and benefit of married women who cannot afford even the ordinary cost of hospital, nursing and medical fees. More than 3000 babies have already been ushered into the world beneath its kindly roof.

It is not a charity. Those who receive its benefits pay in proportion as they are able for the service rendered. The dreaded alternative of going to a public institution is avoided. Expectant mothers are given expert medical and nursing attention such as they would receive in any good hospital and better than most of them could receive at home.

Twenty-five dollars covers the hospital expense of the usual two weeks' stay. The fee to the resident physician must not exceed $15. The patient may, if she wishes, have her own physician, but it is stipulated that his fee must not be more than $15.

Maternity Cottage is overcrowded; it is not able, with its present accommodations and facilities to serve nearly as many as would like to take advantage of them.

Contributions toward the new hospital may be sent to R. Morgan Galbreth, Citizens National Bank Building. Mrs. William Baurhyte is president of the executive board and is active in raising the building fund.

GETS ARMY CITATION.

Local Man Fought with the Marines at Thiaucourt Battle.

The Navy Department has forwarded to Donald C. Norton, pharmacist's mate, third class, whose mother, Mrs. Harriet E. Norton, lives at 1211 Lamond avenue, an army citation awarded by Gen. Pershing for services rendered at Thiaucourt, in France.

Norton was with the Navy Hospital detachment assigned to the Fifth and Sixth Regiments, United States Marine Corps, and distinguished himself in action. He enlisted in the navy in June, 1917.

Born in 1839 Dr. Caldwell Still in His Office Daily

Wonderful vigor of the founder of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Millions now use his famous prescription

ALL physicians know that good health depends largely upon proper digestion and elimination, and that most sickness results from these causes. None knows this better than the "family" doctor, the general practitioner.

Dr. W. B. Caldwell of Monticello, Illinois, was and is a family doctor. The whole human body, not any small part of it, was his practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

Dr. Caldwell in the course of 40 years' practice, for he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875, had found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year the preparation was first placed on the market. The picture of Dr. Caldwell that appears on the package was taken in that year.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in the doctor's private practice. Today the third generation is using it.

Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it, for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is selling at the rate of over 6 million bottles a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Syrup Pepsin, and the formulator of that prescription is fortunately living to see its wonderful success.

Women, children and old people are the ones most benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It differs from physics in that its action is mild and gentle and free from griping. It does not weaken. And while it is promptly effective in the most obstinate case, it is safe for a tiny baby as it contains no narcotics.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at 50c and $1 a bottle, the latter the family size and sufficient to last months. Keep a bottle in your home. Where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

O SERVANTS, IS ULE IN SCHOOL.

ing, Sewing All Part of estic Science Course.

Housel Says Students Real Housekeeping.

will the girl who goes to school have a maid to her bed and take care of or even a cook to see that are prepared, or a wait the dining-room, or anyone to do her sewing, if the plan by Miss Florence Housel, of the Huntington Hall for Girls, is widely adopted. Housel never has to worry domestic servants and she is to fix it so that the girls who her school won't have to worry them either.

Housel believes that practice better than theory when it to domestic science and that way to teach girls to keep is to make them do it. So students at Huntington Hall keep house and they like it. science is learned in the or with a broom, or in mak- and sewing, according to Housel, and that's how the girls school are learning it.

Housel stated yesterday that methods being followed at the would in time be adopted at girls' schools because the stu- really get the value of the in doing the practical work, the housekeeping, under direction, and when they school they'll be able to laugh problems.

combined with intelligence any problem," said Miss yesterday. "So we are not worried at all about the servant problem because we have learned to serve ourselves.

"In 1911, when we moved from the old school building to our new home in Oneonta Park, the first thing I did was to have the front yard plowed up and planted in potatoes. Ever since the school was founded I have worked along the lines of management I learned at my own college, but during the last few years I have made a specialty of the industrial phase of the business and I find that it has paid in more ways than one.

"Today every one of the sixty girls in the school does her own housework, and that includes cleaning her room, doing her own sewing, mending, cooking and everything else connected with 'regular housekeeping.' Furthermore, every girl in the school, whether she be a pay student or a 'proctor,' spends at least one hour each day doing practical domestic work.

"At the outbreak of the war we began to raise our own fruit, vegetables, poultry and beef, buying only a few of the staple articles of food. We have developed a scientific method of production of which we are proud. At first, we took only one corner of our twenty-one acres and cultivated it intensely, producing twenty-five different kinds of vegetables, and in this way we learned what crops would thrive best in the different soils, as well as the best methods of cultivation. This year the entire little ranch is under cultivation.

"We have many fruit trees. We raised plenty of hay for our cattle, vegetables for ourselves and grain for our poultry. We have a fine flock of bronze turkeys, scores of Poland China pigs, rabbits and six Jersies, mixed with a strain of Holstein in order to get a good quantity of milk as well as a good quality of both milk and butter. Everything left over from the meals is fed to the poultry, rabbits or other stock.

DO ALL THE WORK.

"Last year when the labor problem loomed and the spirit of Bolshevism began to seep into the minds of kitchen servants, we began to devise ways of eliminating the necessity for the help and we solved the question largely by doing the work ourselves. Mrs. H. W. Bowen, teacher of domestic science, was placed in charge of the kitchen and dining room, and her business is now to teach not merely theories but practical domestic science to the students.

"Many of the girls, who come from the deserts, valleys and ranches, desirous of obtaining an education, have been installed as assistants to Miss Bowen and are receiving valuable instruction in both the theory and practice of domestic science. These girls pay their tuition by their service, which is the best kind of pay. A great many of them will be domestic science teachers and they will receive advance credit for their experience here, when they ente rthe university.

"The young women referred to do not all come from the poor and middle class families, for many of them come from homes of wealth, and when they leave here they not only know how to keep house, from kitchen sweeping to dessert making, but they love the work. In fact, the girls from the wealthier homes seem to be especially delighted with the course in domestic science.

"Returning home, they do not need to depend on an unreliable servant for breakfast, and, furthermore, they can prepare a good meal. In preparing the dinners here, not a bit of food is ever wasted; each meal is prepared for all the members of the school and the instructor is ready at hand to explain every detail to the student."

SELLING CONFERENCE FOR TELEGRAPH MEN.

WESTERN UNION FORCES MEET HERE AND DISCUSS WAYS TO WIDEN SERVICE.

A four-day conference of officials and employees of the Western Union Telegraph Company, for the purpose of laying out a selling campaign, closed in this city yesterday.

Prior to the war a similar campaign was inaugurated and wonderful results were obtained, but the campaign was interrupted by the unusual conditions brought about by the war. It is now the purpose of the Western Union commercial organization to go into the selling game again.

A preliminary conference was held for the purpose of planning the campaign, followed in the evening by a dinner at the Jonathan Club, which was attended by a party of seventy.

At the dinner, the purpose of the conference was stated by E. C. Vanderbilt, district commercial superintendent. General Manager M. T. Cook of the Pacific division spoke on "Our Second Commercial Era," C. F. Newsom, division commercial manager, on "Selling Telegraph Service," and A. C. Kaufman, general commercial agent, on "The Telegraph Instead of the Mails."

Mr. Kaufman demonstrated how, by the proper use of telegraph service, any concern can provide 100 additional days in the year in which to transact business.

It is the intention of the Western Union to conduct other such get-together meetings frequently, for building up and maintaining its selling organization.

OCCIDENTAL SEEKS A NEW BUILDING FUND.

COLLEGE WANTS HALF MILLION FOR EXTENSION WORK NOW BEING PLANNED.

A campaign to raise $500,000 for extending the work of Occidental College was announced yesterday by President Evans. Dr. Evans has appointed Dr. Robert M. Donaldson, formerly field secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, as executive secretary to conduct the campaign. It was announced that at least $100,000 of the fund to be raised will be used at once for new buildings, which are very much needed.

It was stated that a number of contributions to the fund have been received, amounting to several thousand dollars. The Board of Trustees of the college, in order to aid Dr. Evans in his plan, authorized the appointment of Dr. Donaldson as secretary of the campaign. Dr. Donaldson is a graduate of the University of Wooster and was for four years secretary of the university. He has held pastorates in Minnesota, Montana and Idaho.

FATHER IS CLEARED.

Charge of Stealing His Own Small Daughter is Dismissed.

Justice Palmer yesterday dismissed a charge of kidnaping that some time ago was brought against William O. Schwartz, accused of abducting his own 12-year-old daughter, Grace.

The dismissal was made upon motion of Deputy District Attorney Hill, because of lack of sufficient evidence and because an order of the Superior Court giving custody of the child to Deputy Sheriff Blaylock was made while Mr. Schwartz was out of the State.

It was also pointed out by John L. Richardson, attorney for Mr. Schwartz, that the Superior Court of Kern county has awarded custody of the child to the father during the school months and to the mother, since married to a Burlingame, Cal., man, during the vacation period. This was done by stipulation of the contestants.

ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Third Defendant Named in Case of Slain Motorman.

Elgin Carson, a negro, was yesterday formally charged with participation in the murder of George C. Sleeper, Pacific Electric motorman killed last September 27. Ernest Carson, a brother, and Charles Dasent had been previously charged with the murder, and all three are accused in a new complaint filed yesterday by Deputy District Attorney Randall.

The three were arraigned before Justice Hinshaw and their hearing was set for Tuesday, which is also the time named for the hearing on the first complaint.

TO AMERICANIZE ALIENS.

In order to train workers and all persons interested in making Americans out of aliens who come to this country the University of California, extension division, has organized a course of study on Americanization. There will be six distinct, but co-related courses under the plan adopted by the university. The work will be inaugurated on November 3. Later the courses will be given in Fresno and San Francisco, but the work will be started here where several of the instructors have their homes.

The Americanization training course will be a comprehensive study of the essential work of assimilating the foreign elements that come into the United States and so quickly become a part of the social, industrial and political life of the nation. The university feels that the assimilation of these races is a critical problem in America, and the course is designed to give to citizens, teachers, public officials, employers, labor leaders and the foreigners themselves, instruction on the making of Americans.

The courses will consist of fifteen lectures each. "Americanization in General, Its Scope and Methods," will be given by John Collier, director of the Training School for Community Workers in New York. "Americanization from the Standpoint of Housing and Community Study" will be under the direction of Carol Aronovici, director of housing, under the State Commission of Immigration and Housing.

The lectures on "Americanization from the Standpoint of Industry, Including Agriculture," will be given by Dr. Roy W. Kelly. Miss Ruby Baughman, supervisor of immigrant education, will give the courses on "Americanization from the Standpoint of Teaching English to Foreigners," and Prof. Frank J. Klingbert will lecture in the course "Americanization from the Standpoint of Economic Ideals, Citizenship and the United States Government."

The courses have been approved by the State Board of Education and will be recognized as a basis for certification for graduates of universities, colleges or normal schools, or those with teaching experience. Registration is being made at the extension office, 628 Metropolitan Building.

Don't stay "stuffed-up!" Quit blowing and snuffling! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks up a cold and ends all grippe misery.

The first dose opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages of head; stops nose running; relieves headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing, soreness, stiffness.

"Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known and costs only a few cents at drug stores. It acts without assistance. Tastes nice. Contains no quinine. Insist on Pape's!—[Advertisement.

WANT STUDENT BOND WITH US.

French Offer Scholarships, L. N. Brunswig Says.

Angeleno Named to Arrange University Relations.

Will Give Americans Chance to See Homes There.

Anxious to preserve the friendly relations with the United States cemented by the war the French government is planning to welcome American students in France and to send large numbers of their students to American universities, according to L. N. Brunswig, of Los Angeles, who has just returned from Paris.

Mr. Brunswig will be actively in charge of the work of establishing relations between the French and American universities, having accepted the appointment of delegate from the French government to the United States to develop the scheme of keeping the two republics close together by means of the students. His appointment came from the Minister of Public Instruction in the French Cabinet.

Mr. Brunswig said yesterday that the French government has opened in New York, an educational bureau in charge of French literary men, who are working with a similar American body appointed by the association of American universities, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, is supporting the movement.

WILL AID STUDENTS.

The College of the United States in Paris is to establish a clearing house for the exchange of ideas in all branches of science and learning. It will establish an administrative home for the American students in France.

"France is anxious that the friendship with America shall endure forever," said Mr. Brunswig. "I can do no better than quote the Vice-President of the United States, speaking on the floor of the Senate last year in response to an address by the Ambassador of the French Government:" "Mr. Ambassador these colonies in 1776 were poor, despised and ignored by the world. France came forward and made it possible for us to grow into the great, rich, powerful nation of today. Now the world seeks our favor and preference but no one can have the place in our hearts that is felt for the self-same France who loved us when we were poor and weaklings."

The French government proposes to grant twenty-six scholarships to American students this year, Mr. Brunswig said. These will be given by the Universities' Union. This union will allow France to send 115 students to this country.

TO SEE FRENCH HOMES.

What France aims at most is to bring the American student into the French family life, to show its purity and high character, according to Mr. Brunswig. Of the 2,000,000 men of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, only a few had that privilege.

"Their knowledge of the French is superficial and largely from chance meetings on the boulevards and avenues of Paris, which to say the least, are questionable," Mr. Brunswig said. "When you speak of the French women, remember the mothers of the Poilus who stood at Verdun, firmly determined that they should not pass; the Poilus of the Marne, of Yser of the Somme, of the Argonne and of the thousand other battlefields. Mothers of such men must be like their prototypes Jeanne d'Arc, Sainte Genevieve, and the hundreds of women who have made France from medieval times till now the land of chivalry, liberty, culture and civilization."

Mr. Brunswig has just finished sending out forty decorations to women of the Western States who have been active in the campaign to aid the fatherless children of France, and the Red Cross Society of France. The badges are simple, but artistic. They consist of a small silver cross-shaped medal suspended from a white ribbon. These are being sent to women of Montana, California, Arizona and Texas.

HAS WAR TROPHIES.

War trophies, the largest collection ever sent to the United States, were given to Mr. Brunswig by the French government for presentation to Los Angeles and Pasadena. They embrace every conceivable kind of trophy, from the smallest hand grenade to huge cannon captured from the Germans. These trophies are at Saint Nazaire, France, waiting for an American transport to bring them here. Mr. Brunswig is now writing to the War Department urging that the shipment be expedited. When they arrive in Los Angeles they will be distributed by Mr. Brunswig in the name of the French government.

WILL HONOR HERO.

Plans Completed for Reception Here for Sergt. Rayfield.

Plans were completed yesterday for the reception to be given here for Sergt. W. L. Rayfield, who fought with the Canadian forces and was awarded the Victoria Cross. Attorney J. S. Cooper, chairman of the committee in charge of the reception, will return to Los Angeles tomorrow from a trip East and is expected to approve the plans as they stand now. It was stated yesterday that 3000 tickets for the affairs have been issued. Local Britishers plan to make the reception a notable event.

Miss Geraldine Mortimer, daughter of G. White Mortimer, British Consul here, is secretary of the reception committee. She has issued a call for a meeting to be held Wednesday at the Hotel Northern to discuss plans for the reception on November 6 at the Ebell Club.

LODGE CONVENTION.

District Meeting of Pythian Sisters Here Tomorrow.

The annual district convention of District No. 19, Pythian Sisters, will be held tomorrow afternoon and evening at Fitzgerald's Hall, 5455 Central avenue, and will be entertained by Central-avenue Temple, No. 51, P.S.A. Six o'clock dinner will be served for the guests. Anna Barrett, Grand Chief, who resides at Sacramento, will be present.

LASKY SPECIAL STYLISH PLAY.

Costuming Feature of "Why Change Your Wife."

Roman Episode Introduced in De Mille Film.

Late News and Gossip Along the Studio Row.

"Why Change Your Wife," the latest Cecil De Mille production, and a companion picture to "Don't Change Your Husband," may be expected to rival the previous film in popularity, it is believed. Some of the most beautiful photography, as well as some of the most fascinating scenes in the picture, will be shown in connection with the ancient period of the story.

This part of the play harks back to the old Roman days, which makes it seem that even in those good old days the question of changing one's wife sometimes arose. It is understood that some exquisite tinting will add to the beauty of the photoplay.

Gloria Swanson and Bebe Daniels head the feminine portion of the cast and wear some unusual fashion creations. Unique designs are a series of striking negligees, tea gowns, afternoon and evening costumes, and a half-dozen other varieties of women's wear. Clare West, designer extraordinary for Cecil B. De Mille, was given a free hand in the undertaking of designing these costumes.

An important portion of the action occurs at a seaside hotel, and a crowd of "extras" were equipped with specially designed gowns for the sole purpose of enhancing the beauty of the complete production.

The story takes the man's viewpoint of the matrimonial problem, and the plot carries the trio of principals through a tangle which is clever and amusing, while maintaining an undercurrent of serious thought.

Not Superstitious but Lucky.

Elsie Lorimer playing an important role in "Too Much Johnson" at Lasky's, says she is not superstitious, but—

"When you can tie up with a lucky charm that never fails, there's no harm in putting a little faith in it," says Miss Lorimer.

That talented actress, who is well-known to patrons of both stage and screen, was a protege of Daniel Frohman and has a picture of that famous producer, autographed to her, that never fails to bring her luck.

"About two weeks ago," explains Miss Lorimer, "I took the picture out and set it on my dressing table. Two days later I received notice that I had inherited a large sum of money. Every time I lay the picture away my luck gets bad, and then, just as soon as I take it out again I get several offers and my luck changes all around."

Has 'Em Tied Up Now.

Lew Cody last week signed up three new leading women, Misses Ethel Wood, Marie Kowaleski and Hattie Kay.

The star took action without consulting his manager, L. J. Gasnier, upon learning that Director Colin Campbell of the Dustin Farnum company had induced the young women to appear in a big banquet scene which marked finis to the production of "The Corsican Brothers" made under Mr. Gasnier's supervision.

Misses Wood, Kay and Kowaleski are attached to the office staff of the Gasnier studios in Glendale and had long cherished desires to appear before the camera—if only once!

But, womanlike, they had pinned their faith on Lew Cody, as femininity's conceded ideal, and the star had, in fact, promised to use the girls as soon as opportunity offered. Director Campbell, beat Cody to it, however, when he was making out his schedule for 400 extra players for his big scene.

Next day Miss Wood told Cody of her costume—all about the pink crepe de chine, "heavily embroidered and edged with purple velvet," that constituted her French period costume, while Misses Kay and Kowaleski chimed in with their stories of cinematic grandeur.

But Cody has matters "fixed" now, for he has obtained the signatures of the young women to a paper restricting their "film appearances" to Lew Cody productions exclusively!

Composes Farrar Song.

Adele Farrington, pioneer comic opera prima donna and now a character actress in motion pictures at Lasky's, has yet another accomplishment of which she is justly proud.

When Geraldine Farrar gave her concert at the Trinity Auditorium in Los Angeles on October 2, she sang one song which was very well received by the audience, and then personally presented its composer. To Miss Farrington went the honors, and it is only in recent years that she has taken up this work.

Miss Farrar has also sung one or two of Miss Farrington's other compositions, not only in public performances but also for Victor records.

What's Doing at L-Ko.

Five funny comedies and two sensational and sensible serials are under way at the L-Ko studio.

Robert F. Hill is on the eighth episode of "The Radium Mystery," a Pacific Producing Company serial with Cleo Madison, Eileen Sedgwick and Bob Reeves in the featured roles. The theme of the serial is said to be one of the most dramatically unique ever conceived for the screen.

J. P. McGowan, who has just returned from Europe, where he directed a Universal serial, with Eddie Polo starring, is at work at the L-Ko studio on "Fighting Through," a serial starring Elmo Lincoln, the Hercules of the Silent Drama. In "Fighting Through" the mighty Elmo Lincoln assumes the role of a government agent, and passes through amazing adventures in the suppression of crime.

Flowing veils, bare legs and beautiful girls are the outstanding features of "The Shimmie Shakers," a rollicking Rainbow comedy that is being produced under the direction of Jess Robbins. William Irving, Harry Swett and Irving Luderman play the leading roles. They are supported by a bevy of some of the prettiest girls in the West.

NEWS OF THE NEW YORK PLAY WORLD.

National Board Would Put Quietus on State Censorship.

BY HARRY CARR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The National Board of Censors gave a propaganda dinner tonight at the Hotel Astor to the commissioners of public safety of a number of different cities. The purpose is to try to do away with State censorship, and to keep the power of regulating the films in the regular police power of the different cities.

The point is that State-wide censorship must be based upon certain set rules which are bound to be ridiculous.

For instance, in one State the censors have set the rule that a kiss cannot be more than ten feet long. In another State they will not stand for any immoral and heinous suggestions like the coming of motherhood.

When left to the police powers of the different cities the "fillums" can more or less stand upon their own particular merits in each particular case.

D. W. Griffith, who recently brought his entire company on from Los Angeles to make his producing headquarters in New York, is not as yet in his new studio. The various strikes tie up the shipment of his building material. Wherefore he is rehearsing in a temporary studio rented in New Rochelle.

His studio will be ready in about two weeks. I have been in several European palaces, although the kings were out when I called, but I gave them the once-over anyhow—but I never saw a palace finer than the old Flagler mansion at Mareneck, where the Griffith pictures will be produced.

ENORMOUS MANOR.

It is an enormous manor house on a narrow point of land that reaches out into Long Island Sound. Across the narrow bay is Larchmont, and Rye Beach is just beyond.

There is a garage that looks like a young castle for a crown prince or something, and there are gatekeepers' lodges, summer houses, etc. I spent a day trying to figure out what on earth the Flagler family ever wanted with so many rooms. I finally decided that whenever they had family quarrels they each had a complete young house within a house to retire to. Also, they had a chandelier that cost $25,000, which will now illuminate movies.

Mr. Griffith is having constructed within the grounds the largest indoor light studio in the world.

It will be a decided innovation for the East. The studios around here are miserable barns.

GORDON YOUNG'S PLAY.

In the near future Mr. Griffith will take a company to Florida to produce a play written by Gordon Ray Young of Los Angeles.

New York resounds with a fight between the movie magnates and the splinters fill the air. Mr. Zukor, of the great Paramount corporation, is trying to accomplish the stupendous feat of cornering the film theaters of the United States. Both the Goldwyn people and the First National Exhibitors are frantically trying to head him off. Consequently, theaters are selling like hot cakes. If you blew into town with a theater for sale one of three outfits would buy it away from you before you got into the taxicab.

In order to finance this stupendous undertaking, Brother Zukor drove down into Wall street the other day and came up with a wad that looked like the national debt.

As a result the Paramount is just putting out a bond issue of $20,000,000.

The purpose of Mr. Zukor's attempted corner is, of course, to drive back into the fold the recalcitrant stars who have been stampeding from time to time.

EGGS AND OPERA.

One of the greatest forms of light exercise in the world is to sing tenor in the German opera company that is now trying to present the Teuton classics in New York. As he warbles, the tenor has to keep one eye upon the shower of eggs that is accustomed to rain down from the galleries and boxes. Either the delivery has been bad or the tenors

KATHLYN IS TO FLY HIGH.

Noted Picture Star Goes Airplaning.

May Try Transcontinental Trip Later.

Aviation Photofeature is a Possibility.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

If you are a picture star and you want an excuse for seeking a new thrill in the sport world by learning to fly, you will have it. For motion-picture romance is going to fly high in the future, according to some of the leading authorities. The flying high is literal.

With leading western sportsmen, including Cecil de Mille, working on a great plan for popularizing aviation in the smart set by the establishing of a chain of airplane clubs in or near all the cities of the West, it is certain, say the aforesaid authorities, that in the not distant future, with flying becoming what might be called a standardized sport among the wealthy, no little picture star will be without her Curtiss or other machine. Also the kippiest little screen romances of the rich will reveal heroes and heroines taking off clubbily in their airplanes, instead of crawling on the ground in their mere fifty-mile-an-hour automobiles.

It is none other than Kathlyn Williams, favorite screen star, noted throughout her picture career for an unusual combination of beauty, brains, acting ability and nerve in tackling the most thrilling stunts when the exigencies of picture making require, who is right in the vanguard of the flyers. Miss Williams expects to take out a pilot's license within a few weeks, her instructor being Capt. William S. Kenyon of the Mercury Aviation Company, which has its headquarters at De Mille Field.

To become one of the first woman stunt flyers in the world, to be the first woman picture star to take out a pilot's license, to own her own flying machine, and, most exciting of all, to be the first star to take a transcontinental flight, it now appears to be Miss Williams's record.

"Not that I intend to go in for exhibition flying," said Miss Williams, who, clad in natty togs, made a very pretty picture as she paused before beginning a short cruise in the air

Dedicated to Better Homes

Richly Beautiful Chinese Rugs

In the beauty of their colorings, the effectiveness of their designs, and the wearing quality of the fabric Chinese rugs are generally regarded as being on a par with Persian rugs. In actual luxuriousness they perhaps enjoy preference over the Persian or Turkish productions.

The knots in these rugs are tied exactly as in the Persian rugs. The very best Chinese and Beloochistan wool is used, giving a soft springy quality to the pile. And in many of the better qualities finest lambs' wool is used, insuring, with the use of native dyes those soft indefinable shadings of color that can be found in no other fabric.

The influence of the three great Chinese religious faiths—Confucianism, Taoism, and Buddhism are eloquently expressed in emblematic symbols in many of these Chinese rugs.

The colorings are typically Chinese, and peculiar to the art of the Orient are used in striking though harmonious contrast.

In the furnishing of our modern American homes these Chinese masterpieces are very effective, providing as they do, a type of decoration and a color introduction which make for good cheer and refreshing variety.

Allhough less costly than the finer Persian rugs they are good for lifetime service.

The "California" shows liberal selections in wonderful specimens in various sizes from small hearth rugs to the large room sizes.

We shall be glad to have you come and see the interesting display.

Smart Conceptions in Small Furs

The new fur choker fills a definite need in the wardrobe of the correctly gowned woman. It adds to the tailored costume that coveted touch of Parisian chicness.

At Colburn's you will find many smart and unusual effects in these modish collars—as well as a wide selection of graceful scarfs, so fashionable for wear with the new coat dresses.

While Colburn furs are extreme in quality —they are surprisingly low in price. Our patrons are given the benefit of the substantial saving which we effect by purchasing in large quantities for our three Los Angeles stores.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Hardly we breathe, although the air
be free;
How massively doth awful nature
pile
The living rock like some cathedral aisle,
Sacred to silence and the solemn sea.
How that clear pool lies sleeping
tranquilly,
And under its glassed surface seems to smile,
With many hues, a mimic grove the while
Of foliage submarine—shrub, flower and tree.
Beautiful scene, and fitted to allure
The printless footsteps of some sea-
born maid,
Who, here, with her green tresses
disarrayed,
'Mid the clear bath, unfearing and secure,
May sport at moontide in the caverned shade,
Cold as the shadow, as the waters pure.

Wright Retaliates.

Willard Huntington Wright, poet, novelist, critic and self-appointed censor, who, once upon a time, contributed much to the gaiety of Los Angeles, but who is now performing the same happy function for San Francisco, ran amuck recently in the northern paper, for which he is acting as art critic.

It seems that J. Vennerstrom Cannon found some fault with the forty-third annual exhibition of the San Francisco Art Association, held at the Palace of Fine Arts. Miss Cannon complains that many great California names are missing from the catalogue and she wants to know why. She asks: "From the southern part of the State, why are the names of Puthuff, Redmond, Wachtel, Townsley, Mannheim and Wendt missing?"

Mr. Wright retorts, in part: "As for the other geniuses from the south, I cannot feel the grief at their absence that Miss Cannon feels. I have seen Puthuff's work and there is much better material on view at the present show. As for Redmond —let him decorate the drawing-rooms of the retired Iowans in the Wilshire district of Los Angeles. An annual exhibition can prosper without him. Wachtel is only a copyist—a sort of exalted illustrator; and so is Mrs. Wachtel. Their paintings have no esthetic merit whatever. Mannheim is an eclectic, a facile technician without originality. And Wendt is only an academician of the kind that wins second and third prizes at Chicago exhibitions."

However, to do him justice, Mr. Wright does not deny merit in the work of some of our southern painters. He finds, for instance, that "Henrietta Shore achieves a type of decorative art entirely different from that of Miss Bremer. Her pictures are as flat as posters and her design has to do only with lines reinforced with lines of pure color. But her effects are striking because of the clear-cut fashion in which she builds her decoration and because of the rich, glowing color masses, which at times harmonize tellingly. Miss Shore is another painter who has found an attractive personal manner of painting: and, though, from an esthetic standpoint, her results are slight, she is in direct line with the modern color harmonists of the Delacroix-Gaugin-Matisse evolution."

He also gives John O'Shea much credit for oils and water colors painted at Laguna Beach and Carmel. He says that "O'Shea strives for accuracy in effect and feeling and toward this end he bends and varies his technical qualities. The result is that he changes his brushing to accord with the character of his subjects. There is nothing even approaching a stereotyped mannerism in his pictures. By endeavoring to see each new scene with a detached singleness of vision, he automatically adapts his technique to the requirements of the mood or aspect of nature which intrigues him at the moment. None of his canvases is reminiscent of another."

Mr. Wright is an engaging controversionalist. He enjoys "stirring up the animals." For that very reason, among others even more pertinent, he is not to be taken too seriously—and, in fact, never has been so taken by those who have a sense of humor. One of the more pertinent reasons for his harmlessness is the fact that he does not always approach the artist under his ban with the "detached singleness of vision" that he commends in John O'Shea. He can see double at a moment's notice, and he can even peer round corners and see things that are not on the plane of the picture that the artist had in mind when he painted it. In short, he often decries a painting for being what it isn't and for being what the painter never meant it to be. He is like the man who complains at dinner that the piece de resistance is roast beef instead of corned beef and cabbage. He should endeavor to be as broad-minded as he is long-worded.

Pennoyer's Charcoals.

Twenty-five charcoal drawings by A. Sheldon Pennoyer, a young and well-known artist of Oakland, are on exhibition in the small gallery at Exposition Park. Though they are designated as war drawings in the catalogue that accompanies them, six or eight of them have nothing at all to do with war or war's alarms, since one is a sympathetic study of a Connecticut pasture, another of a picturesque Connecticut farmyard, while four are titled "Carmel Highland Coast."

Even the war drawings are quiet enough. The artist was not an active participant on the battlefields of France. He spent two years in the Camouflage Corps, doing as useful and as necessary a work for the great cause as he would have done had he been one of the fighters. "Between times" he wandered among the pathetically picturesque ruins of towns and villages, using his brush, his pencil and his stick of charcoal for our benefit.

A. Sheldon Pennoyer will be remembered as the artist who had on display, at Exposition Park, a year or two ago, an interesting series of landscapes in pastel that had much beauty of color and were unusually well conceived in composition. He is facile in technique and has a keen sense of pictorial values.

The same facility and sense are to be noted in the war drawings he is now giving us. One may even add, the same feeling for color. Though the medium is black and white, the values of light and of color are sometimes very subtly rendered, though the execution is bold and free. Mr. Pennoyer's touch is always sensitive and his impressions are vivid.

The color refinements may be greater in the studies made on the Carmel coast, the values may be closer, because the artist had more time at his disposal, but these charming studies held no more of truth than is to be found in the sketches from France, the sad and poignant records of a horrific cataclysm, a ruthless destruction. How magnificent and how impressive these old churches are, even in their ruin! Some of them are seen under the transfiguring touch of sunlight, some under cold gray skies, some wrapped in a cold sheet of rain.

Other records of the war are found in the powerful drawings from Siberia that Gunner Dan Sayre Groesbeck is showing at the Friday Morning Club. The artist, who is a Pasadenan, will remain in the West for some weeks, and it is to be hoped that the Friday Morning Club will prevail on him to recount some of his experiences in the war. He is a born story-teller, witty, humorous, broadly sympathetic.

American Paintings.

An exhibition of many pictures by American painters opened last night in the series of galleries owned by Cannell & Chaffin, at 720 West Seventh street. The occasion was a social event, the evening being devoted to Los Angeles artists and their friends. Hitherto eastern painters have been handled almost exclusively in these galleries, but from now on western artists will have the same showing.

The pictures were not yet hung when I visited the galleries on Thursday, and the catalogue had not been printed, but I had brief glimpses of many attractive canvases—landscapes and figure studies by famous Americans.

The names of the western painters have not so far been divulged, but among the many eastern names we find these: Charles H. Woodbury, F. Chauncey Ryder, A. L. Groll, Colin Campbell Cooper, Childe Hassam, F. Luis Mora, Ivan G. Olinsky, Frederick Ballard Williams, George Elmer Browne, Emil Carlsen, Bruce Crane, Charles Warren Eaton, Francis Jones, Paul Dougherty and E. Irving Couse.

The pictures will be changed from time to time, and these galleries on Seventh street promise to become very popular.

Juvenile Class.

A Saturday morning juvenile class for talented children who show a natural aptitude for drawing has been announced by the California School of Arts. This class will be conducted by Willis B. George, who has had much success in his teaching of young people. He is also in charge of the art work at the Harvard School for Boys. The object of the work is to give a more special and individual instruction than is possible in the regular school work.

Art Notes.

The current number of the International Studio publishes an interesting account of the chalk portraits of Max Wieczorek, with several reproductions of recent drawings.

Paintings, sketches and drawings, new and old, by Karl Yens are now on exhibition at the artist's studio.

MEXICAN OPALS.

Mining of Fiery Gems Has Been Resumed South of the Rio Grande.

Mexican opals are likely soon to appear plentifully on the market again, inasmuch as mining for them has been resumed in the districts whence jewelers obtained supplies before the war.

From that source we have been accustomed to get most of our "fire" opals, which are very beautiful and brilliant, with flaming hues. This variety, however, is less highly esteemed than the so-called "noble" opal, which is whitish, translucent, and shows through with gleams of all colors of the rainbow.

Remarkably fine opals, many of them "noble," are obtained from the neighborhood of Moscow, in Idaho, where they are found in beds of volcanic ashes. Apparently their material was deposited by water, while the ashes were hot, and masses of cold cinder, when broken open, reveal the gem stones.

Opals are in certain resepcts altogethsr peculiar among gem stones, and more interesting on that account. Whereas other gems, such as the ruby, the emerald and the sapphire, owe their colors to mineral elements by which the crystals are stained, the brilliant tints of the opal are due to its structure, ever so many minute cracks reflecting lights at different angles from their edges.

An amethyst is quartz crystal stained with manganese. Opal is crystal of another variety, containing from five to thirteen per cent of water. Both are formed by the deposition of silica from water, and it was in this way that three molluscan shells transformed into opal, recently given to Harvard College, underwent their strange metamorphosis. The shells were in a rock; their limy material dissolved out and was replaced, particle by particle, with water-borne silica.

The most famous gem of the kind is the Hope opal, formerly the property of Henry Philip Hope, a Dutch banker, who owned the finest collection of precious stones ever got together. He liquidated the national debt of Brazil, and took his pay in diamonds, which orginally inspired him with his hobby. Among his treasures were the celebrated Hope diamond and the largest existing pearl, drop-shaped and weighing three ounces.

The Hope opal (now owned by an American millionaire) is beleived to have come originally from Mexico, but in the seventeenth century it adorned a Persian shrine. It representes the sun—an object of worship in Persia—with full face carved on its surface and rays supplied by an antique gold setting. Oval in shape, it is an inch in longest diameter.—[Kansas City Star.

Brown County Values.

One of those country gentlemen who owns a farm in Brown county, but lives in Indianapolis and only spends his week-ends on the farm, asked one of his neighbors down in Brown: "Did you know that T. C. Steele sold the picture that he painted on your farm?" The farmer made no reply to this and then the country gentleman told him the price Mr. Steele got for the canvas.

"I just wish I had known the feller liked the place well enough to pay that for a picture of it," the farmer said. "I'd a' sold him the farm for $200 less than that."—[Indianapolis News.

NEW YORK STORE

The New York
CLOAK & SUIT HOUSE
Seventh at Grand Ave.
J. J. Haggarty

Charge Customers, please note. Anything you buy during the remainder of October will be charged on November bills—payable on December 1st, if you like.

Whoever Wants Beautiful
New Frocks and Dresses
Should Come to The New York AT ONCE

—The delightful question of buying your fall outfit will be speedily answered if you will examine wonderful collection of brand new models now on exhibition at the New York Store.

—It isn't by chance or by a stroke of good luck that we have bigger stocks and better models for you this fall than you can find elsewhere.

—It's because we deal solely in women's garments, concentrate all our efforts to that end, and were planning these fall stocks for you, selecting the designs we knew you would want, way back in the spring of the year.

—And our buyers, like alert scouts, are still posted at New York and other fashion centers, snapping up on the instant whatever beautiful consignments of coats, suits or hats, and expressing them through the style shop on Seventh and Grand.

—And when it comes to price, you can depend upon getting any given quality for less money here than elsewhere. We have popular priced coats and suits and hats in limitless profusion.

Splendid Values in Serge Dresses—
$29.75, $35, $39.75

—If either a young woman or a woman ask herself what sort of a dress will serve to wear under a coat to business or what kind of a dress will serve to save the finer things, nine times out of ten the answer will be serge.

—Right now, we have an extra large collection of serges at the moderate prices mentioned above.

—Of course, by far, the greatest number are navy, because navy is most popular, but we can show also taupe, brown and black. The most of them have braid or embroidery used in some manner. There is a very wide choice for those who come to the store on Monday.

Georgette and Satin are Used Together in Dresses at $52.50, $59.75, $65 and $75
—Make splendid afternoon, restaurant or semi-evening dresses.
—Most of them for women, though there are a few girlish models.
—At $65, for example, is a dress with a broad satin girdle, satin reveres, overskirt of Georgette and many beads in the hand embroidery.
—And at $52.50 is a dress with a satin draped overskirt and waist part of Georgette very prettily beaded—with gold embroidery.

Distinguished Dresses of Duvetyne—
$89.75, $110, $129.50 and Up

—Each individual model ought to have a separate description because each is so different from its neighbor. Besides that, they are very different from dresses of other materials, with this exception that they have beads and embroidery.

—They are very lovely in color, whether the color be deer brown, tete de negre, navy or one of the many new red shades now in vogue.

Satin Dresses for Young Women and Small Women—
$29.75, $35 and $39.75

—With just as much style as the high priced dresses. Nothing could be more charming, for example, than a navy colored satin dress with flounces, collar and tucked border all around the skirt—or any one of the several other models trimmed with soutache braid, $35 and $39.75.
—These dresses can be had in navy, brown, taupe, Copenhagen and black.

Satin and Crepe Meteor at $45, $49.75, $55, $59.75 and $69.75
—They have beaded overskirts, fancy beaded blouses and are excellent for street and semi-dress.
—Describing two of the $45 models, one is a black satin and is very tailored. It has the broad Callot sleeves, lace collar and tucks at —The other is also navy and has a draped overskirt and beaded bodice.

Poiret Twill Street Dresses—$75 to $110
—All individual mod —the finest of the dressmakers' art.
—At $79.50 is a navy Poiret twill dress with a broad panel down front and back. It is held together at the waist with a girdle of Bright Balkan colors.
—At $89.75 is a Russian Blouse style, trimmed with rat tail braid. It has a satin vestee and a cord around the collar.

SPECIAL VALUES—
Broadcloth and Tricotine Dresses, $29.75, $45
—The Broadcloths come in rich red tones, taupes, browns, two or three shades of blue and black. The Tricotines come in navy and brown.

And for Those Who Want New Suits and Coats—

Serviceable Coats, $29.75 to $49.75

Silver Wedding Anniversary.

The formal opening of Annandale Country Club last evening afforded an unusually gay setting for the celebration of their silver wedding anniversary by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Standish Kenfield of Oak Knoll.

Plates were set for forty-three guests around one big table that was elaborately adorned with yellow and white chrysanthemums, the same flowers used at their wedding in Rock Island, Ill., twenty-five years ago. After coffee was served the lights were turned out and a large wedding cake, illuminated by twenty-five candles, was brought in and the first slice cut by the bride of a quarter century ago. Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Penton, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenfield, assisted in receiving.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Damon, Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Leo G. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. A. Stephen Vavra, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Nash, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Meikel, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Volk, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Loucks, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lippincott, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Trusdale Gorham, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Linnard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Husser, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Penton, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lacy, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Carter, Mrs. Gertrude Carrier, Mrs. D. M. Linnard, Mr. William Mathews.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenfield, whose home was originally in Chicago, have been spending their winters in Pasadena for several years and are now building a handsome home in Oak Knoll. Their summer home is at Gull Lake, Mich.

By Capt. Willard.

Capt. Willard, commander of the S.S. New Mexico, entertained with a duck dinner on board ship Thursday evening. The silver used was of especial interest, having been presented to the battleship by the State of New Mexico, for which the ship was named. The decorations carried out a Halloween motif with pumpkins, candles, black cats and harvest ideas. There was also an abundance of red and white carnations. Plates were set for Admiral Rodman, Capt. Twining (chief of staff,) Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Twining, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Newport, Miss Winnifred Gale, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Henry W. Caystile, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Powers and Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Neil.

In Washington.

Mrs. Rufus V. Bowden is in Washington and will pass a few months at the Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Bowden's mother, Mrs. Adair of El Paso is with her. They expect to return to Los Angeles next spring. Mr. Bowden, a prominent Los Angeles lawyer, died in Washington last winter, where he had been called by the government to take charge of important affairs during the war.

Engagement Told.

An engagement of wide interest, told last week is that of Miss Lita Murieta of Los Angeles and Mr. S. O. Houghton, Jr., of Van Nuys. The news was told by Mr. and Mrs. John Murrieta of South Kenmore avenue, parents of the bride-elect. The wedding will take place shortly after the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. Murrieta were closely identified with the early history of California, having owned large ranchos. Mr. Houghton is the son of one of the early Congressmen of this district, who secured the first appropriation for San Pedro Harbor. Mrs. Eliza Donner Houghton of Chester place is his mother, and is one of the few survivors of the Donner party that crossed the plains in 1846. He is a member of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and owns a large ranch at Van Nuys, where he will take his bride to live.

Mrs. Klamp's Tea.

One of the charming affairs of the week was the music-tea at which Mrs. Frederick A. Klamp of Vista street, Hollywood, assembled half a hundred guests on Wednesday afternoon. The large drawing-room, reception hall and dining-room were adorned with autumn blossoms from the Klamp gardens.

A delightful programme of music was given by Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond, Mrs. Carter Sexton, Mrs. Alexander Pantages, Mrs. Kenyon Robinson, Miss Pauline Giacolla and Mme. Cornelia Rider Possart.

At the tea urns Mrs. Emma Cole Brown, Mrs. E. J. Waterman, Mrs. J. H. Moulton and Mrs. Paul Compton presided. Others assisting were Mmes. William Woollett, W. C. Johns, Goodall Sherman, John Murray Marshall, J. J. Carter, Charles Winthrop Fish and Miss Eleanor Cole.

By Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth.

In honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Somers, whose marriage was an affair of several months ago, Mr. and Mrs. William Irving Hollingsworth are giving a supper party this evening. Mr. Somers is a nephew of Mr. George Birkelman.

Mrs. Arnneill Back.

After a month's absence on her ranch at Lontoc, Santa Barbara county, Mrs. Arnneill is home again, but is making plans for an extended visit in the East shortly.

Visiting in Bay City.

Mrs. Anne Campbell Fitzgerald left on Friday for San Francisco, where she will visit with relatives and friends for several weeks.

Engagement Told at Dance.

At a dancing party given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hammond of Wilshire boulevard, on Saturday evening, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Ruth Hammond to Mr. Karl Kauffman. There were forty guests. Miss Hammond is a graduate of the Cumnock School for Girls, and Mr. Kauffman is a graduate of Stanford University and member of the Deek Fraternity. He returned two weeks ago from an extended trip through the Orient.

By Mrs. Stillwell.

Mrs. Carl W. Stillwell gave a handsomely-appointed luncheon at the Mary Louise tea room in honor of Mrs. Frank E. De Long and Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz. After luncheon, Mrs. Stillwell assembled her guests at a matinee party at the Majestic Theater. She was assisted by Mmes. A. P. Green, Gorge Lockhart, B. A. Rogers, Philip McMahon and R. M. Thompson. Mrs. De Long has just returned from an extended eastern trip, having visited her mother in Des Moines, Iowa

Plates were arranged also for: Mmes. Philip McMahon, R. M. Thompson, Robert Clark, A. P. Green, B. A. Davis, W. C. Tyler, M. A. Graves, James Hutchinson, Leslie H. Bevans, M. H. Pehr, Chase Terry, Herbert Green, C. D. Hudson, Charles Sickel, Robert H. Dunlap, B. A. Rogers, Thomas Givan, W. H. Bowman, Jr., Bernard Maxwell, T. B. Balcom, Lillian M. Hatter, George Beardsley, Harriet Shafer, George Lockhart, Mabelle Havings, Mabelle Morrison and Miss Frances Grumbaugh.

By Mrs. Bryant.

Mrs. W. A. Bryant of 1089 West Thirty-first street was hostess at a prettily-appointed tea, on Wednesday afternoon.

Entertained in Santa Barbara.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Haynes and Mrs. Lawrence Peters of Los Angeles were among the guests at a dinner party given at the Belvedere Hotel, Santa Barbara byt John J. Hernan. The affair was in honor of Brig.-Gen. and Mrs. J. H. Pendelton of San Diego. Their son, Edgar Pendelton, was present. The table was done in chrysanthemums.

Among other Los Angeles people who have registered at the Belvedere during the past few days are Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ferry, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Remington, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Haynes, Leonard Haynes, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. O'Melveny, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Gifford, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Mullin, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bowden, Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Schell, Miss Addila Schell, Mrs. Joseph Scott, Miss Mary Scott, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Lyman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. McKee, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Scholl, Miss Scholl, Dr. Agnes S. Ruddock, Dr. John C. Ruddock, G. V. Larsen, A. M. Kelley, G. E. Ryan, R. B. Curry, A. Malloy, R. A. Theobold, J. H. Baker and John S. Burns.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wyander of Gateborg, Sweden, are at the Belvedere. Mr. and Mrs. E. Ahuza of South America also are sojourning there.

Back from Summer Vacation.

Mrs. Henry W. Caystile has returned home after a three month's visit with friends in San Diego and Coronado. She went with Miss Pauline Gartzmann for a visit with Mrs. Edwin B. Gould in San Diego, and the party spent some time at Coronado, Del Mar and at Wildwood ranch, where they were guests of Mrs. James Forward. They were for a time in the mountains at Mesa Grande. Mrs. Caystile is now back at her apartments at the Zelda.

Told at Dinner.

A sumptuously-appointed dinner party given by Mrs. Sue B. Reynolds of 2718 Eagle street provided the means of making several announcements, as well as marking two birthday anniversaries.

Little Halloween candy baskets in which little black cats reposed were found to contain the announcement of the engagement of Mrs. Reynolds's son, Charles Reynolds, and Mrs. Genevieve Thompson of Inglewood. When the pumpkin pie was brought in the date of the marriage of another son, Capt. Fred Reynolds, and Miss Reba Groves, was found in a tiny pumpkin head that decorated the pie a la mode. The affair was also in celebration of the birthday anniversaries of Miss Grace Reynolds and Mr. Frank Reynolds.

There were fifteen at the table, including the honor guests and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. William Reynolds, Mrs. James J. Fogarty and Miss Marjorie Reynolds.

Italian Notables Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Godowski have as their house guests Count and Countess Sconti of Italy. Mrs. Godowski and Miss Vinita Godowski entertained a coterie of friends at tea on Tuesday in honor of the Countess. Count Sconti is an art connoisseur, and during his travels has collected some very fine paintings.

To Santa Barbara.

Mrs. George K. Bretherton of 6855 Bonita terrace and Mrs. Kenneth Wallace of the Chester Place Apartments, motored to Santa Barbara as the guest of Mrs. Mignon Hollingsworth of the El Encanto Hotel for the week-end. On their return Mrs. Bretherton is planning a party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jaime Overton, who have just returned from a very successful musical season in New York. Mr. Overton has been engaged as the assistant concertmaster of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra. Mrs. Overton will be remembered as Miss Ruth Overton, a Los Angeles girl and native daughter. The Overtons' little daughter, Audrey Glory-Marie, now 8 months old, was born in New York.

By Mr. and Mrs. Farrow.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Farrow of 848 South Harvard boulevard were hosts at a beautifully-appointed bridge party on Thursday evening at which tables were set for forty guests. Pink roses were used throughout the house.

Miss King's Blue Book.

Appearing in a new and most attractive form, the Southwest Blue Book for the season of 1919-1920 is just off the press. Lenora H. King, well known in Los Angeles as a newspaper woman, who for seventeen years has been editor of this publication, is now the sole proprietor and publisher, and her thorough knowledge of who's who in the social world of Southern California, has enabled her to present a directory of special merit.

The book represents the fashionable world from Santa Barbara to San Diego, with particular attention given to Los Angeles and Pasadena. Names and addresses are alphabetically arranged, and there is also a complete list of society marriages for the year, as well as a comprehensive club department, including a full roster of country clubs for this section of the State, organizations included in the Los Angeles district, General Federation of Woman's Clubs, etc.

Mrs. Wilcoxson, after a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Bowman Rollins, has returned to her home in Kansas City. Mrs. Crary, until her marriage ten days ago, was Miss Harriet Mail. Her sister, Miss Elizabeth Mail, was her maid of honor. Miss Arleen Emanuel is an interesting San Francisco belle who has been visiting at the Hotel Belvedere, Santa Barbara. Miss Neff of Altadena has gone to the University of California to take up a special course of study.

SOCIETY.

the book is an attractive volume that will doubtless find a ready welcome in many fashionable homes of Los Angeles and vicinity. The cover design is especially pleasing.

Weds Denver Girl.

At the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Owens of 4054 Ingraham street, Miss Hazel Huck of Denver, Colo., and Mr. Harry Poffman of this city were married, Thursday evening, by Rev. I. C. Meserve.

Mrs. J. M. Owens was her sister's matron of honor and wore a modish gown of blue tricotine. The bride was gowned in a tailor made costume of brown duvetyn and wore a corsage of bride roses. Mr. Owens stood with the groom. The bride is a daughter of Mr. D. Huck, who came on from Denver for the wedding. After a honeymoon trip to the mountains the couple will reside in Los Angeles.

Back from Sioux City.

Mrs. W. J. Whiting of 224 South Benton way has returned from a six weeks' visit with relatives in Sioux City, Iowa. She was much feted as this was her first visit there in twenty years.

By Misses Ryan.

Misses Mary, Alice and Ann Powell Ryan of South Burlington avenue were hostesses at a jolly dinner party at which they complimented their sister, Miss Katheryn Ryan, who has just returned from New York, and Lieutenant-Commander B. Loots of New York and Washington, who was a guest at the Alexandria en route to San Francisco, whence he sails for Siberia.

Others sharing honors were Mr. and Mrs. James T. Stephens of Chicago who are on their way to San Francisco for a brief visit before returning for the winter. They will be domiciled at the Hotel Maryland.

Mr. and Mrs. Bent Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bent are back in town after an eight weeks' visit in New York, the New England States, Washington, D. C., and the South. Mr. Bent attended the national convention of the Travelers Insurance Company at Atlantic City as a delegate from the Pacific Coast and gave the closing address.

Beaver-Metheny Wedding.

Following a romance that started during the early part of the war Mrs. Ethel Burrows-Beaver and Lieut. Ray N. Metheny were married on Wednesday evening. Mr. Metheny was decorated for bravery by both the French and Belgians. He was wounded at the battle of the Argonne and fought in both the St. Mihiel and Chateau Thierry drives. The bride is well known in theatrical circles. Her sister, Mrs. H. R. Morgan, was her matron of honor and J. B. Lyons, brother-in-law of the groom, stood with him. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Los Angeles.

To Return in November.

That Maj. and Mrs. Robert Wankowski are to return to Los Angeles after a year's absence in Boston is a bit of news most welcome to their wide circle of friends.

Back from Bay City.

Mrs. Thomas Sutherland Sutton, who went to Berkeley for the marriage of her brother, Henry Washington Dodge, and Miss Florence Bandmann is home again.

Home from San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Rowley of Menlo avenue, who motored to San Francisco several weeks ago, are home again. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Caldwell Ridgeway, are also home.

Bridge Tea.

Mrs. Thomas J. Hurley of 711 Westlake avenue was hostess at a bridge tea Thursday in honor of Mrs. J. T. Ferry of Denver. Among the guests were Mrs. E. B. Weirick, Mrs. Judson Mitchell, Mrs. John T. Coleman, Mrs. Leo Englander, Mrs. L. Bliss, Mrs. Willis Hutchason and Miss Louise Wolfe.

For Mrs. Weirick.

On Thursday Mrs. E. B. Weirick was honor guest at a dinner party given by Mrs. M. E. Jenkins at her home on Van Buren street. Places were marked for Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Weirick, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cockins, Mrs. Zoe Brown, Col. William Cochran and Mr. and Mrs. George Ross Jenkins. A Halloween motif was used in the decorations.

Leave for East.

Mr. H. M. Coffin and Mr. A. M. Chaffey, president of the Home Savings Bank, have left on a six weeks' trip to New York and other parts of the East. Mr. and Mrs. Coffin are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, who is just three weeks old, and makes the sixth born to the couple in the seven years since their marriage. Mr. Coffin is a brother of Mrs. Lee Annen Phillips, who is keeping the older children with her for awhile.

Gone to New York.

Mrs. Robert Rowan of Pasadena and her daughter, Miss Lorraine, have gone to New York to visit for several weeks.

Here from Kentucky.

Mrs. Nellie Graumann Kahn of Louisville, Ky., a niece of Mr. D. J. Graumann, is here for the winter and has apartments at the Clark Hotel.

For Short Visit.

Mr. Sydney Francis Hoben, who has been made organist for the First Presbyterian Church of Santa Barbara, was a visitor here and in Pasadena last week. He expects to give a group of recitals in Pasadena this fall and several large receptions are to be given by prominent matrons following these affairs. Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt and Mrs. Robert Ladd Gifford and several others are to entertain.

Engagement Told.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Suydam of 2097 West Twenty-ninth street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lorraine Suydam, to Mr. A. M. Ackerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ackerman of East Orange, N. J. The wedding will not take place for a year.

Miss Hedstrom Weds.

Miss Mary Lydia Hedstrom and Mr. Andrew J. Hooper were married by Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher in his study at Temple Auditorium, before an altar of dahlias and chrysanthemums.

Miss Lillian Hedstrom was her sister's maid of honor, and John R. Lahl stood with the groom. Mrs. Mary Hedstrom gave her daughter in marriage. The couple are well

...I. Ramier was a guest ... Mrs. Nell F. de Garcia, ... Miss Adel de Garcia, 1031 West Fourth street, for a few hours on Monday. He was en route for New York. Mr. Ramier has been secretary to the Mexican Consul-General Negree, in San Francisco for the past four years. He had not seen his Pomona relatives in that time. After leaving here, he stopped in Los Angeles as guest of honor at a dinner given by Attorney Orfila. He is now en route to continue his duties at the New York office of the Mexican Consulate.

Tuesday evening the Cadette Taylor home at 198 East Jefferson street was turned into a bower of golden flowers and happy people in commemoration of their golden wedding anniversary. One of the most interesting exhibits, and there were many, was the bride's dress of golden brown poplin, with its quaint ruffling and white velvet bows, a garment so dainty of waistline as to appeal to the athletic maiden of this twentieth century. Mr. Taylor has had an interesting useful life, having served four years in the Government Printing Office under the administration of Cleveland, and he is the only living member of the office force of that day. He also served eight years as a collector of customs in the State of Nebraska. Mr. Taylor's two sons, Col. Wallis C. and Mr Herbert D. Taylor, both served in the Philippines during the Spanish-American War, and one of the most treasured possessions of the family is a facsimile of a cablegram which ex-President Taft had his secretary send to Manila in order to ascertain the extent of Col. Taylor's injuries. Another treasured possession is a letter written by President Roosevelt September 16, 1918, acknowledging Mr. Taylor's letter of condolence upon the death of his son, Quentin.

A dainty little hostess on Monday afternoon was Miss Gertrude McCain, 440 East Eighth street, on the occasion of her seventh birthday anniversary, when she invited in a number of her school friends. There were merry games, the same as the children enjoy during school time at school, but of course, the "real party" was the refreshments. The long dining table was prettily adorned in Halloween appointments, the centerpiece being a pumpkin basket filled with greenery and ferns. Funny black cats and owls perched about on the window curtains. The birthday cake was a delicious confection, decorated with lovely pink icing, and graced with seven bright candles, all aglow. Then there was another cake in Halloween moon shape, and name cards and favors were combined. A little Halloween cat holding a bonbon basket, as well as a small card bearing the little guest's name, were used for favors. The little folks enjoyed the happy affair after the close of school, the guest list including Murial Hunt, Dorothy Stupp, Coleen Watts, Elizabeth Long, Jene Booth, Viola Allen, Cleo Sthurist, Dorothy Jones, Mildred Izer, Ruth Ashcroft, Margaret Webeck, Charles Gibler, Sidney Long, Floyd McCain, Willard Long, Lawrence Lusk, and the little honoree. Mrs. Fred Armstrong and Mrs. E. E. Izer assisted Mrs. McCain in entertaining the little folks.

TAFT.

Plans are being made by the ladies of the Presbyterian Aid Society for a big bazaar, to be held in December. At an all-day meeting, held at the church, the plans were gone over thoroughly. At noon an excellent luncheon was served. Those present were: Mmes. Sells, Duncan, Pheal, Gribbin, May, Thresher, Richart, Goff, Williams, Tilley, Fleming, Guthrie and Chesley.

Forming a jolly party, which this week spent a few days at California Hot Springs, were Mmes. Walter Oliver, Claire Livermore and Belle Venable. They were guests at the home of Mrs. Livermore's mother.

Mrs. E. E. Green has returned from a three-months' visit with relatives in Louisiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Sloss, who have resided here for several years, have left to make their home in Los Angeles. They will be missed by a large circle of social friends.

The Rebekah Social Club was entertained this week at the home of Mrs. Paul Nunam, Mrs. L. R. Corman assisting as hostess. Cards were a feature of the entertainment. Mrs. George Snyder, Mrs. Duthrie and Mrs. Loveall winning the prizes. Dainty refreshments were served.

One of the largest social gatherings of the season was held here this week at St. Mary's Hall, when members of the guild spent the evening at whist.

—o—

BAKERSFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Le Claire entertained at dinner at their home in East Bakersfield. Following the dinner the guests enjoyed an evening at cards. Dinner covers were laid for Messrs. and Mmes. J. B. Cauzza, C. F. Moore, J. A. Gilchrist, W. N. Lewis, J. C. Henderson, M. Brodie, S. Lamb, A. K. Carson; Mmes. F. C. Stoakes of San Leandro, F. E. Welch, John Lewis, and the host and hostess.

—o—

VENICE.

Mrs. A. P. Shand made highest score at the Five Hundred Club, at the St. Mark's Hotel on Monday. The meeting was well attended, many members and guests filling the attractive rooms.

One of the happiest affairs of the past week was the wedding at which the lives of Miss Evelyn Boring and Mr. Teller Ellis were joined at the home of the brode's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boring of Venice. A very quiet affair it was, only the relatives and very close friends of both families being present. Rev. Samuel Stagg performed the ceremony. The bride was gowned in simple white, during the pretty ceremony and wore a smart going away dress, when the attractive pair slipped away on a mysterious voyage.

The bride will be remembered as a graduate of the Venice High School, where for several years she was a prominent in the activities of the home economics department. Mr. Ellis has just returned from overseas.

SANTA MONICA.

In celebration of the tenth birthday anniversary of their little daughter, Elta Pauline Pendletone, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Stone, of 824 Sixth street entertained with a Haloween party recently. Twelve little friends of the tiny set were invited to join hands with the little girl, and go exploring through a perfect afternoon of mystery and ghostly merrymaking, which was after all very cheerful for it had been conceived and planned and arranged by a very clever mamma.

Orange and black colors worked into the appointments of the little affair in rollicking profusion aided by witches and cats and a big birthday cake provided visions of loveliness to fill for many nights to come the dreams of the little guests who were Margarita Thompson, Gloria Stewart, Phylis Kober, Lucinda and Shirley Connell, Harriet Heckert, Frances Gaspar, Margaret Fones, Margarie Morris, Layde Douglas Wilhoite, Virginia Hazzarts, Elta Stone.

The ladies of St. Margaret's Guild St. Augustines Church by the Sea, entertained Tuesday with a tea and musical programme. The programme represented some of the finest talent in the city. Several new members of the guild presided at the tea table. Mrs. Hugh Evans was responsible for the clever decorations.

A reception was given recently at the Ocean Park Methodist Episcopal Church to welcome Dr. A. C. Welch and family, for the third year to the church. Addresses were offered by Miss Marjorie Head of the Sunday-school, Dr. Ralph Barton of the Epworth League, and Mrs. Josephine for the women's societies. Dr. Welch responded heartily to the speeches. Ice cream and cake were served at the close of the evening.

—o—

SANTA ANA.

Charming simplicity marked the wedding ceremony at the bride's home Tuesday morning when Miss Virgil Potts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Potts, became the bride of Glen Tidball, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Tidball, both well known and popular young people of this city. Rev. J. A. Stevenson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and recently returned from "Y" service overseas, officiated, and Carel Zeenhuyzen of Los Angeles sang, accompanied by Mrs. Zeenhuyzen, who also played the wedding march. Upon the return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Tidball will live at 1502 West Fourth street.

Another wedding of interest was that of Miss Gilda Gibbons, daughter of Mrs. Nelson McArthur, and John Ragan of Orange, solemnized at the bride's home Monday afternoon, with the Rev. N. L. Pearson of Orange officiating. They will live at Villa Park, where Mr. Ragan has an orange grove.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Schmidt were hosts at dinner Monday in honor of Miss Julia Noggle of Pomona, who is to become the bride of Raymond Sawyer. Besides Miss Nogle, the guests were Miss Bess Noggle, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gopp, and Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Noggle of Pomona, Mrs. Emily Karr of Long Beach, F. A. Schmell of New York and Mrs. Oliver Remsberg.

At a pretty afternoon party, Irene and Helen O'Brien, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Will O'Brien, celebrated their tenth birthday, their guests on the happy occasion being the Misses Justina Palmer, Virginia Bailey, Ruth Gardner, Gladys Cope, Louise Riggs, Marcia Keeler, and Veda Powers.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Peek were hosts at a pleasant five hundred party, those participating being Messrs. and Mmes. Roy Russell, Nat Neff, Charles Kendall, Jr.

Mrs. F. L. Andrews was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the Mt. Mellick Embroidery Club, members

TORRANCE.

A pleasant five hundred party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bartlett, Thursday evening to celebrate their twelfth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Turner and Mr. Shriner preved most successful with Mr. and Mrs. Von Hogan as the least lucky when the scores were added. Dainty refreshments were served after the game and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett received a number of beautiful gifts. Those who enjoyed the delightful affair were Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Parks, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. W. X. von Hagen, Mr. and Mrs. R. Shriner, Mr. and Mrs. A. Shriner, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hannabrink, Mrs. Grace Pillar, A. W. Kunz and Isaac Horn.

An afternoon affair was given Friday by Mrs. Joseph Stone and Mrs. L. Marks at the home of the former for Mrs. John Young who is leaving this week for Chicago. Delicious refreshments were served and a very pleasant hour spent. The guests included Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. Thatcher, Mrs. H. Hill, Mrs. P. Young, Mrs. C. N. Turner and Mrs. Church of Hermosa Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. John Streit and son, Miss Bertha Weikel and Rev. Bench of Ashland, Or., arrived Friday and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Streit of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Streit and Miss Weikel will remain in Torrance for the winter.

Mrs. Charles Sherwood and sister, Mrs. Don Vorris, left this week for the former's home in Kansas. Mrs. Sherwood, who was formerly a resident of Torrance, has been East for some weeks visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ashby of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Parks were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry in Los Angeles, Sunday.

Allan Stevenson returned Monday from an extended stay in Arizona.

—o—

MONETA.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Jones of Western avenue motored to Wheeler Hot Springs in Ventura county last week, enjoying splendid sport in trout fishing. Miss Helen Rushwine, a niece, with her two young cousins of the family, took charge of affairs during Mr. and Mrs. Jones absence.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Pitman are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Stubblefield and their little son, from Blythe.

Mrs. Howard Williams of Huntington Park is staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Long, of Cypress street, while her husband is absent on a business trip to Stockton.

Mr. W. A. Hudson of Santa Paula is house guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hudson of Western avenue.

A delightfully carried out birthday party surprised Mrs. Edward Fournier at her home in Los Angeles, last Tuesday, given by former neighbors and friends of Moneta. The guests were: Mmes. Pyle, P. G. Evans, J. J. Jones, William Worrell and Mrs. Chevalier, the latter Mrs. Fournier's neighbor, but also formerly her neighbor in Moneta. Most delightful refreshments were served.

—o—

GARDENA.

Mrs. Campbell Stephenson, lately of Santa Cruz, who twenty-five years since, with her family, lived in Gardena, was house guest for several days last week of Mrs. E. O. Weed. Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson's last visit to the valley was sixteen years ago. Now a widow, Mrs. Stephenson is living in Highland Park, where she has a sister.

The Wednesday Progressive Club is doing much advertising for an old-fashioned Halloween party, to be given Friday evening, the 31st inst., at the clubhouse on Orchard street. That Mrs. William Roberts is in charge of the affair is surety of its success. Witches, fortune tellers, bats and cats, as well as some excellent singing will feature the entertainment.

Mrs. O. H. Graham has with her as house guest her sister, Mrs. Lucy Rust of Pomona, who has sold her property in that city and will for a while remain in Gardena.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Coltrin are entertaining for the week-end Mrs. Coltrin's father, Mr. A. Rankin of Santa Barbara.

On Saturday evening Mrs. J. W. Clark and her daughters, Mrs. Will Somers and Miss Mary Clark gave a delightful shower for Miss Florence Wharton, whose marriage to Arthur Finch of San Diego is announced for November 1. The affair took place in the Baptist Church "bungalow," and was one of the pretty events of the season. A dainty feature was a large cake for the bride-to-be, covered with hearts and wedding-ring decorations. Little 6-year-old Edward King, in uniform, with his own "express," delivered two carloads of timely gifts to the young bride-elect.

—o—

VENTURA.

The engagement of Miss Josephine Beckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Beckley, and David Darling, Jr., was announced at a dancing party given at the Athene Clubhouse Saturday night. Miss Beckley, a former Occidental student and member of the Glee Club there, is now at the Santa Barbara Normal School, where she will graduate at Christmas. The groom is a wealthy young rancher, a Stanford graduate and former service man.

Complimenting Mrs. Charles Ballagh, who left this week for Portuguese West Africa, where, with her husband, who is in charge of large oil interests, she expects to remain for the next three years, Mrs. George Cook entertained at a luncheon on Monday.

Complimenting Miss Myrtle Clay, a popular bride-elect, Mrs. W. A. Dunning entertained at a charmingly-appointed luncheon on Monday. Covers were laid for ten.

Two hundred club women of the county met at Foster Park on Saturday for the annual association picnic. A pleasing entertainment was given by Miss Evangeline Carroll.

Venturans who will serve on the reception committee at the Berylwood fete are Mrs. C. G. Bartlett, Mrs. George Daly, Mrs. E. P. Foster, Mrs. A. L. Hobson, Mrs. W. H. Hoffman, Mrs. Richard Haydon, Mrs. Ralph Homer, Mrs. Nick Hearne, Ednest Hill, Judge and Mrs. Merle J. Rogers, Mrs. Frank J. Sifford.

Mrs. Charles Garne was hostess at the first of a series of social teas which the women of St. Paul's Episcopal Guild are to give this winter.

Mrs. S. C. Henderson was hostess to the Golden West chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at her Ventura home this week.

Furs

—about "suitability" of Style in Fur Garments—

The woman who is alert to style possibilities does not lose sight of the fact that "suitability" of style—the "suiting" of garment to wearer—should receive earnest consideration in fur buying.

Obrikat-Meyer are modistes as well as fur manufacturers and merchants. Hundreds of Los Angeles women have found the Obrikat-Meyer experience and dependability of inestimable value in selecting fur garments of "suitability" in style as well as quality and price.

The purchasing power of the three big Obrikat-Meyer stores makes it possible to offer a very wide range of styles and materials in fur garments—exquisite and ultra-smart styles for the youthful figure, equally exquisite and smart but a bit more dignified models for the more mature woman.

Only the finest of pelts and workmanship are used in the manufacture of all Obrikat-Meyer creations.

UPLAND.

Mrs. Thomas Howarton, a recent bride, was happily surprised Friday evening, when a group of her young women friends assembled at her home in Euclid avenue to tender her a kitchen shower. Handsome aluminum articles featured the shower. A tempting supper, with which the guests had come laden, was served toward the evening's close.

Mrs. S. G. Moore was hostess Thursday afternoon at her home in Euclid avenue to a group of friends at an informal tea. The early portion of the afternoon was devoted to fancy work and chat, and a collation followed.

News of the recent marriage in Ventura of Miss Viola Manker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher H. Manker, and Charles V. Benson, formerly of Upland, came as a complete surprise to the many friends of the couple here. The Rev. J. B. Stone, a brother of the Rev. R. C. Stone, pastor of the Upland Presbyterian Church, was the officiant. The bride is now completing a course in training at the training school of the Los Angeles County Hospital, but expects to join Mr. Benson in Fresno shortly.

A number of Upland and Ontario young women spent a pleasant week-end at the Nisbet cabin at Camp Baldy. Hikes and gatherings about the camp fire in the evenings featured the outing.

Members of the Woman's Guild of St. Mark's Episcopal Church entertained Friday evening at Ruedy Hall with their annual "birthday party." Some forty couples enjoyed the event, which was featured by dancing. Dossinger's Ontario orchestra furnished the music.

Is Your Blood Starving For Want Of Iron?

Modern Methods of Cooking and Living Have Made an Alarming Increase in Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women

WHY NUXATED IRON SO QUICKLY BUILDS UP WEAK, NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN FOLKS — Over 3,000,000 People Annually Taking It In This Country Alone To Increase Their Strength, Power, Energy and Endurance.

"Is your blood starving for want of iron? Iron is red blood food. If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally starve for want of iron—iron that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood, and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body, something like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind.

"For want of iron you may be an old man at thirty, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and all 'run-down,' while at 50 or 60 with plenty of iron in your blood you may still be young in feeling, full of life, your whole being brimming over with vim and energy.

"As proof of this take the case of former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential nominee Charles A. Towne who, at past 58 is still a veritable mountain of tireless energy. Senator Towne says: 'I have found Nuxated Iron of the greatest benefit as a tonic and regulative. Henceforth I shall not be without it. I am in a position to testify for the benefit of others to the remarkable and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I unhesitatingly recommend Nuxated Iron to those who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions.'

"But in my opinion you can't make strong, keen, forceful men and healthy rosy-cheeked women by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

In commenting upon the value of Nuxated Iron as a means for creating red blood, strength and endurance, Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author says:

"Scarcely a day goes by but that I see women whose careworn faces, dragging steps and generally weak, tired appearance show unmistakable signs of that anaemic, run-down condition usually brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

"There can be no strong, healthy, beautiful women without iron and inasmuch as refining processes and modern methods recooking the iron of Mother Earth from so many of our most common foods this iron deficiency should be supplied by using some form of organic iron just as we use salt when our food has not enough salt.

"Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it no matter how much or what you eat your food merely passes through you without doing you good, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly-looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of an anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. Give such a woman a short course of Nuxated Iron and she often quickly becomes an entirely different individual—strong, healthy and rosy-cheeked.

Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

THE ELDERLY INACTIVE MAN

THE TIRED NERVOUS HOUSE WIFE

THE RUN-DOWN BUSINESS WOMAN

THE EXHAUSTED BUSINESS MAN

I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe, aggrivated conditions with unfailing results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have given me most surprising reports in regard to its great power as a health and strength builder."

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is used by Dr. Sullivan and others with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city of Boswell & Noyes Drug Co., Dickinson Drug Co., B. & B. Drug Co., Chambers Drug Co., Sun Drug Co., and other druggists.

IMAGINATION IS KING OF DRAMA.

Picture Houses to Feature Fanciful Plays.

"Fair and Warmer" Comes to the California.

"Lottery Man" is Attraction at Grauman's.

All is fair in love and war—and moving pictures, which include love and war and everything else in life, plus a few things that are not in life and never will be, according to the high-brow critics. However, the critics are wrong for once (?!) for anything that an actor does and that the producer films and that the exhibitor flashes before the eyes of an audience has its own part in life and is to be reckoned with as an influence. The critics seem to forget, sometimes, that even the vagrant children of the imagination are still "within the law" of nature and that the "improbabilities" born in the playwright's brain become vibrant and positive in their effects, for good or evil, when portrayed by artists for either stage or screen. The producers do not forget this important fact, however, and that is the reason that, in spite of the critics, the imaginative public continues to patronize those theaters wherein the incongruities and improbabilities of life constitute the chief attraction. At local picture houses this week, both in comedy and drama, there are several examples of strange happenings in the world of reality and the realm of fancy, among them being "Turning the Tables," "The Temperamental Wife," "La Belle Russe," "The Profiteers," "A Fighting Colleen" and "Stepping Out."

California.

For absurdity of situation, clever acting, wit in titles and finish in production, Fred Miller, manager of the California Theater, declares that "Fair and Warmer" (which, with May Allison as star, opens at the California tomorrow) "has all other pictures backed off the map." The plan was taken from the stage success by Avery Hopwood and is said to have lost nothing of interest in the filming. Miss Allison is surrounded by a company of players including Pell Trenton, Eugene Pallette, Christine Mayo, William Buckley and Effie Conley. The play was directed by Henry Otto under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger. Other features at the California will be a musical programme by the symphonic orchestra, directed by Carli Densmore Elinor; a novelty organ number by Jesse Crawford, a violin solo by Elsa Grosser and the latest Mutt and Jeff cartoon.

Grauman's.

Wallace Reid in "The Lottery Man," a filmed version of the stage success by the same title, is the offering of Grauman's Theater this week, beginning tomorrow. The photoplay is a Famous Players-Lasky production, directed by James Cruze, and Mr. Reid is supported by an all-star cast, including Wanda Hawley, Harrison Ford and Winifred Greenwood. Another Grauman feature will be Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven in their latest two-reel comedy, "Why Divorce?" a satire on the imaginary troubles of marital existence. A new Paramount Post scenic, the Paramount Weekly Magazine, the Literary Digest topics and Grauman's international Flashes will complete the programme. Arthur Kay has arranged for the orchestra "Home Town Medley," consisting of a number of musical successes, and Fred de Bruin and Jack Van will remain another week, entertaining with popular songs.

Clune's Broadway.

"Dorothy Gish" is a name for comedy lovers to conjure with, and the vivacious little beauty is said to have done the cleverest work of her career in "Turning the Tables," which will be seen at Clune's Broadway this week, beginning today. In "Turning the Tables" Miss Gish plays the role of a girl whose plotting aunt places her in a private sanatorium in an effort to steal her fortune. The girl proceeds to disrupt the institution by masquerading as a nurse instead of an inmate. What happens to the aunt and what happens in the sanatorium will furnish the little star's admirers with an hour and a half of fun. Miss Gish is surrounded with a big cast, which includes George Fawcett and Raymond Cannon. Added features at Clune's Broadway will be a Burton Holmes travelogue, a Bruce scenic and the Pathe News.

Tally's Broadway.

Constance Talmadge's initial First National attraction is a story of wives, husbands, stenographers, et. al., called "A Temperamental Wife," which comes to Tally's Broadway this week, beginning today. Her love dreams, soured by a fiance who is overzealous in his efforts to make life bearable for blonde stenographers, Constance becomes a prohibitionist on marriage and elopes with a bogus count. Her great desire is to be "cave manned," but the count, who has just had a manicure, simply cannot treat her rough. The production is said to be a laugh-producer from start to finish, with Wyndham Standing playing the part of "Stenographer-sympathizer." The story was written and directed by John Emerson and Anita Loos.

Kinema.

Rex Beach's creation, "The Girl From Outside," a Goldwyn feature directed by Reginald Barker, has proved such a success that the management of Tally's Kinema Theater announce a second and last week of the production, beginning today. A colorful page of adventurous history, the drama is full of exciting episodes. The love of the five young crooks for the little friendless one, who comes to Nome in search of employment, breathes its innermost depths of feeling throughout the play. Tally's Kinema also presents the Southwestern Harmony Four in a prologue specialty. The Outing-Chester special, "Getting a New Angle," pictures a strange trip through New Brunswick. The Kinema concert orchestra will offer as its feature the overture to "Pinafore."

Symphony.

What would you think if someone told you that Theda Bara is her own sister? Well, she is—at least in the play called "La Belle Russe," a photoplay of feminine intrigue which opens at the Symphony today. In this film version of the well-known Belasco play, the queen of vampires plays a dual role. She is seen as a graceful ballerina, who braves poverty for her husband's sake, and she also takes the role of the ballerina's twin sister, a magnificent but utterly wicked woman. In one of the startling scenes, the poor ballerina and her selfish sister confront each other. "La Belle Russe" contrasts a story of mother love and self-sacrifice with the story of a woman's heartless ambition.

Superba.

"Paid in Advance," the latest Holubar-Phillips production, is to be held over for a second week at the Superba, starting today. Three factors have contributed to making this picture a big box office attraction, viz., the work of Dorothy Phillips, the direction of the film by Allan Holubar, and the fact that the story was written by James Oliver Curwood, a master of out-of-door fiction. The supporting cast is composed of some of the best-known stars in filmdom, including Lon Chaney, William Stowell, Frank Brownlee, Joseph Girard and Carmen Phillips. The snow scenes representing Alaska in the early days were secured, it is said, at tremendous expense, but Mr. Holubar—and the Superba management—declare the picture is worth every penny it cost.

Victory.

One of the big questions of the day is "What Shall We do with Our Profiteers?" The management of the Victory Theater has secured Ouida Bergere's drama, "The Profiteers," for the present week's showing at the Victory. The film is said to expose the methods of the market-juggling financiers, who combine to keep up the high cost of living. Interwoven in the story is a tale of love and mystery and a sensational murder is brought in as a gentle climax. The production was directed by George Fitzmaurice. Following "The Profiteers," a medodrama called "Virtuous Men" will be shown at the Victory.

De Luxe.

There might be better ways to tame a frivolous and unappreciative husband, but the method used by Enid Bennett in "Stepping Out" surely worked wonders. "Stepping Out" is showing at the De Luxe today, and will also be featured tomorrow. In this film Enid Bennett portrays the role of a self-sacrificing young wife who slaves and economizes that her husband may get ahead, and who finally discovers her efforts to be in vain, when "the other woman" is discovered. She decides that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, lays down the scrubbing brush, deserts the pots and pans and indulges in a few frivolities herself. The plan works, and the erring husband is brought back into paths of decency, having learned the virtue of gratitude.

Palace.

Human nature is only skin deep and a mere scratch of an incident will bring it to the surface. That is the point of a Vitagraph photoplay called "A Fighting Colleen," which will be shown at the Palace this week, beginning today. The story brings society's upper crust, represented by the Mayor of a big city and his political opponents, into smashing contrast with the dismal layer of humanity in the tenement section. The part of "Puggy" Malone, a little Irish newsgirl, is taken by Bessie Love.

Alhambra.

Starting today, the Alhambra Theater will present the Judge Willis Brown feature, "Surprising Carlotta," starring Ruth Hampton. This picture, taken under direction of the Film Federation of Women, a national organization (of which the Woman's City Club is a unit) is said to be Judge Brown's masterpiece. It is a happy, clean photoplay, like all of Judge Brown's stories, but this does not mean that it lacks thrill. A Christie comedy entitled "He Married His Wife," starring Edith Roberts, supplements the programme.

LASKY TECHNICIAN FATHER.

Al Palm, superintendent of the laboratory at the Lasky studio, has a new addition to his family in the person of a seven-pound-ten-ounce boy, who will some day answer to the name of Le Vanway Garner Palm. When questioned regarding the origin of the name, Mr. Palm explained that most every member of the family was represented.

Mr. Palm has not just yet decided what career his son will follow, but perhaps he will some day be superintending the laboratory at the Lasky studio—who knows?

TRIES TO ORDER KING OFF ROAD.

UNIVERSAD DIRECTOR DIDN'T RECOGNIZE THE ROYAL LIMOUSINE.

William Dowlan, the Universal director, was filming a scene from "The Peddler" on a recent Sunday morning. He was using a palm-lined avenue in beautiful Santa Barbara. The scene required that all traffic be stopepd in every direction for ten minutes. Dowland had given the order to clear traffic and was behind the camera when a limousine rolled into his scene. To his assistant director Dowlan said:

"Tell that highly-trained idiot with that limousine to back himself out of this picture, and to do it fast."

"Yessir," said the assistant, trotting belligerently toward the car.

After a few moments of frantic arm waving the assistant returned to Dowlan and said:

"That poor ignoramus doesn't speak English!"

Dowlan, who speaks every language except German, strode toward the car. He was profoundly annoyed. When Dowlan discovered that the chauffeur spoke only French, he began to express himself in his most choice Parisian.

The door of the lismousine swung open and a tall man in uniform stepped out.

It was His Majesty, Albert of Belgium.

Extending his hand, the gallant King greeted Dowlan, apologized for his innocent interference with the photodrama, and presented Mr. Dowlan to the Queen.

The royal car then drew to the side of the boulevard while Their Majesties watched Dowlan and his Universal company work for fifteen minutes.

SUPERSTITION CAUSE OF NEW WOOLF PLAY.

Mrs. Gene Hughes, who comes to the Orpheum this week, will be remembered for the playlets "Youth" and "Gowns." Both were written expressly for her use by Edgar Allan Woolf, who has been one of the most successful authors of one-act plays in recent years. Not so very long ago, Mr. Woolf retired from active playwriting to take up magazine work. The last sketch he wrote was "Gowns."

Mrs. Hughes, being one of the most ambitious of vaudeville artistes, never uses a sketch for more than one season, and she has never appeared in a sketch in vaudeville written by anyone other than Mr. Woolf.

When the vaudeville managers tendered her contracts for this season, she was compelled to refuse them until she was sure of obtaining a new play, and Mr. Woolf's retirement as a vaudeville author presented a most vexing condition because of her pet superstition that no other person could write a play to suit her. With this problem confronting her she set out to induce Mr. Woolf to come out of his retirement long enough to supply her with a new sketch. Not caring to stand in her way of continuing her success in vaudeville or to place her in the position of being a victim of her own superstition, he agreed to provide a vehicle for this season and "When He Came Back" is the result.

OPEN NORMAD COURSES.

A series of Saturday morning normal courses opened yesterday at Cumnock School, 200 South Vermont avenue. The series will be devoted to instruction in voice and diction, how to read, how to teach, reading, esthetic dancing, story telling and play production.

AUTHORS TO READ PLAYS.

The Playcrafters will meet Tuesday in room 201, Blanchard Hall. Two one-act plays will be read by the authors, "The XX Century Knight," by Dr. Lottie Park; and "The Boa Constrictor," by Alfred Hollingsworth.

"COLORADO CANARY."

Helen Thompson, known as the "Colorado Canary," is the featured singer at the Superba this week in connection with the premiere of "Paid in Advance," Allen Holubar's latest Alaskan melodrama, starring Dorothy Phillips.

GETTING "CONNIE" MARRIED

Hark ye, diligent Romeos, "Connie" Talmadge airs her views on matrimony! This American girl's popularity with American audiences has literally engulfed her with wealth of admirers, from whom she receives an average of two proposals daily, according to report.

"He must be a brunette," she told the interviewer, and then she deliberated. "He must be a man with the fighting spirit of Theodore Roosevelt. He must be afraid of nothing."

"How about wealth?" asked the interviewer.

"I don't care a snap for wealth," she rejoined promptly; "if he can answer the other requisites of my ideal."

"What are some of those essentials, Miss Talmadge? Do you really mean all of the novel opinions you voice about husbands, bashful, modest, flirtatious and otherwise as depicted in 'A Temperamental Wife?' Is your role in that picture honestly that of the kind of wife you expect to be?"

"I certainly do. My husband must have the executive ability of Charles Schwab. He must be able to settle our financial and domestic problems. I do not want to worry about keeping a bank balance, and when I want a new limousine or a pet poodle I'm not going to worry about the cost.

"He must have the artistic soul of Harrison Fisher. Thus his cultural self will be reflected in beautiful surroundings, which will make our home a rendezvous for the higher things in life. He must have the musical soul of Paderewski, and be able to spend his evenings at the piano, and occasionally he must take me to operas.

"I'd like to have him write love stories like Robert Chambers. I expect to be away on location most of the time and I want a daily letter imbued with the fervent love, the heart interest, the passion, the vivid description of which Mr. Chambers is master."

"Well, outside of those little things, what else do you want from a husband, Miss Talmadge?"

"Of course, he must be very devoted and all that."

"And all of what?"

"I mean I want a husband who will love no other woman except myself."

"The kind of husband you want will have no time to love anybody but yourself," she was told.

"Oh, no, he must be a rational fellow. Although he must have a propensity for business and all kinds of art, he must be able to enjoy jazz music and a burlesque show."

"How about liquor, Miss Talmadge? Can he drink?"

"Oh," she said facetiously, "that will be something I'll have to go into privately with him."

VARIETY IN PLAY BILLS.

Romance, Problems, Comedy All Have a Chance.

"Under Orders" and "Never Say Die" on Boards.

"Civilian Clothes" Continues; New Burbank Company.

With one local stock company presenting a hero who refuses to die and another offering a play in which a child is not allowed to be born, it is evident that Los Angeles theatergoers will have no complaint to make about a thrill-less week. However, for those who take no stock in the subject of eugenics, and yet who, in these serious times, cannot bring themselves to that state of mind necessary to an appreciation of comedy, one big palace of drama offers a rousing and romantic war play called "Under Orders." At the Morosco, "Civilian Clothes" enters its eighteenth week. All the vaudeville houses have exceptionally good entertainment, with musical novelties predominating.

Mason.

Few plays have created as much comment among theatergoers or received so much favorable press notice as "Under Orders," a dramatic novelty which A. H. Woods will present at the Mason Opera house tomorrow night for an engagement of one week.

This drama, from the pen of Berte Thomas, an English actor of note, and which has been revised and elaborated by Roi Cooper Megrue, was first presented in London and was later brought to the Eltinge Theater, New York, in which house it had a successful run of six months.

New York critics declared "Under Orders" to be one of the most original, artistic plays presented in America during the last decade.

Following its run at the Eltinge, the play was given in many of the principal cities of the East.

The scenes are laid in London and in a small city near Berlin.

Majestic.

"Never Say Die," billed as an "uproarious farce without a dull moment," introducing Edward Everett Horton, new leading man of the Wilkes Stock Company, will open at the Majestic Theater tonight. Mr. Horton, who is one of the matinee hero type, comes to Los Angeles with laudatory notices from eastern critics.

"Never Say Die" tells the story of a young millionaire who, when the doctors deliver him a death warrant, proceeds to will all his property to his friend's poverty-stricken bride-to-be, and marries her with the proviso that they part company immediately after the ceremony.

Mr. Millionaire, however, fails to "kick the pail over," and then the plot begins to thicken. It requires three acts to straighten out the entanglement. The production is under the direction of Miss Willamene Wilkes, and the cast includes Evelyn Varden, Ruth Renick, George C. Pearce, Arthur Allard and Franklin Pangborn.

Orpheum.

Is there anything in the world you don't know? There's one person, it is claimed, who will answer any question asker of her, namely, Mme. Ellis, who comes to the Orpheum tomorrow afternoon. Moreover, Mme. Ellis asks no aid from soothsayer, astrologer, medium or any other brand of spook-flirter—all her information, it appears, comes from her own self.

Another headliner on the programme will be Mrs. Gene Hughes, heroine of a sketch entitled "When He Came Back," an incident in the life of a soldier who marries a French girl.

Sybil Vane, a tiny bit of charming femininity, is called the Galli-Curci of vaudeville because of her resemblance, in looks and voice, to the famous Italian artiste. The fourth feature act is "Billy Burke's Tango Shoes," a freak dance affair.

Harry Breen composes songs impromptu and sings them, taking his subjects from suggestions by members of the audience; the seven Honey Boys are minstrels of the old school; Maleta Baconi is a noted violinist, while the holdover is a song-and-dance act of Alice Els and James Templeton.

Burbank.

Are you interested in the subject of birth control—purely as an abstract proposition? How does "Her Unborn Child" strike you as a title for a drama? That is the name of the play with which the Dowell stock company, headed by Julia Gray and Albert Van Antwerp, will open the winter dramatic season at Pelton's Burbank this afternoon.

"Her Unborn Child," by Howard McKent Barnes, has never been played in California, but in the East it is credited with having broken many records, both as to attendance and length of run. The subject, it is said, is treated with dignity and understanding, being neither vulgar nor a hodge-podge of improbabilities.

During the engagement here no one under 18 years old will be admitted to the Burbank, it is announced.

Pantages.

A top-notch vaudeville bill is promised patrons of Pantages next week. The nine Royal Uyena Japs head the programme with sensational oriental pastimes. The troop consists of six men, two boys and one girl, all acrobats, jugglers and gymnasts.

Next in prominence are the Six Venetian Gypsies, in an act called "Frolicking in a Gypsy Camp." The various numbers include selections on accordions, guitars, mandolins, tambourines, cymbals, harps, drums, oboes and other instruments.

Arthur Siller & Eva North offer an act called "Bashfoolery," which tells the vicissitudes of a bashful swain and his nervous sweetheart.

Weber & Elliott are harmonious songsters, the Makarenkos are operatic singers, while Lady Alice and with her instructor at De Mille Field the other day. "Heaven forbid! In fact, I want it understood right now that I don't want to go on record as a stunt actress. I still care more for my dramatic work than anything else. But just because I'm a serious actress is no reason I should not want to be an expert athlete.

KATHLYN IS TO FLY HIGH.

"Moreover, I feel sure that in the not very distant future picture work is going to require more or less flying, as the sport becomes popular, and I want to be quite ready for that, too."

A PHOTOPLAY TOO.

It is just possible that a photoplay story is to be written especially for Miss Williams, in which she will appear as an aviatrix, but there's nothing definite about this as yet. That, as Mr. Kipling says, is another story.

"The principal reason I am learning stunt flying," explained the star, "is in order to be able to take care of myself in the air when the machine takes it into its head to do something odd and unnatural. As a matter of fact, I can't get my license until I do learn to do stunt flying."

Miss Williams has already learned to fly a machine so far as the mere "taking off," steering, "banking," etc., are concerned. But so far she has not undertaken the stunts. She expects to, however, within the next fortnight or so.

WANTS LONG TRIPS.

"I'm looking forward to some long air trips," said Miss Williams, "undertaken solely for the joy of flying, which is wonderful. I am planning to take a trip to San Francisco, and, if I find I hold up under that, I really hope to make a transcontinental. And, while I shall carry a mechanician, I shall expect to do the driving myself."

Miss Williams is not inexperienced as an aviator. She flew often with Glen Martin a few years ago, as a matter of sport, and in 1913 she made a trip in a hydroplane out of Chicago over Lake Michigan. This was undertaken in the interests of a picture she was making for Selig, and in those days an air journey was considered a great adventure, particularly as every little while a flying machine, for no reason whatever, apparently, would take a header to the earth.

"Yes," said Miss Williams, "I'm negotiating for the purchase of a Curtiss airplane. When I get it, and can show you a nice little pilot's license, all framed and everything, will you take a hop with me?"

I promised.

GETTING BAIL FOR MOSES.

It was at the Greek theater, "Miriam, Sister of Moses," alias Ruth St. Denis, was dancing the Israelites from the Red Sea to the wilderness. At left center of the stage stood two policemen listening. The actors were discussing the merits and demerits of one god, Baal, who appeared to have a big influence on the play.

"What are they doing now?" asked one cop of the other.

"Well," replied the second, "it's kinda mixed up, but the way I make it, the guy on the end with whiskers is trying to get bail for Moses."—[Unidentified.

"Personally, I don't believe grocers ever put sand in their sugar."

"They don't have to around here," answered old Mr. Putterby. "What with cars an' one thing an' another zippin' through Chiggersville from sunup to dark, all a groceryman's got to do is to leave the cover off his sugar barrel an' let it accumulate."—[Birmingham Age-Herald.

LASKY SPECIAL STYLISY PLAY.

edy is nearing completion under the direction of J. A. (Kitty) Howe. It is called "Sadie's Sad Career," and deals with the ludicrous situations into which a troupe of amateur players may become involved in the pursuit of drama. Phil Dunham, Dot Farley and Lois Neilson are the headliners.

Charles Parrott is turning the L-Ko studio into a prison in the course of his work on "The Jail Breakers," a delightfully refreshing Rainbow comedy. Frank Coleman, Billy Engel, Edna Gregory and Evelyn Nelson are featured in the cast.

The sad sea waves are supporting the players who are appearing in "She Landed a Man," a comedy of the beach that is being directed by William Watson. Merta Sterling, the rather stout lady of picture fame, is playing the principal fun-gathering role. Cliff Bowes, Virginia Warwick and Bud Jamison also appear in the cast. The Century comedy has not yet been definitely named, although the presence of the bathing beauties will identify it on the screen.

A funny monkey is playing in Fred Fishback's laughable Century comedy, "The Mischievous Monk." The human cast includes Jimmy Adams and Esther Wood.

—o—

Likes the "Flims."

Carroll McComas, who is making her motion-picture debut as Robert Warwick's leading woman in the Paramount-Artcraft picture, "Jack Straw," declares her work before the camera to be the most wonderful experience she has ever had.

"The first day," she explains, "I felt like a lost child in a great wilderness, and the strange feeling was slow in wearing off. There is a vast difference between acting on the stage and before the camera, I want to tell you. I had been warned of this difference, and those who warned me did not exaggerate. But motion pictures are simply wonderful."

—o—

Says Never Again.

Colleen Moore thought she knew all about boxing contests, but she has learned her mistake, for she has just seen her first real ring bout, and did not like it at all.

While playing opposite Charles Ray in "The Egg Crate Wallop" Miss Moore saw the filming of some ring scenes. The other night in Prescott, Ariz., she went, with all the other members of the Tom Mix company, to see some contests that were not staged in front of a cranking camera. She learned that there is a vast difference between real and reel fighting, and makes a vow of "Never again!"

Miss Moore is playing opposite Mix in his latest Fox production.

—o—

Girl Stars Battle.

For the benefit of a battery of cameras, Gloria Swanson and Bebe Daniels, members of Cecil B. de Mille's all-star company, recently staged a battle that broke all State laws regarding the number of rounds and which will go down in screen history as one of the wildest and most destructive hand-to-hand combats.

The fight was promoted by Mr. De Mille in the interests of his special production, "Why Change Your Wife?" now nearing completion. He also acted as referee, timekeeper—and, incidentally, director.

Of course, the battle was over a man. The gentleman in question was Thomas Meighan and he was about the only person at the studio who did not witness one or more rounds of the scrimmage. Meighan, be it known, played the part of an accident victim and his duties kept him slumbering peacefully through the entire series of scenes.

Although the fight lasted from mid-afternoon until late evening, Referee De Mille refused to hand out a decision. One of the fair combatants scored a knockout via a thrown water bottle, but the other gets the man. So it's easy to see why the director-referee remained strictly non-committal.

—o—

A Splendiferous Harem.

A harem gorgeous in its regal splendor graced the center of the Metro stage in Hollywood during the time Henry Otto was making "Fair and Warmer," the Avery Hopwood farce to show at the California, beginning tomorrow. These scenes represent the vision May Allison has during the story.

The harem, designed and executed by John Holden, technical director for the production, breathes the very life of Sultanic Turkey. Subdued light filters down from curiously-wrought lamps of hammered copper. Heavy cauldrons reek forth their strange oriental perfume and dark, oily-skinned attendants slowly wave huge peacock fans.

Dark-haired, red-lipped beauties vie for attention with crimson-cheeked, langorous-eyed damsels of the northland.

Turkish rugs swathe the floors and heaps of luxuriously-covered pillows provide reclining places for the harem's damsels. On the walls hang heavy draperies. In the background a fountain plays and the tinkle of the water blends softly with the twanging of the lute.

—o—

Director to Act Again.

In the story which Henry Kolker himself wrote and is now picturizing for Brentwood there was one character which presented great difficulty to the casting director. It was that of a New York business man, cynical, cold and disposed to trample under foot every obstacle which stood in the path of his business success. Henry Kolker could only see Jack Pratt in that part. The difficulty, however, was that Mr. Pratt has for several years been himself a successful picture director, and was not disposed to return to grease and make-up and take up the work as an actor which first established him in the public favor. Friendship's arguments finally prevailed, and Mr. Pratt consented to play the part which in the opinion of his friend, the author-director, meant so much to his picture.

—o—

Does Imitations, Too.

Honk! Honk! What was that noise? Everybody on stage two at the Lasky studio started and looked around for an approaching automobile with an old-fashioned horn. But no automobile was in sight.

Bryant Washburn smiled and looked guilty.

"Goodness," said Lois Wilson, his leading man, who is a very close observer, "where did you learn to do that?"

Thereupon production work on "Too Much Johnson" was held up for a few moments while the popular star told of his early career and how he used to have a job behind the wings in a theater making noises to represent different supposed properties.

"One day," says Washburn, "the property man lost the automobile horn and I had to imitate it the best I could with my voice. I found I could give a very good imitation, and since then I have never forgotten how."

HE PAID THE FINE.

Judge Kinkead got the surprise of his life the other day.

T. B. Bowers, one of the jurors of the September term of court, was late arriving one morning and when he did arrive Judge Kinkead in a laughing manner advised him that he was guilty of contempt of court and would stand fined a dozen red apples.

The next morning when court convened, Mr. Bowers stepped to the bench and advising the court that he had appeared to pay his fine, laid a dozen red apples on the bench. Suffice it to say the court was surprised and pleasantly so.—[Columbus Dispatch.

THROUGH THE WIDOW'S LORGNETTE.

...ting What You Want, in Life.

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

"Doesn't being out on a day like this make you feel like a god or goddess, or a wizard, or a king!" exclaimed the Bachelor, stretching luxuriously, as he led the way from the motor car to the path of scarlet and gold that wound through the wood. "Just sort of 'peppy'—as though you could have, or be, or do anything in the world you wanted!"

"You can," announced the Widow, authoritatively, as she snuggled her small gloved hands down into her spacious pockets.

"Hark! The wood nymph speaks!" and the Bachelor looked down at her with that masculine air of indulgence, so like a Newfoundland dog regarding the cute little tricks of a kitten. "Are you going to grant ...wishes, Dame Fairy—if I cross your palm with silver?"

"To TALK about wanting to marry," the Bachelor explained, hastily. "But what I THINK I want most of anything in the world, at this minute, is——" The Bachelor hesitated and looked down at the Widow doubtfully.

"Yes?" inquired the Widow, tilting her chin and returning his gaze with an icy smile of challenge.

"What I think I want," he repeated, lamely, forcing himself to turn his eyes away from her lips, "is luncheon!"

"Oh!"

And, for some reason, as they turned their steps toward the clubhouse veranda, the widow looked almost disappointed.

WIDOW-CISMS.

That's just like a woman! To be insulted if a man tries to kiss her—and disappointed if he doesn't.

The girl who tries to appeal to men by following the present diaphanous fashions should remember that Adam never took any sentimental interest in Eve until she invented mystery and skirts.

Many a husband would be shocked to the core of his vanity if he could read the wild, tumultuous thoughts of his wife as she sits placidly sewing the buttons on his shirts.

Marrying a man to "reform" him sounds romantic, but it usually consists in sitting around patiently and waiting until he gets tired of all his amusements, and too old to take an interest in anything on earth but golf or pepsin tablets.

Before marriage it takes a man half an hour to tell a girl how much he loves her; after marriage, when she asks him the vital question, he merely mutters "SURE! Pass the biscuits," and considers the matter settled.

MOVING DAY.

This is the month when New York furls its tent, puts the cat in the cage with the canary and hies itself into strange lands. But unlike the Octobers that have gone before, there is little choice in the pilgrimages of the nomands of the Bronx this year. Many there are of the wanderers who fain would remain another year in their erstwhile abodes, but a recalcitrant landlord has said them nay, and they e'en must be on their way. For dwelling places are few and those weary travelers who clamor without are many and obstreperous.

Frequently new arrivals found former tenants not yet gone from the apartment they had leased—and with no place to go. So two families and two sets of furniture would be crowded into tiny halls and bedrooms scarcely large enough for one. More than seventy-five thousand families moved in the first three days of this month, and more than eight thousand great vans were required for the hegira.

While members of the Van Owners' Association of New York and many of the smaller owners agreed to a standard charge of $10 an hour there were free lance truck owners who demanded $15—$25—whatever amount they could obtain, and some even auctioned their services to the highest bidder. The congestion was increased by the limited capacity of apartment lifts, and it was not unusual to see the crew of a moving van lying contendedly in the shade for hours, while some earlier arrival sent his load up the elevators, and while the cost to the mover jumped $10 to $25 every sixty minutes.

Apartments were scarce, and many families evicted from their cotes in the Bronx and Manhattan upon the expiration of their leases were forced to store their furniture and seek refuge in hotels until such time as the demand shall lessen. Agents were offered bonuses of from $150 to $500 by desperate apartment dwellers, crowded from their homes by incoming tenants, and unable to find other dwelling places.

Summer cottages on Coney Island, usually closed for the winter, have been fitted with gas heating stoves, and many families, unable to find homes in the city, will spend the winter in them.

October, when most apartment leases expire in New York City, always has been a month of frenzy and congestion for those who live in flats, but never before has the disorder been so great as this year. And as a result it is considered likely that New York may adopt the moving plan of Chicago, where leases are so devised as to distribute moving between the months of March, April, May, June, September, October and November.

100 PER CENT. SAFE.

According to a booklet just issued by the United States Public Health Service, "The Safe Vacation," every vacationist should take away with him these indispensables: Two gauze bandages, two and one-half inches wide; two cotton bandages, three inches wide; one roll adhesive plaster, one inch wide; one dozen safety pins, one ounce absorbent cotton, one yard plain sterile gauze, one ounce tincture iodine, one dram permanganate of potash, one clinical thermometer, two ounces bicarbonate of soda, one hot-water bag, one dozen compound cathartic pills, four ounces castor oil. To stay at home is best.—[Boston Globe.

TOOTING YOUR HORN.

It Pays Only if It is Worth Being Tooted.

A man can toot his horn to beat the band if he has a horn worth tooting. If it is nothing but a penny whistle, a fellow soon gets out of wind and what wind he does have does not amount to anything.

I saw a man selling some stuff out of his garden one day. To hear him talk every tomato was made of gold and the carrots were packed full of diamonds. Everything he had, according to his tell, was strictly gilt-edged. And folks bought. They could not resist the man that tooted his horn like that.

But say, that man had a horn worth tooting. His garden stuff was as good as it looked. He knew it and he was bound that other folks should know it too. And that was not difficult. People go to market with their eyes open. Most of them have their eye teeth cut these days and they can't be fooled by the man who tells them a watery pumpkin is a Hubbard squash.

They know, and they won't pay their hard-earned money for the thing that is not worth while.

And they went on feeling better in their minds than they did before they stopped to dicker with that man of the big toot and the horn worth tooting. It always makes folks think better of themselves when they rub up against a man that is chock full of enthusiasm and means business in every word he speaks. The trouble with a good many of us is that we do not more than half believe our business. To hear us talk one would think farming is a dog's life from day's end to day's end, and we were working at it because we could not get anything else to do. Shame on us! Why don't we put the very best there is in us into everything we do, so that when we harvest our crops they will be worth bragging up; and then why don't we toot our horns till all the world hears and stops to listen? That's what counts.—[E. L. Vincent, in Farm Life.

According to the Will.

A farmer walked into the little general store in the village with a firm and decided step.

"I want," said he, "that tub of margarine, and that lot of bacon, and all the other foodstuffs."

"Good gracious!" said the recently bereaved widow who kept the shop, "what do you want with all them things, Mr. Giles?"

"I dunno," replied the worthy farmer; "but you know I'm the executor of your husband's will and Lawyer Styles said I was to carry out all the provisions!"—[Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

COST HALTS QUEEN.

Holland Fears Inability to Give Royal Progress Proper Pomp.

The Queen of Holland faces the horns of a dilemma. She would like to visit the Dutch East Indies, but the government fears its inability to surround the royal progress with sufficient pomp and circumstance. The Orient has its own ideas of the proper aspect of majesty and of the divinity of kings and queens. It will demand a stately show, a pageantry and a paraphernalia that comport with its sumptuous ideas of riches and of power. To bring pearl and gold to the East may seem to be like carrying coals to Newcastle or tulips to The Hague; but an eastern potentate, who loves the picture and the trappings of sovereignty, expects the progress of visiting royalty to dazzle the eyes of the spectators and to uphold the traditional ideas of crowns and thrones that survive in the fairy tales.

In Europe a king can afford to go about with a "bowler" on and a cane hooked over his arm, shaking hands affably and talking in a democratic, human way; but in Batavia, Surabaya, Banjerwasin or Makassar a queen must look and "make a noise" like a queen. She must have the wardrobe, the entourage and the stage setting. Her Cleopatra's barge must be a war vessel that stuns by its size and appears formidable enough to cope with a whole fleet of a lesser power.

For three hundred years the Dutch have been supreme in Java, Sumatra, the Celebes and the Moluccas, with a brief interregnum in the last years of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century. The natives will expect Wilhelmina to impersonate not merely the royal rule of today, but the commercial and political history of the three centuries. It is a tremendous part for one woman to play, whose strength is in her directness of dealing with a profoundly democratic people. There are questions involved of etiquette and procedure with which no Lord High Chamberlain of Europe is sufficiently versed in the devious rubice of eastern court life to cope. Whether the Dutch government will think that the return from the investment is likely to warrant the vast expenditure required for the royal expedition is the open question of the hour beside the Zuyder Zee.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

her pet animals will especially amuse the children.

The bill includes a Harold Lloyd comedy film, starring Mr. Lloyd and Bebe Daniels.

Morosco.

According to estimates of the management about 200,000 persons—approximately one-third the population of Los Angeles—have seen "Civilian Clothes," Thompson Buchanan's comedy hit, which, with today's matinee, will enter its eighteenth week at the Morosco Theater. Every member of the cast has been congratulated by Oliver Morosco, who recently opened the Los Angeles-made success in New York, in which city the play is scoring big.

Mr. Morosco is now organizing a company to present "Civilian Clothes" to Chicago audiences.

The Los Angeles production, which was staged by Fred Butler, is headed by Clyde Fillmore and Eleanor Woodruff.

Hippodrome.

Mitchell Lewis, noted as a star portrayer of north woods roles, is said to be at his best in "Children of Banishment," at the Hippodrome, starting today. "Children of Banishment" was filmed in the lumber camps of Yosemite Valley last winter, when the snow lay deep on the ground. The star is supported by Bessie Eyton, noted for her work in "The Spoilers."

The vaudeville programme is headed by a spectacular scenic novelty, called "The Girl from Starland," in which a winsome lassie, seated on a big electric star, floats out over the heads of the spectators. "The Love Insurance Agent" is a comedy sketch, offered by Wright & Davis, while music will be furnished by the Three Harmony Maids and the Spanish Trio, xylophone artists.

Sylvia Mora and company will present a potpourri of acrobatics and dancing, and "Three Pretty Girls" will offer a novel comedy skit, called "Women."

THE REAL DIFFICULTY.

Mrs. Chatterlong: I'm down for a talk before the Housewives' Club. I wish I could think up a good introduction.

Her Husband: That should be easy for you. You never appear to have any trouble starting a talk. It's the ending it that seems to be impossible.—[Washington Star.

NEW YORK PLAY WORLD.

have been too expert. So far none of the eggs has scored a hit.

As Herman Weil was singing the part of Peter the Great in the "Czar and the Carpenter," the other night, a grim young man who had been a lieutenant in France stood up in a box; wound up like a baseball pitcher and heaved five hen bombs down upon the stage in rapid succession. They all missed the singers.

JULIA MARLOWE.

Julia Marlowe, who has come out of her retirement to play a limited Shakespearean engagement at the Shubert with her husband, E. H. Sothern, says quite frankly that her favorite Shakespearean roles are those that call for boys' clothes.

"The three roles in all Shakespeare I love most are those women who wear boys' clothes," says Miss Marlowe. "Imogen in 'Cymbeline' is the loveliest woman in all fiction; Rosalind in 'As You Like It' is the most fascinating, and Viola in 'Twelfth Night' the most adorable.

"Imogen was entirely unconscious of her boy's dress. It was all the clothes she knew, the natural fashion in which to garb herself. She wears it simply and with no feeling of sex. Rosalind dons the male attire with a glorious sense of reveling in its freedom. She is proud of it and makes no hesitancy in wearing it. Viola, on the other hand, is shy and constantly mindful of her masculine clothes, which brings not a few blushes of modesty to her cheeks."

KING WEARS SCOUT UNIFORM.

The King of Spain is a full believer in the value of the boy scouts. Alfonso is the only reigning monarch who wears at times the scout uniform, and he has fully grasped the spirit and the inner meaning of the scout aims.

He especially praises their splendid public services in times of difficulty when they give valuable help to running the postal and telegraph work, in doing fire brigade duty, in attending the sick, and even in some cases burying the dead.

In the woods which form the royal demesne a couple of miles outside the city the King has given them a permanent camping ground, which contains a small but well equipped hut as hospital and a prepared supply of drinking water.

AIR RACE SAVES WOMAN'S LIFE.

Barred From Ordinary Travel Invalid Flies Across English Channel for Operation. Is the Railroad Doomed?

BY ANNE MORTON LANE.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Forbidden by her physician to travel by rail or sea, yet feeling the absolute necessity of undergoing an operation on the European continent, an Englishwoman solved the difficulty recently by flying in an airplane from London to Paris, thus bringing a new kind of fame—that of lifesaver—to the already much-belaureled navigators of the air.

The woman in question, a Mrs. Evans, was accompanied on the trip by her husband. They were the only passengers on one of the planes of the regular Airco daily service between London and Paris, which has been in operation since August 27, last.

I was at Hounslow, the London terminus of the service, on the day that Mr. and Mrs. Evans made the trip. All the officials connected with the flying service were in an excited state of mind, as instructions had been sent out that special precautions were to be taken, as it was a matter of life and death. An endeavor was made to have the flight continued by the English machine from Paris to Switzerland, where the operation was to be performed, but while the authorities would allow the English machine to arrive in Switzerland, they would not permit its departure before a certain number of months.

So serious was the condition of the invalid that she had to be lifted from the motor that brought her to the flying-ground into the car of the machine. She seemed very cheerful and thoroughly interested in the proceedings. I asked her if she was nervous about the flight, and it was pathetic to see her pale face brighten and her eyes open wide as she assured me of the interest and anticipated pleasure she took in the trip. "It is the first thing that I have really wanted to do for months," she told me. "Already I feel better. I have read about flying and talked about it, but I never thought that I would experience a flight myself. My husband is going to try and arrange for another flying machine—I suppose it must be a French one—to take us from Paris to some station on the Swiss frontier. After that I don't know how we shall get along, but I daresay we shall finish our journey by motor."

SERVICE WORKING SMOOTHLY.

Airplaning from London to Paris and vice-versa is becoming quite a matter of course.

"Come and see the 12:30 air 'bus off to Paris," was a telephone message I received on morning recently from a man of my acquaintance. Shortly after, his automobile was at my front door in Kensington and we were "tootling" off to Hounslow, the depot for the departure and arrival of the London-Paris "Airco" service.

The Hounslow Aerodrome was one of the first and perhaps most famous training grounds in England for military aviators at the commencement of the war. Now it has become the first real official aerial link for commercial and passenger service between London and Paris. Hangars and huts that were built for use in the early months of 1914-15 still circle the huge flat meadow land that is about ten miles from Piccadilly Circus. Since August 27, last, punctually at 12:30 every day, no matter how stormy or how misty the weather, an air bus has taxied off on its nonstop flight to Paris, carrying its complement of passengers and light luggage. Only once since the commencement of the service has a pilot been compelled to make a forced landing, and then the delay was so brief and the rectification of the engine trouble so slight, that scarcely any inconvenience was caused.

NO WAITING-ROOMS.

As yet the station at Hounslow has no elaborate buildings or waiting-rooms. That will come later. At present the fleet of flying "buses" are sheltered beneath a huge shed that has been used for the grim purposes of war for close on five years. Now beautiful silvery, wide-winged machines for peaceful purposes fill its depths, while, close by, are the official quarters of His Majesty's Customs.

The machines that fly to Paris every day are of two sizes, one holding the pilot and two passengers, the other affording comfortable space for four or six passengers. The fare charge is $100 per person, and the flight is accomplished in something under three hours and a half from Hounslow to Le Bourget, a suburb of Paris, just as Hounslow is a suburb of London.

The inclosed carriages of these passenger machines are extremely comfortable, furnished with deep barrel seats, upholstered in pale gray leather, with a writing table in front, upon which is a speedometer whereby the traveler can gauge the speed of the machine. As yet, only a small amount of luggage can be carried, passengers being limited to about twenty pounds extra weight each.

Before a London-to-Paris car leaves Hounslow, it is amusing to watch the customs officials hard at work "passing" the small parcels and the meager hand-luggage of which the cargo is composed. A huge sign, that is much more imposing than the building beside which it stands, marks His Majesty's customs office. "Douane et Bureau de Passeportes" reads one notice in huge white letters. Beneath this another, "Dogana ed Ufficio Passporti," shows that Italian as well as French travelers are expected. Further along a great chart showing the continental weather report, indicates exactly what is happening up in the air between London and Paris.

The route taken from Hounslow across England to the channel is over Kenley and Lympne (near Folkestone) to Marquise (near Boulogne) and thence to Paris.

I noted that on a day which, in London, seemed a perfect specimen of September weather, the channel was set down as being "totally unfit for air traffic." I appealed to one of the pilots who was explaining how to read the chart, and asked, "What about it—will that poor woman be in danger when she is flying across the channel?"

Latest Fashions by Air Route.

Just in from Paris.

Arrival at London of the representative of a leading Paris modiste carrying the last word in modes from the French capital.

He laughed. "Certainly not," he said. "That is only a warning for amateurs, not for our pilots! We never take any notice of indications like that. It only means a mist over the channel, and, perhaps, a good deal of wind. Our machines are never turned back by weather. Last week I flew over from Paris through a hundred-mile gale. It was a bit bumpy, but we came through all right, and I landed my two passengers—business men—on schedule time as neatly as I would have done in a dead calm."

PUTS RAILWAYS IN THE SHADE.

The young man who made this statement looked about 24. Across his khaki tunic was a string of decorations that showed that, in spite of his years, he was a veteran as far as military service was concerned. He walked with a limp, and told me that he had been "shot to bits" one day in a battle over Salonica.

"But I am perfectly fit now, and as keen as mustard over this passenger flying service," he added. "Undoubtedly, in a few years, people will no longer waste their time in trains that go at sixty miles an hour. Time will be too precious. A hundred and fifty, or two hundred miles an hour will be much better. You get no more sensation at this high rate of speed in the air than you do when traveling at an ordinary pace on land."

A commercial magnate of some note started off from Charing Cross to Paris recently by the ordinary cross-channel means by conveyance. After he had left, his confidential clerk discovered that, in the hurry of departure, a bunch of keys had been forgotten, which were the only means by which a bag containing papers for signature which were the reason for the journey, could be opened. It was important, in fact, necessary, that the documents should be signed immediately on arrival in Paris, but without the keys this was an impossibility.

The secretary had a brain wave. He telephoned to the Airco offices and inquired if the keys could be delivered in Paris by airplane; received an affirmative answer; motored out to Hounslow, deposited the precious bunch of keys with the pilot, and they were delivered at the business man's hotel in Paris three hours before he arrived there himself by the boat train!

A new service in connection with the air journey between London and Paris is now also in full swing, and will be continued even during the winter. This is called "The Ritz-to-Ritz" service, and consists of large machines, holding from twelve to fifteen people from the Ritz Hotel in Paris to the Ritz Hotel in London, three days a week. These machines will not start actually from the hotels, but from the airdromes at Hounslow and Le Bourget. They are intended for the special convenience of guests at the two hotels in London and Paris. The charge for a single passage is $75.

Think of being able to fly over from London to Paris for a dinner or a ball and fly back again the next morning in time to keep an appointment for another dinner! The service is only at its commencement; it is to be elaborated and increased month by month.

"We shall soon be able to have a flying service that will practically link up the whole of the European continent for either business or pleasure, and early in 1920 I predict that we shall be able to take passengers between London and Paris for a twenty-five-dollar fare," said Mr. Whittaker, the Airco manager. "At present, flight is a luxury as far as passenger traffic is concerned, but very soon it will be found to be a necessity that will be brought within the range of people of moderate means."

Already dressmakers are utilizing the air service for hustling their most recent creations across the channel. The other day some gowns that had been made in Paris and were too late to be sent across by ordinary train and boat, were delivered by airplane.

WILY ORIENTAL.

Chinese Lottery Tickets "Pages from School Books," He Says.

Whatever else the prying police and prosecutors may say about him, they are compelled to admit that Lee Foon is an ingenious cuss. They must also admit that the wily oriental "pulled one from the clouds" in police court and got away with it in big-league style.

Lee, a studious-looking disciple of Confucius, stood with solemn mien as he answered the police court roll on a charge of having lottery tickets in his possession.

Police testified that they had raided Foon's quarters in the Chinese section and procured an ample supply of lottery tickets, which they had found in his room. Other paraphernalia used for lotteries also was produced. The evidence seemed conclusive. Court attaches naturally figured Lee Foon didn't have a chance.

And then Lee Foon offered his testimony. "These not lottery tickets," was his first astonishing statement.

Judge Rossman grew interested. He moved down from the bench and stood at Foon's side in the prisoner's dock.

"What are they, then?" inquired the court.

"They pages torn from Chinese school book," quickly answered the bland and unsmiling Foon.

"Well, what does this say?" inquired the court, as he selected an alleged lottery ticket at random and handed it to Foon for translation.

"It say, 'I see the cat,'" was the quick retort, which was almost drowned in the storm of laughter which swept over the courtroom.

"Well," muttered the court, as he shook his head in a perplexed manner, "I'll admit that lottery tickets should in time educate people that it's a losing gambling game, but this is the first time I ever heard a ticket called a page from a Chinese school book."

And so dumfounded was the court at Lee Foon's alibi that he permitted the prisoner to go his way minus the usual fine.—[Portland Oregonian.

West. Their cities were beyond the reach of shells, their farms beyond the march of invading hosts. Fear gave no form to their judgments. They could see man as he was—sensible and sound, at last, and refined by the ages.

EMIGRATED IN A WAGON.

So late as March, 1916, war then but a year away for this country, Senator McCumber, arising in his place, spoke bitterly of armor-plate and munition factories," and of "scarehead lines that fill the press." Selfishness and sensationalism, he declared, sought to have armies recruited and battleships launched.

Now then, what is the explanation for such a woeful lack of prevision? It can be found in Senator McCumber's personal story. But the story tells more—it shows loyalty to principles and high degree of intellectual courage. A lawyer he is and yet Porter James McCumber remains a farmer in the processes of his elementary thinking and foresight.

"We traveled," he said, referring to the journey of his father and mother, he an infant in the arms of the latter, "in a covered wagon from Illinois to Minnesota, and settled on a quarter section of land, part timber and part prairie, five miles from the village of Rochester.

"My father, Orlin McCumber, chopped down the trees out of which our house of logs was built. No better axman ever lived. I used to think that he could make a hundred toothpicks with an ax and all of the same thickness and length.

"He manufactured harness for his horses and shoes for every member of his family; also wagons for his own use. I grew up on the farm, doing all kinds of work, from early childhood, and going to the district school.

"At Rochester, where I also went to school, I became acquainted with boys who meant to be lawyers, physicians and business men. Farming, I realized, was hard work and its return in money small. Therefore, I decided to do something else.

"With funds borrowed from a young friend, I took a course at a teacher's training school. Then I taught in the country for several years, having pupils of the age of 4 up to those who were as old as myself. My salary, $30 a month, with board thrown in, seemed enormously large and no work had ever suited me so well.

AGAIN TAKES TO THE ROAD.

"Having negotiated a loan from another friend, I entered the law department of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor. A student and myself rented a room. We did our own cooking and made our own bed. I was graduated at the age of 24 and returned to Rochester.

"Minnesota, at that time, to persons in New York or Pennsylvania, was 'way out West.' It was not so with us. We thought that Minnesota was pretty well filled up. Besides, bearing on my own case, Rochester had all the lawyers it could support. So my thoughts turned elsewhere. Families whom I knew were moving into Dakota Territory. I also decided to go there. But my funds were insufficient for so long a journey. While I was puzzling over the problem of getting started on my way a man suddenly appeared with two teams of horses. He was bound for Dakota Territory and needed a driver. If I accompanied him, so he said, all my expenses would be met but he wouldn't pay anything for my services.

"So a way was opened. My library consisted of two or three textbooks. We reached, in due time the town of Lisbon, in what is now the southeastern part of the State of North Dakota. Soon I heard of a former fellow-student at Ann Arbor who had opened a law office at Wahpeton, not far distant from Lisbon and on the Minnesota border. He invited me to become his partner.

"I made my entrance into the town that has since been my home in the year 1881. I was 25 years old. My assets in money totaled $72.65. Did I make a living, you ask? I did; I had to. But I didn't dine on turkey more than twice a week.

"Four years later I was a member of the lower house of the Territorial Legislature. Then I was elected to the Territorial Senate. I saw, however, that I couldn't be a successful lawyer and a successful politician at the same time. Therefore, I withdrew from politics, but I made speeches during every campaign and on several occasions stumped the State.

HE FOUGHT FREE SILVER.

"In 1896 I spoke in many places against William J. Bryan and free silver. Republicans were wavering on the money question and the Populists were pushing their theories into our farming settlements. As is known, North Dakota is an agricultural region. We get our living out of the earth. All of our interests begin and center in our farms.

"Traveling the State in 1896, and speaking in cities and villages, I extended my already large acquaintance and in 1899 I became a candidate for the national Senate; and was nominated and elected. Since then I have been elected to the same office three times.

"I had practiced law at Wahpeton for twenty-two years and felt that if I failed as a legislator that I was not beyond the age of making another start in my profession. I was sworn in as a member of Congress on March 4, 1899. So I have been a Senator for twenty years. I gave up my law practice long ago."

The Congressional Directory which contains the autobiographies of the nation's lawmakers, has this to say of the senior Senator from North Dakota: "Porter James McCumber, Republican, of Wahpeton; lawyer; elected to the United States Senate, 1899; re-elected in 1905, in 1911 and 1917."

And not a word more. One need not be a steady frequenter of the Senate galleries to understand that many of the men on the floor below are pleasurably conscious of the fact that they are being looked at from above, and by ladies, bear in mind, as well as by members of the gallant sex to which they themselves belong. Strutting and posturing are among the harmless and amusing vices of the Senate. Man does not ordinarily confess it, but in most cases he is more vain than woman. Protographers say so and they know.

Seemingly Porter J. McCumber does not suppose that he is either handsome or great. He is a short man (which, by the way, does not remove him from the ranks of the weak) and always is plainly dressed. Walking straight to his seat, he takes short, rapid steps, as though the quicker over the better done.

Porter J. McCumber,
Senator from North Dakota.

KEEPS OUT OF THE SKY.

Perhaps the present article is the fullest that has ever been written about this apparently self-effacing American. Nevertheless, he would never be called dumb. He arises often, and speaks—speaks without anecdote or joke and the flying he does is not in the heavens, but close to the ground, the ground whence springs the wheat, oats, flax, barley and rye that are North Dakota's bread and meat and North Dakota's sometimes unique moralities.

And yet Porter James parts his blond hair, now changing to gray, practically in the middle and plasters it down with the precision that marks all of his physical and other operations. Dignity, rather than pride, composes his atmosphere. It is not becoming in a Senator to whack a reporter on the back and the reporter is not whacked; only bashfully looked at askance. Consequently, there is a barrenness of McCumber items in the daily press.

Once in the Senate, sitting almost unnoticed at a rear desk, P. J. McCumber methodically began to look around and his mind localized on adulterated food. The great law that was later passed did not bear his name, but it had come from his pen, word for word, almost.

Also the grading of wheat became one of his favorite subjects. Chicago had one standard, Kansas City another, Minneapolis still another, and so on. The "spread" in the price of the same quality of wheat was as great in some instances as 17 cents a bushel. Senator McCumber led in the legislation that ultimately, it is believed, will establish a standard from which there can be no deviation.

Shortweighing, tricky grading and the manipulation of quotations, especially as to wheat, brought about, it is explained, the organization of the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota. And now that State, as a State, has gone headlong into several socialistic ventures. It is to have a bank and also flour mills and grain elevators.

But Porter J. McCumber is not a Socialist. "I am a Republican," he said to the writer, "and gladly bear all the odium which attaches to that classification." Such was the only gleam of humor, and it was quietly and gravely uttered, during an hour's session between Senator and interviewer.

A GOD AND A GODDESS.

"The government cannot do business as cheaply, efficiently or satisfactorily as it can be done by individuals," Porter James McCumber said. "I am opposed therefore, to all Socialistic enterprises.

"In this world—it has been so and ever will be so—things are kept going by the goddess of hope," he continued. "The poor boy longs for better days. The poor man desires a home of his own. The merchant wishes to see his business grow. The farmer plans to buy more land. The goddess of hope, smiling and promising leads humanity on. Ignorant and friendless youths become educated and useful men. Poverty is followed by comfort in countless homes.

"But the goddess of hope cannot do her great work without help—that is, not in every case. Radiant she walks in front, pointing onward. Back of the boy or girl, the man or woman, whom she is leading, must march the stern old god of necessity, bludgeon in hand. The co-ordinating efforts of hope and necessity have made the world what it is and will make it far better still in the years to come.

"The Indian in his wild state was a socialist. His tepee was good enough, because all tepees were alike. It had no floor except the earth. The difference between socialistic man and individualistic man is seen in the contrast between the wigwam and the cottage, or the mansion, if one wishes to continue the illustration that far. In the wigwam, nothing. In the cottage, everything, almost. In the mansion, the world's refinements and luxuries."

"What," Senator McCumber was asked, "is the most vitally important question before the country?"

"An honest day's work for an honest day's pay, the worker to forget, except incidentally, everything else, political and economical.

"When the country again is settled in its ways of peace and the minds of the people have returned to normal actions, matters that are now complex will become simplified. No American, loving his flag, whether he is a laboring man or a capitalist, should, by act or word, increase the difficulties that now press upon the nation."

John McMormick Buys Irish Cow.

A telegram from Greenwich, Ct., says John McCormick purchased an Irish cow the other day. It was assumed the cow was Irish, because the tenor named her Eileen, which is the name of the Irish actress, Miss Huban, and of Victor Herbert's recent Irish operetta, as well as various other persons, plays and stories of Irish descent. Mr. McCormick paid $10,000 for the cow. Two hours after the sale, she became the mother of a bouncing calf, which also will, in all probability, acquire a good old Irish name in due course of time.—[New York World.

THEATER-GOERS PAY THE PRICE.

Ticket Scalpers Reap Harvest in New York City.

Owners Recoup the Losses of the Actors' Strike.

Crowded Houses Every Night Rule in Gotham.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—"I'd like to see that now, but I won't pay any such price."

This is the remark that you hear everywhere along Broadway these days. It rises in an almost continuous refrain from the passing multitude, as it hesitates before the theaters, gazing longingly at the posters. But it is a complaint and not an ultimatum. Few really mean it, as the line before the box office shows.

The theater-going public has never been more theater going than at present. Never has there been a more prosperous theatrical season. Never have there been more appreciative audiences. Never have there been so many ticket brokers. Deprived of theatrical entertainment during an entire month because of the actors' strike, people seem to be doing all they can to make up for lost time. It is not unusual now for a house to have most of its seats bought out a week in advance by hotels and theater ticket agencies. The other night four theaters within a radius of a few blocks had nothing left but standing room when the box offices opened in the evening.

AGENCIES SOLD OUT.

A trip to the near-by ticket agencies showed them to be equally barren of tickets for that evening. A few were to be obtained for the less-popular hits, which are soon to leave New York, and these were gratefully accepted at a 50-cent premium by the people, who jostled and crowded each other in the doorway.

This sudden tremendous popularity of the theater prevails in nearly all of our large cities. One woman ticket agent in Chicago is making $5000 a week through the sale of seats on the 50-cent premium basis.

It is a well-known fact, moreover, discussed with some anxiety by the theater managers, that some of the New York ticket brokers are getting away with huge commissions every time the opportunity presents itself. There is a law which provides that ticket scalpers are prohibited from charging more than 50 cents in excess of the box office price of a ticket, and notice to this effect is printed on the back of every ticket, but this law appears to be broken regularly.

During Gen. Pershing's visit and while the world series was being played the city was unusually crowded, and the demand for theater tickets was so much larger than the supply that $5 was not at all a high price to pay for a seat in the balcony.

In view of these things, it scarcely seems possible that last summer much fear was being expressed concerning the fate of the theater. Then all the managers were complaining how the movies were ruining their business, and if it wasn't the movies it was prohibition. More things were found which were hurting the theater than were ever known to hurt any other one institution. Then the strike came along and actually did hurt it, and it has been getting along famously ever since.

STRIKE FORGOTTEN.

Possibly this accounts for the fact that the managers can now, talk with good-natured tolerance of those harrowing days when twenty-four of the leading Manhattan playhouses were closed, and when several theaters were losing $750,000 a week each. The strike is now recalled by the managers with much the same tender humor that a man feels for some bugaboo of his boyhood. After hearing them discuss it, you would think that the strike was an affair of their own invention, designed to bring about the present era of prosperity.

"The strike was practically a failure as far as the actors were concerned," declared the manager of a Broadway theater the other night. "We got everything we wanted—a five-year contract and an open shop. We can hire as many nonunion members as we want to."

"What about the extra pay for holidays and rehearsals?" inquired the reporter.

"The majority of the producing managers were already making such payments," replied the manager. "Only one large producing firm was affected by this feature, so far as I know."

Upon only one phase of the strike are the managers still sensitive, and that is the money they lost through it. The profits they are making now do not begin to cover those lost during the month of August, they assert.

The actors are also cheerful about the results of the strike. They, too, are firmly convinced that they won it—that they got what they wanted. According to them, the chief issue involved was the recognition of the Actors' Equity Association as the official representative of the actors by the Producing Managers' Association. This issue the actors won. Every day or so the two associations meet amicably and settle various complicated contract cases handed down from the strike days.

NEW ISSUES RAISED.

At first this was the only issue. The Actors' Equity Association wanted the producing managers to recognize the Equity contract, calling for extra pay for extra performances, given on Sundays and holidays. The managers refused on the grounds that the Equity represented only a few of the actors and actresses. The Equity promptly showed its importance by calling out its members from theaters which did not have equity contracts. A strike was on. Much to its own surprise, the Equity, instead of losing in popularity by this action, was immediately flooded with applications for membership. In the first week of the strike hundreds of new members deserted the theaters for its cause, and then the chorus stampeded.

The A.E.A. had not been concerned with the problems of the chorus. It had few chorus members. But it courageously determined to make the chorus' troubles its own, now that a general rebellion had been precipitated. A minimum salary of $35 a week and a clause requiring managers to provide costumes, and especially shoes and stockings for the chorus, was then attached to the Equity's terms of settlement.

These were all the actors' demands. For these things they affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Recognition for the union and clothes for the chorus caused Marie Dressler to join the Women's Trade Union League, and made George Cohan retire from the theatrical business, with the remark that he would run an elevator before he employed union actors in his productions. To which, you will remember, one of the Equity members so promptly replied that even if he ran an elevator he would have to have a card from a union. Admirers of Mr. Cohan, however, will be delighted to know that he has not been reduced to the indignity of such a position. Fortunately, the strike ended before he lost all of his money.

FIDELITY LEAGUE.

Upon only on phase of the strike are the members of the Equity sensitive, and that is the growth of the Actors' Fidelity League, the rival organization formed during the last days of the strike. With the strike over, it at first appeared that the league would get what the theatrical profession terms a "dirty deal." In other words, it looked as if the managers, having recognized the Equity, would forget all about the league of the loyal; that the actors and actresses who had refused to strike would get a less favorable type of contract than those who did. But this conclusion was wrong. The Fidelity League, instead of dropping quietly out of existence, is increasing its membership, so it says, and developing power. Only the other night it gave a large benefit performance to be used in promoting its organization, which was largely and liberally patronized by producing managers.

According to the Equity, the membership of the Fidelity is made up almost wholly of managers, semi-managers and persons with managerial relatives or affiliations. David Warfield, for example, they say, owns an interest in several theaters; Grace George is the wife of a producer! George Cohan is a producer, and nearly all the other members have been successful in the theatrical business that they no longer have to worry about their pay envelopes. Sothern's membership is rather hard to explain, so the Equity merely remarks sadly that he has been misled.

Whether or not these facts are true, the growth of the Fidelity League is disquieting to Equity members. They say they know the devious, insidious methods employed by the managers, who do not fight their grievances out in the open, but in the safe seclusion of the managerial offices. Even here they do not lose their tempers. The recalcitrant actor is never threatened, but is always promised an attractive contract. The most savage actor is apt to prove tractable under such persuasion.

But perhaps it is wrong to say that the Equity really fears the rise of the Fidelity. It merely finds it annoying. For, as one of the members declared, "here is an organization reaping the benefits of all the terms we fought for, and getting some of the biggest plums in the biggest theatrical pie we have had for years."

PERSONAL THRIFT TAUGHT IN SCHOOLS.

It will probably be news to a good many people that the theory and practice of personal thrift as a subject of formal instruction has been given a place, during the past year, in the curriculum of the public schools in a hundred or more American cities, also in the work of several hundreds of business colleges, private academies, Y.M.C.A. organizations, etc.

Practical teachers of thrift generally recognize the following content of the subject:

(1.) The teaching of the simple but systematic records of all money receipts and expenditures.

(2.) A detailed study of the everyday personal money affairs of individuals, and the application of the record-keeping system to these affairs.

(3.) Budget systems adapted both to the individual and to the home.

(4.) The safe disposal of reserves or savings in the form of thrift stamps, bank deposits, stocks, bonds, building and loan investments, and so on.

(5.) The immediate and practical application of the foregoing instruction to the learner's own money affairs, no matter how small his allowance of pocket-money or earnings may be.

The foregoing outline, of course, is mainly for the affairs of individuals who are not directly concerned in the economics of the home. Home thrift is usually offered as a separate course, and most often to classes in domestic science.

In most schools, the thrift course is given in classes that meet weekly, and, usually, in connection with arithmetic, book-keeping, penmanship, or the like. In a number of schools the work has been given to the classes in community civics. Under this plan about twenty lessons are given during each school semester.—[Carl Marshall in Thrift Magazine.

Foreign Hordes in America.

Nearly a million and a quarter immigrants came to America in the year before the war, and ten millions of immigrants came during the decade before the war.

There are more Irish in the United States than in Ireland, and fifteen times as many Jews in New York as in Palestine. We have some 8,000,000 immigrants from Great Britain, and 6,000,000 from Germany. Our Italians would fill a city five times as large as Rome. We have twice as many Greeks as Athens, more Poles than Warsaw and more Scandinavians than Stockholm.

There are in use today in this country seventy-seven languages and dialects.—[Exchange.

SOCIETY.

ANAHEIM.

Responding to unique invitations sent last week, the teachers trustees and their wives of the Anaheim grammar school, forty in number, gathered at the Fremont school on Tuesday evening, dressed in every variety and hue, to enjoy a Halloween party. Games appropriate to the occasion, such as apple bobbing, earning apples, traveling pumpkins, etc. On being ushered into the dining-room for refreshments they found the room appropriately decorated, and they found their places by means of ghostly place cards which were handed them by a gypsy maiden.

Miss Lucille Johnston of North Citron street was hostess to the standard bearers of the J.O.C. class of the Methodist Sunday-school on Tuesday evening. The evening's festivities opened with a cafeteria supper to which all did ample justice. Later the lesson study was taken up, with Mrs. G. M. Tedrick as leader.

Mrs. W. W. Manter was a gracious hostess on Wednesday afternoon, when she entertained for the Wednesday Afternoon Whist Club at her home on Nursery avenue. The meeting opened with a 1 o'clock luncheon, dark red dahlias and autumn leaves forming the decorative motive. Covers were laid for Mmes. R. Maas J. A. Clayes, Earl Abbey, D. Jessurun, William Jackson, G. A. Gifford, Grace Adkins, Charles Harbeson, B. H. Sidnam, J. H. Garnett and Edith Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mauerhan of Katella opened their home on Friday evening to the Y.P.A. and junior Y.P.A. of the Evangelical Church, who entertained in honor of the returned service boys of that church.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCullah entertained on Sunday with an informal dinner party in compliment to Miss Dorothy Schurr of Los Angeles, who was their guest over the week-end. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Allen, Miss Carrie Evans, George Allen, James and Lawrence Sutherland.

Mrs. J. T. Lyons was hostess on a recent afternoon to the members of the Pinochle Club, with prizes being awarded to Mrs. C. E. Harbeson, Mrs. B. H. Sidnam second, and Mrs. Brastad, third.

On Monday morning, at the rectory of St. Boniface Church, a quiet wedding was solemnized, Rev. Father Browns uniting in marriage Miss Mabel Walberg and Louis Winney. Immediately after the ceremony all adjourned to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. W. Truxaw, where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. After a short honeymoon they will return here to reside.

REDONDO BEACH.

The Cap and Apron Club met in regular session at Whichelo Hall, Tuesday afternoon. Sewing occupied the attention of the members. A birthday surprise was given Miss Priscilla Benstad, a junior member, as she celebrated her eleventh birthday on that date. At 4 o'clock refreshments were served. Those present were Mrs. Clara Lantz, Mrs. Sarah Benstad, Mrs. Florence Lantz, Mrs. Mabel McNally, Mrs. Linda Boyer, Mrs. G. R. Hamilton, Mrs. Martha Gray, Mrs. Maude Mayne, Mrs. F. E. Strange, Mrs. Mabel Payne, Mrs. Annie Bishop and Mrs. Laura Strange.

The Woman's Club of Redondo Beach held the first meeting of this season Monday afternoon. The meeting was a social affair and marked the opening of the new club home in the Turquoise Building, on El Paseo. A short address was given by the president, Mrs. Sadie D. Anderson. Tea was served after the meeting. The hostesses were Mrs. E. H. Amet, Mrs. C. H. Cannon, Miss Emma Catey, Mrs. B. B. Clem, Mrs. T. A. Gould and Mrs. Andersen.

The Sigma Kappa Girls were entertained at the home of Mrs. Dora Davis, Monday evening. Several of the members are out of town, which made the attendance small. A delicious two-course supper was served by the hostess. The members present were Mrs. E. F. Lechner, Mrs. Ralph Burgoin, Mrs. Elwin Lechner, Mrs. Roy Heath and Miss Gertrude Phillips.

Miss Opal Geery entertained with a dinner party Sunday for three out-of-town guests. The party was given at the home of Miss Geery's grandmother, Mrs. F. J. Betts on El Redondo. Her guests were the Misses Leanora and Dorothy Hughes and aunt, Miss Lillian Hughes.

Mrs. J. E. Morrell returned Saturday from a two weeks' visit in Santa Barbara. Her mother, Mrs. A. L. McPhaul, and niece, Miss Ida Doran, motored Mrs. Morrell down and returned to their home Sunday.

SAWTELLE.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening, Veteran Masonic Lodge celebrated its thirteenth birthday anniversary. A dinner was served in the banquet room, following a meeting of degree work. In the evening the Past Masters of the lodge conferred the degrees and a big celebration was held throughout the afternoon and evening. The affair was in charge of J. L. Smith, Worshipful Master and his corps of officers.

The eighth grade girls of the Wilson school gave a banquet on Tuesday evening to the members of the football game—that so far this year have not lost a game. The boys were treated to a feast of good things prepared entirely by the girls themselves, including peach pie.

On Friday evening, October 24, occurred the annual Sunday-school banquet of the First Methodist Sunday-school in the banquet room of the church. About 200 were seated at the tables. After a bountious repast, speeches were made by some of the officers and teachers and a social hour followed.

The Burnside Relief Corps held a reception in the Odd Fellows Hall on Friday afternoon especially in honor of two recently married couples belonging to the post and corps, Mr. and Mrs. C. Griswold and Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson. A programme was given which included a mock wedding ceremony. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

The Sunday-school of the First Baptist Church held their annual picnic and rally day in the pepper grove of the Soldiers' Home on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tryon of South Second street, entertained at a turkey dinner on Monday evening in honor of their nephew, Cyril Tryon who is their guest. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Wertenbaker, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Jones, Cyril Tryon, and the host and hostess.

CALEXICO.

Mrs. P. P. Anderson has been appointed chairman for the Red Cross drive for memberships, which begins November 2 and ends November 11. She plans a vigorous campaign in this city.

Father Morris officiated yesterday at the marriage of Ernesto Garcia and Miss Emelia Martinez. Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Garcia acted as groomsman and matron of honor. After the couple left for San Diego for a short honeymoon, after which they will return here, where the groom is engaged in business.

At their home on Seventh street Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Baskin celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. This day was also the anniversary of Mr. Baskin's parents' wedding, as well as the birth of Mr. Baskin. A turkey dinner was served to the family, including Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Fahring and Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard and daughter, Gladys.

Mrs. G. W. Wilson, who has been visiting in Detroit, returned Saturday. She was accompanied by Mr. Wilson's mother Mrs. S. Brooks.

G. B. Pruitt and Miss Veva Johnson, who spent the week-end in San Diego with Mrs. Pruitt, have returned.

Miss Ruth Churchill of El Centro entertained a number of former Calexico friends this week. The party left Calexico, journeyed to El Centro and returned late in the evening.

MANHATTAN

W. L. Brown entertained his Sunday-school class of ten boys at his home, Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. F. Waters and Mr. and Mrs. E. Bull were also his guests.

Mrs. W. B. Jacobs entertained old friends from Chicago, Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Perry, who are residing at present in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Pfiefle, who have resided in Manhattan for five years are leaving here Monday to make their home in Sierra Madre.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Larson and family are domiciled in the Wahlberg cottage on Twelfth street. The Larsons are from Pasadena and have spent every fall here for many years.

Mrs. C. S. Woodbury and daughter, of Los Angeles, have taken the Thorn cottage for the winter as they plan to spend the week-ends in this city. Miss Woodbury is an instructor in the Los Angeles city schools.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hill of Los Angeles, former residents of Manhattan, were back this week visiting friends.

Bien Jolie Corsets

At $3.50 to $35.00

"Uncorseted? No! No! No!" says Paris—and as usual, women of fashion will abide by the Parisian dictates. Lucile, the famous modiste, is of the same opinion, and says, "certainly frocks and suits never more definitely demanded the foundation of a clever corset. When Paris says you should look "uncorseted," it means you should wear a corset so deftly designed as to be a part of yourself." That expresses Bien Jolie Corsets to perfection, and whether it be the very slender or the very stout woman, there is a model for her, a model that will slenderize or fill out, according to her needs.

SOCIETY.

ALHAMBRA.

Concluding its series of meetings conducted for the women of the community, the Wednesday Afternoon Club presented a programme this week with a tang of the early spirit of California. Preceding a talk by Miss Paula Dunnigan, chairman of the landmarks committee of the C.F.W.C. Senor Jose Quiroz sang in his native tongue some of the old Spanish favorites. Miss Dunnigans talk was full of interest to her hearers as she told of the daily round of life as it was lived by the early Spanish and Mexican settlers in pueblo and rancho. Miss Florentine Goodrich presented several dances as they were danced by the senoritas of an earlier day, and Miss Ramona charmed with piano interpretations.

Several wedding anniversaries have been celebrated recently, several Alhambra people going to Pomona to help celebrate the anniversaries of the Hon. and Mrs. B. B. Smiley and of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ries. Mrs. M. D. Brundage, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smiley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferguson, Mrs. L. S. Sheideker, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Ries were the guests.

Another wedding anniversary was that of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Davis of the Peacock apartments, who celebrated their cotton wedding last Tuesday. Cards and refreshments made the evening pass swiftly to the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kilts, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Islib, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Messenger of Los Angeles.

A jolly group of the younger set gathered at the home of Miss Florence Dresbach of East Commonwealth avenue for a pleasant evening around the fireplace. Marshmallows were toasted, and "hot dogs" and coffee were served as refreshments to the following guests: The Misses Lucile Scott, Stella Smoot, Julia Reed, Constance Clavell, and Melville Carpenter, Robert Fulton, Morton Caskey and Tom Reed.

Mrs. O. A. Truleson entertained two Los Angeles couples at the Eastern Star dance and card party last week, followed by supper at the home of the hostess. They were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tibble and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Newton James.

A party of Alhambra people motored to Riverside Wednesday night to be present at the banquet given for the delegates of the civic convention convening there, at the Mission Inn. They were Mr. and Mrs. Grant Lorraine, Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Corey, E. E. Bailey, J. F. James, C. Jenkins and Charles E. Hewes, former City Manager of Alhambra, but now of Alameda, were at the Alhambra table.

Miss Alyce Stodder, Miss Ethel Chestnut and Miss Dennison of Los Angeles presented a musical of charm and ability at Miss Stodder's studio, Saturday night. Miss Stodder at the piano, and Miss Chestnut in vocal selections and Miss Dennison with the violin, assisted by Mida Stodder and Betty Eldridge, wee dancers, formed the programme.

Carrol Stampoffski, at whose charming home on Alamansor street so many delightful musicales take place was responsible for another Sunday afternoon gathering last week, when guests from Los Angeles were bidden to enjoy music and a supper.

Mrs. Nellie Graham is in San Francisco attending the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star.

OXNARD.

Quite the most elaborate reception of the autumn social season took place on Wednesday afternoon at the country home of Mrs. Alfred J. Petit, the affair being complimentary to Mrs. Frank Wyman of Boise, Idaho, an aunt of Mrs. Petit, who is a guest at the Adolfo Camarillo home. A color scheme of delft blue and burnt orange was most charmingly presented throughout the reception rooms, baskets of rosebuds and dahlias being used in profusion. In the receiving line with Mrs. Petit, the hostess, were Mrs. Wyman and Mrs. George Fitzgerald. Mrs. Adolfo Camarillo and Mrs. Ernest R. Hill presided at the tea and coffee urns with Mrs. J. L. Watlington, Mrs. Myron Gabbert and Miss Isabel Camarillo assisting. Some fifty guests called during the afternoon to meet Mrs. Wyman.

In compliment to Mrs. G. G. Griffin of Omaha, who is a house guest of her sister, Mrs. J. H. Eberhart, here, Mrs. Jack Killip was hostess at an enjoyable card party on Tuesday afternoon. Prize for high score was won by Mrs. J. F. Teel, while Mrs. F. E. Gray received the consolation prize. A pretty guest prize was given to Mrs. Griffin. Following the play a daintily-appointed two-course luncheon was served.

Two weddings of more than usual interest took place during the week. The first one occurred Wednesday morning at the Santa Clara parish residence when Miss Hulda Wucherpfennig became the bride of George Lodwig, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. J. Clifford in the presence of near relatives. An elaborate wedding breakfast of eighteen covers was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Casper Wucherpfennig, prominent ranchers of this section. On their return from their honeymoon the young people will make their home in Oxnard, where the groom is proprietor of a garage.

Another notable wedding occurred Wednesday morning when Miss Esther Messer and Emil Gisler were married at the Santa Clara Church by the Rev. J. J. Clifford. Miss Alice Gerkin was the bride's attendant, while Albert Gisler attended his brother as best man. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to Roselawn, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Gisler, where a prettily-appointed wedding breakfast was served. Roselawn will be the home of the young couple on their return from the north, where they went to spend their honeymoon.

SIERRA MADRE.

In honor of her coming nuptial rites, petite Bride-to-be Miss Nina Kellogg was entertained last Saturday afternoon with a luncheon and shower party at the home of Miss Grace Pyles in Pasadena. The Halloween colors, black and orange, predominated in the decorations. The centerpiece on the table consisted of a basket filled with many miscellaneous gifts from Miss Kellogg's friends. Streamers of colored ribbon, attached to the basket, extended to the different guests seated about this festive board. Among those present from Miss Kellogg's home town were the Misses Yerda M. D. Appleby, Bae Farman, Anna Kehlet, Alice Kellogg, Mmes. Stella Dennison and George Kehlet. The bonds of matrimony between Miss Nina Kellogg and Mr. George Norris, one of the popular soldier boys of this city, will be tied at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, November 1, in the Congregational Church on Central boulevard. It is announced that although no cards have been issued a cordial invitation is extended to the many friends of the happy couple. Miss Kellogg has earned well-deserved distinction as a whistler and entertainer in dramatic circles, appearing before the public on Chautauqua circuits and the vaudeville stage in Los Angeles city.

The week-end was enjoyed by the Misses Marion and Florence Vannier in motoring to San Diego and along the seashore of Southern California, accompanied by their brother, Webster, and their uncle, Charles Webster.

After an absence of several weeks in the Bay City, Mrs. J. J. Krafft and daughter, Elsa, arrived home last Saturday.

Mrs. H. W. Topping of Central boulevard left for New York City last Saturday, where she will be joined later by her son, Earl D., who will leave Thursday by automobile for St. Louis, Mo.

At her cottage on West Montecito roadway, Mrs. L. A. Null of Long Beach entertained with a week-end party, which consisted of Mmes. L. A. Fray, S. A. Lockridge, C. Jewell and J. Rodgers of Long Beach.

Returning here the latter part of the week, after spending the summer months at Bar Harbor, Me., Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Manchester have again opened their home on Auburn avenue.

Friday evening, next, the Sierra Madre Woman's Club will open its doors for another of their popular and well-attended dances, which many of the members of the dancing set from El Monte, Monrovia, Arcadia, Pasadena and Sierra Madre are anticipating attending, it being practically one of the opening events of the fall and winter dances.

INDIO.

Mrs. M. C. Courtney of San Bernardino is spending this week with her grandchildren and old friends.

Miss Iona Black and Miss Dorothy Gordon, two Indio young ladies who are attending the University of California, spent the week-end at home.

Mrs. Dave Herbert formerly Miss Mildred Eggleberg accompanied by her husband has returned to Indio. They were married in Los Angeles October 4. Their home-coming was made the occasion of a marshmallow toast and dancing party.

Mrs. Rose Bodkin of Dennison, Tex., is visiting with her brother, C. A. Schirtliz, and will spend the winter here.

A jolly party of Indio young folks went to the Mecca dance last Wednesday. Among those in the party were the Misses Elsie Mitts, Genevieve Hamilton, Ada Patrick and Messrs. Robert Todd, Earl Barnam and Ray Padrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schuell are entertaining this week Messrs. Tom Venerable, John Thomas and A. B. Steele. The visitors will spend some time quail hunting.

The Woman's Club of Indio met last Wednesday at W. B. Parker's home, where the hostess was assisted by Miss Carrie Briar. The Woman's Club has adopted and has supported a French orphan, a little girl, for the last two years, and one of the features of the evening was the reading of a letter of thanks from her. The club will send her a Christmas box of useful wearing apparel. Miss Margaret Allen entertained the ladies present by an excellent paper on "Ancient Painting."

SOUTH PASADENA.

At a very delightfully arranged party on Tuesday evening the announcement of the engagement of Miss Mildred Trittipo of 1134 Milan avenue, to F. D. Griffith, an attorney of Los Angeles, was made to the members of the J.O.C. class of the Methodist Sunday-school, of which organization the bride-to-be is the president.

The event was held at the home of Miss Catherine Harter of 1507 El Centro street, and was announced at a reception to the newly elected president. After the business session was over the young ladies were asked to resort to the dining-room, where games had been provided. There a Jack Horner pie was opened and the blue birds told the secret of the engagement with the added word "Holidays."

Mr. Griffith formerly lived in South Pasadena at 1023 Milan avenue, and it is understood he will soon resume his residence here at the home of his sister until the time of the wedding. Miss Trittipo, whose parents reside at Indianapolis, has been a teacher in the local schools for the past eight years, having charge of the first grade at the Marengo school. She will continue to teach until the middle of the year, when a substitute will be found.

On Thursday evening the members of the Holy Family Catholic Church enjoyed a delightful garden party in the spacious and beautiful grounds of the home of J. S. Torrance on Buena Vista street from 2 until 5 in the afternoon. Games, dancing, music and a reception were included on the programme.

Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Burns of 721 Mound avenue were host and hostess on Saturday evening to their friends, the occasion being the fifty-third anniversary of their marriage. Friends brought them lovely gifts as remembrances of the event.

Mrs. S. J. Irwin and daughter have arrived here from Canada and will spend the winter in this city.

Mrs. A. E. Thomas of 1107 Brent avenue has returned from her cottage at Huntington Beach, where she has passed most of the summer months.

Mrs. Martha E. Wood of 360 Monterey road has gone to Catalina Island, where she will enjoy a stay of two weeks at her cottage. This is Mrs. Wood's one hundred and third round trip to the island, as she has owned property there for the past thirty years.

James C. Pridham of Prospect avenue and Dudley W. Robinson of Stratford avenue motored to San Francisco last week on business and stopped over at the Del Monte links for a game of golf.

Mrs. C. C. McKee and daughter, Jean, of 1107 Glendon Court have returned from an extended visit with relatives at Ashland, Or.

Miss Margaret Peters of Los Angeles was the guest over the week-end of Mrs. J. M. Cheek and daughters of 1719 Monterey road.

City Councilman Herbert D. Lanfair of 320 Pasadena avenue is spending a week at his ranch at Lanfair, near Mojave.

On Thursday evening the members of the Methodist choir, of which Prof. Abraham Miller is the director, gave a reception at the Miller home, 1727 Hope street, to the new minister and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Snudden.

Mr. and Mrs. John Andy Bauer of the Four Oaks, 1203 Fair Oaks avenue, spent several days of last week at San Diego.

VAN NUYS.

Mrs. J. H. Calhoun of Los Angeles was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William on Woodman avenue, over the week-end.

Mrs. R. G. Johnston of the Chadeayne apartments entertained Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Madeline's, eighth birthday anniversary. Those invited were Lorene Sutton, Dorothy Bates, Alice Gymling, Frances Miller, Florence DuPlessis, Maxine Stevens, Dorothy Miller, Marie DuPlessis, Elsie Flam, Phyllis Munyan, Marie Warner and Ruth Gish.

Miss Hallie Huffaker is visiting with friends and relatives in Kansas and Oklahoma.

Arthur Ford and daughter of Pittsburgh, Pa., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Ford on North Sherman Way.

Miss Mida Edmundson, who spent several days in Van Nuys as a guest of Miss Jessie Campbell, left Sunday for her home in Downey.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Streeter of West Leesdale street spent the week in San Francisco.

A twin birthday party was given recently at the home of Mrs. Munsy in honor of Miss Bessie Munsy and Miss Ethel Brand. Eight girl friends were present and enjoyed a very delightful time.

Mrs. Beryl McCoy of Long Island, N. Y., is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Thacker, on West Sherman Way. Mrs. McCoy expects to join her husband, Maj. McCoy, soon in San Francisco.

Miss Esther Mollett of East Vanowen street is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Parker of Los Angeles.

The junior class of the Van Nuys High School entertained the senior class at a delightful picnic Friday evening at Brookside Park.

REDLANDS.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Matthew Vackar entertained with a jolly dancing party at their new home on West Colton avenue on Friday evening in honor of their daughter, Viola, and their nephew, Garth Church, who has just returned from overseas. Ashleigh Barkelew, who has also just returned from France, was also an honored guest. There were about forty present and it was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the entire season.

Mr. and Mrs. William Michaels entertained at their home on Alvarado street in honor of Mrs. Caroline Runyeon, who celebrated a birthday. A jolly afternoon was spent by the twenty-five ladies present, the feature being a big birthday cake. Mrs. S. C. Main made the cake, Mrs. J. L. McLean arranged the entertainment, and Mrs. C. Buck of Long Beach had charge of the refreshments. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Runyeon, Misses Ida and Lizzie Runyeon, Mrs. William Michaels, Mrs. A. W. Hall, Mrs. Mary Hoskins, Mrs. J. T. Campbell, Mrs. T. J. Hammett, Mrs. S. Armstrong, Mrs. A. Williams, Mrs. J. D. Miles, Mrs. A. M. Patterson, Mrs. Buck, Mrs. Main, Mrs. S. Wells, Mrs. George Ordway, Mrs. B. Michaelson, Mrs. D. Strome, Mrs. Groves, Mrs. J. C. Evans, Mrs. G. F. Humphrey, Mrs. J. L. McLean, Mrs. W. D. Murdock, Mrs. H. Eller and Miss H. Hand.

The Elks are planning for a grand Halloween party to be held soon. There will be both dancing and cards and a buffet luncheon that will prove to be one of the most delightful affairs of the season for the Elks.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tunis Smith of Center street, the proud grandparents of Miss Barbara Smith, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Smith of Santa Barbara, were much interested to learn that Queen Elizabeth of Belgium had little Barbara with her all the time the royal party was being filmed at Santa Barbara. Lieut. and Mrs. Orville Emerson of this city are also happy over the fact that their little daughter was held in the royal arms of both the King and the Queen while the party was at San Bernardino. Lieut. Emerson served in the American army in Belgium.

The high jinks of the girls of Bekins hall, the dormitory of the University of Redlands, were held on Friday night and it was the most exciting affair of the season. Some wonderful costumes were displayed.

The first Saturday afternoon tea of the Country Club was held yesterday and inaugurates the opening of the social season at the club. Mrs. Frederick W. Harley is hostess for this year and presided at the tea tables yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Brookings, until a short time ago residents of this city, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on October 13 at their home in Oakland. Mrs. Brookings is the third sister in her family to celebrate a golden wedding anniversary. The affair was of especial interest, since Maj. Walter DuBois Brookings, who has just returned from France, was there to help celebrate the occasion, and the tin wedding anniversary of he and his wife will be celebrated very soon.

The many friends of Miss Jane Higbey, well-known musician of the city, who is now in a conservatory in Boston, will be interested to learn that a number of her children's songs have been incorporated in a children's operetta to be given soon by the sons and daughters of the alumni of Radcliffe College in a few weeks.

ONTARIO.

On the occasion of the nineteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McClellen, a merry group of young women friends of the latter gathered at their home, 703 South Euclid avenue, Tuesday evening to join with them in the celebration of the event. The affair was in the nature of a surprise and was planned and successfully carried out by Mrs. McClellen's sister, Mrs. Thomas N. Nolan. The evening was spent at cards and a tempting collation followed the tournament.

James G. Bracewell, J. E. McCarthy, B. C. Elliott, B. D. Gibbs, Casper Limbert and M. J. Gilbert, members of Ontario Post, G.A.R., who have passed their eightieth milestone, were the guests of honor Thursday afternoon when members of the Ontario Woman's Relief Corps entertained with a luncheon at the Masonic Temple.

In honor of the birthday anniversary of their daughter, Miss Martha Horton, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Horton entertained Thursday evening at their home, 625 South Laurel avenue.

Mrs. Thomas Fulton was hostess Wednesday evening at her home in West Seventh street to a number of young women friends at an informal supper party.

Mrs. Clara Bernhard Dossinger was hostess to a group of young women Monday evening at her home, 221 East D street. The evening was devoted to making comforters for the George Junior Republic. Present were Miss Jessie Fallis, Miss Sabra Hayden, Miss Zephy Allen, Miss Lucie Millard, Miss Marie Millard, Miss Erma Brown, Miss Ella Draper, Mrs. Eral Holmes Richardson and Mrs. Clara Bernhard Dossinger.

Of interest to a large circle of friends of the bridegroom in Ontario was the news of the marriage Sunday in Orange of Ralph M. Myers, local news agency proprietor, and Miss Gladys Dougherty of Orange. Mr. and Mrs. Myers will make their home at 328 West H street upon their return from their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. William Starbuck Fenton and the latter's mother and grandmother, Mrs. Werner Pell-Craft and Mrs. George W. Brackenridge, are now domiciled at 815 West A street, having taken the Dixie ranch house of Welles T. Ross.

WHITTIER.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cole entertained at dinner Thursday evening complimentary to Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Cole and family of Butte, Mont. The visitors have been spending some time in Los Angeles with relatives, and are leaving soon for their home. Dr. Cole and the host are brothers.

Miss Agnes Barnhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Barnhart, arrived home late last week from France, where she has been some time as an entertainer under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Newsom and family have removed to Whittier from Berkeley and are now residing on College street in East Whittier. The Newsoms formerly resided here and are welcomed back by a large circle of friends.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Edwards and Harold Coulthurst Saturday evening was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards of 212 South Friends avenue, Dr. E. M. Hulett, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating. The ring ceremony was used, characterized by simplicity. The bride and groom have grown to womanhood and manhood here, and have been popular in their circles. Mrs. Coulthurst is a graduate of the oratory department of the University of Southern California. Mr. Coulthurst was a college man till the war took him into the service. Since his return he has been in a bank at Berkeley, and in that city the newlyweds will reside.

Another wedding Saturday evening united Miss Elma Gregg, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gregg, and Harold Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Marshall. The wedding was solemnized at the bride's home, Dr. A. Rosenberger officiating. The bride is a graduate of Whittier College, the groom of Penn College. During the war he has been in France in Friends reconstruction work. At present he is a teacher in the Sutter High School, and there they will reside.

A wedding coming as a surprise to their friends was that of Miss Edna Corwin of the Los Nietos neighborhood and Harold Glass of this city. The young people stole a march on their friends, going to Los Angeles Friday and returning man and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Glass will make their home at 116 South Bright avenue, this city.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Barcroft and small son are leaving soon for Florence, Ala., where Mr. Barcroft, who is an engineer, will have charge of the construction work on a government dam in the Tennessee River. The Barcrofts have been spending the past few months with relatives here and at Redondo.

Miss Frieda Adams was the complimented guest recently at an affair given by Mrs. Ernest Priestly of 502 East Penn street. The affair was in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Adams and David

TOO MUCH COIN FOR OUR GOOD.

Some People Blame High Cost on the Currency.

Bugaboo of Inflation Nailed in Washington.

Equivalent of All Notes is in the Treasury.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—So far as you personally are concerned, you probably return an unhesitating negative, but concerning us all as a nation the question is an important one. Some people believe that we have too much money in circulation, and that this abundance of the circulating medium is one of the chief causes of high prices.

The argument is a plausible one, and it has impressed many persons. They invoke the good old law of supply and demand. If there is a great deal of money in circulation in proportion to the amount of other commodities in circulation, then, they argue, the value of the other commodities as expressed in money will rise and the value of money as expressed in these commodities will fall.

There is also a suspicion abroad that our currency is actually inflated —that the proportion of the circulating medium to the gold that secures it is too large. This last suspicion is put promptly to rest by treasury officials. They point out that every dollar in Federal reserve notes issued by a district bank to a member bank must be secured by the deposit of 40 cents in gold and 60 cents in negotiable securities. All of our issues of currency are therefore adequately secured. The idea that our currency is inflated in the sense of being unsound is a mere popular bugaboo, and one which should be laid forever to rest.

NOT TOO BIG.

But the idea that our currency is inflated in size—that it is too big for the volume of business and thereby raises prices—deserves a detailed answer. There is certainly no denying that the purchasing power of the dollar, in things we need, has decreased by half in a few years. If you have a fixed income of $50 a week it will only buy you half as much to eat and to wear now as it would in 1913. The goods have gone up, or the dollar has gone down. Put it either way you please, the results are the same to you.

Is this diminished value of your dollar due to the fact that there are too many dollars in circulation?

A question along this line was recently addressed by Senator George P. McLean of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency to the Treasury Department.

The Treasury Department states unequivocally that there is no such thing in the United States as currency inflated either in size or in value. It goes even further and states that under our present system of issuing coin and paper money, there can be no such thing as an inflated currency.

To get the facts definitely in mind it may be said that money in circulation means money in existence in the United States outside the treasury and the Federal reserve banks. This is the money in the possession of the people and used for the transaction of business. On December 1, 1918, which may be fore the war broke, there was $3,419,203,610 working in this way. On April 1, 1917, on the eve of our entrance into the conflict, there was $4,100,986,000 in circulation, an increase of more than half a billion. On December 1, 1918, which way be taken as a date near the termination of hostilities, there was $5,119,985,000 in circulation—a cold increase of $1,000,000,000 for the war period. Eight months later the amount had shrunk to $4,790,890,000. So, as a matter of fact, there is about one-third more currency in circulation today than there was in 1914, and one-sixth more than there was in 1917.

INCREASE EXPECTED.

The first point that the treasury makes is that these increased amounts of currency, under existing circumstances are not inflations. The United States is a going concern and an increase should be expected. Added to the normal increase is the logical increase necessary in carrying on a greatly increased amount of business. The amount of currency necessary should be greater each year, and especially in active years.

Furthermore, if prices and wages rise, from whatever cause the amount of currency, under the present system, has got to rise to keep up with them. If a man were operating a paint shop and working ten employees in 1916, and paying them an average of $20 a week, he would have required $200 on a Saturday night. Today he pays those men $30 a week and requires $300 in cash.

The housewife must now take along a bigger roll when she goes to market. The marketman must keep more money in his till to conduct his business. Whoever you are and wherever you live, the bulk of money that it is necessary for you to use is greater than it used to be. This means that the mass of money in the nation must be greater than it used to be. The amount of currency, say treasury officials, has not increased to a greater extent than is necessary to take care of changed conditions.

Having presented these facts to controvert the claim that the currency is inflated, treasury officials step boldly forth with the second claim. They state that there will never be any inflation of currency in this country, that the United States has finally worked out and demonstrated the effectiveness of a currency system, which is truly flexible. They state that this is a goal toward which this nation has been struggling since the day of George Washington.

The conditions under which the Federal reserve banks issue currency is the answer to the riddle. When the cotton-picking season is on in the country around Houston, Tex., a great deal of cash is necessary for plantation pay rolls. Every farmer takes a neat little package out of the bank. The local bank knows that this demand is coming. It is a member of the Federal reserve system. It has a deposit of gold at the district reserve bank at Dallas. It has plenty of other negotiable paper in its vaults, as have all banks. It decides that it will need an additional $200,000 in currency. It authorizes Dallar to charge up $80,000 against its gold reserve and sends to Dallas $120,000 in negotiable paper. Upon this security Dallas sends Houston $200,000 in Federal reserve notes.

The depositors in the Houston bank draw these out and pay them to the cotton pickers. There is a lot of cash required. There is an expansion of local currency to take care of the need.

BUSY SEASON OVER.

But along about Christmas the busy season is over. The plantation owner takes his unecessary cash back to the bank and deposits it. The cotton pickers spend their money with the merchants and these in turn deposit it in the banks. The banks get more cash than they need except at harvest time. They want the securities back that they have deposited at Dallas. They send in the currency which they had requested a little earlier and redeem their securities. The currency in the Houston district contracts. The whole thing works almost automatically. It works everywhere as it does at Houston. In this way we have an elastic currency. We have had it only two years, but treasury officials hold that its effectiveness has been positively demonstrated. Under it there can be no inflation of the currency.

All that we need now is a system whereby the purchasing power of this currency will be made as stable as its circulation is flexible.

INDIANS INVADE MINNEAPOLIS.

Three Hundred Assemble to Seek Citizenship.

Ready to Assume Responsibilities Same as Palefaces.

Declare the Indian Bureau has Outgrown its Usefulness.

[From the Kansas City Times.]

Without war paint, without a war cry, 300 American Indians swept down on the city of Minneapolis a few days ago. They were clothed in modern attire instead of aboriginal regalia, and fluent English replaced the primitive sign language. They came with a passionate appeal for justice.

The Indian bureau has served its day, according to the "chiefs" of the invading party. No longer has the government need to maintain a bureau to look after the Indians, for they are now ready to assume full responsibility as citizens of this country, and their appeal now is that they be allowed the privilege of entering into affairs on the same footing as their pale-face brothers.

Among the delegates there were at least twenty-five tribes represented, those in preponderance being the Sioux, Chippewa, Seminoles and Ojibways. Among the delegates also were many prominent men of the country—Indians who have more than proven their right to citizenship. Among these are Houston B. Teehee, register of the treasury; Dr. Charles A. Eastman, president of the American Society of Indians; Dr. Carlos Montezuma, a member of the medical faculty of the University of Chicago; the Rev. Sherman Coolidge of Denver, one of the most prominent churchmen of the West.

PETITION TO CONGRESS.

During the three-day session resolutions were drawn up to be sent to the President and Congress, asking for the abolition of the Indiar bureau. In addition, the spokesmen of the Indian seek to clothe the Indian with the rights of citizenship and the creation of those conditions which will encourage and even compel him to become a self-supporting, self-respecting citizen. They hold that the fine specimens of educated, industrious, successful Indians are sufficient in number to justify the belief that if the government had pursued a different policy by dealing honestly and squarely with the Indian, and further had encouraged tactfully and practically his adoption of civilized methods of living, there might have been recruited from the Indian population a large element of native Americans, intelligent, patriotic and useful. For their loyalty to the United States of America they are asking to be enfranchised.

Mrs. Gertrude Bonnen, a Sioux Indian, secretary of the society, offers the war record of the Indians as an example of their loyalty.

"Out of 300,000 Indians in this country there were 10,000 who enlisted for war service," she says. "They were not citizens and the enlistments were purely voluntary. Based on this percentage 12,000,000 Americans of the total population would have had to enlist to equal the record of the Indians."

Many interesting speeches were included on the three-day programme prepared for the Indians. In one of these the Rev. Philip Gordon, an Indian priest, attacked the Indian bureau in Washington, which, he said, had outgrown its usefulness. It was created years ago when Red Men were romantic and fierce rather than peaceful citizens as they are today, he said.

The second night of the gathering fifty of the Indians became actors and actresses when they presented the pageant, "The Conspiracy of Pontiac." Dr. Charles A. Eastman of Amherst, Mass., author of the pageant, directed the dramatic efforts of the Indians and played the role of Chief Pontiac. The pageant told the story of the treaty between Louis XIV of France and the Indian chieftains. Preceding each of the nine scenes a synopsis of the scene was read and the cast presented it in pantomine. Following the play the characters were introduced to the audience.

At the last meeting of the Indians the resolution to be sent to Congress and to President Wilson was drawn. The resolution set forth in detail the reason why the Indians were entitled to independence and at the same time it set forth the abuses to which they were subjected under the present Indian bureau system.

FOWL DEALINGS.

During a trip that Bud Fisher, the cartoonist, made, the train stopped at San Tamale, or some other such greaser tank town. The travelers got out to stretch their legs, and a Mexican in front of the station offered Fisher a fighting cock for $20.

Realizing what a glorious effect it would have on Villa if the Americans should arrive with that desperate bird as their mascot, Fisher pulled out $20, and the desperate bird was his. Since a fighting cock is hardly a congenial fellow traveler inside a car, Bud tied him up on the rear platform where two eating chickens were already tethered. At the next stop he went to look after his pet. Lo and behold, the eating chickens had killed the $20 fighting cock.—[Unidentified.

AFTER THE SALOON—WHAT?

BY REV. CHARLES STELZLE.

They've hung crepe on the door of the saloon—but this doesn't mean that the men who formerly patronized the saloon are dead.

Nor does it mean that the perfectly normal desires and needs of these men have been destroyed or satisfied.

Whatever there may have been about the saloon that was bad, there must have been much that was good. It is inconceivable that millions of men would daily have been attracted to the saloon if everything its opponents said about it and those who ran it was true.

Let's glance at a few of the reasons why the saloon won the average man—no doubt they will help us formulate the features which should be found in the saloon substitute.

The saloon was a normal institution—there was nothing strained about it. Men weren't made too welcome. Few restraints were imposed upon them. Those who conducted it made themselves as inconspicuous as possible. They frankly accepted the perfectly sound business policy that "The customer is always right."

And those who patronized the saloon never had anything special done for them. They paid for what they got. A 5-cent piece placed a man upon an equality with every other man in the place. And with his 5-cent piece the workingman could buy a glass of milk or soda-water, ginger ale or some other soft drink—and he was just as welcome as though he spent his money for booze.

The spirit of democracy was strongly developed. There was an entire absence of patronage or paternalism—things which all healthy-minded men hate. There was no one around to bid a man an embarrassing welcome or to speed him a confusing farewell.

Saloons usually made very reasonable terms with labor unions, singing societies and other social and fraternal organizations for the rental of the small halls they controlled—no matter what may have been the hidden motives. Christening parties, weddings and dances, especially among the immigrant population, were commonly held back of saloons—mostly because there was—and is—no other place for them to go.

"Let no hungry man pass my door" reads a sign in front of a Buffalo saloon. It was quite a common thing for a man who was "broke" to go into a saloon—and if he didn't look like a hobo or a bum, he was invited to help himself to the free lunch, without being urged to "go slow."

Saloons were well-lighted and warm in winter, and cool and comfortable in the summer. Thousands of clerks and workingmen were able to secure their noonday lunches at a very small charge, which were far superior to the unattractive meals served in the cheap, dirty restaurants in the neighborhood.

The personality of the saloonkeeper was an important factor. He had readily available all sorts of information—political, economic, domestic and social. He frequently loaned money to his customers, without setting up the "work-test" of the charity organization societies, and he often found jobs for those who were out of work.

If the saloon had been altogether evil, there would be no need for a substitute, but it had some most excellent features, which are going to be missed in the average industrial community. In view of this, it is folly to take seriously the statement made by a saloon fighter that "No one wants a substitute for Spanish influenza or for the bubonic plague—no more does the saloon need a substitute."

Workingmen won't write letters to the papers or held mass meetings making demands for saloon substitutes, but if social and religious workers who have helped put the saloon out of business can't see the necessity for furnishing something to take the place of the saloon, then their social outlook is exceedingly narrow.

But what? There's no panacea—there are no blue prints that outline all the details.

But in general, here are some principles that must be remembered: Whatever is to take the place of the saloon must have in it the elements of democracy, or sociability, of freedom of expression—for in the saloon the workingmen could "shake out his heart." The place must be clean, attractive, sanitary, and like the saloon, cool in summer and warm in winter. To call it a "saloon substitute" would be fatal. As a rule, it should be run by red-blooded, whole-hearted, strong-fisted men—women should ordinarily keep out.

And here are some practical suggestions, which must be adapted to local communities—remember that they won't work everywhere: Food may be provided at a little above cost. It might be a good plan to specialize upon and advertise a certain dish—like beef stew, or a good quality of coffee.

Telephonic service and booths should be installed—not only booths for private telephonic conversation, but private booths where a man may talk confidentially with his friends.

The saloon substitute in a workingman's district may run a banking department where the men may cash their pay checks.

It may seem paradoxical to say that men went to the saloon to drink water—yet many of them did. Therefore, public drinking stands or fountains should be provided. Churches and schoolhouses should be opened for labor-union meetings and other gatherings of workingmen and their families. Music is a most appealing feature, even when it is furnished only by a player-piano or a victrola—but why may not concerts at which high-grade music is regularly furnished be provided by the city in the districts in which working people live? Outdoor, directed recreation in public parks during the summer is suggested—for adults as well as children.

It is a fact that 10 per cent. of the workingmen in industrial centers ate their lunches in saloons. Why may not employers of labor furnish cheerful rooms for this purpose—again without too much paternalism?

We have not begun to appreciate the value of the drama for working people. Community masques will be found tremendously useful and inspiring.

Lounging and rest rooms are essential. Shower baths and swimming pools would be greatly enjoyed. Open forums should be conducted. Lecture courses are valuable. Schoolhouses should be more generally used for social purposes—they belong to the people.

The movies are one of the best substitutes for the saloon. Nothing else quite approaches them in this respect. The motion-picture house possesses many of the virtues of the saloon and practically none of its vices. The workingman doesn't need to "dress up" when he goes to the movie—and he can take his family. He may come and go in the dark. The average film is increasingly educational in character and the dramatic story ordinarily has an element of moral and ethical teaching that is valuable.

Reading-rooms may be easily organized. Coffee-houses are helpful, particularly to men who work outdoors, such as taxi-drivers, teamsters, and dock laborers. For these wagons or movable stands will be found useful. Soft drink parlors and billiard-rooms combined—under competent management—may be successfully run. There is a foolish prejudice in some quarters against having billiard and pool tables, simply because they were formerly used in the saloon. There is nothing inherently wrong in these games, any more than there is in cards or dominoes or checkers. "Comfort stations" or public toilets are one of the greatest needs in the average city—facilities formerly furnished only by the saloon.

It would be an ideal thing if the average saloon substitute could be conducted by the municipality or the State, for this would give it a degree of permanence which is not always possible when it is dependent upon private philanthropy for its maintenance—private philanthropy if often spasmodic.

Furthermore, when the city conducts such an enterprise it promptly eliminates the element of patronage, because the average man would look upon such an institution in the same way that he regards the public school which his children attend. He feels that to a degree, at any rate, he is a taxpayer, and that he, himself, is helping to maintain the enterprise in whose benefits he is participating.

It is frankly admitted that the best substitute for the saloon is the home—let this fact be strongly emphasized—but millions of workingmen who formerly patronized the saloon have no decent homes to go to. If, therefore, an attempt is made to shift responsibility for establishing saloon substitutes for any reason whatever, then there is a distinct responsibility for seeing to it that workingmen's homes are made more livable—that they have more sunlight, more space, and that they are given an opportunity to make these homes more attractive.

Busy.

"Bliggins says he attends strictly to his own business."

"But what is his business?"

"Just there seems to be the trouble. He has somehow made it his business to attend to everybody else's business."—[Washington Star.

THIRD FLOOR

Frocks at $39.50 Beaded Frocks!

Monday is to be a day of Unusual Value Giving.

Late whims of Vogue are translated into Frocks for every occasion.

The charm of new ideas, all of them characterizing STYLE is in all of them.

Tricotine of midnight blue, navy and Pershing shade is shaped on a diversity of lines to suit any figure. Wide military braid, self-covered buttons, braiding, embroidery or tailored straps give individuality.

Satin is used for street, afternoon and evening Frocks. One black satin frock is veiled with tunic of Spanish lace, ornamented with motifs of fine jet. Another model in black has panniers and bodice of tulle, with elaborate use of jet and ostrich. There are Satin afternoon frocks in black, navy and taupe that favor collars of laces, vestees of Swiss embroidery, beading or embroidered designs.

Tricolette, in navy or black, is given the straight coat lines to which this fabric lends itself so admirably. Plain models are trimmed with self-bands and covered buttons; while others have braiding or embroidery.

Georgette is given all the soft fullness and drapery, which give it charm. The new Browns, Black and Navy tones are given elaborate patterning with iridescent beads, self-tone or contrasting embroidery.

These are Frocks that are different in development and appearance, but—just as good in Quality and just as clever in Style, as the offerings of the past two Monday mornings.

Values that the early shoppers of the past two Monday mornings can tell the meaning of, at $39.50

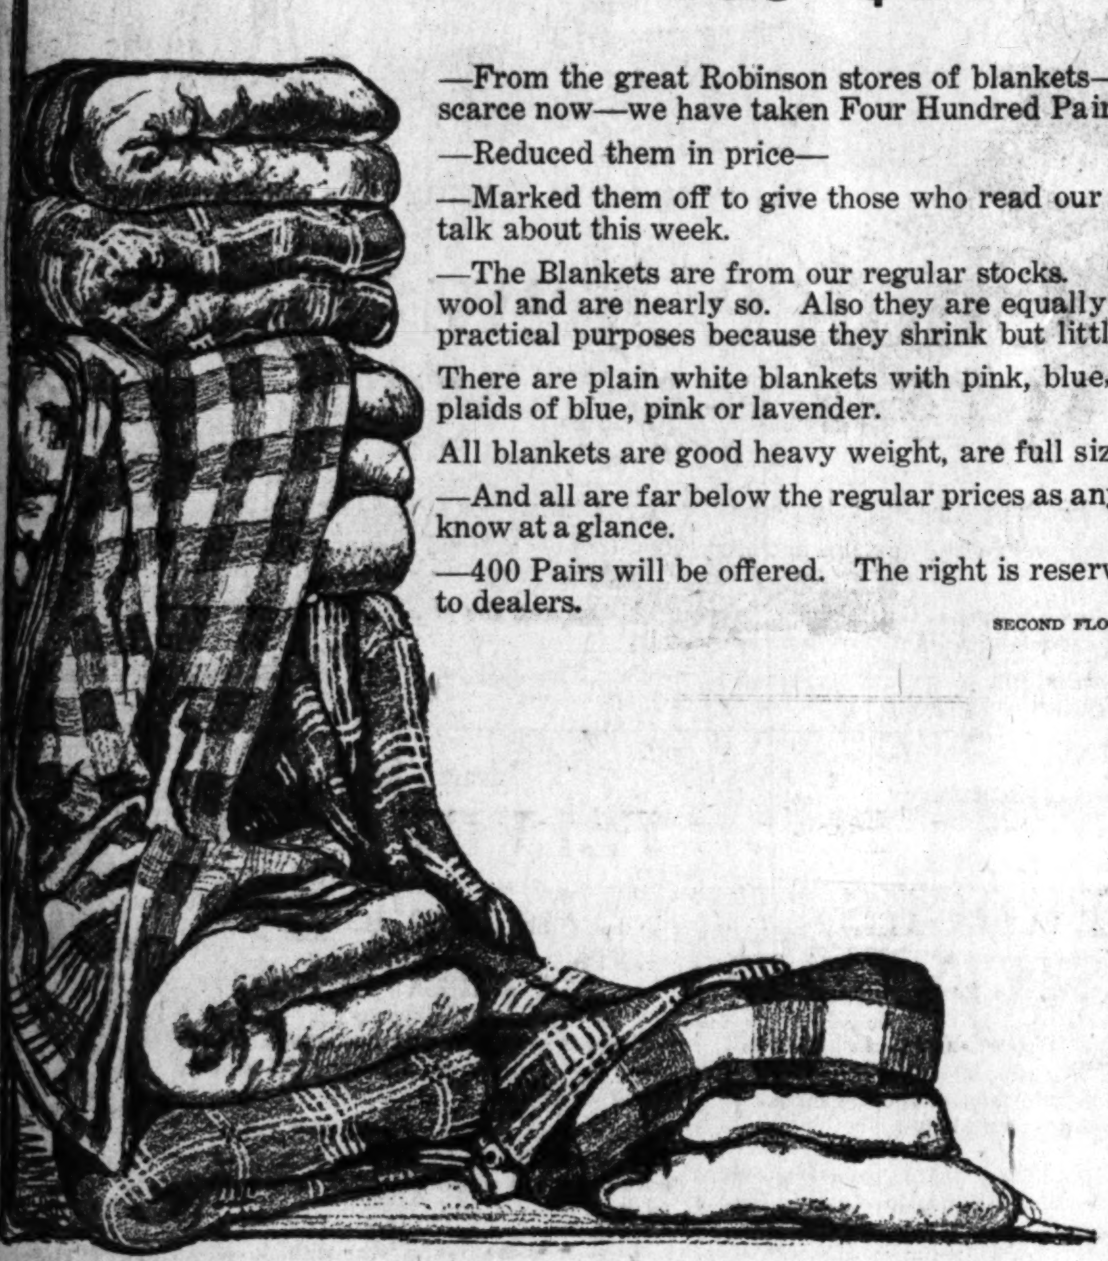
Four Hundred Pairs of Warm Winter Blankets Offered Tomorrow Morning Only At $10.00 a Pair



—From the great Robinson stores of blankets—blankets of the good quality that is getting scarce now—we have taken Four Hundred Pairs of Blankets—

—Reduced them in price—

—Marked them off to give those who read our announcements something good to get and to talk about this week.

—The Blankets are from our regular stocks. They are commercial wool, often called all wool and are nearly so. Also they are equally warm and durable and are more useful for practical purposes because they shrink but little.

There are plain white blankets with pink, blue, yellow borders and there are light, large plaids of blue, pink or lavender.

All blankets are good heavy weight, are full size and will last for years.

—And all are far below the regular prices as anyone who has bought blankets lately will know at a glance.

—400 Pairs will be offered. The right is reserved to limit quantities and none will be sold to dealers.

The Seamstress

On Self-reliance.

Well, I don't today believe in bragging. It don't do much good most of the time. Yet and still, they are a good many people what have to live on charity when they git old what would of ben in good circumstances if they had of said a little bit about what they was worth instead of always talking about what they wasn't worth.

Now I know a man what wasn't never satisfied that he could do anything. He would always "mebbe" when he ort to of said "certainly." He let his timidity and his "ifs" git away with him. . . .

Ma'm? Why, no'm I don't like to see nobudy so conceited about theirselves that they talk about nothing but theirselves. They don't never give a budy a chanct to say nothing about them, because they don't leave nothing to say. That's mighty bad. It loses 'em a heap of friends. Yes'm.

But what I was talking about is that people have got to have self-reliance if they awant to git along. This here world is a-going to think you are about what you value yourself to be. It ain't going to take you up like you was a timid little thing and make a pet of you, no'm.

Satin antique is in fashion again, yes'm. I saw a whole dress made up of it yesterday. But I think it is prettiest made with something else like plain velvet. . . .

Ma'm? Why it was brown. It looks like to me that everything what is pretty this year is brown or something like it. Mebbe the color of maple sugar or ginger or some of them rich shades.

Well, yes'm, the dark brown is stylish, too. Yet and still, it ain't quite as much worn as what the lighter shades are. And the brown what looks like taupe ain't so much worn either. No'm, this winter's brown's alive and kicking. . . .

M'am? Why, yes'm. I sure think I can make you a dress like that. I ain't so sure I can make everything. But I ain't going to story to you about it. Sometimes I do undertake things what I ain't so dead sure about. But then I try as hard as I can try and then it most ingenerally comes all right. I got to have confidence in myself. I don't reckon nobody gets along well without bein' self-reliant. . . .

Oh, yes'sm, I know it's auful hard for some folks to be. They would ruther wait to let some other folks make up their opinion for them. Maybe that is being timid and mebbe it's affecting to be attractive by being timid and then mebbe again it's just plum laziness.

Well, you can't be self-reliant onless you are honest. You can have brass and conceit. But that ain't the same thing. You have got to be just your honest self and use the material the Lord put into you the way He put it there. You can't always be looking out the corner of your eye to see how the other folks does with their material what's on the inside of them. Whenever you are found out a-doing that, why then your chances are all gone.

Mebbe you got ambition to be something more than what you were intended for. But most ingenerally you are given the power to be just exactly what you got ambition to be. Common sense will tell you not to reach out after what you can't be.

Well, satin antique is mighty pretty draped and it is mighty pretty plain and it don't cost a fortune either. Yes'm, I certainly would have it brown. Yes'm, brown is right much liked by the royalties, they tell me. They used to call it the color of a flea's back. Don't that beat you?

Well, I would have just as little trimming on it as possible. You might have it made with the skirt draped up a little on each side like panniers. (Lonny says his grandma used to wear pillows stuffed in her panniers. Lonnie? Why, that's my husband, 'course.)

Some dresses have two deep ruffles at the waist—set on there, I mean.

Well, then either the top one or the bottom one is tucked up under at each side a little and that makes it look like a pannier.

Now if you want to you can get fur to trim it, because everything this winter is a-going to be done up in fur. It looks like to me the minute that something gets up higher than smoke, they make it the style and nearly every woman will strain herself to death to have it. . . .

Well, I know, as I say it is high, but all you need would be some to put at the back of the neck and mebbe on the sleeves. Oh, my land! Just listen at me encouraging you into buying it when I know mebbe it ain't right. . . .

Why, law, where is that fitch what you used to have two years ago? I most forgot about it. Why and you had forgotten it, too.

Yes,'m, any fur you have got is stylish now, and you ort to be glad to get it. There's that old monkey muff of yours—

Do with it? Why my land, don't you know that monkey is all the style for everything, specially hats? You make you a muff of duvetyn and a collar and then you put monkey fringe on it and you got enough to make the whole hat of it put with a little ostrich fringe by the yard the color of the duvetyn.

'Course you coult have the hat made of the duvetyn, too. I think it would be more onusual if you didn't have no duvetyn on the hat, less'n it would be to have a under facing of it what didn't show much. But now you could wear that set with your black velvet dress if it was made with the brown duvetyn and monkey fur.

The ostrich fringe by the yard is right cheap, only a dollar and a half.

No'm, that's so I didn't finish telling you how to make that satin antique, but I thought I could tell you as soon as you get the goods. I see so many new things in the change of the seasons when styles are coming in that I can't tell 'em fast enough. That's how come I get switched off. Ma'm? No'm, for goodness sake don't get no cape with fur tails on it. My land, them little movies out in California just run me nearly wild with 'em.

I felt sorry for them kids not having enough courage not to buy them expensive things because other ones did it. They make a few hundred for a few weeks and then they blow it all in, without giving a thought to the time when they ain't got a engagement for a picture.

Well, you know the reason they do it. Well, it ain't because they want 'em so much. They could have another style. But they are afraid not to all look alike. They are afraid the directors and everybudy won't think they are prosperous. Because they tell me the directors don't want 'em onless somebudy else is a-trying to get 'em, and they look stylish.

Well, that's the way it goes. The directors ain't got self-reliance and the girls ain't got self-reliance and the audience ain't got it neither. We all want to see a picture because somebudy else is a-raving over it. The happiest person in the world is the feller what wants to be strictly honest and then ain't afraid to express what is on the inside of him. The one that's shifty on the inside ain't got nothing to depend on.

BUTTON SHELLS ARE SCARCE IN RIVERS.

DECLINE OF INDUSTRY LEAVES GREAT BUILDINGS STANDING IN ILLINOIS.

Correspondence from Beardstown, Ill., says: All that is left of a great industry is large buildings, many standing vacant. The mussel industry in Illinois has languished during the past few years, due to the increasing scarcity of the bivalves. In former years thousands of men earned a comfortable livelihood from this source. Beardstown was formerly the principal center of the mussel searchers. Now all that is left there is the button manufacturing plants and the memory of other days.

Before the war clammers got $5 a ton for the shells. As soon as importations ceased the demand for the shells became so great that the price advanced to $35. This had the effect of attracting a large number of men, and they have been scouring the beds of the rivers so thoroughly that the supply is rapidly nearing exhaustion.

The Illinois rivers which are set aside as a public fish preserve prohibit mussel seeking for three months prior to July 15. It is this period in which fish spawn.

The State Fish Commission believes that the operations of the mussel seekers disturbed the nests of the fish and that the fish supply was reduced in those streams where the clammers operated. This has been the only restriction placed upon the operation of the men who seek the mollusks.

The method of taking the bivalves is interesting. Small boats are permitted to float down stream, while trailing along the waterway are a dozen or more cords, each with a hook attached. The hook eventually touches the open shells. Instantly the two sections close upon the hook, and the man in the boat pulls in the line with the prisoner at the other end.

The meat is used for fertilizing purposes or is fed to hogs. The shells are collected in boats and hauled to some central point, usually the seat of a button factory. Sometimes a season's catch is hauled in by a tugboat.

The mussel seekers usually live in houseboats or tents and patrol the river in the vicinity of their headquarters, moving from point to point, dependent upon the quantity of their catch.

BICYCLE COMING BACK.

One of the immediate results of the increase in street car fares in many cities has been a wave of bicycle buying that is keeping the wheels humming in bicycle factories. In the past few weeks several bicycle plants that have been closed for years have opened their doors and resumed operations with big orders ahead.

As a means of getting back and forth from work the bicycle seems to be winning back much of the prestige it enjoyed a score of years ago. Men living within a mile or two of their work find they can pedal to business in a few minutes, and can even get home at the lunch hour. There are few factories today where for the storage of employees' wheels special arrangements are not made while men are at work.

One of the most promising features of the bicycle business is the big foreign demand, both for American bicycles and tires.—[New York Evening Post.

THE MAKING OF BESSEMER STEEL

Process a Decidedly Interesting and Spectacular One.

Operation Produces Dazzling Flames of Many Colors.

Discovered Simultaneously by American and Englishman.

[From the Kansas City Times.]

In view of the nation-wide attention now directed toward the strike of steel workers, the National Geographical Society has issued a bulletin, based on a communication from William Joseph Showalter, concerning the making of steel, which he terms "industry's greatest asset." The bulletin follows:

The story of Bessemer steel is one of the fascinating chronicles of the industrial world. It seems to have been one of those cases where two men working in different countries, each without knowledge of what the other was doing, reached the same conclusion about the same time. Both were granted American patents; but on application for renewal, the patent office held Kelly of the United States, to be the inventor. The world, however, gives the credit to Bessemer of England, and the process is known as the Bessemer process.

Kelly was a maker of old-fashioned cooking pots and kettles. It is related that one day he was sitting in front of his furnace and observed a point of incandescence where there was no charcoal—only the metal and the air. This led him to contend that air alone would burn out the impurities from molten iron. When he developed his tilting converter his engineer blew such a tremendous blast through the first charge that iron and all went up as sparks, to his discomfiture and the crowd's amazement. He finally succeeded in getting the amount of air regulated, and poured out of his converter the first Bessemer steel. People said Kelly would soon be burning ice. Since his old converter was first used, billions of dollars' worth of steel has flowed out of the world's converters.

SOME CARBON NECESSARY.

Both Kelly and Bessemer were baffled by the problem of regulating the supply of air so that it would not burn out all the carbon, a little of which is essential to steel. Furthermore, their products frequently proved to be brittle, owing to the fact that the molten metal absorbed oxygen from the air blast. The first difficulty was solved eventually by the expedient of burning out practically all the carbon then adding exactly the amount required for the specific quality of steel desired. The second difficulty was overcome through the addition of manganese to take care of the hurtful oxygen. The latter suggestion was the contribution of Robert F. Mushet, a Scotch steel maker. Goransson, a Swedish ironmaster, had achieved the same result previously by using a pigiron initially rich in manganese. Thereafter underdone and overdone steel disappeared.

To go into a great building where there is a battery of Bessemer converters is to see more heat than Dante ever pictured. A converter is a huge egg swung "amidships" on trunions. The great egg of steel lined with fire brick has the top off. Some twenty tons of molten pig are poured into it, and then through some 200 little holes in the bottom powerful engines pump in a stream of cold air. As the oxygen-laden air sweeps up through the molten iron, it touches the molten carbon and silicon, which constitute the impurities, and carries them away. Millions of red and white sparks fill the air as if some demon within the fiery fluid were giving a pyrotechnic performance. A thousand engines, with safety valves hissing under tremendous pressure, have the voice of a zephyr in comparison. First the flame that pours forth is violet, then shades into orange, becomes a dazzling white, burning finally to a faint blue which is a sign that all the impurities are gone.

A TON OF STEEL A MINUTE.

Then the blast ceases, the carbon that is necessary to replace the needed portions burnt out is added, the great brick and steel egg swings back into position, the carbon is mixed with the fervent fluid, and then the egg tips over on its side and out of the top flows the liquid steel into a great ladle. When it is swung back into position a man with colored glasses walks out over the converter and peers down into its white-hot depths to see if the heat from the last charge has melted away any of the fire brick lining. If it has, he hurls balls of putty like clay down into the holes to stop them up, or sets a crew of workmen to patching the damaged shell. This done, the big egg swings back again, gets another charge of molten iron, and begins the process over again. The whole operation takes about twenty minutes—a ton of steel a minute. Bessemer steel is used for structural material, railroad rails, wire and pipe.

In 1900 there was twice as much steel produced in the United States by the Bessemer as by the open hearth process. But with the rapid exhaustion of ores having the proper amounts of phosphorus for converter practice, the open-hearth furnace, which can use with equal success ores which contain either a large or a small amount of phosphorus, largely replaced the Bessemer converters.

WAGES FOR WIVES.

The other night a Philadelphia audience, largely made up of women, gave a decision in a debate against a proposal to require husbands to pay wages to their wives. The idea did not prove at all popular. One speaker drew a dismal picture of romance with wives working for wages.

"Imagine a scene like this," she said:

"Honey do you love me?"

"Of course, I love you."

"Then will you marry me?"

"Well, maybe; how much do you pay?"

And we would have notices like the following, the Philadelphia Ledger suggests:

"Married—John Brown and Mary Smith by the Rev. Russell H. Conwell. They will live in Logan and the wife's wages will be $15 a week."

Scenes like the following in court were forecast:

"Judge, he hired me for $20 a week and he is now two weeks overdue in my pay. I'm going to get a new boss."—[Buffalo News.

MUSICAL.

REHEARING FOR SEASON.

WOMAN'S ORCHESTRA PLANNING CONCERTS.

Special preparations are being made by the Women's Symphony Orchestra, Henry Schoenefeld directing, for their season of concerts which will take place after the Christmas holidays. The orchestra is now rehearsing, and it is planned to present various novelties this season.

Mr. Schoenefeld has written a minuet for trumpets, which it is expected to perform, as the bass section of the orchestra has been strengthened. Another composition he has arranged for orchestra is a Canon in B minor, originally for organ, written by Schumann.

The orchestra at present is studying the "Don Giovanni" overture and the "Carneval" overture by Dvorak.

Director Schoenefeld also plans to play a movement or two from each of the fourth and eighth symphonies of Beethoven, which works have not been presented in this city for a number of years.

Oratorio Monthly Socials.

To stimulate interest in the work of the organization, and to afford members an opportunity for pleasure as well as business, the Los Angeles Oratorio Society is now devoting a portion of the time allotted for every fourth rehearsal to a musicale. At the last programme, Monday evening, the following musicians took part: Clemence Gifford, Helen McWilliams, Max Alexander and Elizabeth Mensen. Director Smallman believes that the plan also affords a chance for developing individual talents of members of the organization, and thereby strengthening the ensembles. He reports very encouraging progress in the studies the society is engaged on at the rehearsals.

Sanders Violin Recital.

Davol Sanders, violinist, head of the department for that instrument at the college of music, University of Southern California, will be heard in recital Thursday evening at the Ebell Club House. Mr. Sanders has already appeared locally before the Music Teachers' Association and the Gamut Club, but this is his first public programme.

He has chosen selections that are a test for the technical and musical equipment of a violinist.

Adelaide Trowbridge, a member of the faculty of the college of music, will assist at the piano.

The following are the musical numbers to be played:

Sonata, G minor. Opus 78. Vivace ma non troppo. Adagio. Allegro molto moderato.	Brahms
"Romance"	Wagner
"Swedish Dances"	Bruch
Sonata, G minor, for violin alone. Adagio. Fugue. Siciliano. Presto.	Bach
"Berceuse"	Arensky
"Two Dante Melodies"	Davol Sanders

Study Club Resumes.

The Beethoven Club, conducted by Lillian Adams Licknaitz, 740 Marco place, Venice, held its first meeting of the season recently. The club is composed of young piano students, and the sessions are devoted to the study of composers, and to recitals.

Officers for the club are chosen from the young students. The following were elected for the ensuing year: Viola St. Germain, president; Doris Fowler, treasurer; Helen Boehme, secretary. A short programme was given by the students.

Dorsey Cain Recital Soon.

The first of the series of three song recitals by Amon Dorsey Cain, baritone, is announced for November, 3. The programme will be selected from the singer's repertoire of operatic arias, classic and modern songs, and he will be assisted by Mrs. Cain.

Novelty Programmes.

Miss Frieda Peycke has arranged a new series of her original programme for the coming season, many of them being new compositions. These are selected from the following general topics, "Fables and Legends in Prose," "The Charms of Nature and Their Lessons," "Humor and Philosophy" and "The Whimseys of Boys and Girls." Miss Peycke states that in her musical settings she has endeavored to really illustrate the story, and follow the author's mood so that the audience may not only see the picture, but live with the characters and receive the individual message.

Plan Joint Recital.

Victor Carly, French dramatic baritone, and Kathleen Shippen, pianiste, are planning a joint recital during the present musical season. Mr. Carly has a repertoire of opera and lyrical numbers and Miss Shippen has engaged in composing as well as piano recital work. Both musicians were recently heard at a meeting of the Southern California Woman's Press Club, assisted by Elsa Manion, violin pupil of Gregor Cherniavsky, and Gilda Marchetti, mezzo-soprano.

Recital of Song.

Mme. Felician Romanoffska will be heard in a song programme Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Armstrong, 2617 Hobart boulevard.

Music Teachers.

A social meeting will be the next feature of the Los Angeles Music Teachers' Association programme for the coming season. It will be held at the Fowler apartments, on the corner of Union avenue and West Washington, Wednesday evening. The attendance on the recent discussion of "Music" in the high schools of the city was very large and enthusiasm was manifested.

SASLAVSKY SAYS PROGRESS IS GOOD.

Alexander Saslavsky, concert master of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, who, because of his broad experience, is qualified to give an opinion on the subject, expresses himself as well satisfied with the progress made by the orchestra under Mr. Tandler's direction, during its first week's rehearsals.

"It is needless to say that the first instruments of the orchestra are of the first rank," said the violinist. "However, what really impresses me the most is the new men in the ranks of the strings, and their enthusiasm and willingness to learn. And I have no doubt that this orchestra will be recognized on a par with any of the fine eastern orchestras. I also think that Mr. Tandler, the conductor, is a very talented musician, full of enthusiasm and creative power."

Russia is a little in the majority in the nationalities represented on the programme which is to open the season of the Los Angeles Symphony November 21. It is the Russia which was so mentally active ten to fifty years ago, and not the anarchist-ridden nation of today. Russia is represented by Tschaikowsky, in his first venture into symphonic writing and —jumping across forty years—by Stravinsky, a composer, who is now living in Switzerland, and who probably has yet to do his greatest writing.

France is represented by Chausson, one of the most idealistic of the modern French writers, a pupil and admirer of Cesar Franck.

America is most characteristically to the front with an overture dedicated to the memory of "The Pioneers." It is by Rossetter G. Cole of Chicago, and was written last year at the MacDowell colony at Peterborough, N. Y.

Mozart appears on the programme also.

STARTING :: CONCERT :: SERIES.

Which will Extend Through the Season.

Zoellner Quartette,

Whose first programme of a series of ten will be given Tuesday evening at Ebell Club Auditorium.

AROUND THE MUSIC WORLD.

BY EDWIN SCALLERT.

That the Sistine Choir, which lately has been giving concerts in New York City, will not be brought to Los Angeles this season, seems a settled matter. The organization may not even be able to come farther West than Chicago, owing to curtailing of the time allowed for them in this country. Until quite recently, however, they have been booked for concerts in the Northwest territory, under the management of Sol Lesser, prominent in the motion-picture business and other lines of theatrical enterprise.

For a time it was thought probable that two concerts would be arranged for the choir in this city. The organization is one of the most costly which has ever appeared in this country. Their tour has been a unique event of the early metropolitan season, owing to the fact that it is without precedent.

Hertz in Fifth Season.

It looks as if Alfred Hertz were in San Francisco to stay. The former conductor of the Metropolitan Operahouse Wagnerian productions, has just opened his fifth season with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, and the concert was one of the most successful ever given by the organization, both in point of attendance and the performance of the musicians. In fact, there has been a most auspicious interest in the orchestra this year.

Hertz does not altogether forget his old love, Wagner, for he included the Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" on his first programme. The symphonic work presented was the No. 2 in D major by Brahms, while the chief novelty was "Fetes," by Debussy.

Changing Their Roles.

Speaking of Hertz, starts the question—What is coming over all the operatic conductors these days? It looks very much as if the symphony orchestras offered far more attraction than the lyric dramatic stage—or what is nearer the truth the opportunities, at least in this country, are greater. Our own local Philharmonic conductor, Rothwell, is a man of large operatic experience. In fact, a few years ago he was known only in this capacity to musical devotees. Hertz switched from opera after the presentation of "Fairyland," in this city. Probably he had enough of it after Horatio Parker's work.

Beside these men in the West, there is Bodavzky in New York, whose New Symphony Orchestra promises to be a startling success. And across the seas there's Toscanini.

As a rule, the operatic experience does help to lend greater popular interest to the interpretations of a conductor. The dramatic spirit is as necessary in symphonic renditions as for the stage, and certainly the opera appears to be a good school for graduating successful symphony directors, for all of the ones I have mentioned are reaping laurels in their new roles.

Likes Cinema Work.

Since this column seems to be very largely concerned with symphony conductors this week, it is not out of place to mention what the founder of the first local symphony orchestra is doing these days. I mean Harley Hamilton, who for many years contributed a very important share to the upbuilding of musical taste in this community. Hamilton has gone into the picture game. That is, he has lately become very much interested in the arranging of music to the films, and is enjoying it exceedingly. Mr. Hamilton assisted Lou Gottschalk in the preparation of the score of "Broken Blossoms," but he has also done some original work. Because of his long orchestral experience, he has shown especial capacity for arranging large instrumental scores. Hamilton says he didn't regard the music for the pictures very seriously at first, but that it is a different story now, because the field is growing day by day.

Clark Marks Appreciation.

A real Massenet manuscript is something to be prized, and Conductor Rothwell of the Philharmonic is enjoying the possession of one these days. It was a gift from W. A. Clark, Jr., immediately before the first concert, as a token of appreciation for Mr. Rothwell's achievement. The composition is written around verses of Paul Cottier, for solos, voices and chorus. The manuscript contains nine folio pages. The dedication to Mme. Durand Ulback in Massenet's own clear handwriting is interesting: "Dear Madam, I have just run across these pages written nine years ago. The work was composed in 1877 some weeks after the first presentation of "Roi de Lahore" at the opera. Permit me to offer it to you who were the first to make known the poem, and who gave it with such exquisite sentiment and sympathy."

Mr. Clark also presented to Sylvain Noack, the concertmaster of the orchestra, a violin case of the Louis XV period. Both the score and the case were procured by Mr. Clark during his travels.

Stay in the North.

Changing the subject from orchestral to choral directors, I have recently had a letter from Arthur Claassen, who formerly occupied a distinguished position in New York music, and later resided in the South, to the effect that he has decided to remain in San Francisco. Claassen passed through here last summer, and at that time expected to settle in Los Angeles, with a view to organizing a chorus. From the north he wrtes that he will do there what he had planned in Los Angeles, and indicated in his letter that he is meeting with encouraging results.

Claassen was recommended as conductor of the Brooklyn Arion Society by Dr. Leopold Damrosch, upon his arrival in this country, and led that body for twenty-five years, as well as one or two other choral societies. Later he settled in San Antonio and founded the symphony society there.

Noah as a Financier.

Smithson: Do you know that Noah was the greatest financier that ever lived?

Dibbs: How do you make that out?

Smithson: Well, he was able to float a company when the whole world was in liquidation.—[Tit-Bits.

HOPE ABANDONED.

"Conscription has, maybe, saved the country," growled the Tommie, "but what I object to is the company it drives a man into. I'm a plumber by trade and an honest workman, yet I'm compelled to suffer the society 'o such professionals as a lawyer, a minister and an auctioneer."

"Not a bad selection at that, Bill," remarked his friends.

"Oh, maybe not in a way; but when the minister and the lawyer start and argument on Egyptian law in the middle of the night across a half dozen beds, what chance has even a plumber of stoppin' the gas leak?"—[Minneapolis Tribune.

Pumpkins on Housetop.

Edward Wiley, Big Four operator at Adams, has two pumpkins attracting more than the ordinary amount of attention. The pumpkins are growing on top of his house, and he says they are almost as big a drawing card as the famous "tree on the tower" at Greensburg. He planted the seed last spring and trained the vine at the side of the house.—[Indianapolis News.

MATINEE CONCERT BY INDIAN SINGER.

The first afternoon concert of the Philharmonic concert series will welcome the return of the Indian Princess Tsianina, mezzo-soprano, and Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer-pianist. It is scheduled for next Saturday afternoon, at Trinity Auditorium.

Tsianina (Wildflower in English) was born in the Creek nation and is the honored daughter of one of the last chiefs of the Creeks in Oklahoma. She is gifted both in voice and intelligence.

She was a pupil of the Eufalia Indian school, studying piano, when her voice was discovered several years ago. It was trained at the expense of the Creek nation, who have the utmost faith in her continued success and reflection of merit upon her own people.

She is the only daughter of her race among those who have left the reservation life to mingle with the whites, who still clings to the traditional dress. She invariably wears a garment of beaded leather, and also moccasins and a beaded band about her head. In cold weather she adds beaded leggins and a blanket cape or coat of buckskin and seal fur to her costume.

Her loyalty to this original mode of dress of her ancestors is due, primarily, to the expressed wish of her mother, now dead. Her mother begged her always to retain the individuality of her race in the matter of dress. Never, save for a few years when she attended the government school and was obliged to adopt the uniform there prescribed, has Tsianina abandoned her Indian garb.

MARIE TIFFANY, SOLOIST, AT "POP."

Soloist at the first "Pop" concert of the Philharmonic Orchestra next Sunday afternoon, will be Marie Tiffany, formerly a resident of this city, who for the past several seasons has been appearing in opera at the Metropolitan. Miss Tiffany was a very popular singer here, owing to her lovely lyric soprano and charm of personality. This is the first time she has returned to California since her broader experience in New York.

Conductor Rothwell has chosen the Elgar Pomp and Circumstance March to open the programme, followed by the lovely ballet music from Massenet's "The Cid." The Adagio Pathetique (Godard,) and the Prelude to Act III "Lohengrin" (Wagner,) give the necessary foundation to the programme, while the Tschaikowski Andante Cantabile for all the strings will bring this section of the orchestra into prominence. So many requests have been received to repeat the famous "Oberon" overture (Weber,) at a popular programme, that the announcement of its inclusion will be a welcome one. Mrs. Tiffany will sing two arias from grand operas, one by Mozart.

Marie Tiffany,

Soloist for first popular concert of Philharmonic Orchestra.

The entire orchestra of ninety musicians, the same in each instance as played the symphonic programmes of Friday afternoon, and last night, will be assembled for the popular concerts, it is announced.

Students Plan Opera.

Sunday musical salons will be resumed by the Egan school this season, under the direction of Roland Paul, head of the vocal department, with Mrs. Paul assisting. Six advanced students will be presented in recital, and a full production of "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be given by students, assisted by the Helvetia Society, of which Mr. Paul is director. He himself will sing the role of Turiddu.

Mr. Paul gave his first programme of the season before the Woman's Club of San Bernardino Wednesday afternoon. Miss Winifred Hook was at the piano.

Oscar Selling and his wife, Louise Gunning, have just returned to resume their association with the Egan school.

Piano Pupils Heard.

A piano recital was given by the pupils of Edith R. Sherfy Friday evening at the Kendis apartments. The programme included compositions by Grieg, Chopin, Spindler, MacDowell, Friml, Chaminade, Heller, Paderewski, and others, among them the "Sylvia Waltz" by Grunn. Students taking part were Alta Eagan, Jimmie MacDonald, Beatrice Gale, Austin Gale, Carolyn Brown, Allan MacDonald and Eleanor MacDonald.

Warde Studio Salon.

Marion Warde entertained at a studio salon, in Blanchard Hall, Friday evening. The programme was presented by Fern Melrose, who sang operatic songs; Miss Elanor Fenelon of the Shubert Players, who recited; Dr. Brancroft, tenor soloist; Miss Erline Des Chaines, who sang an aria from "La Boheme," Miss Winifred Wynne-Hope, of Douglas Fairbanks' studio.

Miss Warde's dramatic art students appeared on two programmes last week, one for the Fraternal Brotherhood Club and another for the Woman's Society of the Atherton Baptist Church. Prominent on the programme were Messrs. Kenneth Chryst, Murray Tweedy and J. Newton Thompson. The Misses Sara Peyton, Bessie Reitz, Ruth and Freda Tweedy and Baby Lillian Whiteford.

Johnson, Tito Schipa, Bonci, Titta Ruffo and are names fit to adorn ; and they're either new or as good as new to the public. Ruffo has not sung here in several seasons, nor has his baritone colleague, Galeffi. The first has the wonder voice of the day, which atones for interpretative shortcomings he occasionally shows. Galeffi is a great artist whose return we all hail.

Our interest in the diminutive Bonci is also keen, but it expands when we consider those two other tenors—Johnson and Schipa. If the American duplicates his La Scala successes, his mantle should be of rich purple, such as is cut for an artist who is one of the "few."

Schipa is more of a mystery. Tales which do not match have drifted up from South America, where he has recently sung. Some pronounce him a singer having the rare lyric tones one seeks but seldom finds, while others classify his voice as of the dramatic type. Well, we shall shortly find out.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza has some newcomers to offer who should make places for themselves; possibly one or two who may prove an agreeable surprise. I have in mind the Italian contralto, Gabriella Besanzoni, and Mme. Melba's coloratura soprano protegee, Evelyn Scotney. As dissimilar as their respective voices, these singers. Mlle. Besanzoni is dark and temperamental, Miss Scotney fair and serene.

Less promising—though, of course, one never can tell—are the other Metropolitan newcomers. Great things can scarcely be expected during a first New York season of the American contraltos, Carolina Lazzari, Jeanne Gordon and Frances Ingram. Nor is Orville Harrold likely to leap suddenly to unattained tenor heights. Renato Zanelli is a South American baritone who comes "well recommended," which is not enough praise to cause a flutter to the pulse.

I found a throng pushing through Carnegie Hall's doorways to attend Toscha Seidel's opening recital. He is stockier even than a year ago and a steadier violinist in his playing. One newspaper critic didn't agree with me, yet most of the reviews recognized the boy's rich tone and his truly remarkable capacity for expressiveness; "color" is the word the experts use. The audience was one of genuine music lovers who disclosed discrimination in bestowing applause upon what earned it. Unless I am mistaken Seidel will go farther this season than he did last and add to his following.

Max Rosen, too, excelled his previous best efforts at his first autumn recital, though not sufficiently to provoke any excitement. He is a capable fiddler, yet scarcely a great one. And he continues to suffer from the effects of a heralding which most of us felt to be unjustified optimism. He persists, nevertheless, and may one day attain the coveted niche; for he is musical and has an engaging personality.

Back again for a piano recital, as tall and fleet-fingered as ever, came the Russian composer-conductor-pianist, Serge Prokofieff. Classic numbers dominated the programme in all of which the fair-haired, immobile-featured visitor commanded respect. He left untouched, however, our emotions. He usually does, save in the climaxes of a bravura work where strength and brilliance count.

At the close Prokofieff offered a group of his own compositions; not the weird sort which helped him to fame as a "futuristic futurist," but several lighter bits such as do not leave one's hearing so thoroughly confused.

"The world's greatest opera quartette" was sufficient advertisement to pique our curiosity, so I went to the Hippodrome to hear it. With Charles Hackett ill and Guiseppe De Luca somewhere between here and Italy, only 50 per cent. of the announced operatic greatness answered the roll call. Frances Alda and Carolina Lazzari were those "present," the substitutes being Morgan Kingston for Hackett and Thomas Chalmers's baritone in place of De Luca's. I heard, in the course of the evening, some agreeable singing, but nothing equal to some we have known—not quite.

I had hoped for some unusual developments from the New Symphony's opening concert. Managerial assurances of an improved orchestra personnel led me to such a belief and into writing to that effect in last week's article. I prefer now to wait until Conductor Bodanzky has had more time to rehearse his men. It will perhaps be fairer; and justice is a quality to which we believe in holding fast. The outstanding feature of both concerts was Mr. Bodanzky's directing. He is a rare musician and leader.

If late in the year to catch the fragrance of "Apple Blossoms" the operetta of that name, in which Fritz Kreisler had a hand, may be heard at the Globe Theater. It will be in season for a long time, if nothing happens to close the theaters again. Fine musician and artist though he is, Kreisler does not deserve the principal credit for pleasing our ears; VBictor Jacobi is entitled to that.

"Fritz" hasn't gone far down the musical well of originality for his "Apple Blossoms" contributions. I caught in one number a phrase from Richard Strauss's "Till Eulenspiegel," and some other fragments easily traced to the source of supply. The Jacobi facility for writing in a superior musical comedy vein saved the day—or night. All in all "Apple Blossoms" is charming entertainment, admirably presented by a company so far above the usual that it deserves its success. Rather more than the Society of American Singers "Boccaccio," which recently opened its season at the Park.

Everyone was overstrenuous in the revival of the delightful old Von Suppe operetta. Nevertheless, the large audience appeared happy. I don't wish to minimize the commendable achievements of William Hinshaw's company; they are considerable. And they supply an evident need. Insufficient rehearsals, however, constitute a handicap too heavy even for such experienced principals as Craig Campbell, Morton Adkins, Ruth Miller and others appearing in the capable cast. No doubt, as the Park season progresses, improvement all around will make for the artistic standard sought.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

To the young woman who wrote asking counsel with respect to a singing career there is much to say. Briefly, however, I would suggest that she seek expert and unbiased opinion from those convenient for her to see. Voice is essential, but it is perhaps the least one of all. Intelligence, health, perseverence, personality and temperament often carry a singer farther than others with finer voices who lack in these respects.

But before starting out to make a career be certain that the chances for success are above 50 per cent. Ascertain how much it is to cost before the earning days arrive. Come if necessary, to New York, where expert advice may be had. It may be cheaper to spend money and time in such a journey than to try to save by patronizing what is nearer at hand. For what is accessible is not always the best.

INDIANA HUNTERS SHOOT MOOSE.

Dr. Franklin D. B. Smith of East Chatham and W. J. Spence of Spencertown have returned from their three weeks' hunting trip in the Canadian forest. They went to the Lake Edwards district, 111 miles north of Quebec, to a section that had not been penetrated by white hunters since 1907. Both shot moose and caribou, Mr. Spence's moose weighing 1600 pounds, measuring eight feet from foot to top of shoulder and having a horn spread of five feet. The two Cree Indian guides from St. Johns said it was the largest moose shot in that territory in many years. The hide weighed 140 pounds. It was given to the guides who will use it in making snowshoes. The caribou were placed in cold storage and will be shipped here when weather conditions are favorable. The moose head Mr. Spence is to have mounted.

The amount of food and equipment carried by the guides was a revelation to Smith and Spence. In addition to a canoe, each guide packed 250 pounds from lake to lake on the journey. Smith and Spence each carried 150 pounds. The trip took the hunters 553 miles from home. They went from Chatham to Montreal by automobile, a distance of 270 miles. On the return trip they covered this distance in eight hours, an average speed of nearly thirty-four miles an hour.—[Indianapolis News.

Grasping for Opportunity.

Once, when Sir Marcus Samuel was Lord Mayor of London, a certain civic dignitary, who was noted for his talkativeness, complained of the conduct of a fellow-guest at one of the Mansion house receptions.

"Mr. Jones isn't very polite," he grumbled. "He yawned three times while I was talking to him just now."

"Now maybe he wasn't yawning," objected Sir Marcus. "Perhaps he was only trying to say something."—[Unidentified.

IT'S ALL IN THE NAME.

Col. "Bill" Hayward of New York's Fighting Fifteenth Regiment is a rival of Irvin Cobb as a story teller. Here is one of his latest:

During the early days of the Fifteenth Infantry's sojourn in France, some of the men were used to carry up ammunition to the artillery. At first each man carried only one shell, but as the need became more pressing they undertook heavier loads, until many of them were staggering along under the weight of four or five of them. Finally one of the soldiers, whose back was bent from the task, stepped up to his sergeant, and asked:

"Sergeant, how you all got my name on the list?"

"I've got it all right," replied the other. "You're Private Simpson, ain't you?"

"Ye-es sir," answered the ammunition carrier. "But how you all got my name spelled?"

"Why, S-i-m-p-s-o-n-," replied the sergeant.

"That's right," said the soldier, wiping the sweat from his brow. "I thought mebbe you had it down Sampson."—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ODD CUSTOMS IN LIBERIA.

Ceremonies When Young Folk Reach Marriage Age.

Dense Forest and Primitive People in the Interior.

Only About Thirteen Feet of Rains During the Year.

Liberia, whose President-elect is touring the United States, is the subject of the following bulletin from the National Geographic Society, Washington:

"The African republic, America's only colony, has an area equivalent to that of Kentucky. But of the 2,000,000 or more inhabitants only about 50,000, of whom one-fourth are of American origin, may be considered civilized and take a part in the government.

"Liberia is situated on the west coast of Africa at the point where the coast line makes the great bend to form the Gulf of Guinea. Its position puts it directly on line of ocean communication between Europe and South Africa and points reached by way of Cape Good Hope.

"Its southern boundary is its Atlantic Coast line of some 350 miles. On the west is the British colony of Sierra Leone, where futile attempts at colonization were made before Liberia was reached, and on the east and north are French possessions of the Ivory Coast and Niger Basin regions.

"There are quaint customs among the natives, many of them bearing a similarity to civilized practices, such as the Mandingo method of courting by presents which, if accepted, signify a tacit consent to further attentions, and the wearing of mourning bands, not upon the sleeve, for the native garb is often exceedingly scant, but around the fingers or about the head. These bands are made of dried grasses or palms.

FROM ADOLESCENCE.

"Other practices are not so harmless. Especially objectionable, some travelers report, are the initiation ceremonies when the young folk reach marriage age. These are conducted by the 'he-bogeys' and 'she-bogeys,' respectively, for the sexes, and while they include some instruction in duties of fatherhood and motherhood, often are orgiastic in character.

"Now that the stream of colonists has long since stopped, the future of Liberia lies in the natives, ranging from barbarity to the verge of civilization, but practically all splendid raw material for civilizing influences.

"There are no pigmies in Liberia, and some tribes, such as the Mandingoes, are fine physical specimens, with a pronounced European cast of features.

"For some forty or fifty miles back of its coast Liberia has been cleared and developed, but from that imaginary line inland there are dense forests, primitive people. Sir Harry Johnston encountered beasts, birds and reptiles living today which, he wrote, 'are found fossil in Miocene formations of France and Southern Germany.'

"A FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY."

"Thus, there is the contrast of one of the unique experiments in political annals—Stevenson referred to Liberia as 'a footnote to history' —set amid the least known region of the erstwhile 'dark continent.'

"Planned as a reparation for the seizure of its natives as slaves, and an experiment in transplanting a far-flung race once more in their native soil, the beginnings of Liberia had many contact points with early American history.

"It will be remembered that the movement for emancipating slaves had its beginnings a year after the Declaration of Independence was signed, with the abolition of slavery in Vermont, and that, as early as 1803, the importation of African slaves into this country was prohibited. Meantime, George Washington, having set the example, many slave owners made provision in their wills for freeing their human property.

"LAND OF THE FREE."

"Thus it came about that the freedmen's problem antedated the Civil War by half a century, and Henry Clay presided over a meeting in Washington in 1816 to form a colonization society. Bushrod Washington was the first president of that society, formally organized on New Year's Day in 1817, and after several expeditions had met with misadventures through epidemics and opposition of natives the Rev. Jehudi Ashmun, in 1821, founded Liberia.

"The country's name, signifying 'Land of the Free,' and that of the principal city, Monrovia, in honor of the then President of the United States, are variously attributed to the Rev. Ralph R. Gurley, Ashmun's friend and biographer, who drafted the first Liberian constitution, and to Robert G. Harper of Baltimore, a patron of the colonization movement.

"Within a decade of Ashmun's arrival the American population had risen to nearly 1500, a daily newspaper had been started and a code of laws was in practical operation. Originally the Portuguese and the Dutch had sought gold, pepper and slaves from Liberia. Today, as then, it has vast, undeveloped resources, both mineral and agricultural. But before the war it exported goodly quantities of rubber, palm oil, fiber, cocoa, coffee, ivory and spices.

CLIMATE WORLD'S HOTTEST.

"Liberia is asserted to have one of the hottest climates in the world, and few areas have more rain. The yearly fall amounts to nearly thirteen feet of water.

"The colonists declared Liberia an independent republic in 1847, and and it was recognized within a few years by nearly all countries except the United States. Previously there had been a split, and Maryland, now the southern county of the republic, was a rival state to Liberia. It had its inception from a second colonization society from the State of Maryland, in the United States.

"Ten years ago President Roosevelt sent a commission to Liberia to investigate conditions. That commission's report resulted in negotiations for an adjustment of Liberia's debt and placing of United States officials in charge of Liberian customs collections. The following year the American government, acting in agreement with England, France and Germany, assumed supervision of finances, military organizations and boundary questions.

"German merchants offended the chief executive of the republic in 1912 and out of this incident a quarrel developed which resulted in two German gunboats forcing an apology from the President. But the President retaliated by giving English traders special privileges, and in the world war Liberia cast her lot with the Allied nations. The government of the republic is modeled after that of the United States."

HOW FAR DO WE WALK?

Nature intended that man should walk—properly done, it is one of the best of exercises. And most of us walk more or less. After a careful consideration of mankind's ambulations, including young children and old people, and the fact that nowadays we have the inclination and the facilities to ride more and walk less than our forefathers did, a fair estimate of the average distance walked during twenty-four hours by the men, women and children of continental United States seems to be four miles.

Casting our figures in the direction of enlargement rather than of reduction, the representative average American propels himself over a distance of 120 miles a month, 1440 miles a year, a hundred thousand miles in the three score and ten years allotted to him in Holy Writ. He travels at a rate that would take him from New York to San Francisco in a little more than two years. —[C. N. Holmes in Scientific American.

HOW WHEELER SAT ON LID.

General Counsel of Anti-Saloon League a Power.

Prohibition has Raised Him to National Figure.

Had a Long Early Struggle Against Poverty.

With the passage by Congress of the prohibition enforcement bill part of the life work of Wayne B. Wheeler, of Ohio and Washington, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America, has been accomplished. His successful work for prohibition has made him a national figure.

While the principal officials, the various State officers, and the membership generally of the league all pulled together to put through Congress the national prohibition amendment, the war-time prohibition legislation and the enforcement bill, no man in all this earnest and powerful organization, determined to make America dry, did more than Wheeler. As general counsel for the league, he "sat on the lid" in Washington and successfully steered from the legal standpoint the legislation that will soon make a saloonless nation.

Wheeler's career, like that of many other successful leaders of American life, is a story of early struggle against obscurity and poverty to obtain an education; of a life time devoted to one object, and finally of a tremendous success. For it is no small matter to have completely demolished the liquor traffic—probably the strongest and most influential single vested interest in America.

BORN ON OHIO FARM.

Born a poor boy on an Ohio farm, Wayne B. Wheeler determined to obtain an education. He earned the necessary money as janitor at Oberlin College, where he made a reputation as an orator and debater, and from which he was graduated in 1894. He received an offer of employment with the Anti-Saloon League, then just being organized. He volunteered his services from the beginning as an advocate. No one dreamed then what a powerful organization the league was destined to become. Wheeler was not very enthusiastic about accepting the position for he wished to study law. He took the job with the understanding that it would be temporary—he remained with the league and is now rounding out his twenty-sixth year of service with the organization. His first speech for the league as a volunteer was in November, 1893. In his spare moments he studied law and was admitted to the Ohio bar. He specialized in laws relating to prohibition and to date, has won more than 2000 liquor cases in various courts. No other lawyer has such a unique record at the bar.

All this legal practice made Wheeler a big specialist in law enforcement and legal practice, as well as a great constitutional lawyer. In Congress, which is full of the best lawyers in the country, Wheeler's legal attainments are considered so highly that the Senate Judiciary Committee, when it submitted to the Senate its reasons for the constitutionality of the prohibition enforcement law, adopted the brief drawn by Wheeler as a part of their report. He drafted the original bill and fought for it before the Congressional committees, and it stands today practically unchanged except in details.

HIS LONG CAREER.

In his long career in the Anti-Saloon League Wheeler has served as field secretary, district superintendent, State superintendent, and, finally, general counsel. He holds an LL.D. degree from two Ohio colleges and is generally recognized in the legal profession as the greatest expert in his chosen specialty in the country. He has tried many cases in the United States Supreme Court and the Supreme Courts of States.

Wheeler is a forceful and entertaining speaker and can always be relied upon to more than hold his own on the platform or in any court. His chief personal characteristic is his urbanity. While no man in public life has been more bitterly assailed, both in court and in print, because of his prohibition work, Wheeler has always come up smiling to answer attacks of the foes of prohibition. His public debates with the late Congressman Meeker and Editor Windle of Chicago made one of the interesting chapters in this reform.

The enforcement statute will be enforced to the letter. Atty.-Gen. Palmer has so declared. The league, however, has attorneys and agents in every part of the country who will see to it that the law is operative at all times. Voluntary prohibition workers in every center will see that the officers of the law know the provisions of the statute and they will co-operate with them to enforce it.

Many Congressmen believe that the Anti-Saloon League, after more than a quarter of a century of struggle and fighting, is today the best organized, the most powerful and the most successful society in the country.

FOR WORLD CAMPAIGN.

Having made the republic dry for all time, the league is now launching a campaign to make the whole world anti-alcohol. A large fund, possibly $25,000,000, will soon be collected. Part of this will be used to enforce the prohibition laws in the United States and the remainder to carry the message of prohibition to every civilized nation. The start has already been made in England and Mexico and other countries. While it required twenty-five years to make the United States dry, Wheeler believes the world can be liquorless in ten years. In this work the one-time Ohio farmer boy will have a leading part, just as he has been one of the principal spirits in the tremendous success of the Anti-Saloon League.

Palmerston's Shrewd Reply.

One of the smartest replies ever made by a parliamentary candidate was that credited to Lord Palmerston. A heckler at one of his meetings had demanded of the statesman: "Will you, if returned, support such and such a measure?"

"Palm" thought for a moment, then said, "I will."

"Hurray!" broke in the heckler and his pack.

"Not," continued "Palm"—at which there were thunderous countercheers—"tell you," he concluded. And the general laughter made him prime favorite at once.—[Unidentified.

The Children's Garment Section Presents Unusual Opportunities to Save

Worsted Frocks for Maidens of 7-to-14, $3.39

—The smart blue, red and tan plaid designs of which these worsted frocks are made are trigly set off by trimmings in contrasting plain hues.
—Mothers know, too, what good service worsted dresses give lassies, for school wear.
—In the assortment are also pretty frocks of crash in natural shade, plain blue and blue stripes.
—Many wantable styles from which to choose. Sizes 7 to 14, priced $3.39.

"Maidies" Winter Coats Less at $12.98

—Of course, they're in the newest styles, which little daughters, as well as mothers, demand. Some in the very smart cape effect, button trimmed.
—Of wool velour, velvet velour, zibeline and mixed wool fabrics, sizes 8 to 14, all dollars less Monday, at $12.98.

Velveteen Hats $1.69

—to frame the piquant faces of the younger tots. They have drooping brims, are ribbon trimmed, and each hat is a two-color combination.

Little Tots' Rompers 79c

—Not only in the fabric, denim, but also the very colors, (dark blue and tan), used in these rompers, the makers surely have had in mind saving mothers' work; for each little "sonny" who gets into a pair of these straight-leg rompers will demonstrate their serviceability.
—They're cunningly fashioned and trimmed, too.
—Sizes 2 to 6, less at 79c.

Lassies' Flannelette Kimonos $1.79

—They've been ever so much more, these kimonos of good quality flannelette. The designs are just such as look daintily girlish and they're wrought in blue, pink and lavender. Down the front and around the sleeves, there's a facing of satin that matches. Sizes 8 to 14, less at $1.79.

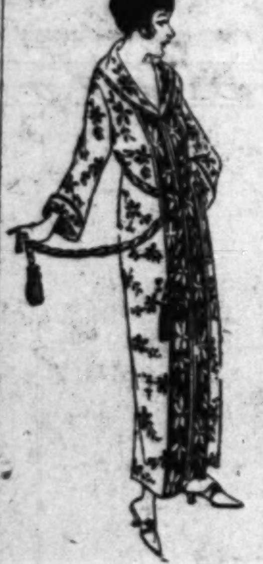
Gingham Dresses $1.19

—for maids of 2-to-10. The gingham is a good quality, and pretty as well, in its medium and dark hued stripe and plaid designs.
—Many, many styles from which to choose, at $1.19.

Aisle Seven, The Broadway Basement.

Just Think of it! Women's Fine

Beacon Bath Robes Underpriced at $4.39



—The model pictured, beautiful as it is, presents only one of the three lovely styles in this assemblage of new Beacon bath robes from which you may choose, Monday, at $4.39.

—Words cannot do justice to the grace of line with which they have been made; the beautiful blending of color-tones; the richness of hues, in these soft robings.

—The fine cord trimming on pockets, cuffs and collars, adds to the appearance.

—In sizes 36 to 44, less for Monday at $4.39.

Flannelette Kimonos $1.29

—There's charming diversity of design and coloring in this collection of pretty flannelette kimonos, whose regular marking is considerably more than Monday's price of $1.29. Sizes 36 to 44 available.

Truly Exceptional are the Savings Offered on These

Crepe de Chine and Crepe Georgette Blouses at $3.89

—Of unusually good quality crepe de chine and crepe georgette are these blouses fashioned. Some are tailory, in high-neck style. Others have youthful round or square neck, some have Peter Pan collars.
—There are semi-tailored models, and many delightfully adorned with lace and embroidery. In flesh tint and in white.
—Sizes 36 to 44, all less at $3.89.

Lingerie Blouses 98c

—Some of which have been as much again in the regular way. Of white voile, both plain and striped. Some trimmed with lace, others with embroidery in colors. A large assortment of models from which to select.
—Sizes 36 to 46, much less at 98c.

Aisle Eight, The Broadway Basement.

Well-Made

Coutil Corsets Less at $1.69

—These corsets are made in the popular low-bust, long hip model, that permits fredom of movement and moulds but does not restrict the figure.
—Prettily trimmed are they, and complete with two pairs of stocking supporters. Sizes 21 to 30, at $1.69.

Pink Elastic Corsets $2.98

—These are the 18-inch corsets, of elastic web; so yielding, and comfortable indeed, for athletic wear, dancing, and the like. Complete with two pairs of stocking supporters, less at $2.98.

Muslin Brassieres 59c

—An unusually good quality of muslin and cream linen lace, have gone into the making of these brassieres. They're made pointed front and back and may be had in sizes 34 to 44, Monday, less at 59c

Aisle Seven, The Broadway Basement.

Special Dinner 35c

—The tempting menu offered is:
—Clubhouse sausage, mashed potatoes, brown sauce and spaghetti Italienne, with bread and butter, and choice of —Tea, coffee, iced tea or buttermilk.
—The entire meal 35c on Monday.

BROADWAY, FOURTH AND HILL.

Women's

Silk Stockings 69c

(Slightly Irregular)

—An offering that should make this department a center of interest Monday morning, is this of lovely silk stockings at but 69c pair.
—Though there are slight irregularities in weave, they should not affect the wear.
—Heels and toes are well reinforced; the stockings have 12-inch, double garter tops.
—To be had in gray, castor, brown and black, sizes 9, 9½ and 10 in the lot.
—A limited quantity only, 69c pair.

Women's Lisle Stockings 3 Pairs $1.00

—Unusually valueful is this offering of fine lisle stockings. Made seamless, with double garter tops, heels and toes well reinforced. In black and white, sizes 8½ to 10 in the lot. Three pairs for $1.00.

Cotton Stockings 25c

—Full-fashioned, closely woven stockings, but slight imperfections in weave cause us to lower their price to 25c the pair. Sizes 8½ to 10 in the lot, and both black and white.

Children's Stockings 12½c Pr.

—Medium rib, sturdily woven cotton stockings, in white only. First quality, but because the size range is broken they are offered at 12½c pair.

Smallwares at Big Savings!

20-Mule Team Borax Chips

—Three 8-oz. packages, 25c; large 28-oz packages 25c each.
—Users of these borax chips know they serve as efficiently in kitchen as in laundry, and that the price for Basement Week, on both small and large size, is much less than usual.

Dress Shields 25c, 29c, 35c

—Good quality shields, made in regulation shape, and priced at radical savings for Monday.
—Size 2 at 25c pair. Size 3 at 29c pair. Size 4 at 35c pair.

Shears 29c

—Just for Monday—and while the quantity lasts—these 8-inch, tension-spring shears, are offered at the special price of 29c.

Hot Water Bottles $1.29

—Another feature from this department is the moulded, 2-quart, red rubber bottles, of good quality.

Hair Brushes 19c

—Good, strong brushes, with black bristles set in a filled back. Their regular price considerably more than Monday's marking, 19c.

"So-Easy" Hair Shampoo 25c

—Each package contains sufficient for eight shampoos, and this preparation is recommended for alleviating itching scalp and dandruff, as well as cleansing.

Fancy Stationery 22c Box

—Choice of pink, blue or buff, as well as white. Each box contains 24 sheets of note paper and 24 envelopes of good, smooth paper, less for Monday at 22c.

Buttons 5c Dozen

—Small trimming buttons, with shanks. Just half regular marking, for Monday, at 5c doz.

Aisles Five to Seven, The Broadway Basement.

Worthy of Headlining, is This Offer!

36 Inch Fancy Outing Flannel 25c Yd.

—Our one regret is that we have but 50 pieces to offer—and past experience has taught us that this will not be sufficient for all who wish it. The early buyers, however, will be the ones to profit, for the saving offered is unusual.
—Firmly woven, soft fleeced outing flannel in fancy designs of stripes, checks and plaids in various wanted colors.
—Width 36 inches, and Monday's price, while the quantity lasts, is 25c yard.

HEAVY WHITE OUTING FLANNEL, 20c—A firm, double-fleeced outing flannel, much used for making sleeping garments for little folks and big folks. 200 pieces to offer, Monday, at 20c yard.

For Bath Robes and Dressing Jackets—

Thick, Soft Robing 49c

—The price is so low it really requires no comparison with any other.
—Several beautiful designs in fine shadings on mellow backgrounds are offered in this 27-inch robing flannel, and in view of the timeliness of the offering, coupled with its low price, the fabric will doubtless go very quickly.
—Many buyers will no doubt want several patterns, to use as Christmas gifts.

Comfort Batts 59c

—Full size comfort batts, of cotton that will roll out smooth and fluffy.
—As there are only 300 to offer at 59c, we are obliged to limit purchase two to a customer.

Aisles Three & Four, The Broadway Basement

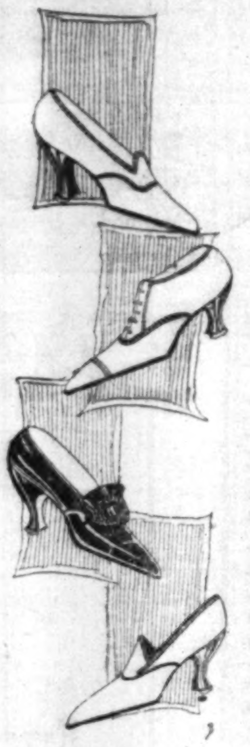
Wide-brimmed Felt Hats for Lassie at $3.45

—Soft-crowned, with gracefully-drooping wide brims, are these fine felt hats, with band and bow of silk gros-grain ribbon.
—Such hats as fittingly frame the dainty features of school lassies, and which "mothers" may purchase for them, Monday, at a saving price, $3.45.
—Choose from beautiful shades of gray, lavender, navy blue and rose, as well as white.

Aisle Eight, The Broadway Basement.

It Hardly Seems Possible That Such

Oxfords and Pumps Are Offered at $4.95



—when the entire trend of the shoe market is upward!

—To broken lines from our own stock, however, we have added what are known as "factory irregulars," these coming from some of the largest and best known makers of shoes in the country.

—Pumps and oxfords in black and tan.

—Of kid, calfskin and patent leather, and the quality of the leathers is unusually high. "Soft as a glove" can easily be said of the shoes of kid skin.

—New styles in pumps that snugly fit the ankle.

—Colonial style pumps in patent leather.

—Fine oxfords in black and dark tan leathers.

—Many of the shoes have imitation, wing stitched tips.

—There are covered Louis heels as well as other wanted styles.

—Long, graceful vamps and rounded toe styles.

—Pumps with fancy buckles.

—High-grade footwear, all, offered Monday at a price that we do not think can be duplicated for some time to come—$4.95 the pair.

—All sizes in the lot, but not in each style, and as many women will want several pairs, we suggest early buying to avoid disappointment.

Aisle 5, The Broadway Basement

Only 20 Pairs

Good Gray Blankets $2.89 Pair

—We wish we had more of them to offer, as there's sure to be a big demand for these soft gray blankets, of medium weight, in double bed size, away less than regularly at $2.89 pr.

Broken Lots of Fine Blankets at Less

—A limited number of double-bed size blankets of better grades, that we will offer while they last, Monday, at prices not only far below what they would bring, if we purchased them today, but at less than their regular markings.
—10 pairs plaid blankets, 66x80 in., at $4.39 pr.
—8 pairs white blankets, 66x80 in., at $3.49 pr. Aisles 3 to 5, The Broadway Basement.

Of Interest to Men Who Wish to Save

Men's Golf Shirts $1.98

—Smart looking shirts, of good madras and flannelette, and many color combinations in stripes, from which to choose. Made with soft, double cuffs. Sizes 14 to 17, and they are exceptionally good at their regular marking, but more so at the low pricing of $1.98.

Cotton Socks 12½c Pr.

—Strongly woven cotton socks, in black, navy blue and white, but because of slight imperfections in weave they've been priced at 12½c pair. Sizes 9½ to 11, in the lot.

Cotton Sweaters $1.15

—There's unusual worth in this offering, for the sweaters are sturdily and closely woven of soft, heavy gray cotton, in chain stitch style, made with ruff neck, and two pockets. Sizes 34 to 42. Monday at $1.15.

Men's Work Shirts $1.50

—Stoutly made, of khaki twill cloth, cut full; you may expect them to wear well. Sizes 14 to 17½
—but a limited quantity only, at $1.50.

Aisle Eight, The Broadway Basement.

Wool Process Underwear 95c

—Just the soft, warm, heavy weave men like to wear during weather like the present. There's a decided price lowering on these shirts and drawers, of which we have a goodly quantity in gray, though not in all sizes, which is the reason for the underpricing.

Ribbed Union Suits $1.50

—In ecru shade, a good weight for fall wear. Made with long sleeves and in ankle length. Sizes 34 to 42, offered at a big saving Monday, at $1.50 the suit.

Aisle Nine, The Broadway Basement.

Men's Work Trousers $2.69

—If you need trousers of heavy fabric, yet which are of good appearance, you'll surely not hesitate to purchase when you see these at their lowered price of $2.69. Made of heavy weight, sturdy mixtures in gray and brown and there are various stripe and diagonal patterns from which to choose.
—Sizes 31 to 42, Monday, at $2.69.

BROADWAY, FOURTH AND HILL.

NEW ZEALAND IS A WONDERLAND.

Physical Features as Unusual as its Economic Laws.

Tailless Birds and Strange Caterpillars Found There.

Interesting to Both Geologists and Entomologists.

[From Bulletin of National Geographic Society.]

Imagine boot-like Italy inverted, with the tip of her peninsular toe pointed toward the eastern coast of Australia, some 1000 miles distant, and you gain a picture, both in size and contour, of New Zealand.

Long accounted a social science laboratory and political experiment station, some physical features of New Zealand are equally unusual. Zoologists found there a tailless bird, evolutionary souvenir, they believe, of the now extinct wingless moa. Then there is a caterpillar which dies but to live again in the form of a plant, which blossoms and goes to seed.

In the instep of the island boot is an area equal to that of Connecticut and Delaware together, where boiling springs spout from shores of ice-cold lakes, hissing pillars of steam and columned vapors puncture the surface, phenomena comparable only to the steaming, vaporous Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, near Mt. Katmai, Alaska.

OLDEST SOLID GROUND.

Attracting the publicist because it has the newest governmental experiments—compulsory arbitration, old-age pensions, tax exemptions on small farms, for example—New Zealand interests the geologist for an opposite reason, because it is among the oldest portions of the earth's solidified surface.

Seldom is a clearer illustration to be had of the effects of geography upon a people. In fact, the demonstration was duplicated in New Zealand, once with the Maoris, and then with the English colonists. The Maoris, among the most remarkable of all savage tribes, are Polynesians. They came about 500 years ago, some say from Tahiti, and found the aborigines "unappetizing" but, as the event proved, not "indigestible."

The climate of New Zealand, with its "elastic air and perpetual motion," is more stimulating than the enervating air of most Polynesian islands, food was not waiting to be plucked from trees, and shelter to be provided. Hence the latent instincts of these savage cannibals were developed here as nowhere else, and, even before the English came, the Maoris had gable-roofed houses, with elaborately-carved posts and lintels, and interiors decorated with designs of crude beauty.

Women were needed in the struggle against harsher natural forces, so they won positions of esteem, and were represented in tribal councils. They were ingenious enough to bake meats on heated stones; but not too civilized to roast especially tough cuts of human flesh on this aboriginal fireless cooker. They alone, among the Pacific islanders, discovered how to weave. Yet they knew the use of minerals, and their leviathan canoes, lashed together, were constructed with tools of stone, shell, bones, and even of human teeth.

LIKE AMERICAN COLONIES.

European discovery of the islands is attributed to Tasman, in 1642, but exploration did not take place until the time of Capt. James Cook, 150 years later, while colonization was delayed until twenty years before our Civil War.

When colonization did take place it resembled the settlement of the American colonies, in that settlements were made in half a dozen places, instead of being promoted from a central base according to the usual British method. The colonizers are said to have profited by a study of the mistakes of England which brought about the American Revolution, and so well did they apply the lessons that the far away island today is one of the most loyal portions of the British empire. This fact was attested by the way New Zealanders far exceeded their expected quota of troops in the world war.

A chief figure of the colonization was Edward Gibbon Wakefield, as bizarre a character as his association with such a distinctive dominion would imply. After serving a prison sentence in England for abducting an heiress by means of forged letters, he was debarred from the parliament upon which he later exerted an indirect but potent influence to aid in carrying out the colonization plan now associated with his name.

It was due to Wakefield that man of substance gained a foothold in New Zealand, that industry rather than exploitation became the motif of the colony, and that the fundamental aim of the government still is that of "no millionaires and no paupers."

The island population, exclusive of Maoris, now exceeds one million. The Maoris, numbering about 50,000, have risen to a position of eminence, being represented in the legislative assembly, in the cabinet, and having physicians, attorneys and other professional men of note among their number.

HUNGRY CONDUCTOR.

Car Had to Wait Until He Finished Eating.

Service on the Boston Elevated Railway, particularly in the suburbs, has been the cause of many strange stories of late, but one of the most unusual reasons ever advanced for a delay was given in Watertown the other day.

Patrons of the line running from the Watertown car barn through Mt. Auburn to Harvard Square and North Cambridge had to wait seventeen minutes for a car, though they are supposed to run on a five-minute schedule. When one finally came along, filled with passengers and with a group waiting at practically every stop, the motorman declared the delay to be due to the fact that the conductor insisted on having his breakfast before starting the trip.

A few minutes before the time for the car to start, it was said, he had gone into a restaurant at the car barn and ordered a meal. The car had to wait until he finished eating it.—[Boston Transcript.

"Wrinkles On And Off The Stage"

By Valeska Suratt

The Way Used by Those Who Know How to Accomplish It With Remarkable and Quick Success. You Can Look Young at 50. Here's a Hair Secret, Too.

HUNDREDS of women have already tried the formula given here, and have made themselves look years younger in only a few days. Get from your druggist two ounces of eptol and mix with one tablespoonful of glycerine in half a pint of water. The rich cream which is the result, makes the skin plump and vigorous, almost baby-like, and causes even deep wrinkles to disappear in quick time. This is because the pores are made smaller and the texture of the skin highly refined, and as a result hundreds of wrinkles are bound to leave. Your friends will wonder at the change in your appearance.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

MISS MANNY—You'll see how wonderfully easy it is to get rid of any superfluous hairs by simply moistening them with sulfo solution, which costs about one dollar at the drug store. It is almost magic. The hairs just dissolve away, and the skin is left smooth and white—no red or irritated spot to tell that you used anything to remove the hairs. It is as glorious and easy to use as a face lotion.

MISS S. R. M.—You can positively assure yourself in advance that with the formula given below you are going to have a complexion of surpassing beauty. Every blemish, all muddiness and sallowness that ruin complexions will disappear. It's easy, more economical, too, than using anything else I know. To one ounce of zintone, costing about 50 cents at any drug store, add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and mix in a pint of water. You will see a tremendous difference in your complexion in a very few days.

• • •

SWEET.—Filmy secretions which form on the scalp, and dandruff scales, are all "dissolved" away in remarkable fashion by eggol. Dissolve a teaspoonful of this in half a cup of water. This gives a glorious lathery shampoo and leaves the hair silky. For 25 cents you can get enough eggol for over a dozen head-washes. Soaps contain oil-consuming alkali which should be avoided.

• • •

MRS. N. O. R.—You will never get rid of blackheads by pinching them, or by facesweating. Here is a remarkable method, instantly successful. Sprinkle some neroxin on a wet cloth. Then rub the blackheads with this for a few moments. You will find that they will all vanish very quickly. Neroxin is the only thing that will do this. Any druggist can supply you with the neroxin for 50 cents.

• • •

S. O. S.—After using this simple and remarkable application for a short time you will find a tremendous difference in the length of your hair. It will be glossy, full of life, and it will stop falling. The thin spots will fill out. To a half pint of water and a half pint of bay rum add one ounce of beta-quinol, obtained from the drug store for about half a dollar. This makes over a pint of this remarkable hair forcer. You may use a full pint of witch hazel if you prefer it instead of the water and bay rum.

• • •

WONDERING—You never used such a magnificent face powder as this is in all your life. It is called "Fresca Beauty Powder," now sold at druggists for 50 cents, in flesh, white and brunette tints. It has a most exquisite and unusual fineness, stays on delightfully and blends perfectly with the skin-tint. Try it.—[Advertisement.

Lift Off Corns!

Doesn't hurt! Lift touchy corns and calluses right off with fingers

Apply a few drops of "Freezone" upon that old, bothersome corn. Instantly that corn stops hurting. Then shortly you lift it right off, root and all, without pain or soreness.

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes, and the hard skin calluses on bottom of feet lift right off—no humbug!

Tiny bottles of "Freezone" cost but a few cents at drug stores

Excellent work is reported as being done among foreign-born women in Omaha by a group of about fifteen volunteer teachers. These teachers are mainly women. They are recruited from the club women and others of the town interested in aiding Omaha's 5000 non-English-speaking residents learn English. A course of fifteen lessons has been arranged by the South Omaha settlement house, through which much of the work is done. This course will be printed in book form. It will be available for all those interested in the work. Husbands as well as the women in the foreign-born homes are composing the classes taught. Among the nationalities represented are Russian, Bohemian, Austrian, Greek, Bulgarian, Croatian, Hungarian, German, Lithuanian, Polish, Serbian, Macedonian, Italian, Spanish, Mexican, and Rumanian.

Countless numbers of Jewish refugees fleeing from Russia to America, who got as far as Japan and could proceed no further, for lack of funds, are being cared for by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society in Yokohama; and each month a part of the moneys raised by the American Jewish Relief Committee and similar Jewish organization, and distributed through the Joint Distribution Committee, go to that institution. During June, July, August and September financial aid to the extent of $5000 monthly was sent to the "House in Yokohama."

A golden harvest, amounting to $1500, was reaped from the sale of milk tags at Santa Barbara on Admission Day, more than 4000 tags being sold. This insures a substantial foundation to draw upon as a start in the 1919-20 work of supplying needy children of the community with nourishing milk.

The chairman of the Arkansas Branch of the American Legion has been made trustee of a fund of $70,000, which will be turned over to the legion to be administered in behalf of disabled soldiers and sailors. This monew was raised through the "Give a Bushel" movement, when every person was asked to contribute a bushel of anything he raised. The movement was originally a war-saving device, but has been turned to advantage for the war's wounded.

Presentation of two swimming pools to Wilmington (Del.) Community Service by Mrs. T. Coleman du Pont has been announced in New York. Wilmington Community Service is one of many like organizations formed, under War Camp Community Service auspices, in war production centers throughout the United States at the request of the United States Department of Labor. Use of both swimming pools will be confined to persons affiliated with groups in Wilmington, Del., associated with community service of that city. One of the pools is in Broome street, Wilmington, and the other is in her country place, the Old Mill, about five miles from town. Only persons who can swim will be permitted to use the Old Mill pool, because of its depth. Volunteer life guards will be on duty at the pool in bathing hours.

In view of the recent successful efforts to "farm" terrapin, rearing them under domestication, it is interesting to recall the fact that those aquatic turtles a century ago were so plentiful in the Chesapeake and Delaware Bay regions that they could be bought for 5 cents each. They were cheap food in those days. So cheap, indeed, that the Maryland Legislature passed a law forbidding owners to feed their slaves on terrapin more than twice a week.

Though the Clocks Go Back An Hour Today, Modern Household Utilities are a Hundred Years Ahead

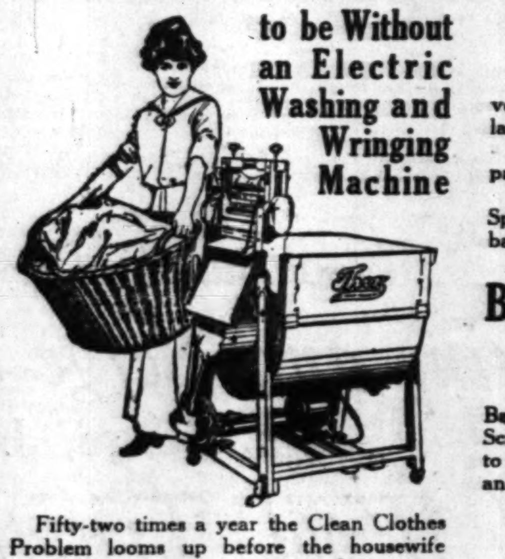
From the point of service—real helpfuness—the "little world" of household utilities at Barker Bros. awaiting the pleasure of housewives of the West, is far in advance of the age in which we are living.

Nowadays housewives are actually endeavoring to make their work hard—IF they clean house broom-fashion instead of the electric vacuum cleaner way; IF they do the family wash "a la rub-a-dub" rather than to the tuneful swish of the electric washer; IF they labor over an ironing board when an electric ironing machine would save them hours of needless exertion.

And so on! To so much as mention all the helps to mode housekeeping that this one great store alone has gathered together from the "four corners of the earth" that you might derive greater enjoyment from your home, would require the space of our entire announcement.

An early visit to Barker Bros., if only to look about and l of the newer aids to present-day home-making, will be time m profitably spent, we assure you.

You Can Not Afford to be Without an Electric Washing and Wringing Machine



Fifty-two times a year the Clean Clothes Problem looms up before the housewife and fifty-two times a year, and in many cases more frequently, the housewife faces with dread in her heart the wearisome task that leaves her spent and worn at the end of the day.

If a laundress is employed, there are extra meals to get—the waste of soap, little heed to thoroughness and much abuse of clothes. If you employ servants, they often grumble about the "big Wash" and they are not over particular about sparing the clothes either. And if you send your wash to a laundry, it is expensive, to say nothing of the unnecessary wear and tear and hard usage your clothes receive and sanitary conditions are not always the best.

The Electric Washing and Wringing Machine takes the work entirely off your hands and washes everything, from the finest lingerie to the heaviest clothes and blankets, and makes a clean job of it without needless wear or injury. Think of having your washing all done and on the line by 10:00 or 10:30 in the morning leaving you perfectly fresh and care-free for other duties or pleasures.

Barker Bros.' Electrical Equipment Department is always at your service. Take advantage of the experience and knowledge of our experts—they will help you to decide which washing machine is best adapted to your needs.

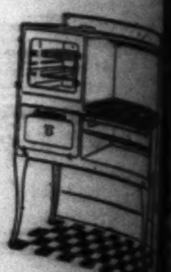
Three Good Reasons Why You Should Buy the OHIO-TUEC Electric Vacuum Cleaner

1—Because it is reliable
2—Because it is efficient.
3—Because we guarantee it.

We consider it our duty to see that our patrons get full value when purchasing a Vacuum Cleaner.

The OHIO-TUEC cleans by strong suction and gentle sweeping—come in and see it for yourself and be convinced.

This Is Our A-B Special Short Cabinet Range



Here is a worthy member of the famous A-B Gas Range family which takes up very little floor space and yet has all the practical and important features of the larger and more expensive gas ranges. It has white porcelain lined Burner Tray, Door Panels and Splasher at side and back of cooking surface, gray enamel pan, besides the famous A-B rust-proof oven linings which are fully guaranteed.

Price of this splendid gas range is only $55.00. Same range without white Splasher is $50.00. Of course, you know A-B ranges are noted for their splendid baking qualities and economy in the use of gas.

Fashion's Fling.

Head dresses are in favor.
The decolletage is very low.
White gloves are being revived.
Metal laces are eagerly sought.
Longer skirts are more favored.
Some new sleeves are quite long.
Evening scarfs are of spangled net.
Many hat brims are wide at the sides
Copper tones are greatly in vogue.
The heavier silks are in greater vogue.
Flower trimming is used on tulle frocks.
Novelty mesh veils continue fashionable.
Rich embroideries are seen on turbans.
Some new coats have a good deal of flare.
Fur collars appear on silk tricot sweaters.
A new jabot idea is called the airplane.
Black velvet is used for many trim frocks.
Metal buckles appear on many winter suits.
Veils with neckbands are worn with turbans.
No material is more popular than duvetine.
Finely-plaited ruffles are extremely smart.
Leather is used in hats for rainy or sports wear.
Bright red is a favorite color for evening gowns.

FARO IN INDIANA.

Gambling Den in Hamlet of Hancock County.

Just west of the hamlet of New Philadelphia, in Hancock county, Indiana, is a power-house. One hundred feet west of this power-house stands a farmhouse, a two-story frame dwelling. The house is close to the road. At night the passer-by will have his attention attracted to the place by a lighted lantern on the front porch. Quite often he will see one or more automobiles standing in the side yard.

Inside in a room on the second floor at the southwest corner of the house, the seeker for action on his money finds action a-plenty. If he feels a hunch that a little session at stud poker will enable him to meet his next week's grocery bill, the opportunity to follow the hunch waits him. If he has a feeling that the particular time for him to take the boys at stud is not at hand, a nifty faro layout with its alluring possibilities beckons to him.

He can place his money on the odd or even, the black or red, and he can watch the little ball spin round and round till it comes to a quivering stop, informing him of his fortune or misfortune and inviting him to take another shot.

The faro table at the Hancock county gambling house is a beautiful piece of furniture, practically new. In another room on the same floor a table is used for the shooting of craps. No person desirous of taking a little whirl at a game of chance will be disappointed by failing to find his favorite gaming device at the house.

Out there they will bet you on anything and it is presumed they would bet at any odds you might name that the game is not going to be disturbed by the Hancock county officials.

Participants in the stud game tell you it is Jimmy Armitage's game. They tell you it is running all the time. Cards have been distributed in Indianapolis bearing the words, "Park Junction, Greenfield line." That is the name of the power-house stop on the interurban line, where the visitor to the game dismounts from a traction car if he has chosen the traction line route to the place. Information has gone about that a certain automobile livery company at Indianapolis is the best medium for taxicab service to the place.

Those who visit the emporium of chance seem to have no fear of a visit by the Sheriff of Hancock county, who is about the only person with authority to "pinch" the joint.—[Indianapolis News.

WHAT PATINA IS.

Irvin Cobb Now an Expect on the Identification of Antiques.

When a connoisseur lays upon a piece of furniture alleged to have rightful claims to antiquity the first thing he does is to run his hand along the exposed surfaces to ascertain by the practiced touch of his fingers whether the patina is on the level or was applied by a crafty counterfeiter. After that he upends it to look for the wormholes. If both are orthodox he gives it his validation as the genuine article. If they are not he brands the article a spurious imitation, and rejects it with ill-concealed scorn. There are other tests, but these two are the surest ones.

For the benefit of those who may not have had my advantages as recently and expensively enjoyed I will state that patina is the gloss or film which certain sorts of metal and certain sorts of polished woods acquire through age, long usage and wear. With the passage of time fabrics also may acquire it. You may have noticed it in connection with a pair of black diagonal trousers that had seen long and severe wear or on the elbows of summer before last's blue serge coat. However, patina in pants or on the braided seams of a presiding elder's Sunday suit is not so highly valued as when it occurs in relation to a Jacobean church pew or a William and Mary whatnot.

I am very strong on the subject. In fact, among friends I am now getting to be known as the Patina Kid —[Irvin S. Cobb in the Saturday Evening Post.

HUMOROUS EPITAPHS.

Humorous epitaphs, like baptismal certificates, should always be furnished with date and place of record to be thoroughly deserving of credence. A subscriber sends these epitaphs without such credentials, but states that they are "taken from old churchyards in England:"

"Here I lays Killed by a chaise."
"Here I lie—
Killed by a sky-
rocket in the eye."
"This stone was raised by Sarah's lord
Not Sarah's virtues to record,
For they were known to all the town.
But this stone was raised to keep Sarah down."—[Outlook.

Useful Rabbit Skins.

Rabbit pelts are used to imitate more furs than any other animal, and as a substitute for almost everything. Rabbit dyed black makes sealine, an imitation of Hudson seal. Dyed gray it is mole, brown it is kit coney, white ermine. Rabbit has even been made to represent leopard by stenciling the spots on. The animal is used in its natural state also for children's sets. This skin is now averaging $2 a pound. The best fur rabbits come from New Zealand. Australia supplies the largest amount of skins, but the New Zealand quality is superior The American rabbit is not fit for commercial purposes because the skin is too tender. Millions of rabbits are trapped or shot annually in Australia, which is almost overrun with them. At certain times of the year great rabbit drives are held. The drives take place at night. A long net is put up and the rabbits are driven into it with torches, which frighten them and make them run. Shooting a rabbit will injure the fur, so it must be caught alive.—[Utica Herald-Dispatch.

FASTEST TALKERS.

Oklahoma produces two of the fastest talkers in the National House of Representatives. The expert official stenographers of the lower body say that Representatives Scott Ferris and Charley Carter—the latter with a trace of Indian blood in his veins—can spin out words faster than possibly anybody else in public life. Their diction and enunciation are good, however, and they are easier to report stenographically than a slow-talking speaker who gets his sentences all "balled up" and has no terminal facilities when he gets involved with nouns, adjectives, verbs and adverbs. The fellow who starts a sentence and never puts a very in it is the pest of reportorial experience.—[Washington Star.

DUTY AND DESIRE.

Charles E. Hughes was urging a group of soldiers to keep up their war insurance policies.

"I know it's hard," he said. "Of the 4,000,000 policies written during the war over 3,000,000 have lapsed. This shouldn't be.

"Duty is always hard, boys. Yet we must do it. A little lad entered a general store the other day.

"Well, son, what do you want to buy today—candy?" said the storekeeper.

"'You bet I do,' said the urchin, 'but I've got to buy soap.'"—[Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

No Need for Golf.

The old farmer was trying to impress upon his son, who wanted to play golf for exercise, that chopping wood would answer the purpose just as well.

"Oh, no, father," said the boy, "it is the walking between strokes that makes golf such valuable exercise; that gives the legs a chance as well as the arms."

"Oh, that's it, is it," said the old man. And then he went into the yard and placed sticks of wood at intervals all around it. After this he handed the boy an ax and said: "Now, play the full course."—[Edinburgh Scotsman.

IT WAS OUT WEST.

It was out in the Wild West, and the railway station was not much to boast about. A farmer, new to the place, was expecting a chicken-house to reach the local Charing Cross, and he got his dray and trundled off to the station to fetch it. Arrived there he saw his purchase, loaded it on his wagon and started for home. On the way back he met the stationmaster. "What the dickens have you got on that dray?" he asked. "My chicken-house, of course," was the reply. "Chicken-house be hanged," was the indignant reply; "that's the station!"—[Unidentified.

"The New Trunk Store of Trunk Stores"

—is domiciled in Bullock's Hill Street Building, South—

—And within its expansive dimensions you may witness a very rare and unique variety of fine Luggage—

—In fact it has been said by many that this Unusual Trunk Store surpasses in scope anything of its kind in the United States today.

—More than 5000 square feet of ground floor area with additional 3000 square feet of Balcony and every foot of it devoted to the exploitation of Bags, Cases and Trunks so varied in their denominations that every individual requirement should be found in their luggage interpretations.

—And one of its most eminent Luggage Subjects is the

Bullock Wardrobe Trunk

—A Trunk that approaches as near the Ideal of Trunk Perfection as it is possible for a trunk to attain.

—A Trunk with a vigorous Personality of Strength and Beauty and Service as singularly different from other trunks as night is from day.

—Its outer construction presents an appearance of cabinet finesse that one might associate with a fine piece of furniture.

—Its interior construction is an astounding combination of capacity, Comfort and Accessibility that seems a revelation to anyone not familiar with the possibilities that Genius has inspired.

—It would be impossible to explain here the many exclusive devices, patent processes and outstanding features that distinguish The Bullock Wardrobe.

—One might by graphic description and many pages of print, convey to you some idea.

—But when we say that the Bullock Wardrobe Trunk is constructed in fifty different styles and five distinct sizes (from Berth High to Super Capacity) you may gain some notion of its manifold possibilities to serve.

—However, you may come (and you should not fail to come if you contemplate the purchase of Luggage) to "The New Trunk Store of Trunk Stores"—and explore its Avenues of Trunks, Bags and Cases.

—It offers you a delightful and informative Little Journey in Luggage Lore.

—It may offer you some facts and figures in resource and magnitude—in discrimination—that you never imagined possible before.

—As a fitting and logical Association, Bullock's Motor Accessory Section, with its specialization in Robes, Leather Coats, Lunch Kits, Motor Restaurants, etc, etc,—is now located in The Trunk Store of Trunk Stores—

NEW ANTIDOTE FOR UNREST.

War Camp Community Service Prepares Programme.

Recreation for Civilians will be Their War Cry.

Glee Clubs, Choral Societies will be Organized.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A new antidote for the industrial unrest which grows daily more restless in this country is now being prepared by the War Camp Community Service. It consists of a nation-wide programme of recreatio for civilians, much the same as that which was carried on for soldiers and sailors during the war.

It is broadly hinted that big business will put up big money for the support of this effort to fight bolshevism with fun.

Beginning the first of November the War Camp Community Service is going to drop the War Camp and retain merely the name "Community Service." It will then start a drive to obtain funds with which to organize community play all over the country along the lines it has organized here in New York. The idea seems to be to get everybody playing so contentedly during his spare time that he will forget all about the high cost of living and profiteering and other disagreeable problems that tend to put him in a rebellious from of mind. There is nothing like a good old-fashioned glee club or choral society or amateur theatrical, or a pageant, or even a weekly dance, for dispelling discontent.

At least, so argues the new Community Service, and it ought to know, for that was its job for over a year—keeping an army of four million men contented.

MANAGER McGUFFEY'S VIEW.

"Entertainment has always succeeded in this respect," declared Marius McGuffey, manager of the Entertainment Bureau of the Service, the other morning. "It is a staple article always to be relied upon—like soap."

Just then, a couple of navy men, a lieutenant and a sailor, appeared at the door, a mandolin and a banjo clasped in their respective arms, and Mr. McGuffey, rose to give them a cordial greeting and direct them to a nearby room.

"Dropped in to do a little practicing for the show we are putting on tonight down at the Americanization center," he explained, returning while the sound of a banjo keeping pace with a mandolin immediately began in the other room. The stenographers and clerks in the outside office went on with their work as if they were quite used to such interruptions.

"The importance of entertainment in combating restlessness is now so well understood," continued Mr. McGuffey, "that the most prominent captains of industry are lending us their support in this forthcoming campaign. I have just returned from a very interesting conference where some very disquieting facts were frankly discussed. It was more than whispered in the conference room that there was great danger; that in three or four months the country might be in a hopeless state of chaos, if something is not done. Well, the captains of industry decided to do it. They decided to contribute about a fourth of their millions in order to keep the other three-fourths, this fourth to be used largely in providing amusement and recreation for the people.

WILL PROVIDE LEADERS.

"Trained leaders are to be sent out to communities all over the country to organize recreation centers, games, amateur theatricals, and social affairs. People will not only be provided with free entertainment, but they will be trained to provide entertainment for others. This will help to supply that demand for self-expression, which is one of the most significant manifestations of this age—sometimes it is called 'the will to power.'"

The entire staff of the new Community Service Entertainment Bureau will be made up of managers and actors, with perhaps a social worker or two for emergency cases. Such a staff has already organize between 5000 and 6000 talented young persons here in New York to provide entertainment for a long list of institutions, as well as for soldiers and sailors. Sometimes as many as fifty-two shows a week are put on by the Entertainment Committee. It furnishes anything from a pageant to a vaudeville act to any organization that wants it. During the summer, a vaudeville performance was given every night on a roof garden donated by a society woman, to which soldiers and sailors were admitted free and civilians at the price of 25 cents. The same sort of performance has recently been given four nights a week at the Amsterdam Operahouse, rechristened "The Community Playhouse," and in addition to this, traveling groups of Community Playhouse Players have been furnishing entertainment for the American Legion, battleships, hospitals, military prisons, civilian hospitals, re-education centers, public schools, churches, evening classes in Americanization and to settlement houses.

Anyone who thinks that he has any talent that would be useful in providing entertainment is invited to join the organization. It can make use of everything from a singer or dancer to a basketball player and a distributor of invitations. Many professionals have volunteered for one night or one matinee a week, but the mainstay of the organization is its thousands of amateurs, some of whom develop very unusual talent.

SAILOR IMPRESSED.

For example, not long ago a sailor appeared at the playhouse one night in a not altogether sober condition. Instead of reprimanding him the hostess in charge ushered him to a seat for a view of the vaudeville performance, and later one of the theatrical scouts approached him and asked him if he would not like a part in one of the dramatic productions. The boy protested that he had never done anything of the kind, but the scout told him to come and see one of the rehearsals. The next day he appeared and sat deeply interested, watching rehearsal of a comedy, after which he lingered and helped the scene painter arrange bits of scenery. Gradually the scout who had first spoken to him secured his history. He had been discharged from the navy and had started to look for a job, but had been rebuffed so often that he became discouraged and started hanging about cheap bar-rooms. Upon being persuaded to take the part the scout had mentioned, the boy showed such remarkable talent that the bureau had no difficulty in landing him a job with a legitimate company.

The most interesting phase of the work, of course, is the developing of this exceptional talent, which occasionally appears in one out of dozens of volunteers. One night several months ago a group of five girls appeared to watch one of the choral rehearsals that was going on. When a third of the way through the director suddenly discovered that the girl who was to sing the next solo had not shown up. This was the third rehearsal she had missed, and as the part was important her absence was a distinct handicap. The director could not refrain from unburdening his outraged feelings whereupon one of the girls in the group of five shoved forward her neighbor, an embarrassed damsel of eighteen, and said:

"Here, get her to sing it for you. She knows the whole of 'Pinafore' by heart."

GIRL MAKES A HIT.

The director looked at the girl, and was also embarrassed. As he confided to the manager afterwards she appeared so awkward—"top-heavy" was the word he used—that he was sure she couldn't sing, and that she would hurt rather than aid the rehearsal. However, in the face of four enthusiastic feminine supporters, he did not have the temerity to turn the offer down. Much to his amazement, therefore, he discovered that the girl had a voice. After the first few minutes of nervousness, it developed into a clear, high soprano, which left the entire company a trifle breathless with surprise. It was absolutely untrained and unspoiled. The girl did not even know there was anything remarkable about it. But she does now, and is studying hard with a view to achieving grand opera.

In addition to its theatrical activities, the playhouse contains a fencing school, a ballet class, a boxing class and a basketball floor. The stranger entering the door of the house any evening is met by a hostess, who introduces him and asks him if he would not like to take part in some of the activities instead of merely looking on. If so, she makes an appointment for him with one of the directors or teachers the next day, before whom his special talent is displayed and judged. Many do not care to do anything more conspicuous than attend the weekly dances given in the auditorium or join one of the large choruses. But whatever he does, he meets a large number of people and plays with them, and so enjoys himself.

Such facilities are particularly valuable here in New York, where people can often remain for many months and never meet anyone more friendly than a subway conductor. An English woman, speaking of this feature the other day, said that she was in this country for over a year before she met anyone socially. In London, she explained, the women talked to each other in the museum and other public places, but she attended the public library here in New York for six months without having anyone address a friendly remark to her with the exception of the elevator girl

CUT OUT LONELINESS.

This loneliness, according to the experts, is one big factor in the industrial unrest, and the lack of normal, healthy pleasures is another. Get the people together and let them play, and they will cease to worry about the social order. Such is the theory of this move to make recreation general Whether or not it stops the spread of radical and liberal opinion, it deserves support as a sincere effort to increase the joy of living.

Painful Topic.

"I called on Jagsby this morning and found him engaged in an important transaction."

"Much money involved?"

"I judge so. He was making a verbal contract with his favorite bootlegger to remain in force one year."

"But suppose the bootlegger gets arrested?"

"It is always understood in such deals a calamity of that sort terminates the contract, but out of regard for the feelings of the bootlegger as well as his clients it is never mentioned."—[Birmingtham Age-Herald.

DARING WOMAN IS EXPLORER.

Miss Czaplicka Led Expedition Into Siberia Wilds.

Passed a Summer 450 Miles North of Arctic Circle.

Traveled Three Thousand Miles by Reindeer.

[From the Christian Science Monitor.]

Until the anthropological expedition of Oxford University and the University of Pennsylvania Museum to the haunts of the nomadic tribes that roam the great reaches of Central and Northern Siberia, very little was known or written on the subject.

Prof. H. U. Hall represented the University of Pennsylvania Museum. Oxford was represented by that intrepid and very courageous lady, Miss M. A. Czaplicka, lecturer in the anthropology, who headed the expedition.

The headquarters of the party was located on the Yenisei River, about 400 miles south of the great forest belt limits.

Nomadic groups of the Samoyedic and Dolgan tribes were met by members of the expedition on their journeys along the coast, giving the explorers an opportunity to photograph and to study the manners and customs of the little known people of the Siberian northlands.

LIKE THE BLOND ESKIMOS.

The Dolgan or Yakutized Tungus, roam over the country between the mouth of the Yenisei and the upper Khattanga rivers, and have many characteristics of the blond Eskimo. The Shaman, who prevails as a demi-god with the Siberian northlander, is also held by the Eskimo as the director of the destiny and material welfare of his kinsmen.

Ethnologically, the most interesting people met by members of the expedition were the Yenisei Ostyaks, a fast disappearing remnant of the blond-haired and blue-eyed race who are, no doubt, prototypes of the so-called blond Eskimo of Stefansson.

As the traditions and superstitions of the Siberians are so much like those of the wandering tribes of the North, there is little doubt that in the remote past a very close relation existed between them. If an Avanisk-Samoyed, a Siwash of the State of Washington, and a Delta Eskimo were grouped, it would be impossible to determine that they were not of the same common origin. The mounds of the Abakan Steppe called kurgani are the exact replica of those described in the chronicles of the Antiquarian Society of Cincinnati, found in the Alleghany Valley on the road between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. As these mounds do not reflect the architectural traits of the American Indian, they must be the relic of a civilization more advanced than that evidenced by the native American.

SHE IS AN AUTHORITY.

The acquaintance of Miss Czaplicka was less fleeting than Nansen's, he having visited the Siberian Arctic many years ago, and her report on some aspects of the country is more authoritative. She also stayed longer than her companions, traveling 1500 miles on the Yenisei River and passing a summer on the tundra near its mouth, 450 miles north of the Arctic Circle, and a winter among the Tungus tribes, a branch of whom established the Manchurian Dynasty.

During her wanderings Miss Czaplicka covered more than 300 miles by reindeer sledge, often with the temperature as low as 80 deg. Fahrenheit, proving fully that she is quite in earnest in her expressed desire to give her life to the study of the North and Central Asiatic tribes, who have so far only been studied historically and not ethnologically.

"And yet," Miss Czaplicka says, without disentangling racial problems there, we shall never know who the Huns, the Avars, and other nomads were, who, at various times, overran Europe and mixed with the Slavs and Central European peoples."

Miss Czaplicka is a member of an old Polish family burdened with a great mass of traditions. Her mother belongs to the family of Zawisza, which produced in the Middle Ages a widely-known knight reputed for his wisdom and probity.

LEFT HER NATIVE COUNTRY.

The social restrictions of Poland were not agreeable to the ambitions of the young lady, however, and she chose to live in England, as there none were prejudiced toward her sex. The advantages for scientific study stimulated her desire to specialize in the department of anthropology.

Her aptitude and energy soon found appreciation, and many of the posts hitherto closed to women by the traditional and active conservatism of Oxford were opened to this very unusual Polish girl.

AFTE RMANY YEARS.

Policeman Well Cared for by Man He had Befriended.

After long deliberation Policeman Francis E. Caddell, attached to Bridge A Station, decided to accept a reward made to him by a man he had befriended in Chinatown seventeen years ago, which will enable him to live in luxury for the rest of his life.

Caddell's benefactor was one of Chinatown's habitues when the policeman was on duty there. Caddell bought him a suit of clothes, hat and shoes with part of a $50 bill and gave him the change. The stranger was a young man then. He said he came of a good family on the Pacific Coast. Caddell remarked to him as he went away, "Good-by and good luck."

When Caddell saw his friend again August seventeenth he looked prosperous and was riding in a big limousine with his family bound for Coney Island. Caddell, after giving him the directions to the Island, remarked "Good-by and good luck." Then the stranger questioned Caddell and the two recalled the Chinatown incident. Caddell was offered his reward, which was a fine home and the two recalled the Chinaning plant on the Pacific Coast.

Policeman Caddell has been thirty-three years on the police force. He is married and has a grown-up family. He said he would resign from the police force early next year. He refused to give any information about his benefactor.—[New York Times.

COLN HIGHWAY.

Elaborate Plan for a Great Federal Institution.

ALBERT G. BARTLETT.

deal has been said, and about the great national, or highway. I have thought about it and have wondered great social and civic not be united for the public good, with the building the industrial and traffic necessity. We are all of the opinion, I presume, that such a highway is a necessity; and if it is a necessity it should be carried out according to the most improved ideas of road-building.

It should be beneficial in that it would prove one of the very best ways by which our citizens could travel and transport freight of every kind.

It should be convenient in that it could be traversed by the humble citizen on foot as well as by those who are conveyed in the most luxurious vehicles.

It should be economical by providing the very best transportation and sustenance possible, at the minimum of cost, to citizens who desired to avail themselves of its usefulness.

It should be attractive in that it should be so engineered and planned that every advantage might be taken of the natural scenery along the highway and all landscape and gardening effects that may be added to it. I believe that all of these good qualities can be realized out of this highway, and even more, if the following ideas are adopted, and the details carefully engineered and faithfully carried out:

HOW DIVIDED.

First, the highway should be built as wide as possible, and gradually widened to at least 120 feet, and wherever possible to even a greater width. I would divide this highway laterally into divisions, as follows, beginning on the extreme left devoting ten feet to a good earth or fine gravel walk for pedestrians; next, five feet for an ornamental hedge; then twenty feet for passenger vehicles, and twenty feet for freight vehicles; then ten feet for shrub and tree parking, which would be the center of the highway; and the other side, extending to the extreme right, would be a duplicate in reverse, for all traffic going in the opposite direction, so that, looking east from the center, the traffic on the right would be going east while the traffic at the left would be going west.

At every ten miles of the highway, or as near that as conditions would allow, I would build small stations, to be known as way stations, commodations at moderate charge; ing ordinary but comfortable accharge; a complete automobile garage, furnishing supplies and doing any and all kinds of repairs, and cottages for such employees as might be needed for upkeeping and promoting the work of the highway.

At every one hundred miles, or thereabouts, I would have the same kind of buildings, only that they would be more extensive; the hotel strictly first-class, furnishing all modern accommodations. This hundred-mile station would be a section headquarters, and here would be located the controlling heads, and a large Federal farm, where Federal prisoners would be housed, as described later.

At every 500 miles, or thereabouts, there should be in addition to what has been given before a military or national police station, with all buildings and appurtenances necessary. Here should be division headquarters for military and highway officials. The military or national police stations should be located at convenient distances from the highway, as should also the Federal farms, and should contain as complete a garrison as practical. Here the young American citizen could be taught military duties and husbandry on a national drill ground and on a national farm. Here, amid such surroundings it would be possible to give him a useful education and a most necessary physical training.

PRISON LABOR.

The necessary surveying and engineering should all be done by our army engineers, and the labor when and wherever possible by Federal prisoners. The former would have their quarters at division headquarters, and the latter at the section headquarters. If thought best or neccessary the militia might be used as guards over the prisoners. In connection herewith, however, I recommend modern humanitarian methods in dealing with prisoners. In fact, this should be one of the great ideals of the highway, namely to furnish better opportunities for the unfortunate prisoner, as recommended later.

At every hundred-mile or section station, there should be secured, by purchase or condemnation, several hundred acres to be used as Federal farms, located a suitable distance from the highway, selected as to soil, water and other prime agricultural requirements, in order that it may be turned into a successful producer.

The Federal farm buildings should be models of their kind, and built to house man and beast under comfortable and healthful conditions. They should contain all kinds of necessary machinery, tools, etc. There should be installed the best in stock and poultry; and the breeding should be carried on with the idea of producing the best at the minimum of cost.

In connection with the Federal farms the Department of Agriculture should be called upon to furnish managers and instructors in the various fields they represent, that these lands may be worked scientifically as models, and to the very best advantage.

AGRICULTURAL CENTERS.

The Department of Agriculture should also have absolute charge of all landscaping, planting, gardening and care of everything planted and growing, or to be planted. The plantings at these sectional stations, or "agricultural centers," I think, is a better name, should be only such as are really adapted to that particular location, so that the product would always be the very best samples of their kind; whether of plant, shrub or tree; and specimens properly labeled of everything produced at these agricultural centers should be displayed in the buildings, or be seen growing in the parkings along the highway, in order that travelers may reap instruction as well as pleasure from their trip.

And what a trip of information and instruction this could be made, for the gardener, the plant lover, the horticulturist and botanist, as well as a pleasure to the sightseer—one not to be equalled anywhere in the world! Think for a moment of the possibility of seeing each plant, shrub and tree, growing amid its best environment, in that section it really loves best; being nurtured and attended by experts, all through its wonderful development. Those grizzly denizens of the lofty peaks, and the dainty seekers of the shady vale. Would it not be wonderful to walk; and under conditions enumerated it would easily be possible to walk the highway's entire length; or to ride through such a continuous garden, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, over mountain and through valley. And here amid such surroundings would begin the redemption of the sinner against society, the most important idealism of the highway.

And now to leave the highway for a brief period, at the place where the man first becomes a liability on the public ledger, the court of justice. I have stated before that the highway should be strictly a national undertaking, and the work should be done by Federal prisoners. Now I know I am getting into deep water, but just the same I am going to advocate making all our courts, above the police and justices' courts, Federal courts, and the judges, Federal judges, classified as the necessity may require. This would remove the local influence that occasionally prevents justice being done; and at the same time more nearly protect the public and prisoner, than under our present plan of county and State courts. All the details and possibilities of the great change I am not capable of even talking about, but I am informed by legal talent that it is practical and could be worked out. This would give the required army of workers.

SELF-SUPPORTING.

Now it is the plan to not only instruct these prisoners in agriculture and horticulture, but in trades also. quite self-supporting. Factories The highway should be nearly or should be located at available sites and every single article consumed, used or worn should be made by these people somewhere along the highway, for their use alone, and stored and distributed from a general warehouse, as required. This would furnish a means of instructing them in many useful occupations, and their product would not come into competition with the laboring man outside. They should be credited with a wage deposited to their account, the same to be paid to them at the expiration of their service. This would enable them to face the world independently and, I trust, fortified with wholesome ideas.

The cost of working out this plan, I am quite sure, would be enormous; but where would all the money go—just out of one pocket into the other! It would keep the prisoners of our country busy for years. It would prevent idleness in our army circles, and all idlers of the city streets should be pressed into a class by themselves and put to work on the national highway. Most of the money expended would go into the pockets of the laborer—a labor performed by a special class and in a way that would not be robbing an honest man of his job.

Now it seems to me that these are ideals worth while and that they are absolutely practical.

We build a wonderful boulevard, extending from the boisterous Atlantic to the peaceful Pacific; we decorate it with nature's gayest and most useful robes; we scatter along the beautiful pathway hives of industry and homes of rest, while beneath it all is the earnest endeavor, the great American idea, to make man better. Is it not worth while?

WHY FRIEDA STAYED.

"I've changed my mind; I'm not going to quit," announced the cook to the mistress of Sheridan road household the other day. Mrs. Sheridan Road tried to hide her elation. No maid would leave such a well ordered home, she chuckled.

"Why, Frieda?" she asked.

"Well, ma'am, you see I just bought a new suit. At that swell tailor's on Michigan street. Fur trimmings, and latest Paris style, too. It cost me $165 so I guess I'll stay a few weeks more to pay for the suit."

The mistress of the household choked. Why, she couldn't afford such a suit herself! Anyway she was glad the cook stayed. And it would be such a delicious story to tell at the Thursday bridge. Gracious, the airs of servants nowadays.—[Chicago News.

Candidates' Cards Under Ban.

Division engineers and county road superintendents of the high way department have received orders that under no circumstances is advertising matter of any character to be permitted within the legal limits of any State highway. As a result the second crop of cards of candidates is to be taken from the poles and fences on the roads.

In a statement just issued the highway department calls attention to the fact that the State has the right to fine any person placing cards within the legal limits of a road.—[Philadelphia Record.

YANK COURIERS.

Order of the Greyhound Made a Proud Record Overseas.

Our courier service in Europe was most extraordinary. Shortly after the armistice went into effect a number of young American officers—carefully selected—were detached from other duty and were sent forth one by one to open mail routes to practically every point in the world with which the American government might wish to communicate.

There was a courier service during the war, of course, across the Atlantic and in and out of all the Allied countries; but the routes of war couriers, though dangerous and devious at times, were laid out for them, whereas the routes of the armistice couriers—routes leading into the enemy coutries and to the far away places had to be nosed out, so to speak, by themselves. The whole world beyond the one time western front was in utter confusion, but by degrees and by the exercise of native wit and personal initiative they managed to open the ways and to establish for themselves an almost exact routine.

Until came a time when on nearly any train—freight, passenger or mixed, usually mixed—one or more of them was to be encountered with sacks of precious mail, more often than not loaded with international diplomatic dynamite or heavy with huge bundles of real legal tender. They demanded respect for their uniform and their important duty in such a manner that everything and everybody gave way before them more or less as traffic gives way before an ambulance or the fire department, and they were so much swifter and surer than telegraph service that they usually brought in confirmations of teleprams before the telegrams themselves arrived. The record is goodness knows how many thousands of important packages and how many millions of pieces of mail and never a single loss.

There are a good many of these boys back in the United States now, wearing on their uniforms, at the top of the left sleeve, a little greyhound embroidered on a blue medallion. They are of the Order of the Greyhound and they intend to form a club and get together once in a while to reminisce over a bottle of grape juice. They are the kind of boys who might be trusted on occasion with a bottle of beer or even with a little distilled sunshine, but on the whole they are not the kind of boys who dreaded to come home because there were not such joys to be enjoyed in their country. They toted guns, guarded sleeplessly for comfortless days on end the kind of treasures that are sealed in brown canvas and leather bound bags stamped "U. S. Mail." and they lived mostly on canned corned beef, army biscuits and lukewarm bottled water. This I know because I traveled with them all over Europe.—[Eleanor Franklin Egan in Saturday Evening Post.

Making a Bamboo Needle.

The operation of making a bamboo needle for the phonograph is a rather prolonged and intricate one, for the wood must pass through several operations before it becomes suitable for the purpose. The hard point of the needle is formed from the enameled cortical service of the cane. The poles, twenty feet long and from two to three and one-half inches in diameter, carefully selected, are sawed into pieces about an inch long and split prism-shaped blanks for needles. To force out the sap and replace it with oil and wax in the myriad cells of the cane the bits are put in drip kettles and lowered into vats laden with an oily mixture at 340 degrees Fahrenheit, where they remain forty hours. Then they go into tumbling barrels containing hardwood sawdust, where they get cooled and polished.—[Indianapolis News.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE.

A Weekly News Letter from London.

BY T. P. O'CONNOR.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Here are brief sketches of the members of the Cabinet committee intrusted by Lloyd George to shape the new home-rule bill. The oldest, although not the most influential, is Walter Long, than whom there is no more typical member of the old troy English squirearchy, the biggest factor in ruling England until the most recent developments in democracy, which, in England as elsewhere, swept away many old political landmarks.

The Longs have been in unbroken succession in the English House of Commons for centuries, always on the side of the squirearchy against the world.

Walter Long took the part to perfection. His cheeks are as rosy as a sunset. Once when complimented to excess he said he would have blushed if nature had not denied him the power to do so. He rides to hounds, as has been the custom on his ancestral estates, has a good heart, pleasant manners, hard-shell opinions and, in fact, is a typical country gentleman. He ought always to be in knee breeches and scarlet coat as a squire going to hounds.

His squirearchical prejudices on the Irish question have been aggravated rather than mitigated by close family connections with the Anglo-Irish squirearchical families who have fought the British garrison in troublous times so resolutely. A maternal ancester was hanged in County Wicklow before his own hall. Walter Long's wife also is Irish, a daughter of Lord Cork, who, unlike most Irish peers, was Gladstonian and a home ruler.

Walter Long has a tremendous fluency which runs him into several successive perorations. Once when he was speaking, Arthur Balfour, being asked when he was going to stop, answered: "Walter has finished all he had to say, but when he will stop God alone knows."

STILL UNKNOWN AS SMITH.

Lord Birkenhead, still universally known as Fred Smith, is one of the strangest appointments. He was a bosom friend of Carson in the old days when Carson was preparing for the Ulster rebellion, taking a grotesque rather than an impressive part in Carson's military maneuvers as galloper and dispatch rider. Fred Smith is distrusted politically by everybody, but personally is loved by everybody. He is as much a revival of the eighteenth century figure in modern English politics as a highwayman stalking once more across Hounslow Heath. He comes from a modest Liverpool family. His father was an auctioneer, but displayed characteristic energetic ambition for his son by becoming a barrister later in life, which was a great rise in position in English life. He was able to send Fred to Oxford University, where his marvelous powers of speech, especially in brilliant invective and mordant epigrams, his daring and his recklessness at once rushed him to the front as a promising young man.

Added to those were other gifts less known, including deep knowledge of the principles of law, which give a surprising and almost unknown background of solid erudition and profound thought, to the glittering, sometimes amusing and sometimes even shocking glare of the foreground of the life and character of this reckless swashbuckler. He is eighteenth century also in his combination of all that reckless enjoyment of social life which made Pitt and Charles James Fox as much the centers of brilliant dinner tables as when they were taking part in parliamentary debates.

In appearance he is tall, alert and athletic, with coal-black hair, shining in carefully brushed smoothness over his long hatchet-shaped face, illumined with brilliant flashing dark eyes and with the upper lip short, bitter and scornful. His voice is melodious and his words rush from his lips in a stream.

He makes no pretenses and is almost as flagrant in his defiances of all the old decorum of ordinary English life as though he had stepped onto the stage in the top boots and with the blunderbuss of a Dick Turpin.

FISHER VERY DIFFERENT.

Herbert Fisher, the next most important figure, is the very antithesis of Smith, intellectually, morally and physically. He is very tall and as thin as a lath, with fair hair and a clean-shaven face. His complexion is beautiful, his features chiseled and he wears a meditative and benignant air and expression. He looks the university president which he was until Lloyd George brought him into politics. He is a scholar above all things and passed a great educational bill which revolutionizes English education. He has written extensively about history; is a vehement, convincing scholastic liberal. He has tastes as esthetic as Smith's are social. He is far and away the best member of the committee from the Irish point of view.

Edward Shortt, English by birth, Irish by education, looks a curious compound of the humorous Irishman and the jolly Englishman. His features are irregular, his cheeks rosy and he wears the typical English monocle. His expression is at once good humored and resolute. His chief desire in life was to obtain a judgeship with a good salary to support his large and charming family, but in the absence of a judgeship he took the Irish secretaryship. Rather because he lacked advancement, he was stubborn, tactless, resolute and very irritating without quite meaning it, and while regarding the job of governing Ireland by military coercion as a dirty job, did it as best he could. By a curious contradiction he remained a convinced home ruler while passing through that dreary revolting interval until Lloyd George found time, inclination and opportune conditions once more to think of Ireland.

LURED BY AMBITIONS.

Ian MacPherson, also is one of the home rulers whom ambition and the large temptations of a great office with a good salary lured to an unwelcome dirty job of coercionist chief secretary. He is a tall, lean, black-complexioned, anxious Highlander, who has broken down largely under the strain of constant anxieties, the great number of threatening letters and the constant presence of detectives detailed to protect his life.

Auckland Geddes I have too recently described to require further description. His mind is clear, but unsympathetic.

Robert Horne, Minister of Labor, is a Scotch lawyer, who professed before the war conservative opinions. He is jolly, of the good-humored type, with an infectious and ever-present smile that won him in Edinburgh the nickname of "Hail, Smiling Horne." He acts as he looks. He is ready to listen to everybody, giving appointments away to all possible applicants, backed by Parliamentary friends; is all things to all men, and is universally popular and tactful enough to fill the most anxious and difficult job in the present administration without making enemies. He will bring sweetness and light, but no special knowledge to the Irish problem.

Worthington Evans is a very smart city solicitor, with keen ambition. He began life with the avowed intention of making a fortune that would enable him to leave the city and the profession at 40. He made the fortune and left the city at 40. His training made him a master of figures, and he paved his way to success by constant and skillful criticism of Lloyd George's insurance scheme. He is tall and thin, with a head as bald as a billiard ball. He has a squeaky voice, is prosaic, but sharp and hard-working, and has all his facts and figures at his finger-ends. Also he has a pleasant temper. He is supposed to look after the financial arrangements in the new home rule bill.

Frederick Killaway began life as a journalist, but getting a good bit of money, indulged his ambition for public life, and started by being a vehement Radical. Then during the war he joined the Lloyd George group when Asquith was doomed, and got a place in the munitions department. There he did his work with conspicuous ability. He speaks well and means well.

Lord French you know all about already. He is a soldier, with the typical soldier's brain when it touches politics, and in spite of professed home-rule opinions, has consorted with the most bitter Orangemen while Lord-Lieutenant.

Such are the men who have to report on Ireland, but, of course, it is Lloyd George who has the last word, and the proposal will be moderately good or intolerably bad in proportion to Lloyd George's readiness to obey or defy Carson.

THE PAWPAW.

An Appreciation by a Reminiscent Missouri Editor.

The joyous days are here for those old-fashioned folks who still cling to the belief that the pawpaw is an edible fruit. The pawpaw is with us again. We are told, and we must confess that the information comes to us unsought and creates no particular thrill of enthusiasm, that there is a bumper crop of pawpaws this year. Having parted company with the pawpaws many years ago, on first acquaintance, in fact, we wonder at the bent of Nature that hands us a bumper crop of pawpaws and at the same time blights the corn crop.

It may as well be admitted that this ode to the pawpaw is written by one whose taste for the fruit—if it may be called a fruit—refused to be educated. On that particular subject, our taste bolted its educational career in the primary department, and refused to take up the study again. But, be that as it may, we have great respect for the pawpaw because of its history, association and memories. We have known many otherwise perfectly good citizens who fairly doted on pawpaws.

We recall the days of youth when we spotted the pawpaw tree in early September and watched the development of its product until the leaves began to fall, and there came a chill in night air, and a suggestion of frost, and with "Uncle Jimmie" Green's old one-horse cart we went through the woods to gather in the prize. We remember how we laid them out in the sun to ripen, and when they reached the stage of decomposition (we think that is the proper term, although we admit, again, to an alien taste) where they were pronounced "rich and juicy," we have witnessed a procession of old neighbors come to the house, and derive more satisfaction and delight from one pawpaw than even our young souls could find in a homemade pumpkin pie.

We were taught in common with young America everywhere in that day, to have a deep and lasting respect, almost reverence for the pawpaw. For that reason we never threw them at the birds or played shinny with them, although it required, sometimes, the courage of a Daniel to resist those temptations. We have frequently wondered why people even said they liked them, and at the same time we have been compelled to acknowledge the exemplary and unimpeachable character of the witnesses for the defense.

It is for these memories that there still comes to us a touch of sentiment with the reminder that pawpaws are ripe. And we are obsessed with the feeling, some way or other, that herein is where the pawpaw gets and holds its popularity. It is a link between us and the past, a tradition from the fathers who had no Rocky Ford cantaloupes, no honey dew melons, and with whom oranges were luxuries. We recall the good old days when we went pawpaw hunting with granddad—and we have a mighty taste for those old memories. Therefore, we boost the pawpaw along—and pass it to our neighbor to eat.

Anyway, here's to the pawpaw. The joyous days of its return are with us, and that means, we will soon have new pumpkins for pies, and it will be butchering time, and there will be homemade mince meat, and, oh, boy, we'll all be happy. So, three cheers for the pawpaw.—[Kansas City Times.

Bulls—One Irish.

The Kansas Legislature passed a law providing: "When two trains approach a crossing, both shall stop and neither shall go ahead until the other has passed over." This is like the Irishman who attended a public meeting called to discuss the building of a new jail. After listening to arguments for and against the jail, he broke out: "Mr. president, I'm in a notion to make a motion. I would suggest we do build a jail. I would further suggest that we take the bricks out of the old jail, put them in a new jail and let the old jail stand until the new jail is completed.—[Buffalo Commercial.

WHAT OUR CONSULS SAY.

Before the war there were twelve automobile factories in Belgium, located in the neighborhood of Liege, Charleroi, Brussels and Antwerp, employing 4000 to 5000 men. The annual production, chiefly private cars and motorcycles, approximated 4500 to 5000 automobiles and chassis and 7000 to 8000 motorcycles, with a total value of some $11,000,000.

Sugar cane thrives very well in Brazil, where it was introduced by the original settlers. It is grown in practically all the States of Brazil, and the present crop has been estimated to be over 400,000 tons of sugar.

During the month of May, 1919, the exports of olive oil from Spain amounted to 28,112 tons, reports Consul Dawson, at Barcelona. This amount added to the exports during the first four months of this year gives a total of export for the period January 1 to May 31, 1919, of 73,795 tons.

According to the Cape Argus it is proposed to hold in Pretoria, South Africa, during next March and April, an exhibition for which at least £100,000 will be raised. It is intended that there shall be a very large and representative display of the agricultural, mining and industrial products of South Africa, including, if possible, Rhodesia and Mozambique. The many new industries which have been recently started in South Africa will be represented. Special features will be made of mechanical transport and machinery of which Africa is badly in need.

Trade Commissioner Arthur N. Young reports that Spanish financial interests specializing on the development of Spanish Africa, particularly the colony of Fernando Po, desire to secure the co-operative participation of American capital in the development of a large land concession, port works and a shipping enterprise.

A new industry has been added to the list of Sheffield's activities. Prior to the war almost all the glace cherries consumed in England came from France, but when shipping restrictions interfered with cross-channel consignments of that kind a Sheffield firm of manufacturing confectioners took up the question of introducing the industry.

Of all olive-growing lands Spain is the most important in the total yield of oil, and is by nature one of those best fitted to fill its own large demands and furnish an increasing supply for export. Italy, the second olive-oil producing country in Europe, has an area planted to olives about a third greater than Spain has, but its yield in normal years is smaller. The French area under cultivation is confined to the Mediterranean coast, and is reported to be decreasing, since greater profits are obtainable from viticulture. It is asserted that in recent years 20,000 hectares of olive groves have been turned into vineyards in France. Tunis and Algeria are declared to offer better prospects for olive raising than does French [illegible] Europe.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY LADY JANE.

The publicity chairmen of the women's clubs and federations do lead rather a hectic life of it. Sometimes they are quite alarmingly competent and manage to get for their organization the lion's share of publicity, much to the green-eyed jealousy of the less successful. But even the successful ones do not receive from their clubs the gratitude to which they surely are entitled. The trouble is that club editors will [illegible] and they rarely show a proper enthusiasm for such items as that "delicious refreshments were served and a social hour was spent." They lack that newsy touch, because, of course, any refreshments are always delicious—"Ain't it the truth?" as the extra girl would say. Items about decorations and frequent assertions anent certain lady speakers' "inimitable charm" also pall a bit after a time.

The district federation's press chairmen's conference, instituted by Mrs. Mattison B. Jones during her regime, has a great deal to recommend it. Clubs should choose their press chairmen with the same discrimination exercised in choosing their presidents, since the former represent them to the public. And if a press chairman is verbose and faulty in her diction, if she lacks that precious "nose for news," her club is bound to suffer. Publicity has become an expert profession. Its exponents not only have the news sense highly developed, but they are tactful withal and show a nice understanding of the various papers' tastes and preferences. They are also generally good grammarians and spellers. Yet one or two clubs still address their club notices to editors who have ceased to be connected with the papers for years, and completely confuse all the others—a mere trifle, but a nice indication of indifference to details.

And all the time the clubs are teeming with interesting news. The Woman's Club Column could easily be the most piquant and captivating in the paper, if the press chairmen knew their jobs.

I see Mrs. James Walter Heustis has been made president of the local chapter of the National Association of American Penwomen. So far, both this organization and the local Press Club has not harbored many of the more active women members of the local press, although the latter has a goodly membership. Mrs. Heustis has an uphill job, for local membership with the Penwomen has not had very much to offer in the past beyond the privilege of paying dues. Still, if anybody can revive it into new life, Mrs. Heustis should be able to do so with her energy and amiable personality. I think she ought to make club press chairmen eligible, and give them some valuable pointers. Here's hoping.

The Friday Morning Club.

The Friday Morning Club thoroughly enjoyed itself at its last programme of Russian dancing and folk songs by Eugenia Buyko, a graceful and highly competent young lady, with a cleverly-selected repertoire, ranging from tragedy to piquant comedy. Her voice is natural and musical, her technique finished, her personality easy and unconscious, and her dancing peculiarly graceful. Her final number, a dramatic dance interpreting the old and new Russias, found particular appreciation, and her gowns throughout were most artistically unusual.

Mrs. Wells Smith, the new music chairman, was responsible for this programme, in which she was certainly more fortunate than Mrs. Randall Hutchinson the previous week. Mrs. Hutchinson brought Francisco Cornejo, who discoursed upon Aztec and Maya art, and perpetrated two club crimes. First, he read his notes, which is not being done before the large clubs nowadays, certainly not by professional lecturers; and secondly, he showed lantern slides of his studio, adroitly acquiring free advertising by the exhibition of objects d'art for sale.

One of the luncheon speakers Friday was Carol Aronovici, professor of economics at the University of California, who spoke on the importance of proper housing conditions in the campaign of Americanization of the foreigner. As the president, Mrs. O. Shepherd Barnum, said in introducing him, he was unusual in that he knew the practical side of his subject, as well as the theoretical.

The newly-formed athletic dancing class at the club is proving highly popular. Clubwomen mean to cultivate their physical as well as their mental abilities henceforth.

The Ebell Club.

Tomorrow's programme at the Ebell Club will be the Charter Day reception, preceded by a popular recital by Carrie Jacobs Bond, and combined with a book shower, by which members may donate all the books they like to the club library.

By the way, it was decidedly interesting to cull reflected glory from acquaintance with Carrie Jacobs Bond during a recent tour which the writer made to Australia, the Philippines, Borneo, China and Japan. At all those places "Our Carrie" is as well known as she is here and she has certainly helped to put Los Angeles on the map for those distant peoples.

The Hollywood Woman's Club.

Helen Brown Read, soprano, with Guy Bush at the piano, and Robert Alter, 'cellist, gave the Hollywood Club an enjoyable musicale last Wednesday, for which members were put in buoyant mood by the preliminary singing of choruses under the direction of the War Camp entertainer, Mr. Pilcher.

The public affairs committee of the club, with Mrs. E. B. Weirick presiding, heard a capable group of speakers at the Wednesday luncheon.

Next Wednesday the regular programme will be in the hands of Raymond Blaythwaite, whose lecture on the "International Value of the Novel" should prove worth while, since he is a writer and speaker of considerable experience in England.

The drama section will hold its first luncheon meeting at noon Wednesday. Mrs. Cora B. Fithian will preside and the chief subject will be Sir J. M. Barrie and his work, in a discourse by Mrs. E. B. Weirick.

The Women's University Club.

The University women will begin the year's club activities next Saturday afternoon at the Ebell Club House, a business meeting preceding the programme at 2 p.m. Miss Lois Townley, a recent acquisition to local musical circles, will be heard in a pianoforte recital. She comes from New York with excellent credentials.

Miss Annie Howell will also sing two song cycles composed by Gertrude Ross, who will preside at the piano. And Miss Elinor Warren will contribute a group of songs. Nor is this the complete programme. For good measure J. M. Barrie's one-act play Rosalind will be produced under the direction of Gertrude Keller Bagley and Mrs. J. B. Stearns, under the auspices of the Drama League.

The Wednesday Morning Club.

The Wednesday Morning Club will celebrate, next Wednesday, the opening of that new auditorium, which boasts a stylish stage and all sorts of luxuries, such as velour curtains and other costly trimmings. And Mrs. Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith will christen it with the first programme, "Women in Modern Literature," which has all sorts of dramatic possibilities. Ruth Ellen Miller will contribute some vocal harmony and Mrs. J. E. Brown, will preside as luncheon hostess.

Last week the club heard Mrs. Kemper Campbell in a most informing talk on the community property laws as they now stand and the proposed amendments, which cleared up a number of hazy points for lay students.

Halloween is to be celebrated in great style by this club, which believes in an occasional frolic.

Philanthrophy and Civics Club.

So many new members have recently been added to the Philanthrophy and Civics Club that a reception and musicale will be given in their honor Thursday afternoon, in the Elks' Club House, Third and Olive streets. Much interest is being shown in the programme, as some popular artists are to appear. Mrs. Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith, the president, will preside and the clubrooms will be radiant with autumn flowers and fruits. Mr. and Mrs. J. Spencer Kelly will give their own arrangement of "Absence" and the sextette from "Lucia," both selections by special request. Other attractive numbers will be: Pianist, Miss Elsa Shroeder; lyric soprano, Mrs. Bartlett Y. Davis; violinist, Miss Mary Goodrich Reed; steel guitar, Miss Florence McGarry; whistler, Dorothy Crist; accompanists will be Mmes. Clayton, Hinman and W. C. Reed.

Juvenile Protection.

The Juvenile Protective Association held its annual open meeting the 18th inst., at the Friday Morning Club House, Mrs. E. K. Foster, president, presiding. Dr. Lilburn Merrill, chief probation officer of the Juvenile Court of Seattle, made a brief address.

Interesting glimpses of various phases of the work were given in the reports. More than 300 cases were brought to the association during the year, and more than 200 others, already on file, received continued attention. Neglect, cruelty, unfit homes and incorrigibility were frequent complaints. Mrs. Foster spoke earnestly of the need for more volunteer visitors, automobiles and money.

A novel inquiry carried out during the year was a "Recreation Survey." A questionnaire, covering recreational facilities, was sent to a number of women's clubs, and special committees filled them out after a careful study of their respective fields. The results are most interesting, as showing the general need for wholesome recreation provided for people of all ages without cost. Moreover, the reports showed a desire for community centers—a sign of the general movement toward absolutely democratic neighborhood gatherings for recreation and discussion.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. A. N. Davidson and Dr. Donald Skeele were elected members of the board of directors.

The Women's Press Club.

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, chairman of the "Achieved Results" department, will be responsible for the programme at the S. C. Woman's Press Club meeting at 2 p.m. next Tuesday in the Brackett Auditorium. Speakers to be heard are Judge Willis Brown, Bertha Sinclair, novelist; Fritzi Remont, graphologist, and all of them have something personal and interesting to say. And since there is nothing quite so interesting as ourselves, the part of the programme in which Miss Remont will read our characters from our own handwriting is likely to be the most popular. Mrs. Bernett Anderson will be acting hostess during the social hour over the tea cups.

Au Revoir!

A hearty send-off marked the reception given to Dr. Albert Shiels at the Ebell Club House yesterday afternoon by the teachers of the city.

The deputy and assistant superintendents and the presidents of the teachers' organizations formed the receiving line. Mayor and Mrs. Snyder, members of the Board of Education, City Council, Chamber of Commerce and faculties of the universities, and presidents of the various clubs of the city were present.

Decorations were in charge of the schools. The musical programme was furnished by the high schools.

Dr. Shiels immediately left for New York, where he will head the Community Service Commission on Americanization. On the completion of this work, he expects to make his home in Southern California.

The Shakespeare Club.

Americanization will be the chief theme at the annual observance of reciprocity day at the Shakespeare Club next Tuesday. Eighty club presidents and other prominent club women from various parts of the Los Angeles district will be the club's guests at the luncheon. Mrs. A. R. Klock is chairman of the day, assisted by the house and hospitality committees. The special guests of honor and speakers at the collation will be Mrs. Aaron Schloss of Berkeley, president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Thomas E. Exley of Los Angeles, district president, and Mrs. J. P. O'Mara, Pasadena, chairman of the Americanization Committee of the Shakespeare Club. Mrs. Leo G. MacLaughlin, vice-president, will be toastmistress. Mrs. Clayton R. Taylor, president, will welcome the guests.

Mrs. Schloss will present greetings from the State federation. Mrs. Exley will speak upon "Americanization, the Function of the Club Woman." Mrs. O'Mara's topic will be "The Obligation that Democracy Places on the Native Born."

The programme for the afternoon will consist of a cycle of songs by John Smallman, baritone, with Mrs. Holbert Thomas, accompanist. Mrs. C. F. M. Stone will preside at the afternoon session.

The Matinee Musicale Club.

Mrs. Marshall Stokey Anderson, president of the Matinee Musicale Club, has great ambitions for the drama section, since she has secured Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith to be curator and, even against an ardent prejudice, to wear a label to that effect. At the last meeting Mrs. Goldsmith outlined "great expectations" in the accomplishment of which she will obviously work the enthusiasts to death. Likewise, "The Open Door," by Alfred Sutro, was portrayed by Mrs. W. K. Chambers and Berenice Marsher Murray.

This preceded the regular musical programme, which Hilda Nolte directed. Mary Goodrich Reade, violinist, Harold de Grosse, baritone, Helen Constance Morgan, pianist, all contributed their talent to the occasion, and Mrs. J. L. Selby, recently returned from France, gave an interesting talk on her work over there.

Business and Professional Women.

Miss Gail Laughlin, attorney and club woman of San Francisco, will be the guest of the federation and professional and business women's clubs Tuesday evening for dinner, the party to be given in the banquet hall of the City Club at 6 p.m. Miss Gail is expected to make an important address bearing upon the future interests of women in business and professional life.

The Highland Park Ebell.

Mrs. Herbert Cable's thoughtful address on "The Heritage of Citizenship" won great appreciation at the Highland Park Ebell Club at its first civics programme of the season. She emphasized the value of organization in all important attainments. Mrs. E. B. Weirick also spoke on social service.

The Wan-Wan Club.

The compositions of Grace Adele Freeby proved a delightful programme at the Wan-Wan Club last Wednesday, when Grace Widney Mabee, soprano, and Minnie Hance Jackins, contralto, sang a number of her most popular songs. With the composer herself at the piano and violoncello obligatos by Alfred Wallenstein, the compositions were heard at their best.

Mrs. Cecil Frankel, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, gave a brief review of the proceedings at the recent meeting at Peterboro, N.H. Elizabeth Wilbur, whose words Miss Freeby used for her songs, was also a guest of honor. The chorus, under the direction of Anthony Carlson, will hold its first meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Majestic Theater Building. Next Wednesday at 8 p.m. the drama section will give a one-act play and programme at the Ebell Club house.

The Cosmos Club.

The Cosmas Club opened last Wednesday, when, after a brief business session, Doris Freeman gave two readings, "Madam Butterfly" and "Adam and Eve."

The Cosmos Club intends tackling the high cost of living with personal and collective pledges of eggless, butterless, sugarless days until such reduction are visible.

The next philanthropy meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William Behm, 5733 Virginia avenue, Hollywood, November 6.

Club Briefs.

The annual meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held at the Ebell Club house next Wednesday and will be an all-day session. The most important feature is, of course, the election of new officers. The morning will be devoted to executive board business, and the delegates will assemble at 1:30 p.m., when reports will be heard and the election take place.

The Woman's Improvement Association of South Pasadena will meet next Wednesday afternoon. There will be an address on textiles and their application to home decorating by Henrietta H. Kapp, solo dancing by Edna Schofield, pianoforte solos by Gladys Covington and a dramatic recital by Edna Schofield.

The Boyle Heights Entre Nous Club had a novel session last week, when Mrs. R. H. F. Variel, programme chairman, asked historical posers for members to answer. Mary Workman gave an address on Americanization, and the League of Nations was discussed by Mrs. Carrie Brown. The programme November 5 will be devoted to parliamentary usage and followed by a musical recital.

The Inglewood Club met in the Masonic Building, when history and landmarks, in charge of Mrs. M. Kelso, were the basis of the programme. Mrs. D. F. Del Valle was the speaker, telling much of interest regarding the old missions of the State. Thursday the club entertained with a reception.

The University Book Club will meet next Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the branch library, West Jefferson street. Mrs. Elizabeth Smith will tell of Northwest Passage explorers, and Mrs. Elizabeth Berry of Cabrillo and the discovery of Alta California. Current topics will be dealt with by Mrs. W. Cronkhite.

The West Sbell Club will meet in the Vernon Square Library at 2 p.m. Tuesday, when ex-Senator Cartwright will speak on labor and capital. New club rooms at 4802 Western avenue will be opened with a Halloween party at 8 p.m. the 21st instant.

The Ruskin Art Club will entertain Virginia Graaf, of the Cleveland Art School, next Wednesday afternoon. The programme will be Serbian—art, music, national songs and sculpture.

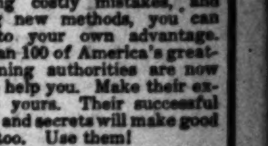
Take the Risk Out of Farming



The Secret of Success in Farming

The ordinary risks in farming through bad weather and pest enemies are bad enough—yet many farmers are unknowingly running unnecessary risks which make it a gamble whether they get small profits or large ones. And all these common hazards can be removed. Farming can be safe in results and sure in profits if you only take advantage of the long experience of America's most successful farmers. Their experience has a money value to you. They made mistakes, costly ones, and they paid dearly for learning their lessons. But the lessons they learned you can profit by. And their successful plans of eliminating risks, correcting costly mistakes, and adopting new methods, you can utilize to your own advantage. More than 100 of America's greatest farming authorities are now ready to help you. Make their experience yours. Their successful methods and secrets will make good for you too. Use them!

This Booklet Will Help You

Mail coupon below right now for this valuable booklet, "The Secret of Success in Farming." It is free! It was prepared by Sears, Roebuck & Co. and is chock-full of helpful information telling how you can solve your farm building problems, the raising of live-stock, some little mistakes you may be making and a few needless risks you may be running. It also tells about the treatment of seed, using fertilizers effectively, making and maintaining a rich soil, doubling and trebling field crops—and how you can learn the methods which produce 100 bushels of corn to the acre, 47 bushels of wheat, 80 bushels of oats, 240 bushels of potatoes, 310 lbs. of butterfat each year, and $2000 yearly side line profits on hens.

This booklet also contains many sample pages from Farm Knowledge and explains how, at a cost of over $50,000 for editorial material alone, the farming secrets, best methods and successful experience of farming successes and authorities in all parts of the country have been pooled together—so that you can boost your own profits and avoid the costly mistakes and worn-out methods which have proved worthless.

Discoveries of Specialists

The knowledge and experience of more than 100 specialists in farming, each of whom has devoted his life to a different branch of it, is now, through Farm Knowledge, ready for you to draw upon. Each is a "practical experience" expert and not a theorist. One grew corn, studied all about corn, went all over the country investigating corn crops and after many years of experience and study, became a recognized authority on corn to whom farmers came from far and near. And so it goes—in each branch of farming. Farm Knowledge gives you the help of one who has worked just as you work, who has faced the same problems you face, and who knows from practical experience and real financial success just how to get out of a farm all the profits that it holds.

In crop raising, live-stock producing, soil improvement, selection of farm machinery, irrigation, domestic farm management, and in farm work of every kind, Farm Knowledge has an expert to help you. Hugh G. Van Pelt, J. M. Evvard, Alva Agee, E. H. Farrington, Dean Curtis, C. H. Eckles, Dean Jardine, W. S. Corsa, F. C. Minkler—these are only a few of the 100 well-known farming successes who have made Farm Knowledge the wonderful help that it is.

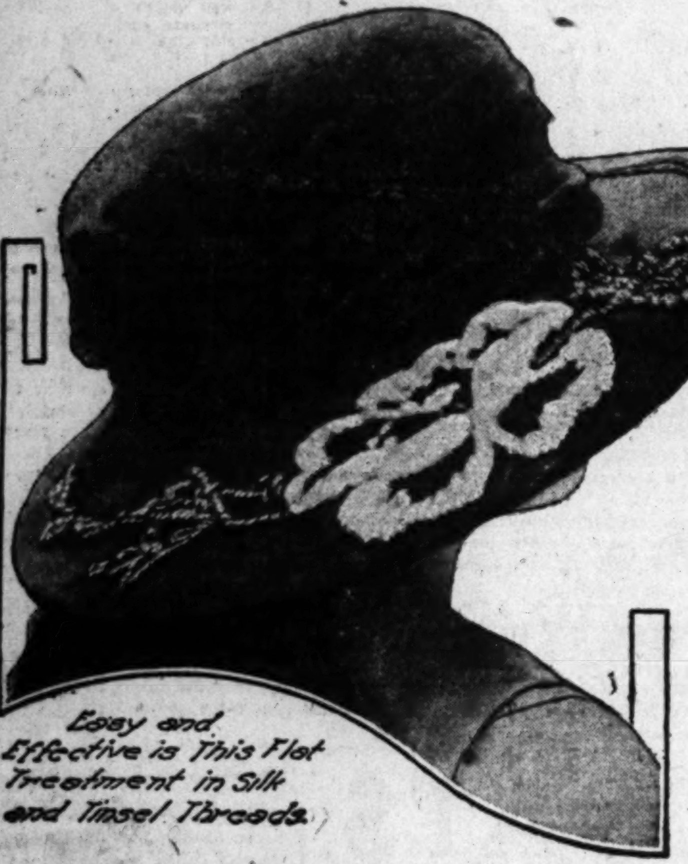
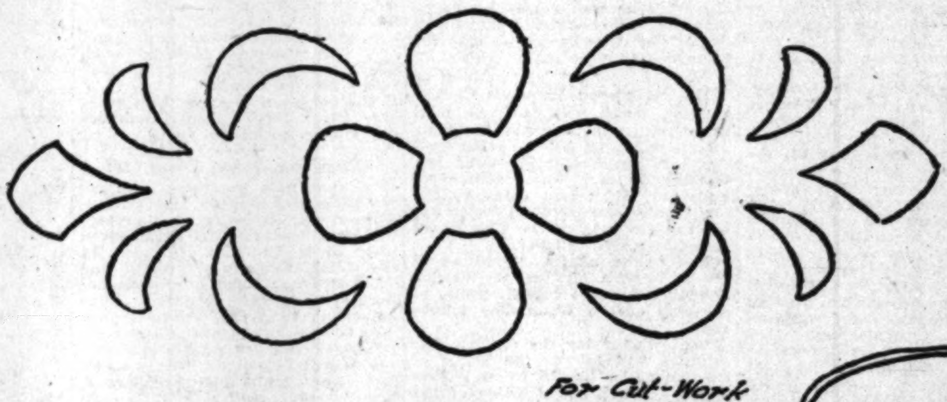
FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

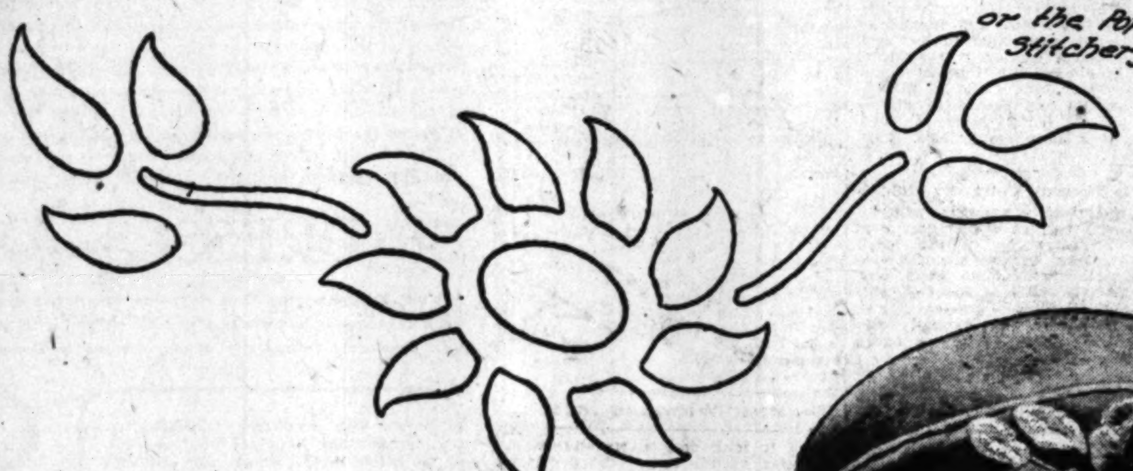
BY ADELAIDE BYRD

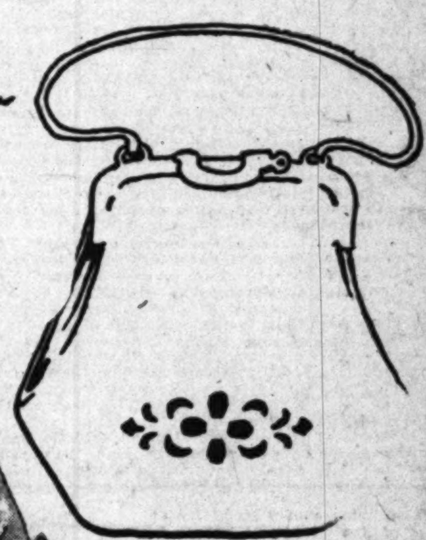
SMART WAYS TO TREAT YOUNG HATS

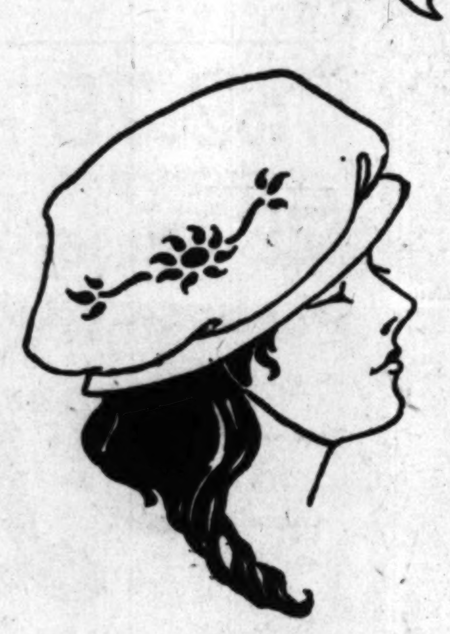


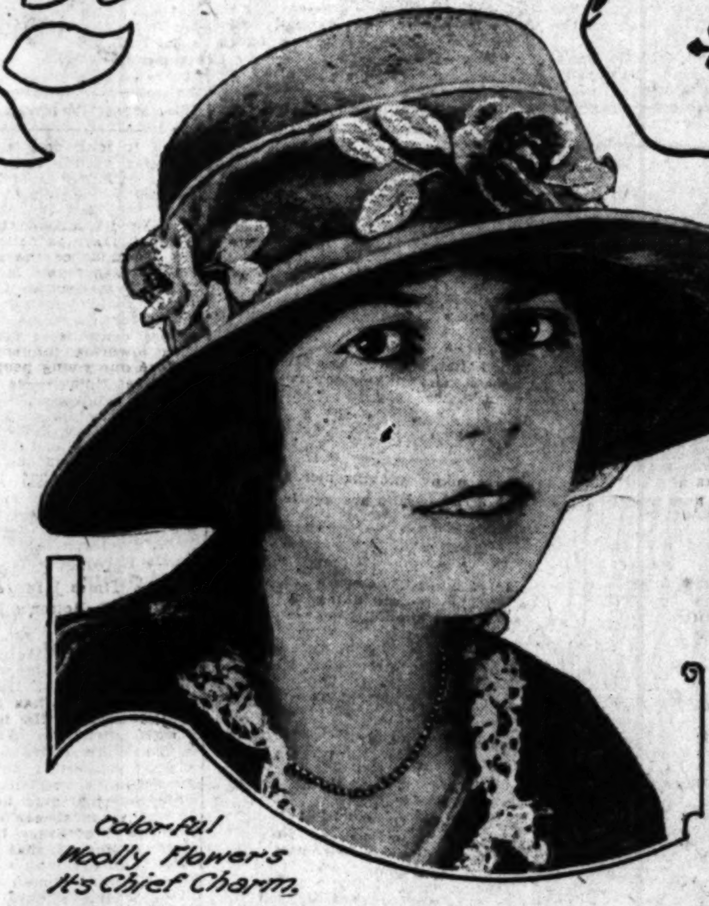
Easy and Effective is This Flat Treatment in Silk and Tinsel Threads.











Colorful Woolly Flowers It's Chief Charm.

PUTTING an old hat on a young head is an unforgivable thing. It's quite as bad as putting an old head on young shoulders—and every bit as unbecoming.

Very often the youth of a hat goes out when the trimming goes on—for some trimmings are terribly "old." Usually they are rather elaborate trimmings lacking the simplicity that spells youthfulness. Which brings us to the big, unalterable fact that in simplicity of treatment lies the secret of making Miss Teen's hat ever smart and ever becoming.

Instantly simple is the design suggested, and wonderfully easy to work up, whether you do it with the needle and silk or wool threads, or whether you do it with a pair of manicure scissors directly on that hat itself and fill it in with a contrasting lining.

The latter method is decidedly more novel, so we will talk about that first of all. To follow it successfully, tho, you ought really to work with felt or duvetyne, or any other stuff that has no tendency to fray. This cut work is ever so effective on a tam like the one sketched.

Begin by cutting out your hat pattern and securing the lining of contrasting color. There is really no necessity for having this lining go all the way, however, since its only purpose is to make a decorative filling-in for the cutwork. Besides, if you use an especially good quality of material, it would certainly be an unnecessary waste. So cover just as much of the hat frame with the lining as will come under the cut-out of the regular hat material. Then be quite sure that you get the design in the right place.

Make a transfer of the design to the material by perforating the drawing along the edges, and lightly sifting talcum powder or French chalk thru the perforations. Then follow the faint powder line with a pair of very sharp manicure scissors. Or you might cut the entire design from the page, pin it to the right spot on the material, and cut right thru.

Brown felt, or duvetyne atop of a bright yellow taffeta, or perhaps a jolly green satin, would be ever so fetching; so would navy blue be fetching, with a dash of vivid red underneath.

But now something about using the design for needle purposes. Worked solid in silk or wool or tinsel it is calculated to be positively charming. Can't you see it in antique blue wool merrily going about the brim of a black velvet hat? Again, what do you think about dabbing it around the crown of an old-blue felt and doing the dabbing in a happy rose silk? Another combination that aims to please, and usually succeeds in doing it, is the rose-and-silver scheme, the rose happening in the hat itself and the silver in the metal-thread-embroidered flowers.

Or you might prefer using more than one color in the stitching. The model with the effective flat treatment shown uses old gold and bright orange silk against the golden brown of its duvetyne background.

The other model is rather radically charming, its flowers, the wool and hand done, being entirely independent of the background. They are the very original matter of doing an over-and-over stitching on bits of buckram cut to resemble the petals and center of a flower. A close buttonholing supplies a finish that is every bit as attractive as it is practical. If you are one of those ingenious people with a spirit of adventure about you, you might try the little stunt with the design drawn originally for other purposes.

But the really important thing is that you find something here that fits the gentle head of your particular "8 to 18."

BEGINNING

next Sunday, and continuing every other Sunday until your home is perfect to the last detail—and then some—is a series of interior decorating articles that you don't want to miss. Nor will you want to miss a single one after you've seen the first on this page next Sunday.

More About Cut-Outs

IT ISN'T applique this time, it's omission. And you do it like this: First, of all you choose a rather bold, simple design, like a conventionalised poppy, for instance, something with quite large flat petals, and instead of cutting the design out of some other material and applying it to the garment that you are decorating, you cut directly out of the thing that you are working on. After that you bind the edges of the cut-out with bias strips of vivid colored satins or other contrasting silks. Finally you pose the cut-out over an underslip contrasting in color with the overslip.

You can't imagine a more effective way to treat undies that demand a "different" air. Designs cut out of chiffon, georgette, crepe de chine or satin, and bound with contrasting stuffs and colors then posed over further contrasting slips are simply fascinating. Nor need you try elaborate designs at first, like the flower motifs. For you can get surprising results with primitive geometric designs like square, ovals and diamonds, if you play up color note strong. Then, if you are ever in doubt about contrast, try that ever-safe and always striking bit of black. Fancy flesh-colored chiffon bound with black satin and posed atop of jade green satin. Or picture a brilliant jade bound with black and put atop of orange.

You needn't confine this cut-out work to undies, either. There is fetching room for it on the lovely overblouses of the moment, on hats, scarfs and many a frock, too. Give it a trial. It's wonderfully easy, ever so quick and remarkably effective.

When the Boudoir Lamp Needs a New Shade

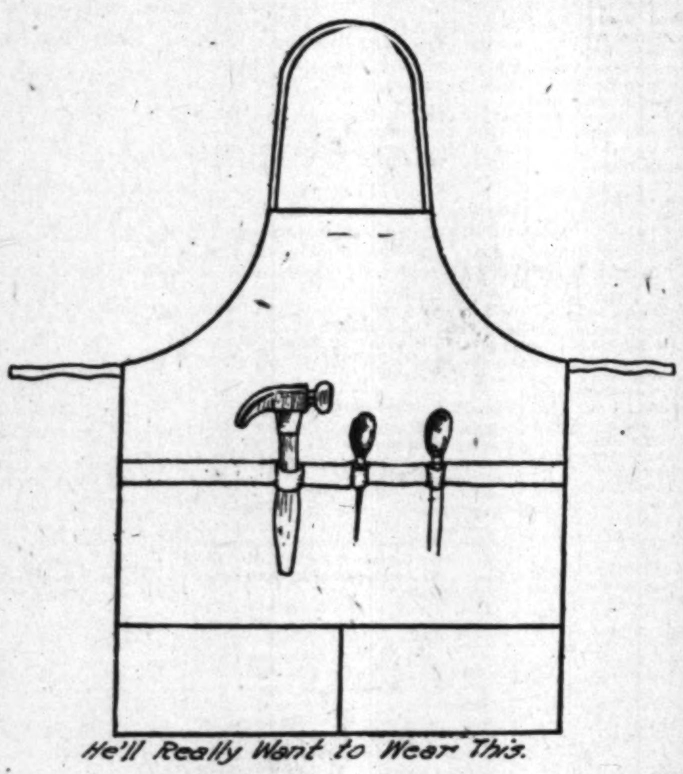
YOU want one which is not of silk, perhaps? Well, perhaps again, you have some pieces left over after making your scrim curtains for that room? Cut the shade from a straight piece of scrim of the width needed for the depth of the shade. Cut the top and bottom as you would shallow scallops to get the rounded effect for the shade.

Give it a lining of china silk of the dominant color in your boudoir. Then buttonhole stitch the scrim and lining together top and bottom with colored silk embroidery floss. Fasten the sides together with small buttons and buttonholes. If the scrim is plain colored, you will need a bit of cross-stitch embroidery at four small intervals about the compass of the shade. It is a means of getting a dainty effect for very little.

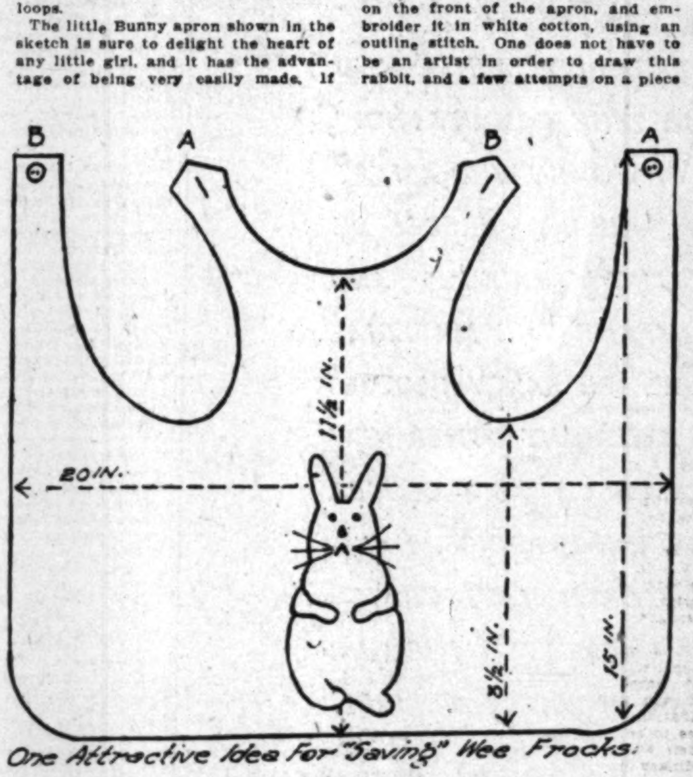
Little Aprons, Masculine and Feminine

MOTHER spends most of her time making things for sister, but brother is due to come in for his share, too, and here is an apron which any little boy will indeed be proud to wear. The tiny carpenter's apron shown in the picture is very easy to make, and requires only a small piece of material. Blue or brown denim will be found good and has the advantage of washing well. A pattern must be cut to fit the child, following the outlines in the sketch. Cut the apron by this pattern, and cut also a piece to go across the bottom which forms the pockets. Baste this piece to the bottom of the apron, and stitch on the machine down thru the center to form two pockets. Bind the apron all around with a bias piece of some thin material, or hem if the denim is not too heavy. Make a strap of two pieces of the denim, and fasten the end of the strap to the sides of the apron just above the pockets. On the machine sew perpendicular rows of stitching thru the strap to the apron to form loops thru which the tools may be slipped. Fasten a piece of black tape to the top of the apron, so that a loop is formed which will slip over the head, and sew two pieces of the tape to the sides of the apron to be tied around the waist. The apron is completed by purchasing a few tools and some nails at a "ten-cent" store and fitting them into the pockets and loops.

The little Bunny apron shown in the sketch is sure to delight the heart of any little girl, and it has the advantage of being very easily made. If one will study the sketch and follow the measurements a paper pattern can readily be made. The measurements are given for a one-year-old child, and they can be increased to fit a child of any age by taking measurements of the skirt length, etc. When the pattern is made, cut out the apron from a piece of colored gingham. The material should be of a solid color, either pink or blue. Bind the apron all around with white bias seam tape, and place buttons and buttonholes, as indicated on the sketch. Draw the outline of a rabbit on the front of the apron, and embroider it in white cotton, using an outline stitch. One does not have to be an artist in order to draw this rabbit, and a few attempts on a piece of paper will bring surprising results. Patterns giving the outlines of different animals may also be purchased for a very nominal sum. When the apron is put on, the straps are crossed in the back, A-A and B-B buttoning together.



He'll Really Want to Wear This.



One Attractive Idea For "Saving" Wee Frocks.

"Safety First" in Your Kitchen

Between the dark and the daylight,
When the work is beginning to thicken,
Comes a pause in the day's occupation,
When you wish the clock would stop tickin'.

For busy as you are, you must stop
To get a pin that's way up stairs;
You waste your time and your effort
And you cuss those awful stairs!

AND if you're wise, you'll learn the lesson that the safety pin should have a place downstairs. Why not keep plenty of them in your kitchen? There's a clever little way to make room for safety first in your kitchen.

Take some toweling of either the red or the blue-checked variety. Cut out two good-sized circles of the material. Then entirely cover a circle of cardboard of the same size with cotton batting. This will be the inside of your round Safety-First Kitchen Kushion. Bind it with bias binding in red or blue, and use a loop of it for the hanger.

Now, first across the middle of it outline three small safety pins with black embroidery floss. If you like the idea of making safety-pin bunnies, add two ears to each pin (in outline) and you'll have three bunnies with their backs turned to you!

Once you have a regular place of this sort in the region of your kitchen where safety first will have its own appropriate place, you will never be willing to do without it again.

A New Adaptation of the Silk Sweater

SWEATERS are doing so many things these days that it's hard to keep up with them. One clever young lady has made herself what she properly calls her "real silk sweater," and it is one of the things which you may not have seen a sweater do before.

Instead of using wool or silk floss, this young lady used baby ribbon and gave it angora collar and cuffs after the combination vogue of the present-day sweater. She expects to make a scarf collar for it after she has tired of the angora one, for she didn't knit the collar and cuffs right on to the sweater; she only snapped them on with snap-fasteners. Being very temperamental, she anticipated her oncoming wish for a "change."

She is going to knit the scarf of embroidery ribbon instead of baby ribbon, and snap it to the back of the sweater neck. The cuffs to go with it will be made turn-back ones just as the ones of angora which are now on the sweater.

It really is a fascinatingly pretty thing to wear with her silk skirts, and when she wears a ribbon sash with it—well, her costume would win admiration most anywhere!

had used only a tithe intelligence and industry in that they could have put in in doing the thing they can never do, they would have made brilliant successes.

And we see people who can draw a little and paint a little, and who have an eye for color and form, who could make fortunes if they applied their small talents to commercial lines, who waste the whole of their lives and grow into bitter and disgruntled failures trying in vain to be Whistlers and Innesses.

And we come back again to the pity of it all, and wonder at the folly of people who have not intelligence enough to take the measure of their own ability, and work up to that instead of deluding themselves with false estimates of their talents.

For, when all is said, nature has set the limit to our achievements before ever we come into the world. As the homely old proverb puts it, you cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. Nor can you light the fire of genius with your own hand. That is a task the gods themselves must have performed. Though a man should study the art of writing from the time he was born until he was as old as Methuselah, it would not give him the brain of a Kipling. Through no art, no skill, no labor, can a man create that mysterious something in the throat that makes a Caruso.

We are as we are made, with our fixed limitations. We can go so far and no farther, and the wise thing is to make the most of what we are, instead of wasting our strength and energy in aspiring to the impossible. It is better to be a successful mechanic than an artistic failure. It is better to make a loaf of good bread, or a well-designed frock, than to paint a dauby picture or write stories that won't sell.

Ambition is the sin by which Satan fell, the poet says. Certainly, misdirected ambition is the first aid to failure to a large number of men and women who would be successes if they would only cut their aspirations according to their ability.

Never was there more mischievous advice given than that we should aim at the stars, even if we only hit the barn door. A bullseye in the barn door counts for more than a million scattering shots at the milky way.

A SUBSCRIBER.

Raps the Movies.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] A friend sent me a copy of a weekly Los Angeles publication mainly devoted to the "movies." In it appears a letter from one William Duncan, presumably a moving-picture actor. Following extract is reproduced in large type, with indorsement of the editor:

"We hold the balance of power in this city—we have a sufficient number of votes to swing any election and elect any official we choose. When we don't like their ordinances (I mean when they conflict with or restrict our business efforts,) let's change them.

"In other words, instead of being told when, where and how to build studios, conduct business or make our homes, we can lay out those little plans ourselves, and, as regards people who are antagonistic to us, be they property owners or merchants, we can refrain from business dealings with them or their associates.

"We can and must organize our strength in this community, which we have helped to build and support."

This outburst is caused by the appearance in Los Angeles papers of classified advertisements in which house and apartment owners seeking tenants, except "actors, dogs and children."

Owners of apartments would certainly not make such exception if they had not been driven to it by expensive experience. Domesticated dogs, undomesticated children and temperamental actors may do damage to an apartment that is scarcely offset by the rent.

Not long ago a moving-picture actress, who might pose for "Innocence," was sued by a landlord because she left her flat in a condition that suggested an all-night Bolshevik orgy. And, notwithstanding their exaggerated salaries, moving-picture actors, as a class, are notoriously poor pay.

It seems to me that some of these moving-picture actors, spoiled by the fulsome adulation and worship of shallow-minded women, are getting to a point of self-inflation where they imagine themselves to be demi-gods, whereas, with their war paint off, they are quite ordinary human beings.

Also, they really seem to think that the movies are the sole foundation of the greatness and prosperity of Los Angeles. The making of moving pictures is an important and interesting industry, but "there are others," and one is even able to conceive of the possibility that Los Angeles might continue to exist and flourish without them.

The automobile industry also is an important industry, but the automobile men do not claim privileges denied to other classes.

Los Angeles would not go to the devil were the studios to leave. Many girls have gone to the devil because they are here.

Factories are not allowed in residence districts. A moving-picture factory is more disturbing to a neighborhood than a shirt-waist factory, because it may make sleep impossible. The evident solution is for the moving-picture studios to establish settlements apart, as they have successfully done at Universal City and Culver City.

There are many moving-picture actors and actresses who are gentlemen and ladies. Unfortunately, there also are many others, and these bring the profession into disrepute.

As to organizing, that is their privilege. "They're all doing it," nowadays. They should, however, endeavor to realize that even moving-picture actors are amenable not only to the laws of the land but to public opinion.

OLD-TIMER.

League Cannot Fail.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Every few hundred years Fate sends the world a large soul. It seems to anticipate times of disruption and need for wisdom. In the present distraction came Woodrow Wilson; and the scribes, pharisees, and hypocrites of politics rage and scream at his heels like the journeymen of Demetrius, the silversmith, when the metaphysician Paul sought to teach the phallic worshipers of their fallacious fashions.

I have just returned from a long trip of several weeks in the Northwest, involving Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Montana. Everywhere I went I found deepest feeling against the opponents of the League of Nations; resentment at the verbose Johnson, whose "vaulting ambition quite o'erleaps itself;" bitterness against the bombastic Borah, the conceited Lodge, the self-sufficient Knox, the vainglorious and designing marplot Reed; these are charged with having almost killed the greatest man of America, if not the greatest man in the world—the brave, the noble Wilson.

The league will not fail. No one expects it to be defeated. Opponents are reckoned cranks, madmen or such as have ulterior motives. If the chattering magpies of petty politics and offended vanity were permitted to mold history and form statescraft that is to guide the world, then might we suspect God "asleep" as Elijah charged against the gods of Baal, or "dead," as alleged by the French revolutionists. But the people of the United States are not yet imbued with the pronouncement of Madame de Maintenon: "After the deluge."

Suggests Ridicule.

ONTARIO, Oct. 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I really have not time to take part in this "Morbid Films" discussion, but I must acknowledge my debt of gratitude to you for printing it. In his letter to The Times this morning, he man who cites classic drama and also daily news headlines, hangs himself with his own rope.

Of course Shakespeare's tragedies, but all love may be a tragedy and clean too. Juliet and Ophelia and Marguerite and others were sweet maids and their love and their sorrows were their own. Desdemona was innocent and the crime of the play was jealousy. Ambition was the crime of Macbeth and Julius Caesar and others, but truly a few brain crimes would be a relief and an improvement in the place of the universal sense plots.

The very news scum with which he backs his plea for married triangles and beast-like pursuit of innocence (stage innocence) is a boomerang. As the stage has set many styles in dress so it has the power to set the styles in morals, and as this man has pointed out, even now the harvest is beginning of the moldy dreams of the limited, uneducated scenario writer.

Not only on the screen, but the most secluded one touches its slime everywhere. It took only a week for a man at a canyon resort this summer to take an unattached woman to his confidence and heart (screen heart) to tell her that he had been married a month, that his wife was most unsympathetic, etc., he had to do this or the movies wouldn't have been true! It would be funny if it were not so disgusting.

I am not writing this to write, but to urge you to continue to fight regularly, this lowering influence set nightly before our young people.

May I suggest ridicule—as a killing weapon? It will cure where all prayers for decency fail.

There is hardly a greater power than the newspaper and with anarchy in our labor and the movie dream in our homes what will be left? So please use your power.

Sincerely, C. C. C.

Liberty Under Law.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In reply to the letter of Mr. J. Bolton's, in your issue of October 7, in which he states that no other race has ever caused the worry and bloodshed in this country as the negro. He would say that no other race has been as loyal as the negro. He is overcharged with patriotism. You may call it a passion, a virtue, a sentiment or what you will, but there is no sentiment so strong, no virtue so enobling, but what must be transplanted in that most earliest and generous growth of every boy and girl, man and woman, that abiding and serene love of country and of races, which must at sometime burst forth in an all conquering glory and an everlasting enthusiasm.

For thirty years the white man has been fighting the negro with his social quality plank. And now Mr. Bolton comes forward with his competition in the industrial world theory. Oh, if this country only had a few more of the disciples of Theodore Roosevelt, such as Johnson, Borah and Lodge to go through this country teaching the doctrine of all men up and not some men down and equal opportunity for every man to earn an honest living in the country in which he lives, regardless of race or color. Could the shades of the venerable Roosevelt speak to the American people today. Methinks he would sound a warning that would reach back to the knell of Plymouth Rock it would be a clarion appeal, for liberty, not only from the torch and bomb. But liberty under law, the safeguard of all justice and the foundation of all freedom.

Voices From the Curb.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] While standing in the crowd on Broadway last Friday waiting for a glimpse of the man, who with his brave little army, held the devilish Huns at bay until the rest of the civilized or partly civilized, world could get its breath and spit on its hands to come to his rescue, a big burly policeman came along and sneeringly said to the crowd who were craning their necks to catch a glimpse of the coming parade, "now get back to the curb. You will all have a chance to see the King. You will have one in this country pretty soon. That is what you want."

A man, intelligent appearing at that, backed him up in this sentiment by calling out, "You're all right old man, it's nothing but King worship." Little I made bold to sing out, "No he's all wrong. This King is a real man and a true hero." Whereat the aforesaid intelligent appearing man said, pointing to his companion standing by his side, "So is this a real man, but they don't have a parade for him." I replied, "I wouldn't doubt it in the least, so are you and I and all of us real men and it is high time we realized it and acted accordingly and with a little discriminatng sense." This withering remark of mine seemed to close the incident, but seriously, the speech and attitude of the policeman looked to me like a very cheap play to the gallery and indicated a deplorable lack of grasp of the situation. Also, I could but wonder why the other two men referred to were standing there in the waiting and vulgar King-worshiping throngs. What do you think?

Just one of the crowd.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Q.: How can I remove tar, a kind that is used on our gravel roads, from an automobile body, without injuring the varnish? M. C. D.

A.: Our automobile expert says that after the tar has become hardened, it is almost impossible to remove it without injuring the varnish of the machine. When the tar is in a soft condition it may be removed by applying warm water and a good body soap. Vaseline and grease paint or lard are also used.

Q.: How many bills have been passed over President Wilson's veto? H. F. F.

A.: The daylight saving law was the first bill to be passed over the President's veto.

Q.: Has July Fourth been made a national holiday by act of Congress? C. D.

A.: Independence Day is a national holiday by general custom and observance, and not because of Congressional legislation.

Q.: What is the total Jewish population of the United States, and of the world? E. T. J.

A.: The American Jewish New Year Book for 1919 reports the total population of Jews in the United States as 2,933,374. The Year Book for 1914 reports the total population of Jews in the world as 15,124,329.

Q.: What individual in history was called the "Eaglet?" M. W.

A.: The son of Napoleon, sometimes known as Napoleon II, and afterwards as the Duke of Reichstadt, was called "Eaglet." He died when only 21 years of age.

Q.: Tell me the meaning of James Earl Frazer's sculpture called "The End of the Trail." R. K.

A.: This tragic picture of the Indian on his pony is supposed to symbolize the dying out of the Indian race.

Q.: How many patents have been granted in the United States? L. C.

A.: More than 1,300,000 patents have been granted in this country since the United States Patent Office was established in the latter part of the eighteenth century.

Q.: Who were the Night Riders? I. H. C.

A.: This term was applied to parties who, during the period between 1906 and 1910, carried on a bitter war against the tobacco trust in the tobacco-growing States in the South. A number of planters entered into an agreement to fight this trust by refusing to sell their product. When some of the planters broke their agreement, bands of masked horsemen visited their plantations and destroyed their crops.

Q.: When were beads first made? B. M. B.

A.: It is not known exactly how long ago the first beads were made. They were among the earliest ornaments known, and are found in many Egyptian tombs. Beads were used by the Phoenicians for trade and were also widely used by the American Indians.

ODE TO BACHELORS.

BY CAPT. LESLIE T. PEACOCKE.

Free as a bird on a leafless tree
Is the man who has shunned to wed;
Unhampered in every way is he,
He can spread himself out in bed;
He can eat what he likes and can drink till dawn,
If he knows where to get the stuff,
And can face a big head and a thirsty morn
Without having to lie and bluff.
He can make and can break every kind of date
And can pen most endearing slush,
Without danger of facing a tete-a-tete
With the mien of a mean four-flush.
He can cope with most widows on equal terms—
Except those over 32,
Who are harboring matrimonial germs,
For you can't tell what they may do!
He can flirt with other men's foolish wives,
And can cross the best friend he's got,
And can ruin one hundred thousand lives,
If he's willing to risk a shot.
He can choose his own ties and can smoke a pipe,
And can chew, if he likes that cult,
Without being upraided a loathesome type
And submitted to gross insult.
He can snore through the night to his heart's content
Without protests to wake him up.
And can live where he likes, if he pays his rent,
And can room with a fat bull pup.
He can spend all his money to suit himself,
And run into all kinds of debt;
Yet, most bachelors seem to be void of pelf;
I have ne'er met a rich one yet!
What matter if buttons are off his pants,
He can fix them with safety pins;
It is quite a la mode with the best infants,
And such things can't be classed as sins.
If he's always a hope in some maiden's breast,
And hearts flutter at his approach,
Don't blame the poor man if he shies to rest
On the spot where they fix the brooch.
He is modest, more modest than widows or maids,
As all widows can vouch for a fact,
And when bachelors call they lower the shades,
For they know how all bachelors act,
Yet, when they are old and one foot in the grave,
Won't they view all past life as a curse?
The loving old arms of a wife won't they crave,
Instead of a pretty young nurse?!!!

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

BY LOUISE R. WAITE.

Thou League of Nations! Dream of poets past,
And vision of the prophets great of old;
Foretold by messengers of light and love,
Thy birth hour now draws nigh for all the world.

No power of darkness, greed or selfish aim,
Can hold thee back, God's will shall now be done,
As well might man with human strength endeavor
To stop the rising of tomorrow's sun.

The word which bade thee be hath spoken been,
It is a part of God's eternal plan;
All hail to thee! O League of Nations Great!
All hail to thee! O Parliament of Man!

BEACH NUTS.

By Capt. Leslie T. Peacock.

The beach is the place where we see funny sights;
In bathing suits wonderfully quaint;
Bishops, school teachers and deacons in tights,
Moving pictures no artist dare paint.
You will see a fat banker roll into the tank,
In a suit of most scandalous cut,
Doing stunts that no mortal dare do in a bank;
Don't blame the old dear—he's a nut!

You will see a grim farmer from Iowa State,
Gaping wildly at scant bathing suits,
Being led to the surf by his prim wedded mate,
Out of reach of the forbidden fruits,
Through his lifelong-worn whiskers he'll mutter and curse,
For he's lived all his life in a rut,
So, he's got to be handled as child by a nurse;
He's a farmer—the worst kind of nut!

A lean, hungry writer will come into view;
He's a nut, as a matter of course;
And of actors and widows you'll see quite a few,
For they flock to the beaches in force.
And then there's the man with his chest too low down,
Who at all his meals runs the gamut,
In the tightest of suits to be found in the town;
And he's proud of his shape! The poor nut!

There are dentists with toothaches and doctors with chills,
And healers with corns in the waves,
All claiming to cure all the other nuts' ills,
And each voting the others all knaves.
But the prime nut of all is the nut who can swim;
Who doesn't strike poses nor struts;
When they're out of their depth all the nuts scream for him;
He's the life guard—the nut who saves nuts!

How to keep your nails looking freshly manicured all the time

YOUR nails look unbelievably lovely after their Cutex manicure! They are so shapely, so exquisitely groomed; the cuticle edge at their base is as smooth, firm and even as if they had just had a professional manicure. You are delighted with their appearance!

Keep them looking lovely always

Spasmodic attention won't do it—having your nails manicured occasionally may only make the cuticle look worse, in the long run. But with a bottle of Cutex at hand, it is so easy to keep your cuticle always smooth and firm.

So little trouble, too

Once or twice a week, according to the rapidity with which your cuticle grows, dip the end of an orange stick, wrapped with absorbent cotton, into your bottle of Cutex and work it gently around the base of each nail, gently pressing back the cuticle. Carefully rinse the fingers in clear water, pressing back the cuticle as you dry your hands.

Thousands and thousands of women would tell you that in half the time it takes for the ordinary manicure, they can, with Cutex, keep their nails always in noticeably lovely condition. Use Cutex regularly, and you, too, will find that it does away entirely with the cuticle cutting and trimming that ruin the appearance of your nails.

The Times Literary Page Books and Their Makers

BY THOMAS F. AND LILLIAN C.

MARY OLIVIER: A LIFE.

A Powerful Story by May Sinclair, Depicting the Development of an Individual With a Strong Autobiographical Flavor.

"Mary Olivier: A Life."

May Sinclair's latest book, "Mary Olivier: A Life." (Macmillan) is a book essentially tragic, tragic as life itself, but it is suffused with a noble optimism and places the events of life in such amazingly clear perspective as to leave none of the gloom or depression with the reader when the book is finally closed.

The book lays bare the life story of Mary Olivier from babyhood to the year she reaches the age of 47, developing the character bit by bit, from episode to episode, always subordinating the event to the reactions resulting, making the book the development of the story of a soul as few books are.

We see Mary Olivier an eager, glowing imaginative child, born into a smug, middle-class English family where her high spirit and soaring imagination seem most surely doomed to be trampled upon and destroyed.

It is hard to say which is the better drawn, the complacent, self-centered, virtuous mother; the frankly coarse-natured, cruel father, obsessed with a consuming and jealous passion for the pretty lady who is his wife; the grasping and crafty Uncle Edward, who presents Mary with a dying lamb on her fifth birthday; the older brother Mark, strong enough to get away from the all-devouring mother but not strong enough to live his own life despite his mother's insistently selfish love; the two weaker brethren who failed so wretchedly to get away from their limitations; or the minor characters who live with such vividness in these pages.

Throughout the book, however, the story is essentially of the rare character that is Mary.

Always life tries to thwart her, to deprive her of herself, to shape her into the mold her family understand and approve. Between Mary and her mother the struggle is poignant and never-ending.

"Ever since I began to grow up I felt there was something about mamma that would kill me if I let it. I've had to fight for every single thing I've ever wanted. It's awful fighting her when she's so sweet and gentle. But it's either that or go under."

"Minky—you talk as if she hated you."

"She does hate me."

"You lie." He said it gently [illegible] out rancor.

"No. I found that out years a[illegible] She doesn't know she hates m[illegible] She never knows that awful sort [illegible] thing. And of course she loved m[illegible] when I was little. She'd love [illegible] now if I stayed little so she could do what she liked with me; if I'd sit in a corner and feel as she feels, think as she thinks and do what she does."

"If you did you'd be much nicer, Minx."

"Yes. Except that I should be lying then, the whole time. It's your real self she hates—the thing she can't see and touch and get at—the thing that makes you different. Even when I was little she hated it and tried to crush it. I remember things—"

"You don't love her. You wouldn't talk about her like that if you loved her."

"It's because I love her. Her self. Her real self. When she's working in the garden, planting flowers with her blessed little hands, doing what she likes, and when she's reading the Bible and thinking about God and Jesus, and when she's with you, Mark, happy. That's her real self. I adore it. Selves are sacred. You ought to adore them. Anybody's self. Catty's . . . I used to wonder what the sin against the Holy Ghost was. They told you nobody knew what it was. I know. It's that. Not adoring self in people. Hating it. Trying to crush it."

"I see. Mamma's committed the sin against the Holy Ghost, has she?"

"Yes."

In these words we find the crux of the struggle. Despite opposition she is her real self. She teaches herself Greek in order to read the philosophers, she struggles with and masters, Plato, Kant, Hegel, Haeckel, Darwin, Ribot, Maudsley—striving always to penetrate beneath the surface of life and find at last the meaning of it all.

In the end she learned the hardest lesson of all, of putting philosophy into practice. the living of the truth, from day to day and from year to year.

But this Mary, with all her philosophy, is a very human Mary, after all. Though one lover after another fails her, we are never in doubt as to the heart of her and when at last she gives herself to the man who discovered her genius we understand that, too, and fail to be shocked because it is done without benefit of clergy. That this lover should fail her in the end and that her high courage should still hold is a measure of the strength and sweetness of the woman.

The beauty of the book is the gift it holds within its covers. The lesson of kindness, of tolerance, of sympathetic understanding, entailing sacrifice and service that Mary learned—a lesson that vitalized her philosophy and brought the happiness she had long sought for in vain.

The way by which Mary reached [illegible] heights through mystical paths [illegible] learned to practice a kind of [illegible]ypnotism that banished desire [illegible] doubt and discontent will appeal to many readers, and because [illegible] the delicate skill of the treatment this part of the book will offend few.

And yet the author never preaches, never dogmatizes. She merely looks within and writes. It is this that makes the work convincing; that gives it the flavor of autobiography. Is it perhaps the story of the inner life of May Sinclair masking as Mary Olivier?

A WOMAN NAMED SMITH
By MARIE CONWAY OEMLER

A DELIGHTFUL new novel of the South. We would recommend it to our best friend. It has a rattling good plot with a haunted house, a fascinating mystery and a two-handed love story. It has likable and memorable people. It is full of good-natured laughter and human feeling. The atmosphere is as clear and stimulating as a cool, clear day in October. And it is all told in a way that is positively irresistible. The New York World says: "The whole book is a refreshment;" and every review the publishers have seen says read "A Woman Named Smith." (A Century book. At all bookstores. Price $1.60.)

OMAR AND RABBI.

When two great forces come nobly to grips we have what Stevenson would describe as an ideal dramatic incident.

This principle is well illustrated by Frederick Leroy Sargent in a little volume just issued by the Four Seas Company, Boston, in which we find the philosophy of Omar's "Rubaiyat" and Browning's "Rabbi ben Ezra" graphically contrasted.

This contrast is set forth by an ingenious arrangement of Fitzgerald's translation of the "Rubaiyat" and Browning's more or less literal exposition of the philosophy of the Rabbi. The sequence of arrangement in each is so combined as to appear as if one protagonist were replying to the other.

With an almost unparalleled beauty of expression Omar sets forth that materialistic conception of life which the blunt Carlyle described as "the pig philosophy, which makes a combination of sensuous and sensual pleasures the end of being. The Rabbi on the contrary regarded life as at once an opportunity for moral self-discipline, spiritual development and the helping of one's fellows to achieve kindred aims, the end of all being to know and approach the Highest.

Of the literary excellence of the two poems thus brought into juxtaposition there is of course no question. Fitzgerald's poetry is "pillowed all on melody," but in these musical lines we find the Dead Sea fruit of materialistic philosophy ripening high up among the peaks of song, while Browning's more rugged Muse is at once profound and passionately earnest.

Of course each reader will react to these lucid and lovely expositions of opposing philosophies according to his individual lights. John Hay was passionately fond of Omar's "Rubaiyat," while Theodore Roosevelt frequently quoted Browning's "Rabbi ben Ezra."

ARE AUTHORS RESPONSIBLE?

Should a novelist be held responsible for the morals of his characters? is a question that has been much discussed in connection with W. Somerset Maugham's recent book, "The Moon and Sixpence" (Doran.)

When the author of this much discussed yarn visited New York en route for China, and was asked what he had to say in reply to those persons who complain that he has denuded human nature of its fundamental goodness in "The Moon and Sixpence," particularly in the character of Charles Strickland, and ought not to be encouraged by applause, Mr Maugham replied that the character of Strickland, as American reviewers have not been slow to discover, is molded upon that of the French artist, Paul Gauguin, who declared himself sick of the disease of civilization and found barbarism the only restoration to health in art.

James Huneker in his essay in "Ivory, Apes and Peacocks" on "Masters of Hallucination" describes Paul Gauguin as "weary of a Paris where everything had been painted, described, modeled; so he sailed for Tahiti, landing at Papeete. Even there he found the taint of European ideas, and after the funeral of King Pomare and an interlude of flirtation with an absinthe-drinking native princess, niece of the departed royalty (he made a masterly portrait of her,) he fled to the interior and told his experiences in 'Noa Noa, The Land of Lovely Scents.' This little book, illustrated with appropriate sketches by the author-painter, is an important contribution to the scanty literature dealing with Gauguin."

WILSON—A FRENCH ESTIMATE.

"The most active of aristocracies which take the lead in the United States of America is formed of the descendants of the Puritan families. They have created manners, culture, the state itself. Woodrow Wilson belongs to these families by double kinship."

So wrote Daniel Halevy in his study of President Wilson, written late in 1917, immediately following our entrance into the war. The book was originally written in French and intended as an interpretation of the American President for the French people. A translation by Hugh Stokes has just been published by the John Lane Company.

While the author wrote the book primarily for the purpose of interpreting for his countrymen the character, achievements and purposes of President Wilson, it has proved to have an appeal not confined to any one people or country.

The book is peculiarly French in its point of view, showing all the keen analytic power of the French mind combined with a naivete that is as illuminating as it is refreshing.

Mr. Taft is characterized as "a capable and honest official who lacked strength," Theodore Roosevelt as "a brilliant political adventurer." In explaining the division of parties in the United States prior to the election of President Wilson the author says:

"They exist because at some former time they had a reason to exist; they continue to exist because they have become veritable institutions, societies for political advancement, administrative enterprises with a following."

The author makes a conscientious effort to lay bare the character and purposes of President Wilson and to show his development from the youthful author of "Congressional Government" to the mature President and leader of a world democracy.

Puzzled by the President, as are all who attempt to catalogue and classify him, Halevy says: "In his personality, as in his family descent, there seems to be a double tradition, a double inspiration, one religious, the other practical. On the one side there is the man of action, the clear-headed politician who speaks in shrewd and concise language, who seeks truth alone and that only for the purpose of action. On the other hand we find a leader of the people, sacerdotal in character, who, addressing himself to the masses—to touch them more deeply perhaps and the better to lead them (again and always for action)—speaks a solemn language and seeks the pathos of the old faiths. But the most active of the two personalities, the most constant, never sleeping, is the first. If the President's messages are read with care a political prudence can be detected, an authoritative and real ardor. But in the political writings we find nothing but politics. We use the word in the noblest meaning. A politician is he who has the vocation, the passion, and eventually the genius of country and state."

He sees Wilson as a man of profound ideals, a man of action, a man whose spirit, exercised by power and developed by responsibility, penetrated (at our entrance into the war) a future still shrouded in shadow. "He was able," says Halevy, "to imagine the unprecedented sacrifices he was about to exact, the opposition, the crisis, the anarchist anger he would be compelled to break."

The prophetic element in this book is one of its most distinguishing and remarkable characteristics. This brilliant Frenchman, whose knowledge of Wilson was confined to what he could glean from the works of other writers and from his subject's own acts and writings, saw even in 1917 the part President Wilson was to play in the world peace settlement, a part that has placed him in the forefront of the great characters of all history.

JUVENILES.

"Stories for Boys and Girls."

This is a collection of twenty stories and poems selected by Elva S. Smith of the staff of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. The collection includes wonder tales and allegories, legendary tales and others which tell of life in different countries.

The scenes are varied, and the stories carry one far away into the realms of fairyland, to European lands and to the Sahara Desert They have been selected primarily for their interest to the boy and girl readers, but are not without appeal for adults. They are especially adapted to story-telling or reading aloud. Included are such delightful old favorites as Ruskin's "King of the Golden River" and Browning's "Pied Piper of Hameln." "The Good-natured Bear" is also in the collection, a story which Thackeray referred to as "one of the wittiest, pleasantest and kindest of books."

Among other writers represented are Jean Ingelow, Willima and Mary Howitt, Phoebe Cary, Catherine St. Clair, Jane Taylor and Mrs. Childs. The book is for children of 9 and 10 years old and over.

"When I Was a Girl in Iceland."

This story, which is intended for boys and girls, is the latest addition to the series of "Children of Other Lands Books" by Holmfridur Arnadottir, published by Lothrop, Lee and Shepard Company. The author was born in Iceland and lived there until about eighteen months ago, when she came to this country. She is now teacher of Icelandic and Danish languages in the extension department of the Columbia University.

The book is written in a simple easy style and describes for children the very things they wish to learn about this far-off country. The author pictures how the people live, what games the children play, what sports they like best and what they study at school.

There are interesting chapters detailing in a readily understandable way, with the history of Iceland, that country which, partly because of its name, holds such a fascination for the child mind. The author's views of America will be found interesting, not only for children, though primarily intended for them, but also to the grown-ups, for the story is told with charming simplicity, spiced with observations both shrewd and illuminating.

OCTOBER MAGAZINE.

The World's Work for October contains a series of interesting articles dealing with current events, among the most prominent of which are "America and the Irish Question" by Edward Raymond Turner; "Results of the Blockade Upon Germany," by Alonzo E. Taylor; the second article on "The Victory at Sea," by Rear-Admiral Sims; "Universities from Within," by A. Lawrence Lowell; "Wages and Profit-sharing Delusions," by Samuel Crowther; "King Albert of Belgium," a close-up view of one of the world's most picturesque figures, by W. P. Cresson; "Peace-time Pioneers," by Homer Folks, deals with the difficulties faced in the rebuilding of France; "As Others See Us," by Lothrop Stoddard; "The United States As It Is," by Frank Parker Stockbridge.

BOOK NOTES.

Shy on Horses.

Will Rogers, the famous cowboy philosopher of the "Follies," has original ideas concerning the titles of books. In his collection of epigrams, "The Cowboy Philosopher On Prohibition," just published by the Harpers, he says: "Aain't it wonderful how I just happened to hit on this out-of-the-way subject and title? Of course, a writer must not let his title interfere with what he is writing about. Look at that Spaniard; he wrote a book called 'The Four Horsemen of the Apothecary.' I read it plum through and there wasn't a thing about Horses or Drug Stores or anybody riding. In fact there is no town or Country on the map where those four fellows are supposed to come from. Then he had another book called 'Blood and Sand' and its all about Horses and Cattle." "The Cowboy Philosopher On Prohibition" is the second volume of the new "Rogerisms" series published by the Harpers, the first being "The Cowboy Philosopher On the Peace Conference."

"The Heart of Nami-San."

A number of reviewers have incorrectly stated that "An Adopted Husband" is the first Japanese novel to be translated into English.

As a matter of fact the first Japanese novel to be translated into English is "The Heart of Nami-San" by Tokutomi, translated by Dr. Isaac Goldberg, and published by the Stratford Company of Boston in the spring of 1918, more than a year prior to the publication of "An Adopted Husband."

"Wheat in the Ear."

The following poem is quoted from Miss Amy Lowell's new book, "Pictures of the Floating World," which The Macmillan Company is just publishing:

You stand between the cedars and the green spruces,
Brilliantly naked,
And I think:
    What are you,
    A gem under sunlight?
    A poised spear?
    A jade cup?
You flash in front of the cedars and the tall spruces,
And I see that you are fire—
Sacrificial fire on a jade altar,
Spear-tongue of white, ceremonial fire.
My eyes burn,
My hands are flames seeking you,
But you are as remote from me as a bright pointed planet
Set in the distance of an evening sky.

Balkan Folk Tales.

"Balkan Folk Tales" is a volume containing hitherto untranslated stories by authors of eminence in the interesting lands of Southern Europe. Mrs. Edna Worthley Underwood (author of "Letters from a Prairie Garden") is responsible for the selection and the rendition into English. The stories are: "Brother Coelestin," from the Czech of Yaroslav Vrchlicky; "Furor Illyricus," a story of the Montenegrin boundary by A. von Vestendorf; "Easter Candles," from the Rumanian of J. L. Caragiale; "The Journey," from the Czech of Savatopluk Czech; "All-Souls Day" and "Foolish Jona," from the Czech of Jan Neruda; "The Robbers," from the Serbian of Lazar K. Lazarevic; "Naja" and "Jagica," from the Croatian of Xaver Sander-Gjalski; "A Pogrom in Poland," a story of the world war by Joachim Friedenthal; "A Trip to the Other World" and "Fiddlers Three," from the Hungarian of Koloman Mikzath, and "The Swine Herd," a tale of the Balkan Mountains by Walther Nette. These stories have a special claim to the world's attention at this time. By their stories ye shall know them!

The stories are published by Marshall Jones Company.

Ambassador Whitlock.

Brand Whitlock, whose "Belgium" still maintains its popularity among all classes of readers, was recently made Ambassador to Belgium by a record vote of the Senate. Just at present Ambassador Whitlock is touring the country with King Albert, having been appointed by President Wilson to the Belgian sovereign's official American reception committee. When Mr. Whitlock returns to Belgium it is to be hoped that he will at last find time to get at that novel which, as he relates in the opening pages of "Belgium," he so confidently expected to write during the long hours of leisure he would have in Brussels, "the city where nothing ever happens."

Sir Oliver Lodge Coming.

Lee Keedick, head of the Lecture Bureau, 437 Fifth avenue, New York, who has spent the past four months in Europe, announces that Sir Oliver Lodge will lecture in America on three subjects: "The Reality of the Universe," "The Definition of Man," and "The Structure of an Atom." Sir Oliver is well known in America and his books on Spiritualism are widely real. They are "Modern Problems," "The War and After," "Raymond: or Life and Death," and "Christopher," all published by George H. Doran Company.

The Italian People.

D'Annunzio's latest exploit at Fiume is as typical of the Italian people as Italian opera. Yet, while there are countless volumes on the country and its history, the people have been largely overlooked in books about Italy. In "My Italian Year," just published by the Scribners, Dr. Joseph Collins, a noted neurologist and long-time lover of Italy, presents a unique study of the Italian people themselves, their temperament, aims, aspirations and politics.

Desk Standard Dictionary.

From the presses of the Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York, we have just received a revised and amplified edition of their "Desk Standard Dictionary of the English Language," the first edition of which was prepared under the editorship of the late Dr. James C. Fernald in 1914. The new edition was edited by Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, managing editor of the Unabridged Standard, contains distributed, each in its appropriate alphabetical place, a vocabulary of the more recent terms that have been absorbed by the language.

Later events are indicated by the presence of such words as Czecho-Slovak, Jugo-Slav, Spartacans, Spartacides. The names of the leading commanders and statesmen of the times are each in their respective places, and the vocabulary has been increased until it now consists of more than 83,000 terms of all kinds. As a handy book of facts instantly available for consultation, the New Standard Dictionary will be found most practical. The price of the book is $2 cloth; $2.75 cloth leather back, indexed; and $5 full flexible leather, indexed.

Look Who's Here!

Octavus Roy Cohen is now in Los Angeles, engaged in writing scenarios for a large motion-picture concern. He will spend three months here and will then return to his home in Birmingham, Ala., where he will continue his series of humorous negro stories. Dodd, Mead & Co., have just issued a number of the best of the stories under the title "Polished Ebony."

This is a rattling good detective story that starts on a rapidly moving train and continues to imitate the start to the very finish. All the stock ingredients for the mystery are present and they are revealed in their regular order. There are the usual mysterious papers, a girl from nowhere, a string of priceless pearls and a gang of desperate crooks.

Into this ideal collection of elements for a mechanical plot Roger Sands, who is making a flying trip from the Coast to New York, steps, and when entreated by the mysterious but beautiful girl to permit her to occupy his stateroom as far as Chicago where she is to be met by friends, he consents. She also asks that he act as custodian for a packet of documents which she assures him are of vital importance to her.

When Chicago is reached the mythical friends fail to put in an appearance. Roger, who has become madly infatuated, insists on an immediate marriage. From the moment that he becomes the husband of his fair protege things happen with alarming frequency. His wife brings him some rather distasteful publicity by befriending a girl who attempts suicide. Then the mysterious papers and the pearl necklace are stolen and the tangled skein of mystery, romance and a series of mathematical deductions by means of which the solution is finally reached follow.

HOW MRS. WATTS WRITES.

Mary S. Watts's new novel published July 8 is entitled "From Father to Son." It is the story of a young man of wealthy family, who, after leaving college and entering his father's office, finds that the huge fortune founded by his grandfather was mainly made by profiteering during the Civil War. The question is, "What is he to do?" He is high-minded and sensitive and the problem is difficult. What, too, is his father to do, also a man of sterling character though of a sterner type. The theme which grows out of this situation is one of singular interest and power and involves a moving crowd of characters, some of whom the readers will recognize as having appeared in Mrs. Watts's earlier work.

In response to an urgent request to tell something of the writing of "From Father to Son"—something of the origin of the plot, Mrs. Watts has sent her publishers the following letter:

"The story was suggested to me by something someone said about present-day profiteering; also by some remarks made by a business man—an old friend, who was calling at my home one afternoon. I do not know how we got upon the subject, but he began to talk about events of the Civil War and the Spanish-American War and the changing attitude of men's minds towards the soldier, the new education in public spirit, and so on. 'No use blinking it,' said he, 'there are massive fortunes in this very town that were founded on fraudulent army contracts; there's so-and-so and so-and-so—' he names them: 'It always has been so in war times; perhaps it always will be so. There will be scoundrels whatever. Everybody knows it; everybody knew it fifty years ago, but nobody did anything and nobody's going to do anything nowadays. But we're doing infinitely better than we've ever done before; we've more or less waked up, and we are likely to stay awake.

"Of course, this is the spirit, rather than the letter of what he said; but the story began to take definite shape in my mind from that time.

"It should be unnecessary to say that I was very careful not to allow the remotest resemblance between my Rudds and any persons in this city or events that ever occurred here. For the matter of that I am a native Cincinnatian, and know nothing about the people of whom my friend spoke. The original sinners have been dead this long while, having showed themselves in every other respect upright and public-spirited citizens as far as an outsider may judge. Nobody's toes are going to be trodden upon and nobody will have grounds for a suit in damages, on account of anything said or hintd in 'From Father to Son.' There is safety in numbers, and I strongly suspect that in every city of this size and age all over the United States you will find some prominent and wealthy families, or families which have been prominent and wealthy in the past, living in glass houses of the same architecture as Lawson Rudd's.

"If I don't hear from them promptly upon the appearance of the book, it will be because the matter is a little too delicate to be discussed. It will be the first time since I entered the career of letters when somebody has not gotten up and roundly accused me of putting him in my book, putting his Aunt Eliza in my book, putting poor dear Molly in my book, putting the Lord knows who that I never saw or heard of in my book! I have always perceived this sort of persecution to be actually a compliment and a vindication, and rather welcome than resent it, therefore. When I began to write, I think I merely wanted to write, to have a try, to see if I could do it; well, I found out almost at once that I really couldn't write, but I kept on anyway. And at about the third one of my plot-less, thrill-less tales, I discovered that what I was really doing and all that I was fit to do was to render as faithfully as I was able the America of our times. Not our rich, not our poor, not our perfectly indefinable middle class, which would rage furiously together at the mere idea of being called middle, and yet which is the most typically middle in the universe—not any of these, but all, all of them. With this end in view, maybe I have written about So-and-So's Aunt Eliza and his poor dear Molly, after all, if he can recognize them so readily; his anathemas cheer me. I am led to hope that if my books survive, posterity will have an accurate and not unsympathetic picture of the American social world as it once existed."

NEW EDITION "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

That perennial flower of fiction, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is to be brought out in a new and profusely illustrated edition, with a frontispiece in colors by E. W. Humble. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., who publish it next month in this attractive form, are really performing a public service in thus giving to the rising generation an opportunity of knowing this work of Mrs. Stowe as it really is. The vulgar parodies of the novel which have been dramatized have so misrepresented it by omitting all its saving graces and exaggerating its melodramatic incidents that a false impression of it has been given to thousands of people who know nothing of the original work. Mrs. Stowe's failure to reserve the dramatic rights of the story rendered her unable to prevent the falsifying and inartistic garbling which has been its portion in many, if not all, theatrical versions of this powerful tale of antebellum days.

This attractive new edition will give an impetus to those who know the work only from stage representations to read it and so to feel its strength and vitality.

In view of the lasting popularity of this book it is peculiar that its successor, "Dread," later published as "Nina Gordon," failed to survive its infancy in spite of the fact that, while its subject is identical, it is broader in scope and has more artistic restraint than its famous predecessor. Nevertheless the survival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" proves conclusively that it was better suited to the popular taste than was its quieter and more veracious successor.

A NEW O. HENRY BOOK.

A new O. Henry book, "Waifs and Strays," published by Doubleday, Page & Co., comprises a dozen short stories never before published in a popular edition. The book also contains a wealth of anecdote, reminiscence, and appreciation of the man who invented with new wonder the City of Too Many Caliphs. Among the stories included are "The Snow Man," the last tale O. Henry ever worked on. Death, it will be remembered, struck him down before the end was reached and Harris Merton Lyon—now also dead—finished the story in accordance with an outline O. Henry had sketched to him. The Lyon ending is given in this book.

Personal reminiscences are contributed by Arthur W. Page, who quotes vividly from O. Henry's correspondence. George Jean Nathan, Arthur Bartlett Maurice and others. F.P.A. of the New York Tribune tells of his collaboration with O. Henry on the one occasion when the latter attempted to write for the stage. Christopher Morley contributes an appreciation in verse. So does Vachel Lindsay. And there are critical estimates by William Lyon Phelps, Stephen Leacock, the Canadian humorist, and A. St. John Adcock. Another feature of considerable interest is a complete index to all the O. Henry stories. Taken altogether, the new book promises a budget of material which no lover of O. Henry can afford to miss.

"THE GAY DOMBEYS."

Sir Harry Johnston has written a novel. Many people may not know him. His record runs something like this, according to The Nation: "Beginning life as a student of the Royal Academy of Arts, he became a painter of quality; then a traveler and explorer, and a member of the consular service, picking up enough zoology and philology to write treatises on the British mammals and the Bantu and semi-Bantu languages. Then he was attracted to historical studies, and did six good volumes on colonial pioneers, as well as a history on the colonization of Africa by alien races. He commanded a scientific expedition of the Royal Society in 1884 and made some biological studies. His contributions to the study of the negro problem are of lasting value. Meanwhile he appears to have done something significant with music in an amateur way. Now he has written a novel, and the critics say it is an excellent one."

To that novel, H. G. Wells has written an introduction that perhaps was intended as a defense. What Mr. Wells has more than half apologized for is the freedom with which Sir Harry uses actual people and others no less actual and thinly veiled with fictional names. Mr. Wells doesn't disapprove—bless us, no! He is himself the author of a tale called "Boon," and perhaps out of his experience with that book hastens to throw a buckler about Sir Harry.

The conception of "The Gay Dombeys" (The Macmillan Company) is very unique. There is nothing else like it that I ever heard of: one author writing a sequel to the famous novel of another. In Mr. Wells's words: "This book arose then out of a search, at once humorous and accurate, for the fruits and consequences of Dombey and Son. . . . Dickens, we agree, left a number of people established and getting on in the world. Well, how had they got on? They ought to be, as schoolboys say, 'all over the place' in a generation or so. The idea is delightfully freakish and delightfully sane. It has determined the form of the story completely. It is, so far as London and the relation of England to the colonies go, a sequel to Dickens."

The story uses Eustace Morven for the central character, though Paul Dombey, and Belle Delorme, and Lucilla Smith, are frequently to the fore, and hold the attention. But it is not the story, in the sense of the plot, that gives the book its attractiveness. There is no plot, possibly excepting Paul's acting godfather for the anonymous Russian, and what happens following Lucilla's tragic death. It is a review of English social and political, also almost commercial life, during the later Victorian age—the last two phrases, certainly, as far as they apply to African colonies. Eustace is a young naturalist who does hard work conscientiously, makes discoveries, opens up land, writes books of value, and has no reward at all except what is most perfunctory—excepting through the gracious friendship of Lady Feenix, with whom he nearly has a love affair.

The story is told from many angles, and purports to have been compiled from letters and conversations, with a little of personal observations. Many of the characters are thinly disguised, all of them are interesting, usually delightful, from the viperous Bax to the gallant Broadmead, who has many affairs and only one that ends disastrously, even the chill Diana wins a place of affection, and Suzanne never loses her; Belle is a marvel, coarse, impudent, gracious and generous. "The Gay Dombeys" is really a great novel, and like most books of the first order it is very difficult to convey an adequate notion of what it is like. But if one likes serious fiction there is nothing else so good on the current market.

HOW JOSEPH CONRAD WORKS.

Robert Lynd, the British critic, gives an immensely vivid picture of Joseph Conrad in the current issue of Mainly About Books.

"Mr. Conrad," says he, "has never been in a hurry, even in telling a story. He has waited on fate rather than run to meet it. 'I was never,' he declares, 'one of those wonderful fellows that would go afloat in a washtub for the sake of the fun.' On the other hand, he seems always to have followed in his own determined fashion certain sudden intuitions, much as great generals and saints do. Alexander or Napoleon could not have seized the future with a more splendid defiance of reason than did Mr. Conrad, when, though he did not yet know six words of English, he came to the resolve: "If a seaman, then an English seaman."

"He has always been obedient to a star. He likes to picture himself as a lazy creature, but he is really one of the most dogged day-laborers who have ever served literature. In 'Typhoon' and 'Youth' he has written of the triumph of the spirit of man over tempest and fire. We may see in these stories not only the record of Mr. Conrad's twenty years' toil as a seaman, but the image of his desperate doggedness as an author.

"'Line by line,' he writes, 'rather than page by page, was the growth of "Almayer's Folly."' He has earned his fame in the sweat of his brow. He speaks of the terrible bodily fatigue that is the lot of the imaginative writer even more than of the manual laborer. 'I have,' he adds, 'carried bags of wheat on my back, bent almost double under a ship's deck-beams, from 6 o'clock in the morning till 6 in the evening (with an hour and a half off for meals,) so I ought to know.' He declares, indeed, that the strain of creative effort necessary in imaginative writing is 'something for which a material parallel can only be found in the everlasting somber stress of the westward winter passage round Cape Horn.' This is to make the profession of literature a branch of the heroic life. And that, for all his smiling disparagement of himself as a Sybarite, is what Mr. Conrad has done."

KISSES OR PHILOSOPHY?

BY FLORENCE DAVIES.

Greek philosophy has stood the test of years. Sages and savants have found delight in its wisdom. Epictetus knew life. Aristotle understood the arts, Plato challenged the realities. But who would take them all in exchange for kisses?

"Too much Greek philosophy, not enough kisses," is the latest plea on which a famous divorce case has just been granted. Twice before the unhappy pair have pleaded with the courts to release them from their bondage.

But the law is inexorable. It contains no embargo against Greek philosophy, it enjoins no obligation in the matter of kisses.

But this unhappy couple could offer scant proof that the laws which bind married folks together had been broken. The husband had not beaten his wife, nor deserted her. His cruelty had a negative quality.

"He entertained me on his honeymoon by reading Greek philosophy," said the injured wife, "and insisted afterward that I should live with his mother."

Greek philosophy and no kisses didn't work. At last a judge was found to admit it, and allowed a finer justice, or rather an obscure legal ruling, to sever the unwelcome bond.

Now as between the consolations of philosophy and the manifestations of affection who shall choose?

What logic is there in a kiss? How can it measure up to the wisdom of the centuries, or challenge in importance the learning of the ancient Greeks?

How indeed can it confound all wisdom and demonstrate again that there is nothing as illogical as logic, nothing more impractical than perfect consistency?

Life isn't consistent, and it isn't logical. That's just the point. It's full of contradictions, full of those issues which are incontrovertible, just in so far as they are inconsistent, things like love and sacrifice and impractical ideals.

Facts are all well enough, and so is philosophy. But it's just those things that aren't facts, sometimes the things that "ain't reasonable," as the saying is, which add point to life, which high-light it and punctuate it, and make it significant.

Kisses? What more ridiculous than the kiss that your mother gave you to make it well, when you fell down and hurt yourself years ago. But what liniment or lotion, what bandage or ointment, ever had the healing touch of that kiss?

MAN'S FREEDOM DEFINED.

In a little volume of spiritistic and philosophic essays, entitled "Twelve Lessons from Seven Purposes," by Margaret Cameron (Harper's,) which is in fact a condensation of the vital teachings contained in this author's earlier book, "The Seven Purposes," we get much that is good in the way of advice that is both apropos and pertinent to the unsettled conditions that exist in the body politic today.

The book, which purports to have been written under the impulse and propulsion of forces emanating from beyond the veil of material things, is shot through with not only spiritistic influences, but also with a strong strain of mysticism.

"Freedom lieth not in man's estate, but in the man himself," is a philosophical observation as old as time, but in the hands of this writer, whether moved and inspired by the unseen forces of the spirit world or merely setting down thoughts that her Scotch ancestry are responsible for, is given a new and vitalized meaning.

She says: "A few men think. These are the overlords, the kings and barons of forces that might be free. But freedom demands free purpose, and free purpose demands justice. No man is free who commands not himself. No man is free who forgets his brother. No man is free who fails to carry his share of the common load. No man is free who commands not himself in any emergency."

GEORGE MOORE ON KIPLING.

In the course of his "Avowals," George Moore pays strong tribute to Rudyard Kipling.

"I envy Mr. Kipling," he says, "his copious and sonorous vocabulary, especially his neologisms; he writes with the whole language, with the language of the Bible, and with the language of the streets. He can do this, for he possesses the inkpot which turns the vilest tin idiom into gold. . . .

"Mr. Kipling's world is a barracks full of oaths and clatter of sabers; but his language is so copious, rich and sonorous that one is tempted to say that none since the Elizabethans have written so copiously. Shelly and Wordsworth, Landor and Pater wrote with part of the language, but who else, except Whitman, has written with the whole language since the Elizabethans? 'The flannelled fool at the wicket, the muddied oaf at the goal' is wonderful language. He writes with eye that appreciates all that the eye can see. . . ."

An 800-page inclusive edition of Kipling's poetry from 1885 to 1918 is soon to be issued by Doubleday, Page & Co.

EPIDEMIC OF DIVORCE.

Judges of the Jackson County Cicuit Court may succeed in salvaging forty of the 350 homes which have gone on the rocks of divorce proceedings. The remaining 310 are hopeless.

In less than three days 350 persons, who swore to marriage vows, have seen the bonds dissolved in the Kansas City divisions of the court. Of the 350 cases, 175 applicants for divorces have been granted decrees, forty-five cases have been returned to the general docket at the request of the lawyers or because of legal technicalities and forty cases have been continued or taken under advisement.

In some of the seven divisions, where the griefs of many families have been trailed before the public gaze, as many as seventy-five couples have been given legal separation and their marriage to others will be sanctioned by the laws of Missouri. The tide of divorces reached its flood yesterday and today was ebbing slowly out of the courts.—[Kansas City Star.

FEAGANS & CO. ANNOUNCE THAT MR. CHARLES McKINLEY WILL BE IDENTIFIED WITH THEIR DEPARTMENT OF STATIONERY BEGINNING MONDAY, OCTOBER 27TH.

Feagans & Co. Excel in Social Stationery

That fine degree of correctness and smartness which is so eloquent in social stationery is assured in all the productions and offerings of the Feagans & Co. department of stationery.

Especially effective new styles are shown in tinted panel stationery, the envelope flaps also being paneled and tinted. The stamping of kalogram dies in colors and bronzes in these tinted panels is a new idea and very artistic.

Renaissance stationery in the dainty shades of blue, gray and lavender, with lined envelopes to match, is also new and ultra smart.

Original and dignified Christmas greeting card suggestions for personal presentation are shown in extensive variety. It is advisable that requirements be anticipated and orders placed for Christmas needs at the earliest possible date.

Very unusual new offerings of the celebrated "Gorham" leather, including fitted suit cases, week-end and over-night bags, cigar and cigarette cases, card cases, jewel cases, letter cases, vanity cases, check books and other essentials, in gold or silver mountings, or plain.
New leather importations also, direct from our own commissionaires at Paris.

Teeth Do Not Stain
It is Film that Clouds Their Whiteness
All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Free
A Ten-Day Tube of Pepsodent to show you its effects. See coupon.

Learn the Cause of Decay

Dental science has now traced most tooth troubles to a film. To that slimy film which you can feel.

That is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The film is clinging. It enters crevices and stays. No ordinary tooth paste can dissolve it. A soapy tooth paste makes it more viscous.

So, despite your brushing, much film stays. Night and day it does its damage. It is the great tooth wrecker.

Science now has found a way to combat that film. The fact has been proved by many clinical tests. The method is now advocated by leading dentists everywhere.

For daily use it is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And we are mailing 10-Day Tubes so that every home may try it.

Do This and See

We urge you for your own sake to write for this 10-Day Tube. See the results for yourself.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

Pepsin must be activated, and science has discovered a harmless activating method. The usual method is an acid, harmful to the teeth, so pepsin long seemed impossible. Now everyone may apply it, morning, noon and night. And the evidence is that this invention brings a new dental era.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Compare results with the methods you use now. Then judge for yourself what is best. Cut out the coupon now.

Look in 10 Days
Note how the teeth glisten. You can see that the film is gone.

Negligees of georgette, decorated in painted designs are lovely.

Almost a necessity in these days of hustle and bustle is the permanent wave! Perfectly adorable are the Nestle waves made on the famous Nestle machine. Madame Lillie Koschat, who studied with Mr. Nestle in New York, has parlors in the Brack-Shops, eighth floor. You'll love having her do your hair—it's really an enjoyable affair and, besides, makes the hair soft and glossy when done by an expert such as Madame Koschat. She curls white or blond hair and makes any kind of wave desired, using the improved Nestle implements. You'll be delighted with the Nestle Home Outfit, which has proved a great success. Phone 63332.

Truly, you shouldn't allow your face to grow old on account of sagging muscles, wrinkles or a double chin! Consult an expert, Madame Rouen, for instance, she gives really marvelous treatments, which do wonders for the face! Her scalp treatments for gray or faded hair are unusually beneficial. 301 Merritt Bldg., 8th and Broadway.

A smart coat wraps itself around the figure—no buttons at all.

I wondered if you knew—it was news to me—that there are certain rolls made for player pianos which play accompaniments for song records on the Victrola? So, if you have either, the other would be an interesting companion piece—don't you think? At the Smith Piano Company, Ninth and Grand, they played the "Rigoletto" on both at once for me and it was lovely! It's such a convenient place to shop for pianos and phonographs. They are so delighted to play for you and the place is just a step from Seventh!

They're not factory made — Williams-Wear tub frocks for house and garden—and they're made right here in Glendale. When you've seen them in Los Angeles, at 734 S. Hill, you'll admit they're charming.

Take time by the forelock and prevent gray hair, by using Mae Martin's cure, which is not a dye, but restores the hair to its natural color and adds quality and quantity. 509 Consolidated Realty Bldg. Sixth and Hill. Phone Pico 866.

A smartly remodeled fur is a joy! Call Nora Hutchins (formerly with John Klein, furrier) she'll call and estimate the cost which will be exceedingly reasonable. or you can see her 569 South Fremont. She does exquisite work.

Sagging muscles, will do their worst or rather their best, to make you look old! The Galvanic and Fardic muscle strapping remedies this trouble and restores that youthful contour. This week you can get a $2 astringent mask treatment for $1, at the Bordeaux Beauty Salon, 227 Title Insurance Bldg., 456 S. Spring. These experts also give violet ray scalp treatments, do manicuring and electrolysis work.

Dora Dean gives a fine scalp treatment which dissolves and removes dandruff, with shampoo, one dollar, or with this notice only 50c. 331 W. Eighth, at Zan's.

When I tell you that Wallace Reid is to be the attraction at Grauman's this week you'll all go without any more words from me. But I'll just add that the picture, "The Lottery Man," will be especially interesting to all young people and old ones, too! The question is, "Am I the master of my fate?"

So many charming suits at the Ville de Paris, but I'll just mention that Mangone model developed in silk duvetyn, beautifully tailored, with cable stitching and fur trimming. And that mouse-colored peach bloom—a creation of Hickson's, trimmed lavishly with skunk, insists upon mention; so does the Michael model of Cordovan duvetyn, because so reasonably priced!

Skirts tucked in at the bottom, oriental fashion, are very much in vogue.

Pumpkin pies like grandmother's own will be ready at Aileen's Sweet Shop this week. Get your Halloween order in soon! You can get individual pies if you like—and don't forget her wonderful doughnuts! Fourth floor Brack-Shops.

One can derive the most pleasure from a favorite sport suit! Such smart ones are showing in the woman's shop of the B. H. Dyas Co. These are in golflex with Angora collars and English sport suits with leather belts and buttons—mannish styles made up in English mixtures. You'll be surprised to see what values they have for $39.50 and $57.50. It's downstairs at the Ville, you know.

Did you ever? Lollypops all dressed up in Yama Yama clothes! Yowling black cats holding candles on their tails! Huge toadstools and small toadstools, jolly lanterns and witches riding broomsticks—such a lot of weird Halloween toys and table decorations we found at Robinson's for our party — we were scarcely able to choose.

Shawls of our grandmothers may be made use of for evening wraps.

If little curls for little girls are permanently waved, mother's troubles are lightened. Orla M. Oren makes eight curls or waves for five dollars and does it expertly, too, for she's had years of experience. She says folks enjoy having their hair waved by her. See her at Markman Beauty Parlors, tenth floor Brack-Shops. Phone 14363.

That seal coat, with belted front and flaring skirt in back, collared and cuffed with beaver, would leave nothing to be desired by a soul that longs for furs! There certainly is an undeniable charm about the creations of Ormond, that marvelous designer, which mark them for his own wherever seen. Drop in at 728 W. Seventh and visit his shop.

To "be beautiful" we have to consider all the elements that destroy beauty. This is what Anna M. Bergeron does in her scientific care of the skin, and she removes those unsightly brown spots that appear on the face, neck and arms of the woman of forty years, also that withered condition of the skin. Mrs. Bergeron has been in Los Angeles 17 years, and what she promises she does, with no failures to her credit. This includes her superfluous hair wart and mole work. Her splendid "Key to Beauty" toilet preparations (all of which contain witch hazel) are for sale at H. Jevne & Co.'s, or at her office, top floor, Haas Bldg, cor. 7th and Broadway.

What's become of that old diamond keepsake? Coax it out of it's hiding place and make it good for something! You can turn it into real money by selling it outright to Mr. Hambright, who'll pay a top price for it, at 301 Title Guarantee Bldg., 220 W. Fifth. Then you can use money for some extra Christmas gifts! Now, what do you say for that suggestion?

Serge dresses are smart for school frocks.

Why be fat? Take it off where you wish without effort, diet or drugs and have the figure of Hebe. Relieves rheumatism and constipation. Improves circulation. Weight Reducing Company, 618 Brockman Bldg.

Hudgen's Permanent Wave Shop has made thousands of waves in Los Angeles since 1912 and, as they have built up their business until it is the largest of its kind west of New York, they surely must have done their work well! You need not hesitate to trust your hair to such experienced people, as they know how! Hudgen's use both Frederics and Nestle systems. Their shop occupies the entire front fourth floor of the Brack-Shops. Phone 62863 for appointment.

One doesn't bother to entertain at home much these days because it can be done so delightfully at the perfectly bewitching Mary Louise Tea Rooms. You can even order your favors and table decorations there, too. Have you seen those adorable candy bouquets, yarn flowers and dressed-up kewpies? And the Mary Louise chocolates are superfine. Top Tea Room, Brack-Shops.

The semi-fitted coat for suits is smart.

They are busy as bees filling those adorable French boxes at Ye Hande Made Shoppe with enchanting boudoir caps and negligees, camisoles, chemises and nightgowns! What fascinating Christmas gifts they'll make, and what girl would not have the hand-made shopping bags, bridge sets and satin flowers — all made exquisitely of very best materials? Fifth floor Brack-Shops.

The top coat is quite long.

The Peerless Hemstitching Co. will do your hemstitching beautifully for 10 cents a yard. They have installed a new embroidery machine which does the loveliest work! 223 O. T. Johnson Bldg. Corner Fourth and Broadway.

TO MAKE SUN DO OUR WORK.

Plan to Harness Old Sol is Being Considered.

Coal and Oil Become Scarcer as a Source of Power.

Great Water Power is Still Running to Waste.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The sun can be harnessed and put to work!

Civilization can be made forever independent of coal mines, oil wells and the other sources of fuel, which are so rapidly being exhausted, and which require so much human labor to convert them into heat power.

Methods for hitching the sun to the machinery of civilization, for making it run our factories and our street cars, light and heat our homes, have been worked out in the rough. They have even, to limited extent, been applied with practical success, and patents have been taken out on them

Nothing stands in the way of this great and necessary development save the immense inertia of habit, and the lack of human faith in human ability.

This is the substance of an interview with several scientists who have specialized on problems of heat and power. They are conservative scientists, occupying positions of high responsibility.

JULES VERNE IDEA.

"You cannot quote me," said one of them, "because if you did some kind folks would call me a second Jules Verne, and some who are not so kind would call me a liar. My reputation for conservatism would be seriously injured.

"But you can say that it is possible to harness the sun, and be well within the truth. No scientist who has studied the problem will dispute the statement. I will go a good deal further. I am willing to say that if a competent physicist specializing in heat and power, were given $1,000,000, a first-class laboratory and a corps of competent assistants, he could within a year perfect a practical apparatus for converting sun heat directly into either steam or electricity.

PUBLIC IS SKEPTICAL.

"But it's no use telling the public this. The public won't believe it until it sees the thing done, and maybee it won't believe it then. The attitude of the average man toward a new, and therefore incredible idea is illustrated by a story Orville Wright told me. For months he flew back and forth between two trolley lines in Dayton in his newly-invented airplane without even getting a notice in the local newspaper. Finally a reporter was sent to the field. He saw Wright fly, and wrote a piece about it, which he turned in to the city editor. The editor read it over and tossed it aside.

"'It may be true,' he said, 'But there's no use in printing it. Nobody would believe it. We would lose our reputation for conservatism.'"

"Wright had to go down to North Carolina and give an exhibition before he could even get himself noticed, and he had to go to Europe to get any support.

"It will very likely be the same with this matter of converting sun heat directly into power. Patents on apparatus for the purpose already exist in Germany. The method will probably be in use over there while we are still wasting man power in this country, gouging the remnant of our coal supply out of the bowels of the earth.

"We have an ever-increasing need for a new source of power. Coal and oil are becoming scarcer and harder to get every year. Everything we wear and use, most of the things we eat, are manufactured. The increasing cost of the power that is used in manufacturing is one of many causes of our high living cost. As long as we laboriously dig coal in the Middle West and haul it a thousand miles or so to factories in New England, we are wasting man power and we have got to pay for that waste.

"Of course, our great water power remains undeveloped. We are slowly getting around to that. It will solve the problem for some sections, but that is all. The direct application of sun heat will then follow, when we all at last realize that our coal and oil supplies are about gone.

"How can the thing be done? Well, one method is to convert the sun heat directly into electricity. The method was applied by Dr. W. W. Coblentz, of the United States Bureau of Standards, not long ago, when he made an apparatus for measuring the heat of stars. He made a tiny "thermo-couple" by connecting two flakes of metal of different kinds. When he focused the star light on one of these, raising its temperature, an electric current was generated between the two different metals, on the same principle that any other electric battery works. Dr. Coblentz measured the heat of the North star, which, he estimated, would raise the temperature of a gram of water one degree centigrade in a million years.

"Now this same method could be used in converting the heat of the sun into electric current. Make a thousand of those little thermal batteries, make a lens to concentrate the sun heat upon them, provide storage batteries for storing the heat so that a supply would be held in reserve when the sun was not shining, and you have the essentials of the outfit. A patent on such a 'thermo-electric generator' was taken out by the bureau of standards.

DATE OF THE PATENT.

"The number of this patent is 1,077,219, and it is under date of October 28, 1913.

"The making of this electric generator is really simple. It would have an enormous number of very small parts, but that does not present a real difficulty. A certain watch factory uses screws of which 47,000 may be put in a thimble, while each screw has 240 threads. Yet these screws are turned out by machinery in enormous quantities at a low cost. The tiny metal elements and filaments for this electric generator would be made with equal ease. And once the machine was made there would be little depreciation or upkeep charge and very little man power necessary for its operation.

"The storage of the electricity, at a low enough cost to be practicable, presents more difficulties, but it could undoubtedly be worked out.

"It seems certain that this method of producing power would be far less wasteful than any of our present ones. For we are enormously wasteful of energy. Dr. Coblentz measured the heat given off by fireflies from their tiny tail lights. He found that its amount was amazingly small and that it did not perceptibly increase when the lights were 'flashed.' In other words, the insect produced a very considerable amount of light with an amazingly small expenditure of heat or energy.

FISH CARRY LANTERNS.

"The same thing is more strikingly illustrated by certain deep-sea fishes which carry lanterns similar to those of the fireflies. Below the depth of one mile, you know, the sea is absolutely dark, so that these creatures have to generate their own lights. Each fish is in effect a little power plant, converting part of its power into light, just as our mechanical power plants do. But a study of these fishes has shown that they expend only one twenty-fifth as much heat or power in producing a given amount of light as we do in our power plants. In other words, nature is twenty-five times as efficient in producing light as we are. I believe a man at Princeton is now devoting his time to a study of these deep-sea fishes, in order to determine how they produce this light with so little energy, and one Austrian scientist is also working on the problem. But the wonder is that so little attention should be given a question of such vast importance to humanity.

"No, the conversion of sun heat into electricity is not the only method of using it. It may also be converted into steam. This has already been done practically. There is, or recently was, a plant for generating power in this way at Pasadena, Cal. It was simple in principle. A giant lens, twenty or thirty feet wide, concentrated the sun heat on a water pipe, converting the water into steam. I understand the machine was found to be practicable.

"Personally, I believe that the best method may be the use of parabolic lenses to concentrate the sun heat upon water pipes. Imagine a long trough, several feet deep, lined with aluminum, having a cross section shaped like a hairpin, with the ends pulled slightly apart—that is, a parabola. It is a well-known fact, applied in making large telescopes, that light rays falling on this parabolic lens will all be reflected back to one point within the parabola. All you have to do then is to suspend a water pipe at this point in your trough. By making the pipe the right size in proportion to your lens, you can concentrate enough heat on it to convert the water into steam.

"This trough would be only one unit in a series, which would make up the power plant. Mountainsides, deserts and other waste places which receive a large share of sunlight would be the sites for such power plants.

"It all sounds like a dream, I know, and you'll be called a dreamer if you write it, but anything you write now will be commonplace fact within twenty-five years."

TORTURING HIS WIFE.

Mr. Danforth had just been telling his wife of an old friend.

"And he said he knew me when I was a little girl?" she asked.

"No," replied Danforth, "he didn't say anything of the sort."

"But you just said he did."

"No, I did'nt."

"Why, Jim!" exclaimed the wife, "what did he say, then?"

"I said," explained the brute, "that he said he knew you when he was a little boy."—[New York Evening Post.

HUMORISTS SCARCE.

Few Writers Today Are Able to Produce Really Funny Stories.

A recent contributor to this page has pointed out that it is some years since the English stage produced a new really funny man or woman. A similarly lamentable state obtains in connection with our literature. No new humorist in fiction has gladdened publishers and public for a long time.

The sad, strange circumstance is the subject of constant comment in literary circles. Humorous writers, never very plentiful, seem almost to have died out. Occasionally someone will show promises, but either he does not "last" or else does not mature.

It is not possible to name any author who became known within, say, the last ten years who is generally accepted as an undoubted humorist. The "old gang," all of them writing less and less, are still in possession of the library shelves so far as humorous stories are concerned.

"It seems impossible to find a new writer with the gift of making the average intelligent reader laugh nowadays," said a reader the other day. "I do not know a single new humorist among writers of today. There are, of course, those who pose as such, but even when it is read with the best will in the world, it is very difficult even to smile at parts of their work. To say that any 'new' author writes really humorous books is to say the thing that is not."

The editor of a well-known fiction magazine pointed out a curious thing in connection with short stories:

"In my experience they ran in cycles of types. Sometimes one gets a glut of adventure stories. Then they fall off and a [illegible] say, fanciful yarns [illegible] ful stuff may be [illegible] string of sex problem [illegible] mor is always very hard [illegible]

NORTH FRANCE AFTER THE WAR

Boston Woman Describes Its Desolation.

Land Ruined and not Fit for Human Habitation.

Cardinal Mercier Foiled Germans by Children's Aid.

[From the New York Times.]

Mrs. William H. Hill of Boston, for a long time active on the Franco-American committee for the protection of the children of the frontier, has just returned from a month's trip through the devastated areas of France and Belgium. The object of the trip was to study the conditions of the people there, so as to learn the future scope of the committee's work.

"The first thing that impresses you on the roads in France is the fact, that traveling by motor is an exception," she said; "traveling by any mechanical means of transportation, for that matter. There are a good many sights of people walking along the roads, burdened with household goods and farm materials, but things on wheels are at a premium.

"One of the most pitiful sights I saw was a sick woman near Amiens, sitting in a two-wheeled vegetable cart which was being pushed by her husband. There was no straw or mattress in the cart, there was no covering over it. He was going to the next town, a distance of some thirty miles.

"The road through Bapaume, Albert and the Arras section was a horrible example of what the war had done. The motor ran along the muddy, slimy way. There was the constant thought in our minds that at any moment an unexploded shell, hidden under the layer of the top mud, would go off and blow us into bits. That happens very often now. On both sides of the road the land was pock-marked with shell holes. These were filled up with filthy stagnant water. There was no sign of living humanity in sight; there were many signs of rotting life.

A LAND OF DISMAL SWAMPS.

"We rode on in this depressing and fearful silence for miles. The country was checkered with dark spots of water, little lakes or lagoons, grown out of a hundred horrible causes. A Frenchman will tell you the drainage is bad; that the destruction of the trees makes it impossible for the ground to hold the water. It is very true; the drainage is bad. The earth has been torn up from its bed; waters and the rains and the remains of mangled humanity have been allowed to gather there. And they stay there.

"Things seem to have gone back hundreds of years to a period of wildness and wantonness of growth. Where the top soil has not been destroyed the weeds are begining to choke up the stagnant waters. Here and there you see a clump of wild wheat planted there by the birds. They and the rats are the only signs of breathing life. Every now and then you hear the whir of the wings of a wild water fowl; it comes to rest for a moment, and then it flies away.

"As the land rises from the swamps of the wayside land, you see undulating into the distance the rows and rows of trenches. Here the top soil has been blown away, but the look of the land is different from that of the slimy swamps. It is that of the deep white silence of the desert. The nether earth is white or light gray. Whole wastes of it stretch off into the distance, interrupted only by the charred stumps of trees, the lines of the trenches, and masses of red poppies. The poppies were at their height of bloom when I saw them, brilliantly crimson, growing in a drab silence of waste.

BABES BORE CARDINAL MERCIER'S NOTES.

There are hundreds of rats running over the ground fearlessly and noiselessly; continually searching, gnawing, and tearing. It is a horrible sight; none the less horrible when accompanied by the constant cawing of the crows. And through it all, like a sign of hope, the poppies.

"But the people are coming back. Here and there as you pass along the road you see an old train or an old soup kitchen turned into some form of habitation. Very often you see people emerging from what seems to be solid ground. It later proves to be the cellar of the old home to which the refugees have returned.

"The suffering of the people in this region is acute. It is true the government does something to relieve the situation by issuing 'chomage' to the peasants. This is government relief of a franc and a quarter (25 cents) given daily to every member of a family whose men have taken part in the war. Without this there is very little reason to believe the people could go on living. They are doing their best to come back to a normal state of things, but with the ground in no condition to be tilled and the industries at a standstill it is difficult.

"It was while in Malines, Belgium, Cardinal Mercier's city, that I heard the story of the publishing of his letters. During the German occupation Cardinal Mercier used to send out letters of help and encouragement to the people in Belgium. Try as they would German officers could not discover how these letters reached the printer. The cardinal had given his word of honor that he would not leave the archbishopric; he had never left the buildings, and yet the letters went on regularly. It was not until a chink in the wall was discovered that the truth came to light. Every day the cardinal would place his letter in the hands of a child through the chink in the wall. This letter would pass on through a chain of children until it reached the printer.

"The printer was later arrested, but it mattered little to him. The fact that the Germans had been foiled by a chink in the wall and a chain of children will live in the memory of Belgium forever."

In most countries thirteen is always spoken of as "the bakers' dozen," but in Italy it is called "a cobbler's dozen." There is a tradition in that land that formerly there was a law compelling cobblers to put twelve nails around the edge of a boot heel, and that when nails were cheap a thirteenth nail was driven in the center for luck.

Of Fashion Upon the Threshold of Winter's Formal Festivities

—Festivities that insist upon Fashion disporting her ingenuity in Gowns and Wraps of Sumptuous Mien

—Festivities whose etiquette of dress is discriminatory indeed and where the social passport must be Distinction and Beauty and Difference accented to a delectable degree.

—And just how luxuriantly and eloquently this distinction is achieved may be best expressed by these Fashion Luminaries that are so evident at Bullock's today.

—Gowns and Wraps whose beauty put silence into words of descriptive intent.

—One feels rather awed by the abounding wit expressed in their creation; their brocades and jewels and metallic splendor; their inexpressible color, blended and reblended into truly prodigal lure.

—Gowns of shimmering Taffetas, Metallic Brocades, Tulle over Silver Cloth, Crepe Chiffon, Chiffon Velvets, Opalescent Satins, Pompadour Taffetas, Sequined and dappled with Jet.

—In colors of Pershing Orchid, Rose Doree, Ragged Robin, Buttercup, Aphrodite, Antwerp, Lavane, Gendarme, Coral, Wild Rose, American Beauty.

—The quaint basque interpretations, the bouffant hip lines, "Circulette" or hooped skirts revealing ostrich edgings, or cabaschons, bugle beadings, jet fringe, rhinestone shoulder straps, gossamer webs of gold and silver lace, unique corsage and satin rosettes.

—Wraps of Chiffon Velvets and Metallic Brocades in jade, rose, amethyst, American Beauty, black—adorned with Lynx, Skunk, Mole, Kolinsky or Ostrich (influenced, it seems, from an exotic era,) metallic tassels, fiery rhinestone clusters—and the wrap of black chiffon velvet (which the artist has pictured) is richly and elaborately embellished with meteors of scintillant jet and a high plumed collar of ostrich.

—A rare and interesting coterie for every woman to know—at Bullock's—Third Floor.

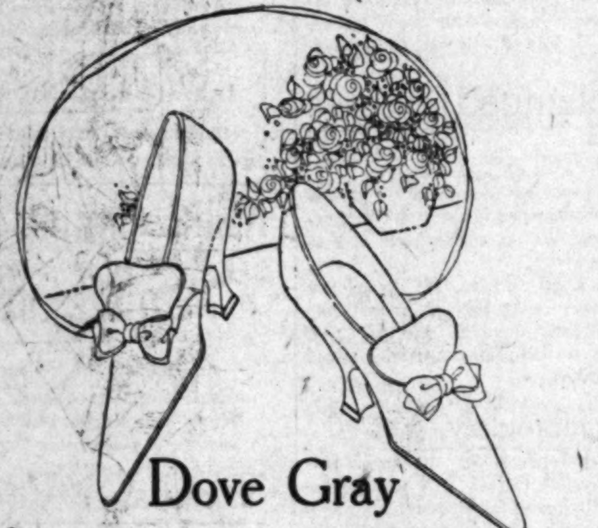
Fringe, 27 Inches Wide

—and fringe 9 inches, 12 inches and 18 inches wide—running the gamut of colors and effects for the embellishment of winter costumes. A most inclusive specialization—at Bullock's.

Val. Laces 10c a Yard

—½ to 2-inch Val. Laces in both round and diamond meshes, with edges and insertions to match. 10c a yard or 12 yards for $1.10 emphasizes its value—2nd Floor.



Dove Gray

—A dainty new pump of Dove Gray suede, with eyelet tie, high arch and Louis heel—price $15.00.

—A stunning afternoon foot piece, of rather ultra lines, that will be eagerly received by the discriminating woman.

—And these particular pumps are an expression of the character and lineage of Bullock's footwear for women.

—It is well, when considering footwear, to know—as many know—these individual fashion advantages.

FURS

—When thinking of Furs, one instantly associates them with dollars in large numbers.

—If one would analyze the service that Furs are able to give—and distribute their initial cost out over the years—it would soon be seen that good Furs are nominally quite the reasonable and sensible wraps to consider.

—Good Furs are not Cheap Furs—nor are they necessarily expensive Furs unless one's taste reaches out for Russian Sable, Alaskan Seal or Ermine.

—Good Furs—are a good investment—and more particularly when Furs are so eminently favored by Vogue.

—And Bullock's Fur Gallery is the habitat of Good Furs only.

—The Fur you purchase at Bullock's is the Fur that you may proclaim with confidence; that you may display with Pride.

—The Sincerity of Bullock's will not admit mediocrity.

—See the new short coats, the stoles and capes and other good Furs at Bullock's

—Third Floor.

If there is any secret in the manufacture of elegant linen—then that secret is hidden in the exquisite production known as

John S. Brown's Linens

—There is no secret process of manufacture claimed for these linens, however—nothing greater than a scrupulous use of pure home-grown flax—bleached by the old-fashioned method of grass bleaching—and a strict policy of employing only expert weavers.

—Anything more that might remain—and what connoisseurs of the linen art have suggested—is simply

Irish Sincerity and Love of Art

—Judge for yourself, if you can, which of these things is responsible for the snowy whiteness—the silky finish—the sheen—the fineness of weave—the entrancing beauty, if you please, of John S. Brown's Linens.

—Or if you choose to forego analysis for unspoiled admiration—you have merely done homage to the artistry which has won the confidence and praise of those who cherish a taste for only the highest attainments in linen manufacture.

—John S. Brown's linens are domiciled in Bullock's Linen Store.

—A table cloth and napkin set of these linens should make an incomparable gift.

Pure Irish Linen Towels 50c

—fine quality, grass bleached Irish linen huck towels, with neat damask figures embroidered and scalloped ends, 15x23 in., at 50c. Others at 65c and 75c each.

—And Art Linens in an intensive variety—to inspire the spirit and choice for Christmas Gifts. Handkerchief Linens in dainty colors, 36 inches wide at $1.75 a yard. Natural Color Art Linens, including the new D. M. C. cotton shade. White Round Thread Art Linens, etc., etc.

—Irish Linen Damask Pattern Cloths at $8.75—should not be ignored by anyone who desires a fine tabling far under regular worth. Pure linen, heavy satin damask, plain center, circular designs in rose, poppy, scroll, rose and key, oak and acorn, as well as all-over spot with key border. These 70x72-in. cloths are exceptional values at $8.75. ——Second Floor.

If You Could See the Beautiful

Lamp Shades

—Which members of Bullock's Lamp Shade classes are making for Christmas Presents you would be inspired to do the same yourself.

—Lamp shade making is not a difficult art—and under the complimentary instruction of Bullock's artists it becomes as fascinating as any pastime.

—It is a profitable pastime, too, when one considers the saving of buying only one's materials and making the shade oneself—

—Choose your silks and fringes from Bullock's stocks and the instruction is complimentary. —Sixth Floor.

Athenawear

—is the tailored to fit underwear for women and children—

—The underwear possessing those unique comfort features not found in ordinary underwear—and costing not one bit more—

—Athena has sloping shoulders and sleeves that take natural shape of body and arm—

—Athena low neck sleeveless garments are shaped so they cannot slip off the shoulder.

—Athena is finished with three-cornered gussets that relieve the strain at thigh.

—Athena has a shoulder stay that keeps garment from stretching across shoulder and holds sleeve in position.

—Athena has patent seat that will stay closed in any posture.

—Athena is cut full over bust and narrow across back, so it does not bind across the bust and hips nor bunch under the arms—

—Athena underwear is an exponent of the very best that knit underwear can be—and every woman who is not enjoying Athena comforts owes to herself a visit to Bullock's Knit Underwear Section to see wherein Athena differs in its superior merits—

—Your choice of 38 fabrics and 28 styles—

—Athena at Bullock's only, in Los Angeles.

THE Weather Man is busy forecasting immediate showers—and Bullock's is busy preparing to display the new Bombazine and Cravenette Rain Coats and Capes that women are going to admire. Their vogue lines combine ideally with the service and practical needs that a rain wrap should have. From $10.75 to $35—on the Third Floor.

HALLOWEEN with its eerie ghosts and goblins is going to be right royally observed if one may judge by the busy-ness of Bullock's Art and Gift Store the past week. Favors and oddities of many ingenious and mysterious sort are there to tickle your fancy. Buy them Monday.

ON another page of this section is news of some splendid values in Blouses at $5, Monday. Silk Petticoats at $3.95 is another striking value. Two opportunities to take advantage of two low prices.

"MILADI'S upper forearm must be exposed," whispers the Fashion Arbiter. And this is the why of those new Bullock slip-on Gloves that extend three inches beyond the wrist. Or those longer Gloves that allow themselves to be telescoped, so that 4 inches of Miladi's forearm may be revealed. Rather a fascinating idea. See these new Glove developments—at Bullock's.

BULLOCK'S Men's Store is offering Men's Outing Flannel Pajamas at $2.25 and Outing Flannel Gowns at $1.75. You could not buy the material for either one at these low prices—and therein lies the emphasis on the value. Step into the Men's Store and examine the quality of these specially priced garments.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS—
WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 300 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to the work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert.

FOR SALE—MEN'S CLOTHING, LADIES' CLOTHING, FURS. COHEN HAS GOOD slightly used suits and overcoats from $5 to $15; a few higher prices. Pants at a saving of $1 or better. Shoes and hats very reasonable in price.

At my ladies' store I have a large stock of tailored suits, hundreds of long coats, skirts, shoes, sweaters, at money-making savings on each garment.

I have a very large stock of furs, the very latest styles—if you can tell they were used you will have to be an expert—at 1-3 to 1-4 of the price of new furs.

I remodel furs at my ladies' store into the very latest style at ½ what the high priced furriers charge. Give us a trial.

At my men's stores we have new suits that I bought at a bankrupt auction sale. I guarantee to save you from $10 to $15 on every suit.

Fat men—I have a large selection of tailor-made suits your size. If not satisfied with anything you buy here, money back is my way.

NOTICE—
Owing to the extreme shortage of NEW automobiles and because of which we are NOT receiving used cars in exchange, and because of the fact that we desire to take care of our many used car patrons, we shall for the next FEW months purchase used cars that are in good condition and of late model.
We shall continue our policy of offering
ONLY
FIRST-CLASS USED CARS.
WE SHALL SUBMIT
a large selection for your approval. Our prices will continue to be NORMAL, despite the shortage. Our profits shall be small that we may not be classed as PROFITEERS. With our buying ability, we expect to make purchases so that we shall be in a position to offer you automobiles at prices LESS than you can secure elsewhere. By not asking you EXORBITANT figures today we shall make friends for tomorrow. If you have a used car that is in excellent condition we will purchase it from you. If it is not first-class DON'T CALL ON US.

FOR SALE—

BIRDLAND.

The holidays are approaching, and as usual we are prepared for them with a large stock of pets suitable for gifts.

SPECIAL.

Birdland's Buyer, J. C. Edwards, will return from New York about the first of November with the best of personally selected Belinote Rollers. These are the first to be imported for several years, and have the same wonderful repertaire of notes that former importations have excelled in. Call and hear these birds sing, compare them with other "would-be" Roller canaries, and observe the difference. We also have a large stock of cheerful Warbler Canaries, and a nice lot of grand looking deep colored fancy canaries. In fancy and aviary birds you will find our stock always the most complete, with a nice selection of pheasants, ducks and ornamental land and water fowl. Send in your order for Belinote Rollers early to secure first choice. We carry the largest stock of bird and animal cages on the Coast; also all kinds of foods, seeds and remedies for any of your pets. You will find goldfish, and globes for them.

TALKING PARROTS.

The only firm in the country that has all the varieties in stock, such as the Panama parrots that talk for themselves, the double yellowheads or human talkers, the cute dwarf talking parrots, and all the other kinds; and every bird is guaranteed to talk.

DOGS.

Our Dog department at 216 Mercantile Place offers some nice puppies of many different kinds; a full line of kennel supplies such as collars, harness, etc., also all the standard remedies, foods etc.

MAIL ORDERS.

Mail orders receive careful attention; we ship to all parts of the country. Send for copy of "Birdland News."

KILLED NUN, SAYS A MICHIGAN JURY.

MRS. LYPCHINSKI CONVICTED OF MURDER OF SISTER MARY JOHN TWELVE YEARS AGO.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

LELAND (Mich.) Oct. 25.—Mrs. Stanislawa Lypchinski, charged with the slaying twelve years ago at Isador, near here, of Sister Mary John, a Felician nun, was convicted of murder in the first degree by a jury in circuit court here this morning.

Sister Mary John disappeared from the little convent at Isador, August 23, 1907, and for years it was generally believed that she had become lost in a swamp.

Early last spring, however, Jacob Flees, sexton at the Isador convent, made affidavits that he had helped transfer human bones from a shallow grave beneath the convent to a near-by cemetery. The bones were exhumed and with them were found pieces of the habiliment of a nun of the Felician order. Shortly afterward a warrant was issued for Mrs. Lypchinski, who was housekeeper for Father Andrew Bienowski, priest of the Isador parish at the time of Sister Mary's disappearance.

Mrs. Lypchinski was placed on trial October 1 and a confession which she was alleged to have made to a woman detective was introduced by the prosecution. The confession, which gave jealousy of Sister Mary as the motive, was denied by the defendant.

FALLER WINS TEN-MILE RACE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Fred Faller of the Dorchester Club, Dorchester, Mass., won the National Amateur Athletic Union ten-mile championship run on the Brooklyn Athletic Field today in 52m. 32⅗s. Faller established a new American record of 30m. 1⅗s. for the first six miles of the race. The seven-mile walking championship was won by William Plant, Morning-side Athletic Club, in 55m. 6⅗s.

KANSAS AND IOWA TIE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

AMES (Iowa) Oct. 25.—Neither Kansas nor Iowa State College was able to score here today in a football game which was largely a kicking contest because of the soggy condition of the field. Kansas was able to keep the ball in Iowa territory much of the time. Kansas twice attempted to kick goal from placement.

FAIR SUSPECTS GENTLEWOMEN.

Two Accused of Gem Thefts are Well Connected.

One's Husband, a Fresnan of Standing, Rushes Here.

Dr. Brougher and Business Man See Her in Jail.

H. L. Weber of Fresno, an officer of the Fresno Fruit Growers' Association, is expected to arrive in Los Angeles this morning in response to a call for help from his wife, who was arrested with Miss Alline Wilson of Berkeley on suspicion of having stolen $2000 worth of diamond jewelry which the police say was found concealed in their clothing. Both women are prisoners in the City Jail, pending their arraignment in court.

Mrs. Weber was visited at the jail yesterday by Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, who before coming to Los Angeles was in charge of a pastorate at Fresno and is acquainted with Mrs. Weber's mother, Mrs. Clara Goodrich, the wife of a wealthy retired San Francisco business man. The Goodrichs live in Oakland, where Mrs. Weber was married last May.

Vern Dumas, a Los Angeles business man, who is also a family friend of Mrs. Weber and her parents, visited her at the jail yesterday. He declared last night that she is innocent of the charges against her and that she has been the unwitting victim of circumstances. He said the assertion by the police that Miss Wilson and Mrs. Weber have been implicated in jewel thefts at Oakland, Berkeley, Fresno and San Diego is false, so far as concerns Mrs. Weber. Mr. Dumas said that Mrs. Weber's mother is seriously ill, and every effort is being made to keep from her the news of her daughter's plight.

Miss Wilson is the daughter of Herbert W. Wilson, wealthy wholesale merchant of San Francisco, according to R. Magee of 324 South Spring street, who has known the family for years. Miss Wilson called on Mr. Magee last Thursday and said she was to be married next month.

The local police are awaiting word from the police of San Francisco and other northern cities before determining the disposition of the cases.

As the cases now stand, both young women—Mrs. Weber is 27 and Miss Wilson is 26—are facing grand larceny charges, the police declaring the prisoners stole a $500 diamond ring from the jewelry store of J. P. Taite, 329 West Seventh street, last Wednesday. The two were arrested Friday in Feagan's jewelry store on West Fifth street. The police also assert they have secured confessions in which the young women admitted they stole from jewelry stores while ostensibly looking over trays of diamonds engagement rings.

WINTER WEATHER IN OREGON.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 24.—Unusually cold weather for the season prevails in Eastern Oregon, according to advices received here today. A report was received that the temperature at Kamela, Or., was 10 below zero. Snow had fallen generally throughout Eastern Oregon upper regions.

TEMPORARY INJUNCTION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—A temporary injunction against Byron Bancroft Johnson, president of the American Baseball League, restraining him from suspending Pitcher Carl Mays of the American League club of New York pending disposition of the case by the courts, was granted today by Supreme Court Justice Wagner. The injunction was granted on the application of the New York club.

NATURE'S MIRROR

When a woman is well and healthy—there's a sparkle in her eyes, a rose tint in her cheeks, and she has rich red blood. There's elasticity in every movement and a spring in her step. Love comes to every woman who has bounding health—but when she is pallid, dull eyed, languid, she has no magnetism nor does she appeal to any man.

Such a change in feelings and looks!

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce. Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

Druggists sell it in tablets or liquid. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y., 10c for trial package.

FORM FLYING CROSS FOR DEAD AVIATORS.

BODIES OF MEN WHO LOST THEIR LIVES IN MEXICO TO ARRIVE TODAY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 25.—When the bodies of Lieut. Cecil Connolly and Lieut. Frederick Waterhouse, the aviators who it is alleged were murdered in Mexico, arrive here tomorrow afternoon, a flying cross will pass over the city, formed by North Island brother aviators of the dead flyers. The bodies will be brought back from the Bay of Angels on the destroyer Aaron Ward.

Platoons of soldiers from the field will escort the bodies on the ground from the municipal pier at which the Aaron Ward will berth, to the Bradley and Woolman undertaking rooms. Fellow-officers in the air service will act as honorary pallbearers and noncommissioned officers will serve as active pallbearers.

Full military honors are to be accorded the two youthful aviators who disappeared over the border August 21, and whose bodies were discovered a month later buried in shallow graves on the shore of the Bay of Angels.

The funeral service for Lieut. Connolly will be held here with burial in the Fort Rosecrans Cemetery. The body of Lieut. Waterhouse will be sent to his home in Weiser, Idaho.

BEAR BABES WIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, Oct. 25.—The football team of the Davis Farm was defeated by the University of California freshmen here today by a 7-to-0 score. Davis scored and Erb kicked the goal for California. The game was preliminary to the University of California-Washington State College game.

CUTICURA HEALED BABY'S RINGWORM

On Head. Cross and Fretful. Hair Fell Out.

"When my baby was three months old her head broke out in little red pimples and then in a week it broke out in ringworms. The ringworms were very large and there were several on her head, and her scalp would bleed. She was very cross and fretful at times, and her hair was falling out.

"I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Leiah Sargent, Nampa, Idaho, Feb. 24, 1919.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for all toilet purposes.

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c. Sold throughout the world. For sample each free address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

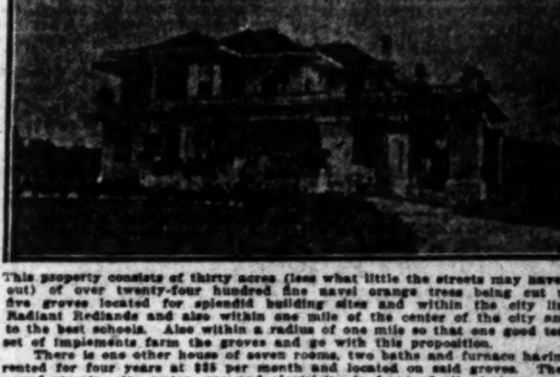
Consider this going proposition, with splendid home of ten rooms, three baths, furnace, sun room, solar heater, and many other advantages. Where church and school facilities are excellent.



This property consists of thirty acres (less what little the streets may have taken out) of over twenty-four hundred fine navel orange trees being cut up into five groves located for splendid building sites and within the city limits of Radiant Redlands and also within one mile of the center of the city and close to the best schools. Also within a radius of one mile so that one good team and set of implements farm the groves and go with this proposition.

There is one other house of seven rooms, two baths and furnace having been rented for four years at $35 per month and located on said groves. There are paved streets, city water, gas and electricity in front of all of these properties which at some future time will make them worth twice as much for building sites as for orange growing.

My bedrock price on this proposition with no commission to be paid agents, is Seventy-Five Thousand Dollars. No trade will be considered unless it was a home in the Wilshire District of Los Angeles in the pink of condition and showing good value at not to exceed Fifteen Thousand Dollars. I consider the crop on these groves to be worth from Fifteen to Twenty Thousand Dollars. If the purchaser desires it I will keep the crop at Fifteen Thousand Dollars with the understanding that I shall have the right to harvest it any time up to and including the fifteenth day of May, 1920. To be shown this property make arrangements by phone. Main 748.

STEPHENS CALLS SPECIAL SESSION

National Suffrage Ratification on November 1.

Governor Intimates One Hour will be Sufficient.

Believes that Measure will be Unanimously Passed.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 26.—Gov. Stephens today called a special session of the California Legislature to convene here November 1. This session is for exclusive consideration of the national woman suffrage amendment.

In making the call the Governor points out that the session need not be lengthy nor expensive, and expresses the opinion that probably the amendment may be considered in a few hours.

The call for a special session was issued by Gov. Stephens after he had received responses from seven Governors to whom he suggested that a group of far western States call special legislative sessions in order to ratify the suffrage amendment.

Govs. Boyle of Nevada and Davis of Idaho, in response to Gov. Stephens said they were considering plans for a special session and the others gave reasons why they did not believe immediate action was advisable.

In connection with announcement there would be a special session, Gov. Stephens issued the following statement:

GOVERNOR'S PET PROJECT.

"Ever since Congress passed the national suffrage amendment in June, it has been my purpose to call a special session of the Legislature to ratify said amendment. I have for many years favored equal suffrage and was one of the few men to campaign in 1910 for its adoption in California. In Congress and elsewhere I have continually worked for the suffrage cause. Believing that ratification by a group of States about the same time would be the most effective aid to the cause, I requested the Governors of the far western States to join me in calling extra sessions in November. Some have replied favorably. I hope others will join us.

"I have called a special session of the California Legislature for November 1. The expense need not be large—the session should last but an hour or two, and the three attaches provided by statute for each house will be sufficient.

"To give the women of our country the measure of justice which is their due, it should be made possible, as I have repeatedly said, for them to take part not only in the general elections of November, 1920, but also in the Presidential primary elections to be held in many of the States this coming spring.

EXPECTS NO OPPOSITION.

"I am calling this special session for consideration of the national suffrage amendment only—as there is no controversy concerning it and as the Legislature can act quickly and probably unanimously."

As the California Legislature is virtually unanimous for the ratification of the national woman's suffrage amendment, the whole legislative process of ratification should not require more than two hours, Lieut.-Gov. Young said today, when informed by the Associated Press of Gov. Stephens's call for a special session. Only a majority vote is required in each house to complete ratification, Mr. Young said.

It has not yet been determined who will be given the honor of introducing the ratification resolution, but it is considered probable that the measure will be introduced in the Senate, referred to the Committee on Federal Relations, of which Senator S. C. Evans, of Riverside, is chairman, and formally reported out as "do pass." The resolution then will come before the upper house for a full vote, and if adopted will be sent to the Assembly for similar action.

In the lower house, the resolution will be referred by Speaker H. W. Wright of South Pasadena to the Federal relations, of which Assemblyman Charles W. Cleary, of Lindsay, is chairman. After final adoption, the resolution will be sent to Gov. Stephens for his signature and by him transmitted to Secretary of State Jordan for forwarding to the State Department at Washington.

FORMAL STATEMENT.

The proclamation calling the special session follows:

Whereas, an extraordinary occasion has arisen and now exists, requiring that the Legislature of the State of California be convened.

Now, therefore, I, William D. Stephens, Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority in me vested by Section 9 of Article V of the Constitution of California, do hereby convene the Legislature of the State of California to meet and assemble in extraordinary session, in Sacramento, Cal., Saturday, the first day of November, 1919, at 2 o'clock p.m. of that day, for the purpose of considering and acting upon the matter of the ratification of the amendment of the Constitution of the United States extending the right of suffrage to women, proposed by the Congress of the United States by joint resolution, adopted in the month of June, 1919.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the great seal of the State of California at my office in the Capitol this 25th day of October, in the year of Our Loard one thousand nine hundred and nineteen.

WILLIAM D. STEPHENS,
Governor.

Cost of the session, if it does not exceed one day, will be in the neighborhood of $7000, the State Comptroller's office estimated today, divided about as follows:

Salaries of 120 members at $10 per diem, $1200; mileage, $5600; attaches' salaries, $60; incidentals, which would include printing and other minor expenses, $140. If the session should last more than one day, the additional expense will be about $1200 daily, with legislators' salaries as the chief item.

If the usual form of procedure is followed, a resolution ratifying the amendment will be introduced in the Senate and referred by Speaker C. C. Young to the Committee on Federal Relations. No opposition to a "do pass" recommendation is expected on this committee, and the resolution would go at once to the floor of the Senate for vote, and, if adopted, sent to the Assembly, where much the same procedure will be followed.

If adopted by the Assembly, the resolution would go to Gov. Stephens for his signature, thence to Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan to be attested and forwarded to the State Department a Washingon.

Members of the Senate Federal Relations Committee before whom the resolution will be placed are: S. C. Evans, Riverside, chairman; Frank H. Benson, Santa Clara; J. M. Inman, Sacramento; William Kehoe, Berkeley; J. R. Thompson, Santa Barbara.

Charles W. Cleary of Lindsay is chairman of the Assembly Foreign Relations Committee and the other members are: J. M. Argabrite, Ventura; Frank Ekeward, San Mateo; Lee Gebhart, Sacramento; Mrs. Elizabeth Hughes, Oroville; Fred E. Lindley, San Diego; F. J. Prendergast, San Francisco.

TAFT GIVES ADVICE TO GOMPERS.

Says Rising Spirit of Americanism Will No Longer Tolerate the Union Labor Highwaymen Method Used in Adamson Law's Passage.

BY WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

The equity of Gompers's proposed resolution at the industrial conference will lose its weight as an argument in behalf of his cause when the peace, good order, comfort and lives of this community are jeopardized by those for whom he speaks. He will be the actor. The merits of the original controversy will be ignored. The country is in no humor for another such humiliating episode as that of the passage of the Adamson law. The spirit of Americanism is rising. The highwaymen's methods will not succeed again. The power of resistance of the American public to tyranny by selfish groups who trample on public rights has not had in recent years a full opportunity to show itself, as it will.

The proposal of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, with only one dissenting vote, to forbid strikes by railroad men and make them criminal offenses, is a symptom of gathering public opinion which will sustain this act of self-defense against such attempts to destroy the commercial arterial circulation of the country upon which the lives of its people depend.

If Mr. Gompers is determined to start the fight, the struggle will be a long and disastrous one for all, but the American people in the end will triumph over the soviet.

YIELD TO BOURBONS.

The group of employers in the conference have by one vote yielded to their Bourbon members in rejecting Mr. Gompers's resolution on collective bargaining. The truth is that the reactionaries among them do not approve of labor unions at all, and would wish to prevent their existence and operation if they could. A general declaration to which they subscribed, in favor of the right of labor to organize, is with so many mental reservations that it is mere lip acquiescence in what in their hearts they frown on. Collective bargaining is the logical result of the right of labor to organize. That is what trades unions are for. They are to enable groups of workingmen to formulate their claims for certain terms of employment. In the union they find the strength enabling them to deal with powerful employers on an equality. As individuals, they cannot bargain. They must do it through representatives. Why should they be limited in the choice of those who are to speak for them? The only possible reason is to exclude trade-unionism in its essence from its legitimate and acknowledged purpose. It is really a contradiction in terms to favor trades unions and collective bargaining and then limit choice of representation. The slender majority of the employers' group were wrong in their vote.

On the other hand, Mr. Gompers has made a grave error in withdrawing and a still graver one in withdrawing with a threat. This is a public conference for discussion and compromise. Mr. Gompers cannot be certain that further conference will not suggest qualifications of his resolution that, on the one hand, would not defeat his purpose, and, on the other, would win votes enough to carry the employer groups.

His threat puts him in the same "stand and deliver" attitude of which the general public has grown so tired. If he now attempts to carry out his threat, he will lose the support of those business men of broad vision in the public group who favor his resolution, and of the great constituency behind them.

STRIKE IS BOLSHEVISTIC.

Mr. Gompers proposes to promote in every way possible the steel strike through the American Federation of Labor. There is no doubt, in view of the evidence before the Kenyon committee and other reliable information, that whatever the issue, the Fitzpatrick-Foster committee formally made with Judge Gary, the real impulse of the present body of the strikers is now a Bolshevistic one.

Most of those who are now continuing the strike are foreigners, who know little of the English language. Many of the Americans have gone back to work. The strikers are not bothering their heads about collective bargaining or the representation of the unions. They have no sympathy with the platform of labor unionism in this country. They are in favor of putting the theories of Lenine and Trotzky into practice here.

REDS ARE DREAMERS.

It is hard for anyone not on the ground to understand their attitude and purpose. They regard this strike as a revolution against the existing social order of the United States. Many of them have been hard working and saving and have accumulated money, which is concealed under mattresses and in various other hiding places. They have lived most economically and have taken advantage of the high wages to accumulate in portable form amounts that are surprising. Except for propaganda purposes they have no real complaint to make against their quarters and their condition. Where they live in squalor they do it voluntarily to save. So deeply convinced are they that the millennium is at hand, that control of the industries is to be turned over to them and their fellows and that there is to be a change in property ownership of a radical character through this strike, that they face the temporary loss of their earnings and the consequent reduction of their savings it entails without the slightest hestitation. It is startling to read their thoughts as revealed in their conversations overheard between one another and in desultory remarks made by them to those who attempt to reason with them as to the futility and expense of their present course.

DISREGARD OBLIGATIONS.

In addition to the steel strike there are other strikes of national importance pending or threatening. The pending longshoremen's strike, which has caused such great inconvenience to the national public, shows an utter indifference of the majority of the labor-union members to the obligation of their contracts and to the people's convenience. The threatened bituminous coal strike, to begin November 1, is another instance of much the same thing and of much greater extent. Then the railroad firemen are threatening to strike.

Mr. Gompers may thus find himself responsible for a struggle, most serious in its disturbance of law and order and likely to develop into a seditious attack upon society and its rights. This, we believe, Mr. Gompers does not seek. He is sincerely opposed to Bolshevism. He will charge the employers' group with being to blame for it when it rears its ugly head. But he will not be able to control the strikers he encourages. He cannot escape the blame for such a dire result as a general outbreak of anarchy.

CATERING TO REDS.

What matters it if the extremists are threatening Mr. Gompers's control of the Federation of Labor? It is vastly better he should lose it and go down fighting for his principles as an American labor unionist than that he should assume leadership and responsibility for a radical and red rebellion. Let him stand to his resolution in the conference. Let the argument be full. Let suggestions on the change of form or on the qualifications be ample. Let committees take it up in quiet executive session. Let it be threshed out in the good old American way and let him not despair of winning his meritorious issue in the end. Let his barking enemies in the federation, who rejoice at his withdrawal and who would attack his return to the conference, continue their noise. He should not yield to them. If he does, he forfeits the confidence in his courage which he won by his course during the war. He becomes a tool of the radicals and loses his identity in them.

TO PROTECT COAST'S SHIP TRANSPORTATION.

OSBORNE MOVES TO FREE SLOPE TRAFFIC FROM COMMERCE COMMISSION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Chairman Osborne, of the committee appointed by the joint delegation of the Pacific Coast States to reopen, of possible the hearings of the House Interstate Commerce Commission in order to present evidence in support of the proposal to eliminate coastwise shipping from the Interstate Commerce Commission supervision, called a meeting of the committee today and outlined plans for securing the protection of water transportation for the Coast. W. L. Clarke of Seattle explained how the Coast was now suffering from the railroads domination of the water rates on the Coast and how, if continued, the west coast would receive no benefit of the Panama Canal or competitive coast water rates.

After a two hours' conference Mr. Clarke was authorized to present a brief which the committee will in presenting the matter to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Plans for securing the cooperation and support of all the water transport engaged in coastwide trade were also discussed and at a session the first of the week this plan may be adopted.

It is now planned to urge that coastwide rates and all matters in connection with water transportation be made a separate bill and placed under the control of the Shipping Board or some sympathetic body which will build up the coastwise traffic and create real competition in transportation so that the Coast cities will get the benefit of lower rates to and from the eastern seaboard and up and down the western coast.

PRINCETON FALLS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PRINCETON (N. J.) Oct. 25.—Colgate defeated Princeton here today, 7 to 0, in one of the bitterest-fought football struggles ever seen in Palmer Memorial Stadium. The Tigers held the visiting team even throughout the greater part of the game and had the ball deep in Colgate territory most of the fourth quarter, and once Trimble dashed across the Maroon line, only to be called back for offside play in the Orange and Black line.

LOCAL LAWYER IS PRESIDENT.

Bradner W. Lee Chosen Head of Bar Association.

Next Convention Goes to City in the North.

Delegates Spend Week-End in Los Angeles.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Oct. 25.—Bradner W. Lee of Los Angeles was elected president of the California Bar Association at the closing session of the State convention at the Maryland Hotel here yesterday.

Mr. Lee has been a member of the Executive Committee of the association for several years. It was Southern California's turn to elect a president of the association and Mr. Lee was the choice of the committee on nominations. He was unanimously elected.

William B. Bosley of San Francisco, Jefferson P. Chandler of Los Angeles, and A. H. Ashley of Stockton were elected vice-presidents, representing the First, Second and Third Appellate districts. T. W. Robinson of Los Angeles was re-elected secretary and H. C. Wyckoff of Watson was re-elected treasurer.

Oscar Lawler of Los Angeles was elected a member of the Executive Committee. Other members of the Executive Committee elected were Eugene Daney of San Diego, W. G. Griffith of Santa Barbara, Charles W. Shurtleff of San Francisco and J. W. S. Butler of Sacramento. The officers are members ex-officio of the Executive Committee.

The next convention will be held in a city in the northern part of the State. The city will be selected by the Executive Committee at its meeting in March.

Upon his election as president, Mr. Lee expressed his appreciation to the convention for the honor conferred upon him and pledged his administration to maintain high ideals of the association. The convention adopted resolutions lauding the service rendered the association by Charles S. Cushing of San Francisco, the retiring president, and by other officials.

The convention voted to refer back to committee, for report at the next convention, consideration of a proposed legislative enactment compelling the attendance of witnesses and their testifying under oath in disbarment proceedings.

The convention adjourned yesterday noon. In the afternoon the delegates were guests of the Los Angeles Bar Association, whose members brought them from Pasadena in their cars and took them for a sightseeing ride around Los Angeles, culminating with a visit to the Lasky picture studios, where the lawyers were the guests of Cecil B. De Mille.

Virtually all the delegates are spending the week-end in Los Angeles.

PLAN ORGANIZATION FOR WOMEN VOTERS.

LEADERS DISCUSS FORMATION OF STATE BRANCH OF NATIONAL LEAGUE.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

An important meeting was held at the Friday Morning Club yesterday under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert J. Burdette for the formation of the State branch of the League of Women Voters. It was important in that this league will have a far-reaching effect on the future of the nation, succeeding the great organizations of federated women's suffrage associations, whose functions will automatically end with the ratification of the suffrage amendment.

Mrs. Burdette sent out her call to leading women in the nine southern counties, including chairmen of the old suffrage organizations, or of war work committees, each being asked to bring at least seven other women, preferably women not hitherto belonging to any club or organization, that the league may be wholly representative of every type of woman.

There was a large attendance, among the well-known women present being Mrs. Herbert A. Cable, Miss Mary Foy, Mrs. Joseph Sartori, Mrs. J. T. Anderson, Mrs. Seward Simons, Mrs. Clara Shortridge, Foltz, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, Mrs. O. Shepherd Barnum, Mrs. Frances Noel, Mrs. A. J. Lawton of Orange county, Mrs. R. F. Garner and Mrs. J. S. Wood of San Bernardino county, and many others. Mrs. Louisa Carr Kooms was elected secretary pro tem. A mass meeting will be called when the county units have been formed and officers will be elected for the whole State.

Any woman citizen of Southern California over 21, who signifies her belief in the purposes of the league and pledges her support, is eligible to membership, and she is free as an individual to serve any political party of her choice, as the league is to be strictly nonpartisan. The annual dues are $1.

Mrs. Burdette introduced Mrs. Charles Farwell Edson, who brought a message from Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, national president of the Woman's Franchise Association. She explained the purposes of the league, which may frankly be embodied in a great federation of women for higher citizenship and the promotion of political education to that end.

Both Miss Mary Foy and Mrs. Herbert Cable addressed the meeting emphasizing the necessity for the solidarity of women and their cooperation for the attainment of uniform laws and higher individual national responsibility in citizenship. Mrs. C. H. Page of Massachusetts also contributed valuable points of discussion.

Mrs. Burdette told how the New York branch of the league has already been formed and is active in collecting valuable data for political education of women. Two members of the league, for instance, one Republican and one Democrat, visit every candidate for office and get a definite statement from him upon every proposed reform or item of legislation, which is duly recorded, often to his ultimate confusion.

It will be seen, therefore, that the politicians everywhere have good reason to regard the formation of this league of women voters of national organization with misgivings and alarm wherever their intentions are not strictly honorable

INJURIES ARE NOT SERIOUS.

Pasadena Doctor Slightly Hurt by German Shell.

First Open-Air School to Open in Crown City.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Oct. 25.—The German artillery shell which struck the American relief headquarters at Riga this week and wounded Dr. Thomas J. Orbison of Pasadena and Los Angeles, head of the American mission, did not fatally injure the Californian.

Friends here of Dr. Orbison received word telegrams today from Congressman C. H. Randall stating he had obtained, through the State Department, advices that Dr. Obison's hurts were not serious and that he was continuing "on the job" in Riga.

Before he went into army service more than a year ago, Dr. Orbison was head of the psychopathic ward of the County Hospital. He holds the rank of major in the army.

SNOW AT MT. WILSON.

Dwellers atop Mt. Wilson awakened this morning to find snow on the ground—the first snow of the season on that lofty peak. It did not last long, however, melting soon after daylight.

HEADS OUTDOOR SCHOOL.

Miss Alma McCobb, head teacher at the Wilson elementary school, has been appointed by Supt. J. F. West to take charge of the first open-air school to be established by the Pasadena school district. The school is for anemic children and those who are under weight. It will begin operations a week from Monday, a special open-face building having been prepared for it on the Lincoln school grounds. The school is provided with lounges, where the students may lie down and rest during the day. This school is the first of several open-air schools to be established by the local district.

WILL ENLARGE GRAND STAND.

The west grand stand at Tournament Park will be rebuilt nearer the football gridiron and also to add 4000 more seats. Directors of the Tournament of Roses estimate that at least 4000 additional seats will be necessary to accommodate the crowds at the New Year's football game. Citizens will form a guarantee fund to defray the cost of the improvements at the park in case rain should cut receipts of the tournament.

WILL LEAVE FOR EAST.

First Lieutenant Richard Folsom Cleveland of the marines, son of Grover Cleveland, former President of the United States, who has been staying at the Hotel Maryland here several days, will leave for the East tomorrow and, upon receiving his honorable discharge from active service, will re-enter Princeton University as a student.

ANOTHER AERIAL DERBY.

BY WARDE FOWLER.

Aerial derbies are getting to be the dope these days. Now comes the announcement of a Los Angeles-San Francisco and return flight which will be the biggest event in the history of aviation on the Pacific Coast.

MINUS CASUALTIES.

This derby should have all the thrills of the Transcontinental race without any of the casualties. The country between Los Angeles and San Francisco is ideal for flying. At an altitude of 4000 meters a pilot would always be within gliding distance of an excellent field. There are mountains, to be sure, but proper altitude would guarantee 99 per cent. safety for any experienced pilot.

The contest is being conducted by the Aero Club of America through its official representative the Pacific Aero Club and will be run under the rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

Some of the best fliers on the coast have signified their intention of entering the race. Real airplanes will be on deck. There are Fokkers, S.E.5's, and Spads in the line-up which should give a genuine touch of class to the affair. Unless a machine can hit off 100 miles per hour in the air it will be disqualified.

THREE CONTROLS

On the flight to San Francisco there are to be three control stops: Bakersfield, Fresno and Modesto. On the return trip the planes will check at San Jose, Salinas and Oxnard.

Wild doings have been slated for the over-night stop at the Bay City and a big military ball will be held in honor of the fliers at the St. Francis Hotel.

The derby will start from Los Angeles Saturday, November 15th, at 11 o'clock.

LITTLE OHIO STATE TEARS INTO MICHIGAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ANN ARBOR (Mich.) Oct. 25.—Outplayed in practically every department of the game, Michigan went down to defeat before Ohio State, 13 to 3, today, for the first time in fifteen years. The defeat, it is generally conceded, eliminates Michigan as a contender for the western conference football championship.

The work of Capt. Harley, Quarter-back Stinchcomb and Flowers, the visitors' right-end man, featured the game. Several times Harley tore through the Michigan lines for good gains and in the third period he circled the Michigan right end for thirty-five yards and a touchdown.

Michigan's only score was the result of a pretty drop kick by Sparks in the second period from Ohio's 35-yard line. Score by periods:

Ohio State	7	0	6	0—13
Michigan	0	3	0	0— 3

MISSOURI IN FRONT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

COLUMBIA (Mo.) Oct. 25.—Missouri University's eleven today defeated Drake's gridiron team 3 to 0, scoring a field goal in the second period. Drake put up a good defense, but was never dangerous. Missouri had the ball within five yards of Drake's goal twice, but was unable to score. Lewis scored on a 35-yard kick.

NAVY IN FRONT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ANNAPOLIS (Md.) Oct. 25.—Though defeated, 21 to 6, today, Bucknell gave Navy a closer run than the score would indicate. The midshipmen, using line-smashing tactics for the most part, were forced to the limit in scoring their touchdowns.

CHICAGO WALLOPS NORTHWESTERN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STAGG FIELD (Chicago) Oct. 25.—Chicago defeated Northwestern, 41 to 0, in their annual football game here today. The crippled Northwestern team was completely outclassed and did not even threaten to score until near the close of the game.

Cole, the Chicago left half-back, scored his second touchdown in the fourth period, going over the 10-yard line. Higgins kicked goal. Hutchinson ran the full length of the field for Chicago's last touchdown, Higgins booted goal.

PITTSBURGH VARSITY BEATS GEORGIA TECH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25.—The University of Pittsburgh defeated Georgia Tech today, 16 to 6, in a spectacular game that was featured by a strong comeback on the part of the Yellowjackets in the second half of the game, when they played the Panthers off their feet and crossed their line in the third period and had the Blue and Gold on their own 1-yard line, where they recovered the ball on downs. Score by periods:

Pittsburgh	13	3	0	0—16
Georgia	0	0	6	0— 6

Total $3.85

Clip This Recipe—It May Not Appear Again. Recipe Makes 10 Gallons of Genuine Beer

Use an enameled, tinned or aluminum boiler for boiling. Bring 11 gallons of water to the boiling point; then add entire contents of can (5 lbs.) Mel-O-Malt Brand of Malted Barley Syrup and 4 lbs. of white or brown sugar. Stir well so sugar will not go the bottom and burn. Add one-half (3 ozs.) of the package of Acme Hops. Let boil for 50 minutes; then add balance of hops and boil 10 minutes longer. Total boiling one hour. Take boiler from stove, strain liquid through piece of muslin into fermenting vessel (earthenware crock, wooden keg with head removed or a wooden tub will do); add the package of Acme Clarifying Powder. When liquid is lukewarm add 3 cakes of FRESH Fleishman's Yeast dissolved in a cup of the brew and stir thoroughly. Set in a room of even temperature, cover the fermenting vessel with cloth and let ferment from 3½-4 days.

During fermentation skim frequently. After fermentation is completed, filter and bottle. When fermentation is practically through there will be no more skum:—just a little froth on the surface.

"To increase the proportion of home-owners requires that means be provided for helping prospects to help themselves. And when these means come from a source in which inexperienced prospects may place absolute confidence, they are more quick to overcome their reluctance to go into debt. The home-financing corporations which have been formed are providing just such means."

Stimulating the home-building as well as the home-owning spirit is one of Los Angeles' pressing problems. It is, as the Chamber of Commerce points out, more important just now to encourage the building of more homes than the sale of old ones. There is a general agreement that the man of steady income should be aided in acquiring his own home. Whether by a building company or a private lender matters little as long as the means are provided and the conditions are not burdensome to either side.

Shortsighted Practice.

Not long ago a veteran engineer remarked to the Fact and Comment man:

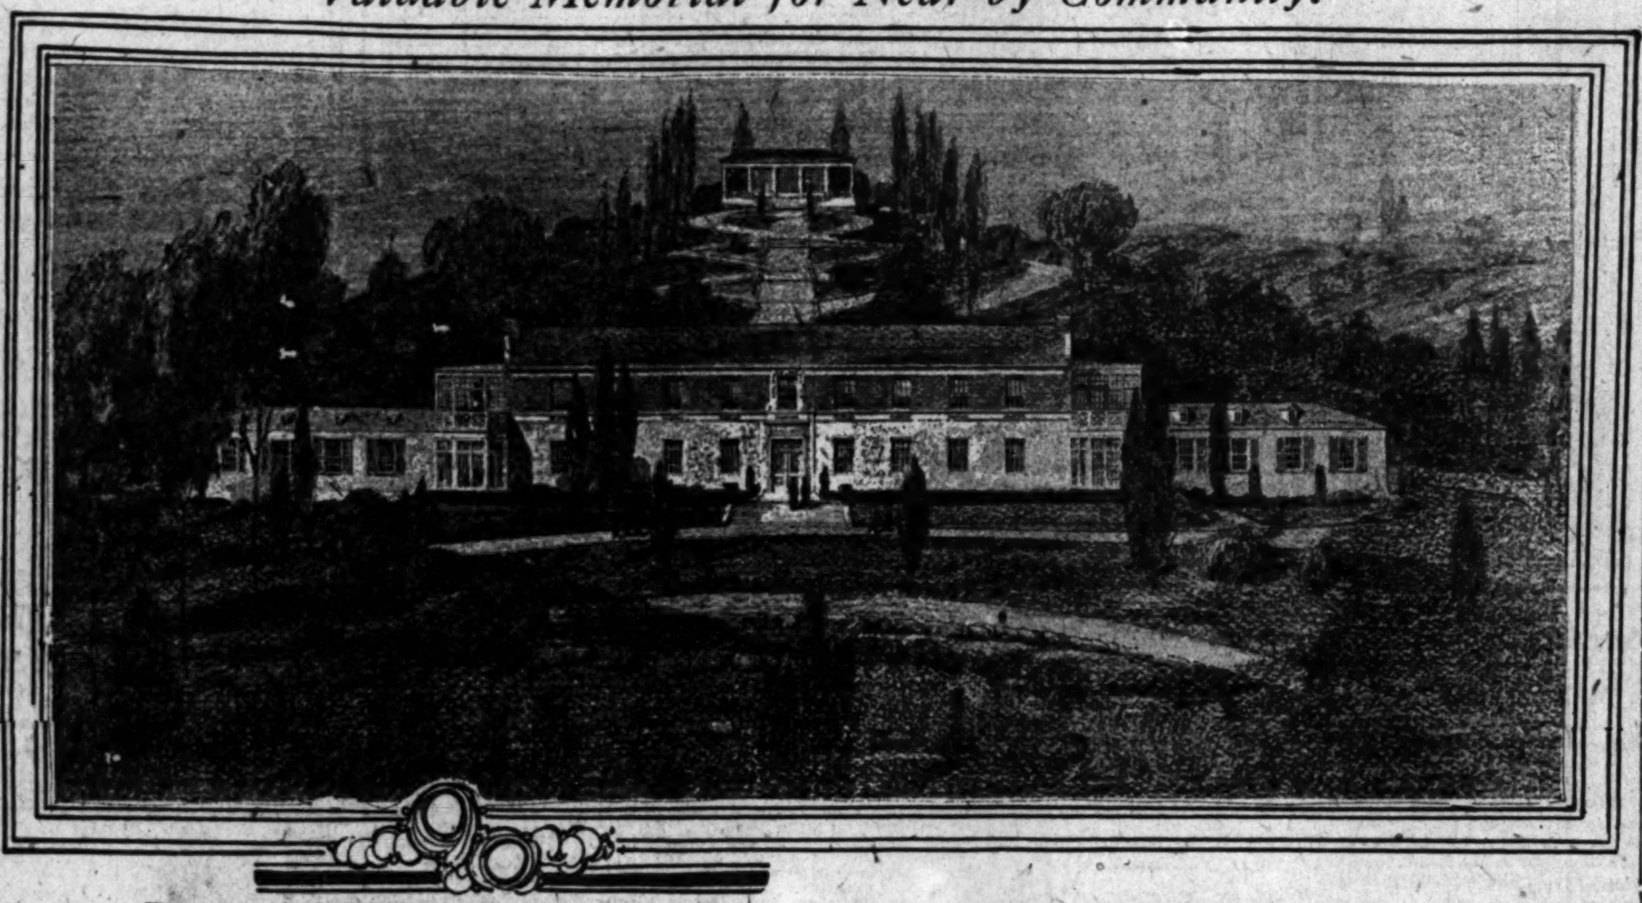
"A plague on these planless structures we see in Los Angeles. Why can't we have less ignorance and more architectural skill displayed in our residential districts?"

He referred, as may be surmised, to the numbers of dwellings which are built by persons who believe themselves possessed of "natural" designing ability and who spurn the services of an architect because they believe they can thereby save money. It is true that Los Angeles has its proportionate number of such persons, though they are by no means particularly indigenous to this city. While they have more play to apply their pet theories here, they are to be found in any and every community where building is done.

The one valuable lesson about good architecture is that it pays. Not only does it pay the person who buys it, but it pays the city where it can be shown. Architectural skill is not acquired off-hand. It is possessed only by those with brains who have the endurance to apply themselves with persistence and intelligence. The same may be said of engineering skill. Both are entitled to high recognition.

It is especially important at this time that intending builders, whether of a home or other structure, consult a competent architect rather than trust themselves to some incidental contractor whose knowledge of architecture may be confined to carpentry. The speculative builder is himself usually wise enough to do this. Why not, then, the untrained individual who thinks he can fare well enough alone? Prudence and economy dictate that so important a thing as a building should be done only by skilled hands in accordance with a plan based on architectural and engineering knowledge. Through any other method comes grief and a loss to the city.

Valuable Memorial for Near-by Community.



Fine structure for foothill city is made possible through gift of $50,000 by Mr. and Mrs. William Milhous; designed by Architects Allison & Allison.

FACTORY PLANS.

Brownstein-Louis Company to Go Ahead with Building.

Announcement is made by the Brownstein-Louis Company, manufacturers of shirts and overalls, that Architect John Parkinson has been commissioned to prepare plans for the new factory building which that company proposes to erect on the site of Potter Park at the northwest corner of Figueroa and Eighth streets. The building, according to estimates previously made, will cost $400,000 exclusive of equipment.

It will be a six-story structure of class A reinforced concrete construction, the intention of the owners being to make it a model factory building containing many unusual architectural and welfare features. The site has a frontage of 220 feet on Figueroa street, by 200 feet on Eighth street and Potter Park avenue. While preliminary plans will be prepared at once, the intention of the owners is to visit several eastern cities in order to study certain phases of factory construction for application here.

NEW FACTORY.

Brokers Lease Building for New Cannery Plant.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through T. E. Merrill, reports the following business leases: For C. F. Day to E. Fred Aunger, building at 671 Rio street, to be used as a canning factory; for A. T. Welles to L. Lawrence & Co., storeroom at 1030 South Grand avenue; for A. T. Welles to S. M. Bedoya, storeroom at 1026 South Grand avenue; for F. W. Braun to the Hurley Machine Company, storeroom at 822 South Broadway.

Leases reported by the same company through R. C. Murray include the following: For A. T. Welles to S. Munroe, storeroom at 1032 South Grand avenue; for Mrs. Altie E. Hallett to George W. Condon, a new garage building to be erected at 215-31 West Pico street; through W. L. Evans, for Hedwig Jacoby and Charles Goldman to E. C. Warner, the Addington Hotel at 735 South Hope street; through J. A. Wells, for A. T. Welles to the Gillette Accessory Sales Agency, storeroom at 1028 South Grand avenue.

AUTO BUILDING.

New Pico Street Structure for Motor Dealer.

A new automobile sales building and garage will be erected at 132-36 West Pico street following a lease of the property made by R. A. Rowan & Company with the Cline Realty Company. The building when completed will be occupied by F. C. Gorham, automobile dealer.

The plans were prepared by Architects Walker & Eisen. The building, 45 by 142 feet, will be brick and concrete, with a ruffled brick facing and stone trim. The contract calls for completion within two months.

COURT IS SOLD.

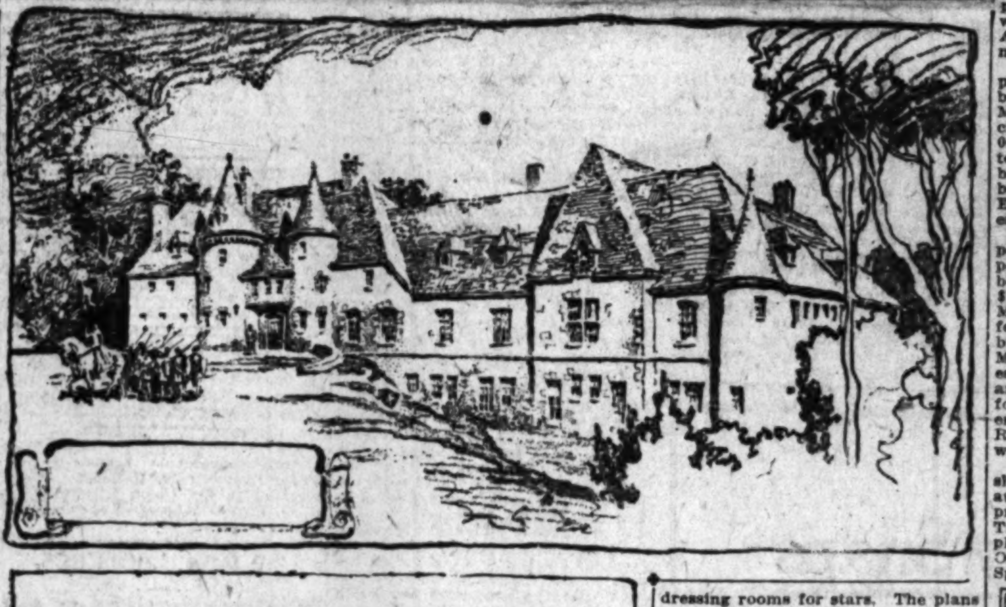
The W. T. Fitzpatrick Company reports the sale of the La Court Apartments at 827 South Bonnie Brae street to C. S. Swann of San Francisco.

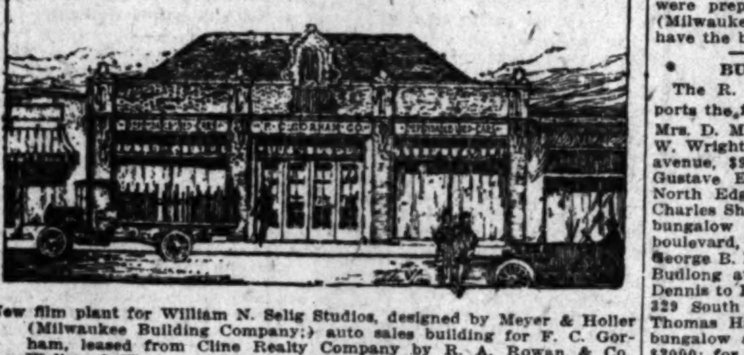
NEW STUDIO.

French Chateau Building Being Erected for Selig.

Los Angeles will have an attractive addition soon to its film enterprises through the completion of the new William N. Selig Studio building at the Selig Zoo near Lincoln Park. This studio, which is to replace the one destroyed by fire some time ago, will be occupied by Louis W. Mayer, a former New York film producer. According to the builders, it will cost approximately $150,000.

The buildings are designed in the French chateau style of the medieval period, and include an administration building, scenario department, projecting room and property room. There will be three stages each 80 by 200 feet. Several individual cottages will be set apart for dressing rooms for stars. The plans were prepared by Meyer & Heller (Milwaukee Building Co.,) who also have the building contact.





New film plant for William N. Selig Studios, designed by Meyer & Holler (Milwaukee Building Company;) auto sales building for F. C. Gorham, leased from Cline Realty Company by R. A. Rowan & Co., Walker & Elsen, architects.

BUNGALOW SALES.

The R. C. Mitchell Company reports the following house sales: For Mrs. D. M. Caples to Mrs. Gertrude W. Wright, bungalow at 900 Fourth avenue, $9000; for Edwin Mace to Gustave Eggert, bungalow at 1168 North Edgemont street, $6000; for Charles Shubert to L. E. BUY ON MARIPOSA.

Charles C. and S. J. Chapman, Inc., report the following property sales: To R. N. Parks of Detroit, house at 501 South Mariposa avenue, $25,000; to Joseph H. Connel of Rochester, N. Y., house at 452 South Mariposa avenue, $22,500; to F. E. Preston, house at 522 Normandie avenue, $20,000; to E. T. Lowe of Nashville, Tenn., house at 531 South Mariposa avenue, $17,500. These sales were made through the recently organized sales department of the Chapman Company, in charge of J. A. Johnson, formerly of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company, and J. G. Vance.

HELD TO ANSWER.

After testimony was introduced yesterday in Justice Hinshaw's court to show that George Penains, accused of driving an automobile while intoxicated, drove his car off the end of Twenty-fifth street at Alameda street, he was held to answer. It was shown that Penains drove his car off the end of the street, across car tracks, just avoided being run down by an electric train, and ran into the automobile of Edward Price. Bail was fixed at $500.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR WHITTIER.

Memorial Building to Stand in City Park.

Other Outside Work Comes to Local Architects.

Structures in Several Places Planned Here.

Marking a forward step in the progress of Whittier, that near-by city is soon to realize its desire to have a hospital which will compare with any of its size in Southern California. This will come through the erection of the new Milhous Memorial Hospital, a project made possible by the donation of $50,000 to the city by Mr. and Mrs. William Milhous, public-spirited citizens of that place.

The building construction, of which will start within a short time, will stand in Alta Park, a sightly public recreation ground overlooking the surrounding valley. It will be a general hospital designed for a minimum of thirty beds, with one-story wings at either end accommodating the operating rooms and accessories and maternity hospital. Plans were prepared by Architects Allison and Allison, of Los Angeles.

The center portion of the building is 117 feet long and two stories high. It is divided into wards of from one to four beds each, a number of which have communicating bathrooms. The main corridor running through the building opens out on ample solariums at either end. In architectural style the building will suggest the colonial, with broad paved and grass terraces in front adapting it to the sightly location on the hillside overlooking Whittier. Masonry fireproof construction will be used. It will be equipped throughout with modern hospital installations. The cost of equipment will be exclusive of the $50,000 available for building purposes.

The hospital board includes A. C. Johnson, chairman; O. H. Barr, secretary; F. W. Hadley, A. C. Maple, William Minget, Dr. A. Rosenberger and William Milhous.

Other construction operations outside of this city recently planned by Los Angeles architects include important works in Modesto, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, Calexico, Long Beach and San Bernardino. In connection with the present building movement, it is pointed out as noteworthy that many commissions have come to Los Angeles architects and builders from other cities.

Architects Walker and Eisen have prepared plans for a new department store building to be erected at Modesto for the Thompson Company of that city. The building, which was partially financed by Los Angeles capital, will cost approximately $100,000.

Arthur G. Lindley is preparing plans for a new church building to be erected at Calexico for the First Methodist Episcopal Church of that city. The cost is estimated at $45,000. He has also been commissioned to prepare plans for a new church building and community center buildings for the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Taft, Cal., the estimated cost of which is $75,000.

Architect Robert H. Orr has prepared preliminary plans for a proposed memorial library building to be erected at Claremont to cost from $20,000 to $25,000. Architect H. M. Patterson has prepared plans for a new church building to be built at Hemet for the Hemet Methodist Episcopal Church. The estimated cost is $50,000. Train and Williams have prepared plans for a new business building to be erected at Lancaster for Earle L. Roberts and L. Harris, the cost of which is estimated at $25,000.

Construction work will start shortly on the new Santa Ana Hotel at Santa Ana, plans for which were prepared by Architect Myron Hunt. The same architect is preparing plans for a home to be erected at Oak Knoll, Pasadena, for Keith Spalding.

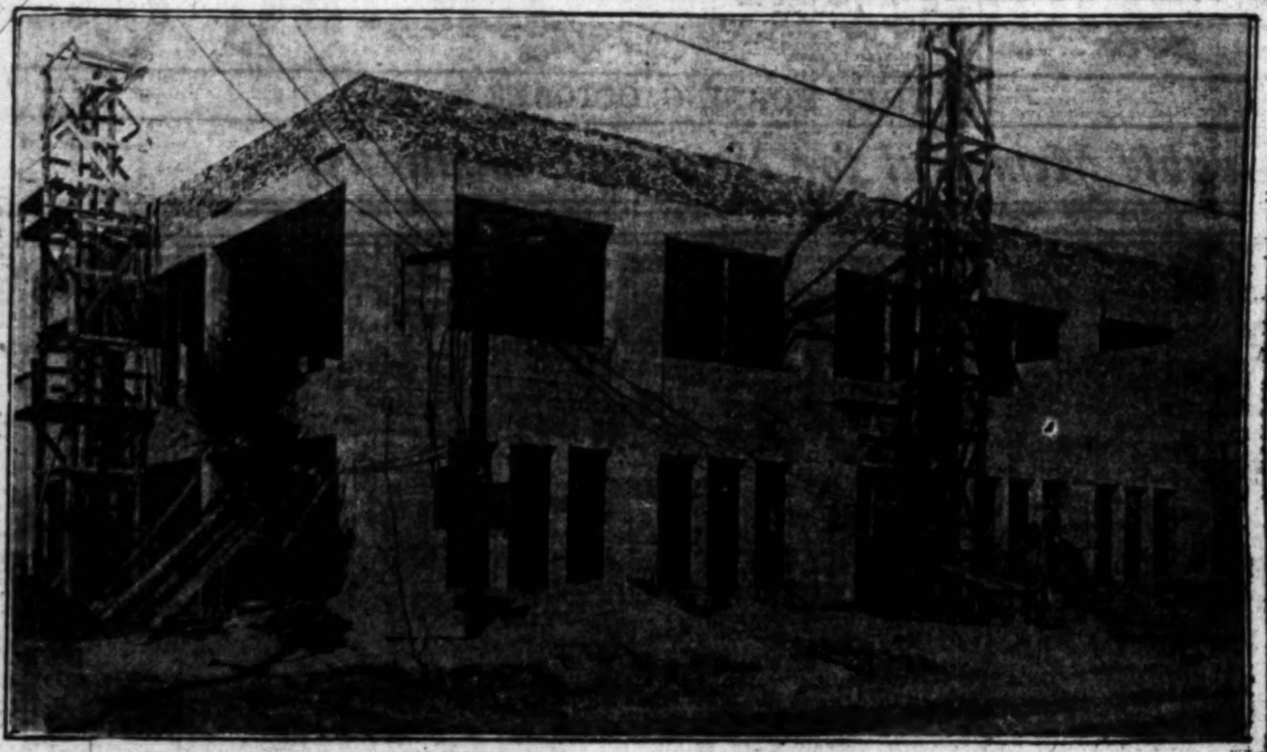
New Steel Plant is Progressing.



First building of group to be erected by Keystone Iron Works at Santa Fe avenue and Thirty-fifth street, the ultimate cost of which, with equipment, will be $500,000.

MAKING PROGRESS.

First Building for Keystone Company Nears Completion.

Rapid progress is being made on the construction of the new group of factory buildings for the Keystone Iron Works at Santa Fe avenue and Thirty-fifth street, where the first unit of the steel plant is nearing completion. This building is a two-story reinforced concrete structure, and is being erected by the Pozzo Construction Company. The building area is 100x465 feet.

The company has a site of six and one-half acres, all of which will be occupied by the new plant. According to H. L. Griswold, president of the company, the intention is to spend approximately $500,000 for new buildings and equipment. This will give the Keystone company one of the finest steel plants in the West.

FIREST-FIRE CONTROL.

Airmen and Rangers will Discuss Means for Co-operation.

For the purpose of discussing ways and means for better co-operation of the forest fire patrol, and to avoid duplication of effort, a conference will be held at March Field, Riverside, participated in by officers of the forest service and army officials in charge of the aviation school at that point. The first meeting will be held soon.

During the recent disastrous fires in the Pacoima and San Gabriel canyons, there was much confusion on account of the absence of a thorough understanding, and as it is the policy of the forest officials to encourage the airplane service in the patrol work of the big woods, it is thought best that a conference be held in order that a thorough understanding may be had.

SALE OF LOTS.

SAYS THEY LIKE UNCLE SAM NOW

Latin America Won by War Record, Visitor Finds.

Nicaraguans' Children Come Here for Education.

Everybody Getting Rich and Friendly Toward Us.

The war has made a big difference in the attitude of the Latin-American countries toward the United States according to C. P. Richmond, son of G. S. Richmond of 265 East Pasadena street, Pomona, who has just returned from Nicaragua where he is engaged in mining.

The war record of the United States attracted attention all over Central and South America, Mr. Richmond said, and the nations are anxious now to have the friendship of this country. He said that this was particularly noticeable in Nicaragua where everybody who has the means is talking about taking a trip to the United States.

It was also noticeable, he said, that the children of wealthy Nicaraguans, who used to be sent to Europe for their education, are beginning to come here and the wealthy classes who used to make a yearly trip to Europe are changing their plans to come to the United States instead.

CHILDREN ON SHIP.

On the steamship that brought Mr. Richmond from Nicaragua were about seventy children, all coming here to go to school. Most of them were accompanied by their parents who plan to remain here at least a year. All this is due to the impression caused by our war record, Mr. Richmond said, the Latin-American countries realizing that their future prosperity rests largely with the United States.

Speaking about Nicaragua Mr. Richmond said that everybody seemed to be getting wealthy. Especially is this true of coffee growers and dealers, who are making up for the losses occasioned by the war. Since hostilities ceased, and shipping has been resumed, the coffee business has made tremendous gains, and production is being pushed to the limit, as prices are far in advance of what they were before the war. Sugar is also much higher in price, and the producers are doing a thriving business.

ABOUT GOLD MINES.

Mr. Richmond says that gold mining has not recovered from the effect of the war. While the war was in progress, it was almost impossible to get labor, while machinery could not be had at any price. Even at this time, all machinery, and metal supplies are high, while laborers are getting higher wages than ever before. For this reason, gold mining is not as profitable as heretofore. Silver is considerably better, but all kinds of mining is very expensive, he said.

The cattle business is an important industry in Nicaragua, he said, but for some time the price of hides has been lower. In the past few weeks some cargoes have been sent to England. On the dock at Honduras, Mr. Richmond states, there was a stack of 5000 hides waiting for steamships.

FOR ROOSEVELT.

Memorial Exercises in Honor of Late President Held Today.

Invitations have been issued to the entire membership of the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. for the memorial exercises to be held at 3:30 p.m. today, in the auditorium of the Y.M.C.A. building, in honor of the late Theodore Roosevelt. The meeting is to be a part of a national movement among Y.M.C.A.'s in connection with Roosevelt Memorial Week.

James G. Warren, vice-president of the Y.M.C.A., will preside, and former Lieut.-Gov. A. J. Wallace and Councilman Fleming will deliver addresses. Rev. W. S. Dysinger will give the invocation. Members of the board of directors and committee of management of the Y.M.C.A. will take an active part in the exercises. Appropriate musical numbers will be furnished by the Y.M.C.A. Glee Club.

Harry O. Hill, State secretary of the Y.M.C.A., has issued a request to all associations in California to join in the nation-wide observance of the Roosevelt Memorial. It was estimated that invitations have been issued to at least 25,000 members of the Y.M.C.A. in this State.

ENTER PARTNERSHIP.

Architect Ross G. Montgomery and Alfred Nibecker announce the formation of a partnership to conduct a general architectural and engineering business with offices in the Story Building. Mr. Montgomery, who served in the Engineering Corps of the army in the war, has been identified with the Los Angeles architectural field for several years. Mr. Nibecker, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was until recently associated with Architects Allison and Allison.

BISHOP SCHOOL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BISHOP, Oct. 25.—Construction work will start soon on the new Bishop High School, funds for which were raised at the recent bond election. The estimated cost is $150,000. The buildings will occupy a site of ten acres. In adition to classrooms, the main building will also contain an auditorium seating 1000. Architect W. H. Weeks, who prepared the plans, will supervise the construction.

STORES LEASED.

Metcalf & Ryan report the following business leases: For Marie Bailey to Ghisi and Berry storeroom at the northeast corner of Seventh and Flower streets; for the same owner to Albert E. Colburn, storeroom at 731 West Seventh street, and to A. Dunlap, storeroom at 729 West Seventh street. Mr. Ghisi was for ten years connected with the art department of S. Nordlinger & Sons.

Victor Girard reports the following lot sales at Walnut Park: To W. R. and Edna O'Brien, Chester W. and Atta M. Newton, H. W. Hunt, Howard R. and Mabel F. Jackson, Charles A. Hammond, Roy A. and Ella Dunbar, Idella McCrosky, Rosa L. Ruthrauff and Emma Bell.

BUY SITE TO BUILD.

The Oil Mining Equipment Company reports the purchase of the block of property facing Santa Fe avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, where a ten-story brick building will be erected. The consideration for the land is reported at $50,000.

REALTORS MOVE.

The John P. Holland Company, realty brokers, have removed from the Title Insurance Building to the Citizens' National Bank Building, Fifth and Spring streets.

ANNOUNCES MOVE.

Announcement is made by the France Investment Company of its removal to 412 Union Oil Building. G. O. France is general manager of the company.

TO GIVE LECTURES.

Dr. Flewelling's Course to Deal With Bergson's Writings.

Contemporary thought, with special reference to Bergson, will be the subject of a series of lectures to be given at the University of Southern California by Dr. Ralph Flewelling, head of the department of philosophy.

Dr. Flewelling has recently returned from France, where he did educational work with the American army. He studied at the Sorbonne under the direction of Dr. Bergson.

The course will be especially for graduate students and teachers, but will also be open to upper class students of the department of philosophy.

WIDOW GIVEN DAMAGES FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH.

A jury in Judge Houser's court, yesterday, returned a verdict of $5000 in the suit of Mary E. Read against the Pacific Electric for the death of her husband by a Pacific Electric car March 19 last.

George Gilbert Read, who was driving his automobile on Vermont avenue, was struck at the Santa Monica intersection. The automobile was also damaged. Mrs. Read, as executrix of her husband's estate, asked $50,000 damages for his death. Her attorneys were Clark and Turnbull.

TO HOLD EXAMINATION FOR FOREST RANGERS.

There will be a civil service examination at the Federal Building tomorrow for forest rangers. More than fifty applications have been filed for the positions, the successful candidates being eligible for service in any of the national forest reserves in California.

The pay is $1340 a year and certain allowances. On account of the many recent changes there will be no difficulty in getting good places in the service. The examination will be a written one.

FINE EXCHANGE FOR BROKERS.

Million-Dollar Building for Spring Street.

Plans Ready for Structure on Story Property.

Delayed by War, Project will Now Go Ahead.

Los Angeles is soon to have its long-desired Stock Exchange Building through the virtual completion yesterday of details of a plan which calls for the erection of a fourteen-story structure on the west side of Spring street, between Sixth and Seventh streets, adjoining the Union Oil Building. The plans, which have been in the course of preparation for some time by Architects Morgan, Walls & Morgan, are for a Class A reinforced concrete and brick building to cost approximately $1,000,000. It will be one of the finest of its kind in the West.

The site on which the building will be erected is owned by Thomas Story. It has a frontage of 120 feet on Spring street and extends to an alley in the rear. While the time of actual building construction is yet undetermined, the desire of the Stock Exchange governing board is to expedite it as much as possible so that the structure may be ready for occupancy some time next year. It is understood that Weymouth Crowell, who is building the new California Hotel for the California Hotel Company, has been consulted as to the building contract for the Stock Exchange Building, but Mr. Crowell said yesterday that he was not prepared to discuss the details.

The exchange will occupy commodious quarters on the ground floor of the new building, utilizing more than twice the floor space it has in its present building. It will have adequate arrangements for committee rooms, private offices, telephone booths, telegraph desks and all the adjuncts necessary to a modern exchange.

This building, long desired by the exchange, was one of those larger local projects deferred by reason of war-time building prohibition. The negotiations for the new site, it is understood, have been under way for several months, and are just now complete because all questions of finance have been definitely settled.

PASS HALF MILLION.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Oct. 25.—Santa Ana's building total for 1919 has just passed the half-million dollar mark, permits to date totaling $504,653. This is greater than any previous year since 1914. October permits to date total $73,425. Among permits issued in the past week was a $10,000 home for Lester L. Carden, at 1522 North Broadway, and another for a $4000 home for Justus Birtscher at 522 East Chestnut. Roy Russell has just completed seven new bungalows and is starting five more. P. A. Robinson is building fifteen new bungalows on East Fifth and East Sixth.

FOR KANSAS SOCIETY.

Announcement was made yesterday by Justice J. W. Summerfield, president of the Kansas State Society, that an attractive programme has been prepared by the society and will be given on November 7, at Forum Hall, Mercantile place. Former Kansas residents, it was said, will be welcomed, the affair being in the nature of a "get-together."

REALTOR RECOVERS.

E. P. Bryan, member of the real estate firm of Bryan & Bradford, who has been confined to his home for several weeks on account of a severe accident, is reported to be recovering and expects to resume his business activities within a few days. Mr. Bryan, who is widely known in the Los Angeles real estate field, was thrown to the street while alighting from a street car.

HOUSES—For Sale.

FOR SALE—

GILES & LAACK,
OFFER FOR SALE

KINGSLEY DRIVE SOUTH OF THE BOULEVARD.

$7000.

An eight-room house of the chalet type, modern in every respect. Four bedrooms, 2 baths and maid's room. East-front lot, good garage. A mighty attractive place.

CHALET BUNGALOW

$7560.

This bungalow has seven rooms, a fine bathroom, furnace garage, everything modern and up to date, lot 50x150 feet on Gramercy place, between Second and Third streets. This is a good buy and will make a most desirable home if you are looking for a place of this character.

WILSHIRE SNAP.

$8000.

Located west of Western ave., in the first block north of Wilshire; a two-story frame house, consisting of 8 rooms, screened side porch, bath and sleeping porch; hardwood floors downstairs; basement, furnace garage, etc. On a lot 50x148½ feet. Worth $4000. With a few hundred dollars spent on this house you will have a very comfortable, finely located home. It won't last long, so act quickly.

BERENDO STREET NEAR FIFTH.

$10,000.

Nine large sunny rooms, two bathrooms, oak floors throughout; finished in selected Oregon pine and extra good white enamel; furnace and instantaneous heater. Lot 60x150 feet; about half cash. This is a good, honest buy.

BEAUTIFUL CHALET.

$12,000.

House contains ten rooms and three bathrooms. The rooms are exceedingly well planned, are artistically finished, every modern convenience, lot 60x155 with two-car garage; on Catalina street near Fifth. If you want something "just a little different" and a great deal better than the average, see this one. Shown by appointment only.

WESTMORELAND AVENUE.

$15,000.

Beautiful home containing 12 large rooms and 3 bathrooms; 4 bedrooms on second floor; 2 large tiled bathrooms and sleeping porch; a billiard-room in the attic. Living-room and hall finished in real mahogany, dining-room paneled in quarter-sawed oak. Large garage with man's room. Lot 60x162, laid out with beautiful trees and flowers. This house is specially reduced for quick sale and could not be duplicated at anything like this figure. Telephone us for an appointment to see it.

A SPECIAL BARGAIN IN A BEAUTIFUL WHITE PLASTER HOUSE.

$16,000.

A most inviting exterior and an interior which more than meets your expectations. Twelve large rooms, unusually well arranged, and three baths, two of them tiled and one equipped with a marble shower. Mahogany and oak finish the main rooms of the first floor, the walls of which are canvased and decorated in oils. A delightful breakfast-room, good kitchen and maid's room and bath finish the first floor. Upstairs are four big bedrooms, sun parlor, sleeping porch and the two completely equipped baths. Double garage with laundry and chauffeur's quarters with bath. Modern gas furnace, fine porches, highly improved lot, on a paved street in a high-class neighborhood. This is a positive bargain.

COLONIAL ON KINGSLEY DRIVE BETWEEN FIFTH AND SIXTH STREETS.

$18,000.

This is, without doubt, the best buy in the Wilshire district today. Eleven rooms and two modern bathrooms, solid mahogany and white enamel finish; five bedrooms maid's room and two sleeping porches; twin gas furnaces, automatic heater, double garage, etc. Lot 76x150. This house is a real beauty and modern in detail. We doubt if you can equal it anywhere in the Wilshire district for less than $25,000. If you want such a home, phone us and make an early appointment to see it.

1742 WELLINGTON ROAD.

$18,000.

In every respect this is one of the most charming Dutch Colonial homes we have ever had the pleasure of offering. A trim red brick walk leads to the hospitable colonial porch and entrance. The entrance is into a large hallway, from which rises the colonial stairway. On the right are the spacious living-room and sun room; on the left the artistic dining-room, separated from the kitchen by the butler's pantry. At the end of the hall is a delightful breakfast room. The second floor has an exceptionally well-arranged floor plan of four good-sized bedrooms, sewing-room and two baths, and maid's room and bath. The satin-finished enamel obtains throughout the house. Beautiful Japanese garden. Garage with chauffeur's quarters. This place is really artistic, in fine condition and well built in every respect. 75-foot lot. The furniture and hangings are in keeping and may be purchased if desired. If you are looking for a home, satisfactory in every respect, here it is. Shown by appointment.

CORNER HOME ON KINGSLEY DRIVE.

$21,500.

On a high, elevated corner lot, north of Wilshire boulevard, with an unobstructed view of the mountains. More than $24,000 was spent on the house and grounds when the cost of building was 50 per cent. less than it is today. The house is complete in every detail, has ten rooms and three baths, and is a thoroughly attractive, livable home. Quiet, restful decorations throughout the house, and the fixtures and decorations harmonize perfectly. The finish is exceptionally good. Grounds are highly improved with the choicest of roses and other plants. Garage, of course. A most desirable home in every respect, and one which will appeal to you if you are looking for a real home.

This fine home has attracted the attention of the Ladies' Home Journal and they will soon have printed in their columns photographs and a complete description. This recognition proves conclusively that this magnificent home is an exceptional one to be desired. Built by the owner for a permanent home, he spared no expense whatever in making it a perfect home in every detail. For instance, the floors are 1½ inch, the ceilings are high, the woodwork has seven coats of the best enamel, and in every detail pains, expense and care have been taken. Just completed in March, the owner now finds that he is compelled to go abroad, consequently, the necessity of selling the home. It has a large living-room, large dining-room, music-room, 3 bedrooms, breakfast-room, model tiled kitchen, tiled bath and shower, cement basement, gas furnace, garage; built on a large east front lot. MODERN BUSINESS ETHICS places service, helpfulness, good will, far above mere monetary gain. Nothing is quite so satisfying as a conscious act of helpfulness to a fellow man. It is the greatest thing in life.

Our home department is founded upon this vital principle. The homeseeker is spared much weary drudgery and much financial risk; the seller is assured quick action. Both are served. Every house property offered is subjected to the most painstaking scrutiny by our experts, who know values. We select only the best buys. Every house we advertise is either a genuine BARGAIN, or is especially DESIRABLE IN SOME OTHER WAY.

BEAUTIFUL HOME AND A BIG INCOME.
HOLLYWOOD FOOTHILL ESTATE.
$50,000.

OR LESS, ACCORDING TO THE AMOUNT OF LAND PURCHASED WITH THE HOME SITE. THERE ARE 11 ACRES IN THE ENTIRE TRACT.

A Spanish-Italian dwelling set in the midst of a park-like area of palms, ornamental shrubbery and orange grove. The house is unique, both as to construction and interior finish. It is solid cement. In the center is a large loggia exquisitely set out in palms and semi-tropical flora, surrounded by a wide promenade, supported by massive pillars and floored with colored kiln-baked tile. Opening from this beautiful loggia are the living-rooms, dining-room and bedrooms.

This place is not only a wonderfully desirable home, but it is a certain MONEY MAKER for the buyer, as the acreage may be readily SUBDIVIDED and sold in BUILDING LOTS, leaving the homesite proper intact. The surplus acreage will make a fine BUNGALOW COURT PROPOSITION.

A PLACE OF THIS TYPE WILL NOT REMAIN LONG ON THE MARKET, AS IT HAS A DISTINCTIVELY CALIFORNIA TOUCH, WHICH IS SO MUCH SOUGHT AFTER. THE PRICE IS EXTREMELY LOW FOR A QUICK SALE, AS THE OWNER IS LEAVING CALIFORNIA ON AN EXTENDED TOUR. PHONE MR. COLTER FOR APPOINTMENT.

$55,000.

INCLUDING HANGINGS AND RUGS OF THE HIGHEST GRADE, ESPECIALLY SELECTED AND DESIGNED FOR EACH ROOM, OR $75,000, COMPLETELY FURNISHED.

This lovely home consists of 12 rooms and garage, with servants' living quarters. It is of white plaster on hollow tile and is the very LAST WORD IN MODERN CONSTRUCTION. No effort or expense was spared in the selection of materials. The interior finish is the work of competent artists.

Dining-room, reception hall, living-room are in oak and mahogany; breakfast-room and sun-room in old ivory; culinary department, maid's room, laundry-room are fully equipped. The bedchambers are exquisitely finished and matched as to hangings; upstairs sun parlor, tile baths, dressing-rooms complete the arrangement.

WHILE THIS PLACE IS NOT ON THE BARGAIN COUNTER, THE PRICE OF $55,000 REPRESENTS A SAVING OF SEVERAL THOUSANDS—IN 1919 BUILDING COSTS.

THIS IS A HOME PAR EXCELLENCE, THE TYPE SO GREATLY IN DEMAND NOWADAYS BY THE DISCRIMINATING BUYERS OF CALIFORNIA FINE HOMES. CALL MR. COLTER FOR APPOINTMENT.

BEAUTIFUL ANGELES MESA.

A HIGH-CLASS RESIDENCE SUBDIVISION.
OVERLOOKING THE CITY.

A wonderful panoramic view of the city and a sixty-mile stretch of snow-capped mountains is the glorious privilege of every resident of ANGELES MESA—Los Angeles' most commanding viewpoint.

ANGELES MESA is a veritable residential balcony, the view from which has sold over $2,000,000 worth of home sites in two years time.

At night from this beautiful eminence the city's million twinkling lights appear—an entrancing sight that you'll never forget.

By day you see an everchanging picture—a vast panorama of colorful roofs, yellow skyscrapers and green foliage, framed by the purple Sierra Madres at the north. This is the view perpetual—it cannot be obscured.

This view has attracted people to Angeles Mesa from every low-lying part of the city, and they have induced their friends and neighbors to follow them. We are offering the following homes:

FOR SALE—

ONE LITTLE GEM OF A HOLLYWOOD HALF ACRE. High above the city's noise and confusion, a RESTFUL, artistic little home like a jewel in its setting of velvet green lawn.

$8000.

On beautiful Crescent Heights blvd., amid handsome residences, I selected this big east front half acre for my home. A new place but garden, flowers and fruit already show the result of careful planning and earnest work.

The new bungalow has a wonderful wire veranda commanding a view from mountains to sea by day, and twinkling lights of many cities by night. Not large but complete and homelike. The living and dining-rooms in ivory, the model kitchen, two airy bedrooms and bath are all roomy. Good garage.

A scientific poultry plant with capacity for 200 hens will give pleasure and profit. To duplicate this home today would cost $12,000, but for business reasons owner will sell at cost, $8000. Phone 66740. MR. LORD.

THE LOWEST PRICE IN WILSHIRE.
East front new colonial in Country Club Park, $500 below any other.

$6200.

Plate glass buffet and bookcases, big plate front window, rich old ivory woodwork, handsome tiled bath, big cement patio opening through French doors, and wide front porch are some of the features that distinguish this from cheaply built houses now selling at $7000. Owner going into business needs capital and will sell this at what it cost him last spring. $6200, easy terms. Phone 66740. MR. BATTELLE.

MARTHA WASHINGTON 2-STORY COLONIAL.
Wilshire's best buy in a new home on east front 60-foot lot.

$12,000.

Just finished 8 rooms and 2 tiled baths with shower, maid's room and bath. Stately living-room, real Mt. Vernon dining-room, breakfast-room, kitchen and pass pantry. Center hall. Mahogany and ivory woodwork, very handsome fixtures. Same house being built for $15,000, but this one was contracted at lower cost; the saving is yours. Price $12,000. Call 66740. Mr. BATTELLE.

FOR SALE—

BEAUTIFUL ITALIAN VILLA HOME

PRICE $50,000, AND WORTH IT.

THE MOST PICTURESQUE SPOT IN SO. CAL.

Only 30 minutes from Broadway on beautiful boulevard, situated high above the surrounding country. A panorama spreads before the vision—from east to west and from north to south—for miles away—and is forever unmasked.

It is my good fortune to be able to offer such a beautiful spot to the most discriminating buyer.

8 ACRES—HIGHLY IMPROVED.

Mostly lemons—but some oranges, peaches, pears, apricots, walnuts and fancy fruits and vineyard for family use. The Chateau is of Italian design—10 rooms, modern, white plaster and tile roof, large garage, tennis court, electric lighted, could not be duplicated for $2500. It has taken this man 6 years to make this place, and it is worth $75,000 to the right party.

Call and see photographs at my office and if the place interests you, we will go and see it, which means you'll purchase it.

FOR SALE—
Cash talks loudest on a bargain like this.

I have one of the classiest up-to-the-minute homes out Southwest; an 8-room Swiss-Chalet bungalow with cement driveway and double garage. Built my home and included nearly every modern convenience money could buy. 2 bedrooms and extra disappearing bed, also convertable sun-room or sleeping porch, patio, fountain, beautiful large beamed living room with rustic fireplace and cozy seats, den with built-in desk, dining room with elaborate buffet, etc. All solid wood paneled wainscoating; breakfast room; quartered sawed oak floors, built-in electric stove, tiled bath and shower, furnace, large veranda, lawn, flowers, etc. High sightly terraced ground overlooking city and mountains. I recently reduced my mortgage from $4500 to $3000, 2½ years to run. Now need funds and will take as low as $4500 cash for my equity. Property could not be duplicated today for $10,000. Will show by appointment to bona fide buyer with $4500 cash. No agents.

McNAIR PLACE.
$700.

McNair place extends from Gardner to Crescent avenue, having a half-mile frontage on Santa Monica blvd. Lots facing on such well-known streets as Crescent, Orange Grove, Friend, Genesee, Fulton, Stanley, Curson, Pacific and Gardner avenue.

The car line runs on Santa Monica blvd. Cars run to and from Los Angeles, Hollywood, Beverly Hills and the ocean.

Nowhere in Hollywood or Los Angeles can lots be had at these prices, adjoining as they do such excellent car service, and on a boulevard that is fast becoming one of the busiest thoroughfares in the northwest section of Los Angeles.

Fifteen or twenty fine bungalows are now under construction, with as many more to start immediately. Have you seen them?

Home builders and builders have been so attracted by our prices; street car service, wonderful view of the mountains and nearness to both a grammar and a high school that they are buying these lots in preference to lots in other sections in West Hollywood.

On November 1 the prices are to be raised 5 per cent. Present buyers are appreciating the advantage of a rising market.

These lots are going fast. Ruminate!

We will be glad to give you a map and further information. Get in touch with us at once.

FOR SALE—

MARLBOROUGH SQUARE.
OPENING SALE TODAY.

The first opportunity ever offered to get bungalow lots in THE BEAUTIFUL WILSHIRE DISTRICT on the yellow car line and only 20 minutes from Broadway, at ridiculous low prices.

MARLBOROUGH SQUARE is just north of Windsor Square on the 6th st. car line, and is 67 feet higher than Wilshire blvd., commanding an unobstructed view of Los Angeles on the south and east, the Beautiful Hollywood Mountains on the north while to the immediate west is the greatest of all County Clubs, "THE WILSHIRE COUNTRY CLUB."

The finest streets to be had will be started immediately and remember, sewer, water and gas to the property lines, AND ALL PAID FOR.

The building restrictions are the best assuring you of only high class homes and will satisfy the most discriminating purchasers.

Discounts of as high as 15 per cent. can be had according to sale arrangements, and judging from the present demand of builders the entire tract will be sold out very shortly. Over twenty new bungalows to be started at once.

Come out SUNDAY TO the SOUTHWEST CORNER OF LARCHMONT AND ROSEWOOD, take the 6th st. car line and get off at Rosewood, and make your selections.

FOR SALE— Little Farms Adjoining This City. Only $185; Pay $5 and Start In.

Near a 7c yellow car (look) Southwest; in that magical area between the city and the sea. Oiled streets and water installed. Gas school on tract. No city taxes or assessments. 800 of these lots sold this month.

There is now no reason for your pessimism. We have convinced the bank that it is safer and better to sell you 8 lots for $9 a month than to sell you in the usual way only one lot at $5 and $10 a month, because in your hands these garden lots will pay for themselves; and after a few years two of them will be worth what we charge on four of them now. You thereby get your lots free ultimately by having enough of them to live from and also benefit from growth of the city.

Autos daily, 11 a.m., 2 p.m., 4 p.m. Open evenings till 9 p.m. Sunday trips 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

A REAL HOME.

FINE BIG LOT.

Talk about property being "2H" in Glendale; read this carefully: Beautiful house with 9 rooms, hardwood floors, finely arranged in both stories with bathrooms on each floor—den, folding bed, mantel and fireplace, furnace, solar heater with hot water all the time, indirect lighting, more closets than you ever saw. This place has all the good things, and must be seen to be appreciated; if you want a real home you will but examine and BUY IT QUICKLY.

The LOT—ah, the finest you ever saw, grass, bearing trees, strawberries, and other fruits and vegetables, also a fine garage and workshop. This lot is 50x170 to alley. No better or cheaper place ever listed with me. And all for only $5000.

See Me.

WE ASK YOU

To consider this holding from any standpoint—as a farm or an exceptional investment—or particularly interesting to dairymen. This acreage with approximately 1300 feet boulevard frontage is all water level and now in crop. Every inch can be planted to alfalfa and ensilage crops, walnuts or deciduous fruits.

The adjoining forty acres can be permanently leased at a ridiculously low figure. It now bears 16 acres in fine alfalfa and 24 acres of pasturage, with plenty of shade and scratch brush. The water situation on this place is controlled by the ranch we are submitting to you.

Talking of water—this property carries one of the finest wells in the San Fernando Valley; equipped with a General Electric 25 H.P. motor, centrifugal pump, and throwing a continuous flow of 120 inches.

Supplementing the cement underground system are approximately 700 feet of 8-inch surface pipe, which is sufficient to reach every point of the property.

Regarding improvements—there is one good bungalow, consisting of 5 rooms, also a four-room house to accommodate help. The barn is old, but of fair size, and there are some haying implements.

NOW, LET'S DO A LITTLE ARITHMETIC.

Cost of pumping plant	$3500
900 feet 10-inch surface pipe	500
Bungalow	2500
Help house	1000
Barn	1000
	$8500

This amount of money has actually been spent. Let's subtract it from the cost of the land. Leaves $19,500, doesn't it? Do you realize that is only $525 an acre? Let us tell you that no land in this vicinity for the last five years has sold for so low a figure.

THIS IS WORTHY OF YOUR PROMPT ATTENTION.

FOR SALE—

TEN-ACRE

ALMOND ORCHARDS.

By our co-operative development plan, for a cash investment of $2500, part in cash and the balance in monthly payments of $25, you may own in a few years a ten-acre almond orchard of your own that will net you each year more than your cash investment. We know this because our experts, who have been developing almond orchards in the Paso Robles district for the past few years, have proven it to be a fact. These same experts will select your nursery stock, plant your trees, cultivate your ground and give your orchard the proper attention and will spare no expense to obtain the best results. We now own the land and we know that it is the very best in the Paso Robles district, containing all those properties necessary to the culture of the almond.

We take one-half the purchase price out of the crop. WE ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEE YOU A FULL STAND OF BEARING TREES and the Title Insurance and Trust Company of Los Angeles is custodian of the development fund.

If you are looking for a 100 per cent. investment and are willing to wait a few years without returns and then receive 100 per cent. returns, investigate who we are and what we have. We have an illustrated booklet explaining our plan in detail and we welcome investigation.

FOR SALE—WE HAVE IN THE FALLBROOK district several pieces of frostless lemon and orange land with cheap water guaranteed to offer at $150 to $200 per acre, providing marvelous opportunities to sub-divide, plant and re-sell at a handsome and sure profit. Official soil maps, government wind, rain and weather records made idle boasting unnecessary, and we will give you the names and addresses of dozens of people who are glad they purchased through us at Fallbrook. If desired, we will assume entire responsibility for all the work of development at actual cost. Don't let others head you off with a lot of "knocks," but do your own investigating. If what we show and tell you is not backed up by expert reports and official records it will cost you nothing to find out. If you like any particular piece of land we will give you a week's option free of charge and furnish every facility for satisfying yourself before purchasing. During the two years since the new Santa Fe railroad was built into that district the Fallbrook section has shown more progress than any two other places in all Southern California combined, and there is no reason why you shouldn't double your money within a short time without taking any risks. Forget that you have been shown a lot of junk in other localities at prohibitive prices and put us to the acid test. FALLBROOK DEVELOPMENT CO., 215 West Sixth st., Room 515. Main 9278; Home 12172.

Imperial Valley.

FOR SALE—AND EXCHANGE—
160 acres, all in head lettuce and vegetables, every acre fine soft land, and perfectly leveled; splendid location on Westmoreland branch, and now listen to the price, only $175 per acre, one-fourth cash, balance 7 per cent.
320 acres, west of Calipatria, fully water stocked, 100 now in barley, fine alfalfa, vegetable or cantaloupe land; non-resident owner has other financial interests compelling him to sacrifice; I can offer exclusively for few days at only $85 per acre, 1-4 cash balance easy terms, 7 per cent., here is a sure, quick profit for some one with a little money.
280 acres, all in cultivation, well fenced, fair house, splendid location, about half is alfalfa, well improved farms surrounding it, and this is the good kind of land; only $150 per acre, easy terms, or will take good Los Angeles income.

I have just returned from a two weeks trip in the valley, and I have never seen conditions better; farmers are all making big money; rents are high and land in great demand now, right now is the time to make money in Imperial Valley ranches; nothing safer or surer in California.
T. EDWIN GILL, 638 Citizens Natl. Bank Bldg. 14559.

FOR SALE—NO REGION ON THE FACE OF THE EARTH HAS PRODUCED MORE IN 1919 TAKING INTO CONSIDERATION ITS AREA THAN THE IMPERIAL VALLEY. IT IS BLESSED WITH PRODUCTIVE AND WONDERFUL SOIL, ADAPTED TO THE GROWING OF COTTON, CORN, BARLEY, WHEAT AND ALFALFA. ALMOST EVERYTHING GROWN IN THIS GREAT VALLEY TOPS THE MARKET BOTH IN QUALITY AND PRICE. WHILE THE WORLD IS STRUGGLING IN THE THROES OF WINTER THIS GARDEN SPOT ENJOYS A WARM, GROWING CLIMATE. SHORT STAPLE COTTON IS NOW SELLING AT 41 CENTS A POUND, ALFALFA AT $24 PER TON. IN A FEW YEARS THE PRODUCTION OF THIS VALLEY HAS INCREASED FROM FIVE MILLION TO FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS. WHERE CAN YOU EQUAL IT? WE ARE THE GENERAL AGENTS FOR 30,000 ACRES OF THIS FERTILE LAND OWNED BY THE IMPERIAL VALLEY FARM LANDS ASS'N, AND ARE OFFERING IT IN SMALL OR LARGE TRACTS ON VERY EASY PAYMENTS. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CALL OR ADDRESS BOWKER & BAUM, 214 AMERICAN BANK BLDG., COR. 2ND AND SPRING STS. PHONE 64029.

FOR SALE—480 ACRES OF THE CREAM OF Imperial Valley's alfalfa land, one mile from loading station on Southern Pacific, four miles from Westmoreland. The soil is soft loam silt like meal, perfectly level and now has a good stand of two-year-old alfalfa on it. Fenced into 40 and 80-acre fields. Entire surrounding district very highly developed and priced at $200 an acre. I can deliver this 480 acres at $130 an acre, including water stock. If you want a real farm or if you want a safe investment, you can look a life time and not be able to duplicate this place for the money. Terms $20,000 cash, balance to suit. Seeing is believing and let me add that seeing means buying in this case if you have the money.

ORANGE, LEMON AND WALNUT GROVES—For Sale and Exchange.
For Sale.

FOR SALE—NOTICE!
DO YOU LIKE THE ORANGE GAME?
Nothing can beat a good orange investment if you get the right kind and care for them properly; giving them personal attention.

Read the following:
$65,000, and worth $100,000 today, with $20,000 fruit now on trees; same as paid past season. 40 acres, 3½ Valencias, balance navels, 25 years old; fine large trees, had the best of care, abundance of water; 60-H.P. engine pumping plant; sold $1000 water past three months; cover crop now in, and being pruned; house, barn, and everything complete; 14 years under same management; no run-down place; big payer; fine fruit; only one mile to packing-house.
"THE SUNSHINE GROVE."
Everyone knows it by name. Directly west and adjoining the Chaffee High on Euclid ave., going from Ontario to Upland. Go see it and judge for yourself.

Now comes "THE SUNRISE GROVE."
N.E. corner Euclid ave. and 21st st., Upland; a fine country home modern 9-room house, 2 baths; garage, nice grounds; street car passes the door; 20 acres, 4 Valencias, 2 lemons; balance navels; $15,000 annual income, paid past season about $20,000; fine condition, lots of water. Go see for yourselves. Only $50,000, cash, or part cash will take it.

Now comes "THE SUNSET RANCHO."
105 acres, can divide into 5, 10, 20 or 40 acres; 75 acres oranges and lemons, 5 to 20 years old; 20 acres alfalfa. This ranch in San Fernando Valley, one mile from San Fernando. Fine ranch and just coming into its own as an investment. Will sell the alfalfa with bunch of registered Poland China hogs separate. Could sell 5 acres 12-year oranges adjoining; fine crop; paid $3000 last season, has as much fruit this year; would sell 10 acres oranges 20 or 40. Separate aqueduct water. Finely kept-up groves. Cover crop now in alfalfa, 2 years. Come out and see for yourselves. Will price any or all to suit you, and you will like them, that is sure. Only hour's ride, boulevard all the way, 75c round trip, jitney bus.

Now comes "THE HAMILTON GROVE," as we have worn the "Sun" out.
30 acres, 20 years; fine crop on trees; 5 miles to Riverside at foothills; 2 blocks south of State highway from Los Angeles to Riverside; oceans of water, grove had best of care; pruning now. Cover crop in. Go see for yourselves right at Hamilton switch; could sell 10 or 20 separate, $1250 per acre. It is the cheapest good proposition as an investment in California. Good payer, small cottage, large barn.

NOTICE—You have heard of a man being land poor. This is the case with the above—not but what each one is a good payer, but unable to give personal attention necessary with so much other business to look after. No other reason whatever for selling. Must dispose of some of them at least. Come in and talk it over with the owner.
J. FRANK BOWEN, 712 Grant Bldg.

FOR SALE—

Houses.

WANTED—TO PURCHASE REAL ESTATE. Wilshire, North Wilshire, Westlake Properties. Owing to our location in the heart of above section we usually have the first call from clients looking for either homes or income property in this locality.

By specializing and concentrating all our efforts on properties in this district, owners have the advantage of quick sales and buyers eliminate the necessity of many tiresome trips in inspecting properties.

Our 20 years' experience in handling Los Angeles real estate has kept us in touch with the city's westward growth and progress and enables us to quote actual values and so assure buyers of a proper investment. We will not waste our time and yours in showing overpriced properties.

Owners and buyers will find it to their advantage to SEE US FIRST.

FOR SALE—
AN EXCELLENT INVESTMENT.
A beautiful stone and brick apartment building. Its construction is of the very best. Its interior finish, genuine mahogany. The fixtures of the highest grade. It is furnished throughout in genuine mahogany and brocade furniture. It is located on a corner on the car line and in the center of the town. There are ten apartments and also three stores on the ground floor. The frontage valued conservatively at $450 per front foot. Will be worth $1000 per foot five years from now. The construction of the building is such that there will be no loss from depreciation. Taking the value of the building, land and furniture the price asked is very low, indeed. The income pays a large return on the price of $65,000. Call G. M. PURCELL, at the

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY—
DO YOU WANT TO MAKE $50,000 IN FROM 4 TO 5 YEARS?

Here is a rare business investment opportunity, one that should return $50,000 in from 4 to 5 years.

It is a rapidly growing concern that netted $10,000 and more last year, and to take care of its ever increasing volume, needs from $50,000 to $100,000 for expansion.

This business is one of the largest of its kind on the Pacific Coast and is founded on firm principles. It has earned a favorable name for itself in its particular field and has a reputation among its customers that it can well be proud of.

This will stand the most rigid investigation that you care to make, and it is indeed a most unusual opportunity for you to put your idle dollars where they will return the greatest amount of money.

With larger volume, possible with larger capital, this business should return your investment in from 4 to 5 years at most.

This is an opportunity that will not be open long. If you are interested address us at once. Best of references furnished and required. Address CL, box 334, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

WANTED—BY OLD ESTABLISHED AND successful packing concern a few parties with $5000 to $20,000 to invest in a going business where absolute safety and substantial returns are assured. We are enlarging our business and need additional capital which will more than double our profits. We can show a clean live record and can furnish best bank references. This is an unusual opportunity to make an investment in a large local established business which can show unusually large profits. Investigate. Address A, box 437, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

CAPITAL WANTED—
An invention of exceptional merit pertaining to automobiles is going to be manufactured in Los Angeles. This invention is an entirely new developed idea and can rightfully be classed as one of the few original improvements on the automobile. The sale of this article does not have to be forced by wild promises of hidden merit. Its operation is visible. The principal parts have been designed around standard specifications that are carried by any wholesale hardware, eliminating the installation of expensive manufacturing machinery. The factory will in reality be an assembly plant. This article can be manufactured for less than $2 and will retail for $7.50. The men connected with this project are local men of high standing and cordially invite a rigid investigation of the entire proposition. The merit of this article warrants it being manufactured and marketed in a high-class manner. The total capital required is $35,000 and may be divided among 3 or 4 investors. Address A, box 433, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

WANTED—
One or two live-wire men with money to invest, or some progressive manufacturing concern, should immediately investigate this bona-fide, ground-floor opportunity to secure a substantial interest in two recently-patented appliances of unusual merit and promising prospects for liberal profits. BUSINESS CHANCES—
Of Many Kinds.

THERE HAS NEVER BEEN A TIME IN OUR business career in Los Angeles, when we have had so many real good business openings as at the present. We believe there are people here who are hesitating about investing on account of a certain unrest throughout the country. We are not making any bold or extravagant statements in saying that these problems will all be met in a short time, and some of the propositions that are open today will be either picked up or taken off the market. We have so often seen openings passed up that would be willingly purchased by the very people who rejected them, at greatly enhanced prices, but it was too late. The monied men throughout the whole country, will tell you that the time to buy is when the other fellow wants to sell, or when there is no demand for that particular thing. The consensus of opinion is that the first of the year will open up with the brightest future this country has ever seen. Study the general conditions of our own country as well as the other countries that we will have to supply, and you will find this is not an idle statement. As an illustration of one or two of the propositions that are for sale through this office, we will mention a high-class laundry in one of the very best and most prosperous valleys in Southern California. This plant is clearing 30 per cent. on an investment of $18,000 and everything is kept in good shape, to prove this statement. It could not be duplicated today for less than $22,000, but it can be bought through us for just $16,500. To the party who will show us that they have the money and mean business, we have a machine ready to take them to it and substantiate every statement. Then we have another exceptional opening in an exclusive paint business out of the city, that is clearing better than $8000 a year, the price of this is about $15,000 cash. It is ridiculous to say that because a business is offered for sale, that it is not good. We absolutely will not handle anything that we are not certain is a paying business, and a chat with us before you buy will not cost you anything, but the time you have spent with us, and might do you a lot of good. Some people have the idea that a broker is not in touch with the best things on the market. For your own satisfaction, insert a blind ad in one of the papers, note carefully the class of replies you get, then come in to our office and compare what we have to offer with your answers, and we will not need to emphasize this point.

FOR QUICK SALE—
$2000 worth of the best residence front and back door locks ever offered the public. Made of bronze throughout, simple, effective, lasting. Many users of 3 years' standing are enthusiastic in their indorsement. Two things only against them—previous high cost, and lack of experience upon the part of public. Have neither the time nor inclination to go further myself. Will sell at your price, however low. Your only difficulty will be in selling. Once sold, the locks then have a chance to demonstrate their own excellence. Everything goes—stock, sample cases, patterns, literature. Make offer. Simply a matter of salesmanship. The proposition has more intrinsic worth than anything I have ever touched. E. G. ELDRIDGE, 1817 S. Garfield ave., Ramona Park, Alhambra. Phone Alhambra 674-J.

BUILDING COMPANY WANTS ACTIVE MAN FOR position of assistant manager and one for position of secretary. The first must be experienced in the building business and the latter have general knowledge of modern business methods. Salary will be paid, commensurate with ability and an interest in the profits proportionate to the investment which must be from $5000 to $10,000. Contracting will not be done, the company's activities being confined exclusively to the building and selling of homes and flat buildings, the demand for which far exceeds the supply and probably will for several years to come. Dividends for coming year should more than equal the investment, as gross profits are now about three times as great as formerly and the turnover is very rapid, it being not at all uncommon to sell houses before they are completed. The superintendent has had local experience of many years and is recognized as one of the most competent men in this line in the city. This company will not be dominated by any one or two men, but will at all times be governed by its directors, who must take active part in the conduct of the business. No man whose reputation or methods are questionable will be retained in office. If interested be prompt in answering and give few particulars regarding self, especially as to age, experience and amount of money available for investment in the business. Address Y, box 75, TIMES OFFICE.

LEGAL NOTICES— Of All Kinds.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE REGULAR annual meetings of the Stockholders of THE MATHIE BREWING COMPANY, a Corporation, will be held at the office of the Corporation, No. 1834 North Main street, in the City of Los Angeles, State of California, Thursday, October 30th, 1919, at 2 p.m., for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

THE MATHIE BREWING COMPANY.
Edward Mathie, President.
E. H. McCullough, Secretary.

NOT PROPER PARTNER.

Wife's Letter Complaining of Changes is Cause of Divorce.

"You have not made a partner in the proper sense," Mrs. Grace Espy wrote her husband, William T. Espy, whom she had left, "yet as your wife, I at least feel some consideration belongs to me."

Mr. Espy is a traveling salesman. Mrs. Espy objected to moving around from city to city. When he asked her to return, she refused. She wrote him:

"It is easy for you to talk about forgetting and soforth, when you shift the entire responsibility over onto me so as to help right yourself, while I may suffer anything and everything. Before we were married, I was everything that was good, my ideas were fine, but now there is a change."

Yesterday Judge Crail granted Mr. Espy a divorce on the ground of desertion.

MEMORIAL FUND DRIVE WIDENED.

Roosevelt Campaigners Talk on Stage and Pulpit.

Four-Minute-Men Make Tour of the Show Houses.

Two Big Meetings will Mark Anniversary Tomorrow.

Carrying the campaign to raise a memorial fund for Theodore Roosevelt from the churches to the theaters, that eloquent tribute may be paid his memory both from pulpits and from behind the footlights, leaders of the local campaign will put a whirlwind finish to the present drive.

A squadron of four-minute-men last night appeared in most of the theaters and motion-picture houses, to urge that Los Angeles make a monumental gift toward the fund which is to memorialize a man of monumental greatness.

Maj. Frank P. Doherty is in charge of the speakers and is assisted by Mark Herron. Leading the speakers' squad are Frank P. Jenel, Joseph Scott, Alfred L. Bartlett, Walter F. McEntire and Frank Tyrrell. These men have spoken at many of the high schools of the city and by tomorrow afternoon will have talked in all of them.

CLIMAX TOMORROW.

Tomorrow is the anniversary of Col. Roosevelt's birthday and because of that and the fact that it is the concluding day of the campaign, a climax will be reached in the activities of the campaign workers.

Two big meetings will be held tomorrow evening, one at the home of Mrs. Cora Deal Lewis, 2232 West Twenty-eighth street, and the other at the home of Estelle Lawton Lindsey, 2416 Echo Park avenue. At both affairs speakers will review the life of Col. Roosevelt and will point out the incalculable effect of his doctrines and deeds, and the great inspiration of the Roosevelt spirit for the American people.

Banks of Los Angeles and Pasadena have notified the campaign headquarters that they will make contributions tomorrow, and, according to Miss Mary E. Smith, chairman for Los Angeles county, many big commercial houses of the city will pour thousands of dollars into the fund.

MEANS MEMERSHIP.

In making donations the subscribers become members of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, and this is an important feature of the campaign to younger Americans. One man appeared at headquarters yesterday and contributed to the fund for himself, his wife and all his children, thereby giving them membership in the association which, in the future, they may cherish highly.

From the large gifts of the wealthy individuals and the big banks and business houses to the small gifts that have come in quarters and dimes from the poorest people of the city, the funds secured in the drive have shown how widely Theodore Roosevelt was loved by Americans in all walks of life.

Donations will be received tomorrow both at 311 H. W. Hellman Building and at 509 South Spring street, and at all banks.

Chairman of the campaign in Southern California, Marshall Stimson, issued this statement yesterday:

"Every man and woman in Los Angeles who desires to honor the memory of Col. Roosevelt should become a member of the Roosevelt Memorial Association. Los Angeles must not be behind the rest of our country in making this testimonial. Take out memberships for your children. Do not delay till too late, and then regret that you lost your opportunity to help perpetuate the ideal of this great American."

DELIVERYMEN'S WOES STATED TO COUNCIL.

DRY GOODS ASSOCIATION IN LETTER ASKS ACTION TO EASE TRAFFIC JAM.

The Wholesale Dry Goods Association, through its secretary, Eugene A. Holmes, yesterday filed a communication to the City Council in which further attention is called to the traffic congestion in the downtown business district and the difficulties under which deliverymen are forced to work.

"The present congested condition of your streets," says the communication, "makes it absolutely impossible for our wholesale dealers to deliver goods to the retailers and at the same time comply with the law. They make themselves liable to a fine every day in the year.

"It would seem as if there should be certain hours of the day during which passenger automobiles should be permitted to stop in the congested retail section of the city long enough for passengers to embark or disembark, and not to exceed five minutes; or, as an alternative, if we are going to allow the pleasure cars to line our streets, then in justice to the storekeeper, we should permit a delivery car to stop opposite any particular place of business where it was necessary for him to deliver goods, even though it was impossible for him to place his car next to the curb, and he should be permitted to leave his car long enough to make delivery of his bundle. The condition as it now exists is a very serious handicap and places the delivery man at a tremendous disadvantage."

CIVIL SERVICE JOB IS STILL IN DOUBT.

City Attorney Burnell said yesterday that he is not yet prepared to give an opinion as to whether or not William M. Humphreys is entitled to resume his place on the City Civil Service Commission, after having tendered his resignation to Mayor Woodman and having taken no part in the commission meetings since last May 10.

"The report that I have advised that Mr. Humphreys take no part in the comission meetings until the legal opinion is rendered is absolutely without foundation," said Mr. Burnell.

TO ENROLL ALL WORKERS HERE.

Red Cross Seeks Members in Big Industrial Plants.

Leaders Discuss Final Plans for Roll-Call Week.

Woman Club Members to Aid in Drive for Funds.

To discuss plans for enlisting all the employees of the large industrial concerns in Los Angeles as new Red Cross members for 1920 sixty leading business men, who will have charge of the industrial committee organized for "Roll-Call week," will meet tomorrow evening at 942 South Main street. Final plans for the drive are to be explained by Sylvester L. Weaver, chairman of the Red Cross, and efforts will be made to obtain the enrollment of the workers before the general week's drive to start next Sunday.

On Wednesday the entire committee of 600 will have a luncheon at the Alexandria Hotel where final reports of the work among the firms of the city will be received.

In preparation for the membership drive other important meetings of leaders are scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday. Tuesday afternoon the monthly conference of workers of the council service, who will have charge of the precinct work in the drive, will be held at the Alexandria, with Mrs. J. T. Anderson, chairman of the neighborhood division, presiding.

TO TELL OF WORK.

The speaker at the meeting will tell of the work that has been done by the Los Angeles chapter of the Barlow Sanatorium. Mrs. Anderson announces that supplies will be available at this meeting for the precinct workers.

Special days have been set aside during the week for each of the woman's clubs, at which time every member will be expected to enroll. The clubs have volunteered for downtown duties. The Council of Jewish Women has a committee to be present at every performance at the Orpheum Theater and at the dining hour at Levy's Cafe. The council also will have charge of the four corners at Seventh street and Broadway. These committees will be in charge of Mrs. Kelly Roth and Mrs. Wolfstein.

CLUBS PLAN TO AID.

The Catholic Women's Club has announced open house in the Higgins Building during the entire drive for the enrollment of members and friends. The Wednesday Morning Club committee, in charge of Mrs. M. E. Johnson, will be stationed every day at First street and Broadway.

The Friday Morning Club has taken the First National Bank, the Citizens' National Bank, J. W. Robinson's Store and other prominent locations, where a committee in charge of Mrs. Arthur Weir will be always on hand with Red Cross buttons.

The Cliff Dwellers' Association committee, under Miss M. E. Elliott, will be busy at two Seventh street stores, the Federal Building, and the Bank of Italy. Motion picture stars, in charge of Mrs. Gertrude Gifford, will be represented daily by a committee at the Fifth Street Department Store.

URGE ENROLLMENT.

In a statement yesterday, Mr. Weaver urged every citizen to enroll without waiting for solicitation, thus assisting the volunteer workers. Memberships only are sought, and all that is required is $1, which makes the donor a 1920 member of the Red Cross.

Besides the Neighborhood Chapter Division, of which Mrs. J. T. Anderson, is chairman, the following have been appointed by Chairman Weaver: Industrial division, with James H. Hill as chairman; business district division, under the chairmanship of F. R. Feitshans; publicity committee composed of Harry Chandler, Max Ihmsen, Guy B. Barham, F. W. Kellogg and Burton Knisely.

WANT STRICTER LAWS FOR ORIENTALS HERE.

VEILED PROPHETS URGE UPON CONGRESSMEN PROGRAMME OF RACE REGULATION.

Urging stricter laws with relation to the admission of Japanese to this country, the members of Jinnistan Grotto, No 70, M.O.V.P.E.R., adopted resolutions, a copy of which was forwarded yesterday to Senators Phelan and Johnson and Representatives Osborne and Randall.

The resolutions, which are signed by a committee composed of C. A. Patton, W. T. Osterholt, Thomas H. Wilson, Charles J. Parrott and Ralph L. Criswell, are, in part, as follows:

"Whereas, the Jinnistan Grotto is deeply and vitally interested in the advancement of the State of California and the welfare of the people, and,

"Whereas, the Japanese and Hindu population in California is increasing rapidly, and,

"Whereas, these people will always remain in our midst an alien element, unassimilated and unassimilable, and,

"Whereas, their presence here lays the foundation for a race problem more serious than any that ever confronted us, and may lead to armed conflict which may again involve the world, since at least one of these races will be backed by a proud and warlike nation, and,

"Whereas, the only way to solve a race problem is to stop it before it begins, and,

"Whereas, the most feasible way to stop it is the prohibition of immigration from oriental countries, now, therefore, be it

"Resolved by Jinnistan Grotto, No. 76, M.O.V.P.E.R., of Los Angeles, that our Senators, Hiram W. Johnson and James D. Phelan, and our Representatives, Henry Z. Osborne and Charles H. Randall, be asked to use their best and utmost endeavors in favor of the following propositions, to-wit:

"(1.) Cancellation of the 'gentlemen's agreement.'

"(2.) Exclusion of 'picture brides.'

"(3.) Rigorous exclusion of Japanese as immigrants.

"(4.) Confirmation and legislation of the policy that Asiatics shall be forever barred from American citizenship.

"(5.) Amendment to Section 1 of Article XIV of the Federal Constitution providing that no child born in the United States of foreign parents shall be considered an American citizen unless both parents are of a race that is eligible to citizenship."

REFERENDUM STANDS.

Enough Signatures on Petition Against Soliciting Ordinance.

City Clerk Wilde will report to the City Council tomorrow that his office force has completed the check of signatures to the refendum petition against the ordinance prohibiting soliciting at the railroad stations, and that the required number of qualified signatures have been found.

Mr. Wilde states the petitions contain at least 7800 qualified signatures, although only 7392 would have been sufficient to give the petition the proper standing before the Council.

Either repeal of the ordinance against which the protest is made, or its submission to a vote of the people at the next city election are the alternatives, which the City Council must now meet.

TO AID THE JEWS OF WAR-TORN EUROPE.

To help alleviate the sufferings of the Jews of war-torn Europe, the Women's Auxiliary of Los Angeles Lodge, B'nai B'rith, will give a dance and card party in Kramer's Hall, Sixteenth and Figueroa streets, Tuesday evening, November 4. Large sums have already been contributed by local Jews to this cause.

Do You Know That California Produces Nearly 35 Per Cent. of All the Oil Produced in the United States?

The San Fernando Gas & Oil Co., Inc.

Is a California Corporation—Permit File No. 7519

We are operating on 100 acres land located 28 miles north of Los Angeles. Here are three real facts why you should invest in our company:

Fact No. 1 Proven Territory

We are operating in oldest proven field in California, 600 feet from producing oil well.

Expect to strike paying oil sands at 1000 to 1350 feet and are now down over 700 feet. No commissions are paid for the sale of this stock and no officers' salaries.

Every dollar received goes into development and we soon hope to bring in our first oil well on this property.

Fact No. 2 Small Capitalization

Capital stock $50,000 — par value and selling price $1.00 share.

Small capitalization means large profits to small investors.

Fact No. 3 Efficient Management

We are practical oil producers, devoting our entire time to bringing production of oil upon this property.

Our foreman and drillers (who are heavily interested stockholders in this company) have had many years' experience in this field and look forward to bringing in a good oil producing well very soon.

Our electric drilling outfit, tools and rig are entirely new and the best that money can buy.

Location

Our property lies on the boulevard — main automobile highway between Los Angeles and Bakersfield.

Go with us and see what we have—our automobiles are at your disposal—trip requires about two hours.

WANTED

A HIGH CLASS MAN TO LOAN ME TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

To such a man I will pay six per cent. interest and FIFTY PER CENT OF THE PROFITS. If the man has leisure, no objection would be made to giving him entire charge of the business.

The proposition will make a very large amount of money, but all my own capital is tied up at present. The business needs no development, will pay large and immediate cash returns, and the assets would be readily converted into cash.

Councilman Fleming Says [illegible] Obstacles Overcome.

All difficulties that stood in the way of starting the building of the harbor truck boulevard have been overcome, according to an announcement made yesterday by Councilman Fleming who has been an advocate of the project for several years. At the same time Supervisor McC[illegible] stated that the actual construction work would begin about the [illegible] of this week.

The appropriation available from county funds will be used to [illegible] the work as far as possible, [illegible] is probable that the Harbor Commission will be able to use a [illegible] of the recently-authorized [illegible] improvement bond funds for the purpose of carrying on the [illegible] through the harbor district. The county has $213,000 available for construction work on this [illegible] the entire cost of which is estimated at approximately $[illegible]

With the agreement of representatives of the Dominguez [illegible] deed rights of way through [illegible] property, Mr. Fleming said the [illegible] obstacle in the way of the [illegible] work was overcome.

The indorsement of the [illegible] by the Harbor Truck [illegible] Committee was given at its [illegible] last Monday. A resolution [illegible] then, reads:

"Resolved, that after due investigation and full discussion, the Harbor Truck Boulevard Committee, composed of duly credited representatives of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Los [illegible] Realty Board, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association of Los Angeles, the Automobile Club of Southern California and the Los Angeles City Club, hereby indorses and approves as the most feasible and desirable location for the harbor truck boulevard, extending from Los Angeles to the harbor at the [illegible] the following route, to wit:

"Beginning at the intersection of Twenty-fifth and Alameda [illegible] the city of Los Angeles [illegible] southerly along Alameda [illegible] the westerly side of the [illegible] Pacific tracks to [illegible] thence southerly and [illegible] westerly side of said [illegible] Dominguez Junction; thence [illegible] grade crossing across the tracks of the Pacific Electric Railway to the westerly side thereof; thence southerly along the westerly side of the Pacific Electric Railway to the [illegible] line of the city of [illegible] thence westerly along [illegible] Canal street; thence along [illegible] street to Anaheim road in the [illegible] of Wilmington."

OIL ANNOUNCEMENT

BY WILLIAM E. STEPHENS

In order that there may be no misunderstanding as to my tests in the Richfield district, I have made a survey of the main gusher streak on which is located the Chapman gusher. My tests show that this gusher streak does extend to the Richfield flat but that it is comparatively narrow and runs between the Heffern and Ibbetson wells referred to in the affidavit recently published.

While small wells may be brought in off this main gusher streak, they will not give sufficient production to make them commercial producers consistent with their depth and the expense of drilling in this district.

NOTE

My instruments will not indicate a small production of from fifty to one hundred barrels at a depth of three thousand feet, so that while the main gusher streak tests strong for almost the entire distance of approximately one mile and a half that I traced it, territory in the district tested by me off this particular streak shows no indication whatever.

WEEK OF BIG STOCK TRADING IN WALL ST.

HEAVY AND VARIABLE OFFERINGS—BIG BANK CLEARINGS IN SPITE OF STRIKES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Trading in stocks this week was on the largest and most varied scale for any similar period in many months. Dealings again centered in speculative issues, some of which scored sensational advances, followed by equally sharp reactions.

The character of the trading not only reflected its professional origin, but pointed to an overextended bull position.

Prices were stabilized later by extensive buying of rails, secondary or reorganized properties participating almost in equal degree with investments. Accumulation of rails proceeded from the belief that Federal legislation and other developments at Washington are shaping favorably for the transportations.

Although business at industrial centers continues to show the effects of strikes and other industrial disturbances, the volume of bank clearings at leading reserve districts testified to further expansion of general trade.

International financial features of the week includes the offering of a $250,000,000 British government loan by a nation-wide banking syndicate and announcement that the $50,000,000 French municipal loan placed here three years ago will be paid at maturity on November 1 next.

CHICAGO EXCHANGE: RANGE AND SALES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Prices in local stocks developed a weak trend toward the close in today's session. Carbide, Carbon declining 1⅞ points; Case Plow 2⅛ points and Sears Roebuck 2 points. The uncertainty regarding the labor situation in the country was given as one of the reasons for the weakness in the market, and traders indulged in profit-taking at present prices. In the packers' issues, Swift fell off 1⅞ and the International shares 1⅛. Motor issues were fractionally lower, with the exception of Continental Motors, which rose slightly.

This Is the Most Important Advertisement We Have Written On FRANK OIL CO.

THESE ARE THE EIGHT STARS IN FRANK OIL CO.

Five Acres in Desdemona Field
Two miles west of Desdemona.
Contracts let; derrick going up; drilling is expected daily.
800 yards from Eppler well; close to Lewis and Southland.

Five Acres in N. W. Burkburnett Dist.
Adjoins Famous Block 98.
Practically surrounded by famous wells; field dotted with rigs. Close to Texas Chief, New Pool, Jewel V and M. & P. Burke. Expect to be drilling in 30 days.

Eight Lots in Desdemona Field
One mile north of Desdemona.
1000 feet from Magnolia-Davis; 800 feet from Ranger Rock Island.

320 Acres in Eastland County
Three miles from Cisco.
Attracting notice as one of new Texas fields. Drilling planned. Surface signs are unusually promising.

26 Acres in Louisiana Field
In Big "Gusher" Section.
Short distance from 6000-barrel well. Property considered worth entire capitalization. Drilling rig about completed.

Five Acres in Homer Field Louisiana
One mile from 30,000-bbl. "gusher."
Homer Field, with its big gusher, is believed to be second only to Red River District.

One-half Interest in 110 Acres in Bull Bayou Field
Bull Bayou Field is part of Red River Parish District.
Contract let for free well on this property for one-half of the oil.

40 Acres in Bull Bayou Field
Property is offset to well drilling on Doan & Dyer acreage.
Bull Bayou Field is part of the Red River Parish District.

FRANK OIL CO.

Adds TWO MORE Properties to Its Former Holdings!

There are now Eight Stars in that company's firmament. Figure it out for yourself and decide what these eight holdings mean, with a total capitalization of $150,000.

One Share of stock in Frank Oil Company covers all of the Company's holdings in the eight properties printed here.

These are the last two holdings bought

Seventh Star—One-half interest in 110 acres in Bull Bayou Field, in the Red River Parish district of Louisiana. The telegram adds, in this connection: "Placed contract to drill, free to company, for half of oil. Looks like will get big wells on this property."

Eighth Star—40 acres in Bull Bayou Field offset to well drilling on Doan & Dyer acreage.

The addition of these new properties to the Frank Oil Co. is best proof, we believe, of the "good faith" of its officers and directors.

In ordinary oil company organizations, an entirely new company, with as much or more capitalization as the Frank Oil Co.'s $150,000, would be incorporated by the "promoters" in a case of this kind, and the stockholders of the "mother company" would not be given an opportunity to profit from these new holdings.

We cannot avoid asking "Can you beat it?" when a company pursues such kind of business tactics as this latest unexpected and unasked for addition to the original four holdings.

This is one more big reason for the "flag to drop" on Frank Oil Company's unsold block of stock

DAILY TRADE TALK.

Business Review; Stocks Weak; New Oil Promotion; Briefs.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

The week was one of general business activity marked by out of the ordinary fluctuations in the stock market; a stronger bond situation; heavy deposit increases due largely to crop settlements; a brisk retail business; a strong real estate market; bank clearings which have averaged above $8,000,000 per day; fully employed labor with every little local unrest; increasing tourist arrivals; serious tightening of housing conditions; under demand for money which results in unwieldy accumulation, and some unwise spending; excellent credit conditions; prompt collections; no commercial failures of importance. The rain was highly beneficial. Crop and fruit survey shows conditions above normal with high prices assured for another season at least. No appreciable change in living costs. Dairy products are rising, and Thanksgiving turkeys will be out of the reach of most folks. Rents are averaging about 50 per cent. higher than a year ago, and still going up. Old properties are being rejuvenated and class B and C office buildings are filling up. The class A structures are practically all filled. On the whole the week has been a busy, optimistic time division, and if the outlook was not clouded somewhat by the impending coal strike and other outside disturbances, and if we had some place to store about half a million more persons there would be no obstruction, larger than a fly speck, on the clear track ahead.

The Wilder Vision.

While conditions in Los Angeles and Southern California are exceptional it is well not to lose sight of the outlook, and to business and finance as they appear to experts who study the national and world-wide aspects. It will be interesting to peer into the crystal for a few moments with these students:

It is the opinion of Henry Clews, the New York banker that, "from the broader standpoint it continues to be true that the world position of the United States is unrivalled, and that an almost unlimited demand for its goods exists abroad, while internally much genuine prosperity is exhibited with not a little that is superficial rather than actual. The transition stage through which the world is passing presents serious problems and the United States cannot escape from bearing its share in them. This is unavoidable, but it involves the continuance of unsettlement of values and prices for some time to come."

Knauth Nachod & Kuhne of New York, think that the prices of bonds and stocks during the past month have indicated little uncertainty concerning the country's manufacturing and business outlook. Strikes, lockouts and the throwing aside of authorized leadership by the radical element in the labor party have been overshadowed by a long range conception of the world-wide demand for raw material and manufactured goods, which this country alone can supply. This may be interrupted, but not permanently suspended, by labor troubles and temporary idleness of manufacturing plants.

Of the bond situation the same people say: "The bond market has shown a decided improvement. There is a growing demand from individual investors and from institutions for high-class, underlying railroad bonds, which reflects the opinion that Congress can be relied upon to pass legislation which will restore the public's confidence in railroad securities. We believe the bond market will experience a period of greater activity within a month or two.

Coming back home, the Citizens' National Bank of Los Angeles professes the belief that trade will keep on at about its present pace, "until the peace of the world has become a fact, and the world's operatives cease to respond as readily as they do now to the unneeded, unholy and uneconomic desire to check production. Business has passed the period of crucifixion; it has stood its confinement in the tomb of fear and has ascended, and today the care for all the ills of the workshop, counting-house and home rests upon the full realization that we are here in this world to serve one another."

That insistence upon the proposition that basic conditions in this section are absolutely sound, and that such a judgment is not swayed by local pride or limited perspective, is given aid and comfort by The Magazine of Wall Street, which in a late issue says: "Probably nowhere in the world today is prosperity more general, or on a sounder basis, than in the State of California. Its commerce and industry, firmly rooted in the three great economic fundamentals, agriculture, timber and mines, are in a particularly strong position at a time when the demand of the world for years to come will be for food and the materials of reconstruction."

Concerning the oil situation, which, in view of present conditions, is of constantly growing importance, the Investment Bulletin, issued from the New York office of Henry L. Doherty & Co., has this to say: "Oil underground in the United States is equal to about sixteen years' supply at the present rate of consumption, according to the estimate of David White, oil geologist of the United States Geological Survey. The total amount not yet brought to the surface is estimated at 6,740,000,000 barrels, of which 2,250,000,000, or one-third is in California, and 1,725,000,000 barrels, or about one-fourth, in the mid-continent, excluding Texas. Oil in the ground in North Texas is placed at 400,000,000 barrels, or about one year's supply."

Delta Farm Development.

The possibilities of growing cotton in the San Joaquin delta are interesting Los Angeles investors in that direction. Cotton-growing interests now have experts on the ground, and those who are interested in the California Delta Farms, Inc., the reclamation corporation headed by Lee A. Phillips of this city, claim that a favorable report will be made and that these lands are well adapted for cotton production. Arthur C. Parsons, selling agent for the corporation, makes an interesting report of the conditions on the property and the scope of the plan. He says that several thousand acres of the peat land still held by the company for sale have been rented for the next season at $30 an acre cash, and that several thousand additional acres have been rented for crop shares on a basis of one-third of corn and beans, 25 per cent. of potatoes, 20 per cent. onions, 30 per cent. barley. He claims that there are no crop failures in this district and that on a basis of $275 per acre it returns about 11 per cent. without the owner farming it.

The Stock Market.

The local market, during the short session yesterday, remained soft, although some of the listings showed a tendency to recoup themselves from the sympathetic decline into which they were precipitated earlier in the week. The trading was not very active, and on the whole the market was dull and uninteresting, with, however, a better undertone at the close. The opening was generally a shade better than the Friday close, but fresh declines marked the early trading. Associated sold at the beginning of the call at $117, but later dropped back a point to $116. General Petroleum showed fairly strong, with an opening of $181.50, but developed an early weakness and closed weak at $178. National Pacific was weak at 14½ cents, and there was little doing in Union at $187.50. United showed a little strength, moving up half a point to a close of 87 cents. In the mining list there was a tendency towards greater activity and better prices. United Eastern was steady at $4, and Telluride was in fair demand around 28 cents. Bonds were strong. The technical position of the market was better proportionately than that of New York, and the set-backs are apparently being more rapidly overcome. At the close there seemed reasonable expectation of a stronger opening tomorrow. The business on the exchange for the week involved 276,606 shares, having a total value of $968,382.10.

Sign of Prosperity.

Dun's Review yesterday reported 100 commercial failures for the week as compared with 112 for the previous week and 1441 for the corresponding week in 1918. The general good business conditions which prevailed throughout the country at the close of the week were marred only by the lowering labor clouds.

Montebello Crude.

E. H. Schiek & Co. this morning announce the opening of subscription books on Wednesday, next, for 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the Montebello Crude Oil Company, a California corporation, at $1 per share. It is claimed on behalf of this company that its holdings in the Montebello field are surrounded by big producers, and that the fifty-five acres in possession of the company are among the most promising in the district. The first well is already down 1200 feet, according to the prospectus and its completion is guaranteed. It is claimed for the new concern that of the total capitalization of 500,000 shares the total number issued, including the 100,000 now offered, will be 256,025, leaving nearly one-half in the treasury. It is said that no promotion stock is to be issued, and that application will soon be made for a listing on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange.

A Sure Thing.

There seems to be at least one sure thing on the stock exchange and that is the proposed new building. As stated in this column earlier in the week the handsome future home of the exchange is really to be built, and yesterday it was announced that the final papers had been signed, and that actual construction would begin about the middle of November. The site is on the west side of South Spring street, adjoining the Realty Building, between Sixth and Seventh streets. The building will be erected by the Story

GRAIN DEALERS BUY HEAVILY IN BARLEY.

Bidding in milo was active yesterday on the local grain exchange, but barley was again the feature of the day. The probability of increased barley acreage next year in California, together with the fact that the recent rains have improved soil conditions so that the farmers will soon be able to begin early planting have helped to create a more active demand for barley. Seedmen were buying heavily yesterday in anticipation of the demand from the farmers.

Immediate shipment milo was unchanged to 25 cents per ton lower, with a car for fifteen days' shipment selling at $2.80. Futures were unchanged to 25 cents lower, with all December milo bringing $2.77½. Sales of milo amounted to 200 tons yesterday.

Barley, in which most of the interest centered, was 25 cents per ton higher for immediate delivery, with futures showing advances of from 25 to 50 cents per ton over Friday's prices. Sales for all November were made at $3.21¼ and for all December at $3.26¼. Closing prices for barley were $3.20. Sixteen hundred tons were sold during the session. No sales were made in mixed feed.

PRODUCE PRICES ADVANCE SHARPLY.

LOCAL STORAGE STOCKS SHOW MARKED INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR.

Trading on the Produce Exchange was more than usually active for a Saturday session. Arrivals from the local-producing sections, while not heavy, were larger in quantity than Friday's arrivals, and generally better as to quality and condition. The demand was brisk throughout the session, all varieties moving rapidly on a firm market. The farmers, on account of the good quality of the majority of their offerings, were in a position to compete with the wholesalers, but the sharp competition did not bring prices down, and the market closed firm for nearly all lines of produce.

Northern Jonathan apples were practically the only commodity to show any tendency toward weakness. The California varieties, on account of their excellent quality and lower prices, are competing with the Northern varieties, which tends to pull the prices of the latter down. Extra fancy Jonathans sold as low as $2.90 per box, with fancy grades bringing from $2.70 to $2.75.

Nearly every item on the vegetable list showed advances in price yesterday, owing to the very brisk demand for all varieties of fresh produce. Green beans sold rapidly at 11 cents per pound, while limas were in demand at 10 cents. Cabbage went well at $1.35 per crate. Cauliflower sold as high as $2.75, with the poor quality bringing $2.25. No cauliflower was available at prices as low as $2, the quotations on Friday's market for the poorer grades of this commodity. Corn reached a top price at $1.10 per lug; shipping quality cucumbers sold at the same figure. Lettuce made a sharp advance to $1.85 per crate, on account of the greatly improved quality of yesterday's offerings, both by the farmers and by the wholesalers.

Onions continued their advance toward higher prices yesterday, with the yellow and white varieties selling at $3.65 and $3.75, while the browns went to $3.90 and $4. Prices for potatoes remained firm, both on the carlot market and to retailers. Heavy arrivals yesterday, however, with twenty-four cars still on track, and with heavy receipts expected on Monday's market will probably cause the opening market next week to ease off to some extent.

Grapes were among the strong features of yesterday's market. Prices for Tokays and Malagas were at no time lower than 6½ cents per pound. Cornichons sold at 5 and 6½ cents, while Muscats commanded as high as 7 cents per pound. Yesterday's arrivals were light, and of good quality, and the demand was active during the entire session.

The weekly report of the produce held in storage shows 1,527,473 pounds of cheese in storage, as against 855,550 pounds for the same date a year ago. Butter storage amounts to 283,380, compared to last year's figures of 250,968. There is more than eight times as many onions in storage this year as there were last, storage figures showing 56,650 pounds this year as compared to 7395 in 1918. The amount of eggs in storage at the present time exceeds last year's amount by 25,709 cases, with 77,965 cases in storage yesterday.

The report of the butter market for the week shows a strong market prevailing throughout the United States, with new high record prices established in many cities, notably New York, where the high prices were due in part to the strike of the longshoremen. The San Francisco and Los Angeles markets were characterized by light trading and a steady tone with a somewhat weaker feeling at the close on medium and undergrades. San Francisco storage holdings show a decrease of 20,061 pounds for the week, as against an increase in Los Angeles holdings of 82,387 pounds.

HEAVY LOSSES IN NEW YORK COTTON.

MARKET BROKE FOLLOWING RALLIES ON EARLY BUYING; CLOSE SHOWED DECLINE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A good deal of week-end liquidation developed in the cotton market this morning and first prices dropped 2 to 19 points in New York, followed soon after by further losses. Shortly after the start the market broke 30 to 65 points, followed by rallies of about 20 points on covering.

The census bureau report, issued today, places the amount ginned from the growth of the crop of 1919 prior to October 18 at 4,879,485 running bales, counting round as half bales and excluding linters, against 6,811,251 bales in the same time in 1918 and 5,573,686 in 1917.

Realizing became more active and general late in the morning, owing to weakness in the stock market and nervousness over labor conditions. December broke to 35.02 and March to 33.92, with the market closing easy at a net decline of 45 to 95 points.

CALL OF COAL STRIKE AFFECTS GRAIN PRICES.

SHADOW OF PROBABLE TIE-UP THROWN UPON MARKET'S OPERATIONS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—There was limited trading in grain with an easing off in values due to a probable strike of the coal miners, and the break in stocks and cotton. No great pressure was exerted to depress values and with a general evening up for the week-end closing sales were at losses of 7-8 to ½ on corn, unchanged for oats, 1-8 to ¼ lower for rye and ½ to 1 higher for barley in Chicago.

In the outside markets trading was light and net changes in prices small.

Although the week witnessed the lightest trading in months there was a good range in corn and it closed 1 5-8 higher on December and 5-8 on May. Oats 1-8@1 higher, than on May. Rye was off 5¼@6¼ and barley 5¼@6 higher. December leading. October pork up 2.15 and January 75 lower. Lard 1.75 lower on October and 1.07@1.75 on the distant months. Short ribs were 50@52½ lower.

Lack of outside support and a general desire on the part of local bulls to await further developments in the labor situation before buying freely resulted in an easier corn market following a bulge of 1-4 at the opening. Rain or snow prevailed over the corn belt and the forecast was for more but as soon as the buying ran its course prices started downward and at the inside figure were ¾ under the previous day's finish. News was generally bearish. December finished at 1.25 7-8, making ¾ in the last two days.

Oats prices held within a range of 3-8@½ closing at the top with December at 71 1-4 and May at 74.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Heaviest liquidation of the week took place during today's brief trading period on the stock exchange, the ticker being over twenty minutes behind in recording final transactions.

The selling was predicted on overnight news which drew attention to the more acute labor situation and was accelerated by the tenuous bull account in various speculative issues.

Not only were most of the week's gains entirely canceled, but in a number of instances losses of 3 to 10 points for that period were recorded. Reactions from maximums in some recent favorites ranged from 10 to 20 points.

Steels bore the brunt of the movement, the premier issue, United States Steel, losing 3 3-4, while Bethlehem, Crucible, Lackawanna and Republic were 4 to 10 points lower.

Equipments yielded 3 to 7 points, motors 3 to 6, oils 3 to 12, and several of the shippings 3 to 6 points. Rails, the mainstay of the previous session, were carried down by the reaction with numerous specialties, including tobacco, leather and a long list of miscellaneous issues. Final quotations were at or within fractions of lowest prices, the market ending with a weak tone. Sales amounted to 975,000 shares.

The bank statement threw little light on the week's stock market activity, actual loans and discounts showing a further decrease of about $40,000,000, or a total of $100,000,000 for the past fortnight.

Bonds eased on the unsettlement shown by stocks, trading in that market, however, being without special feature. Total sales, par value, aggregated $7,275,000.

Old United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

Clinton Wright Wire.

Los Angeles purchasers of Clinton Wright Wire Company preferred stock, when it was offered here in September by E. H. Rollins and Sons, will be interested in knowing that it is being dealt in in Boston at $101.50. The offering price here, at which a large block was disposed of, was $99.

Ford Motor Company.

Bond & Goodwin, who recently marketed the Ford note issue, say that as a result of that transaction public interest in the internal finances of the big Detroit concern has been stimulated. The following statement is the latest and offers an interesting comparison of the Ford business for the two years ending August 1:

Foreign Trade Directory.

The Citizens' National Bank has issued a sheet supplementary to its October financial and business summary. This sheet gives, in succinct form, a list of export and import concerns wishing to form a connection with manufacturers and jobbers. Mr. J. C. Moodie, manager of the foreign exchange department of the bank, has all the details of the inquiries which include firms in Japan, Ecuador, Mexico, Brazil, England, Philippine Islands, Egypt, Chile, China and Argentina. Our foreign trade is growing, and the various agencies established in Los Angeles this year report a highly satisfactory present condition and future outlook.

The Housing Problem.

St. Louis has attacked the housing problem by organizing a $2,000,000 corporation composed of manufacturers, business men and bankers who will at once begin the construction of a large number of moderate-priced homes to be sold on the partial payment plan. The tract development system will be followed, and parks and playgrounds will be a feature of each unit. Stock in the corporation is sold at $100 a share. It is nonassessable and the investment will yield no profit to the shareholders.

CITRUS REVIEW FOR WEEK.

There were no new developments in the market on California Valencia oranges the past week. Prices in both private sale and auction markets continue steady with a splendid demand for sound fruit in all grades. Some complaint is heard regarding the poorer keeping quality of the Valencias this season, which is attributed to the lack of normal transportation facilities and to labor troubles involving the handling of the fruit, otherwise the Valencia deal has given little cause for complaint.

Estimates on the remaining supply of Valencias continue to increase with each succeeding count, and it is now figured that there will be at least 3200 cars to go after this week. There are probably around 1300 cars out that are unsold as against 500 cars for the corresponding date last season.

The shortage in refrigerator cars eased up considerably the past week and gives promise of continued improvement now that the season on deciduous fruits is drawing to a close. With 3200 cars of Valencias remaining for shipment, the trade are assured of a supply of Valencias well along toward the middle of December. Labor conditions have been such that the lumber mills have not been able to turn out the usual amount of box shook and there is no surplus stock to draw from as in former seasons. Transportation facilities for moving shook have also been inadequate and shippers are not at all pleased with the outlook.

F.O.B. California quotations on Valencias range from $5.00 to $4.75 on best grades.

Shipments of Valencias from Southern California district from September 1 to the close of the season on October 31 for the 1917 season were [illegible] cars, for 1918 season 912 cars and for the 1919 season (with nine more shipping days to report) 3713 cars.

Estimates on new crop navels in Tulare county show more fruit than early reports indicated and instead of an increase of 10 per cent. over the past season's production, the outlook now is for from 15 to 25 per cent. more fruit.

Opening quotations on new crop Tulare county navels are talked of on a basis of $4.25 to $4.75 cash, but no sales on this basis have been confirmed.

Porto Rico oranges are showing up in a heavier volume in eastern markets. Best brands are bringing $3.50 to $3.90 per box. Repacked fruit, $2.80 to $3.20, and the poorest of the offering, $1.25 to $2.00 per box.

A few scattering shipments of Florida oranges have arrived in eastern markets; $4.00 to $4.25 f.o.b. shipping point cover opening quotations by shippers.

LEMONS.

Foreign lemons have entered into competition with California stock in Southern markets and as a result prices have eased off in those markets. Aside from this, however, the situation is exceedingly satisfactory. There is an unprecedented demand now existing for California lemons with normal fall weather reported throughout the country. Last year at this time the influenza epidemic was responsible for an enormous sudden demand, but this year with no epidemic and with normal conditions prevailing, the demand remains steady and firm without the sudden falling off usual with the passing of summer weather. This continued demand is coming from the consumer as the trade all report lemons moving exceptionally well and the stocks in the hands of the wholesalers are light and only sufficient for immediate needs.

The trade is unable to attribute a definite cause for the unusual fall demand and it seems to be a generally increased consumption of lemons in the home for all year around uses.

F.O.B. California quotations are on a basis of $6.00 to $5.50 in Southern markets, and $6.50 to $6.00 in eastern and Middle Western markets.

There are approximately 80,000 boxes of foreign lemons now afloat and in port, 72,000 boxes of which are now awaiting discharge account delay due to strike of longshoremen.

POMONA OIL COMPANY

Capital $500,000, Par Value, $1 Per Share

The Holdings of the Company Are Only 45 Minutes from Broadway

Eighty producing oil companies have paid dividends of a total of $11,000,000, eleven million dollars, in the last year. Sounds good, don't it? But this amount is small, compared to what the wonderful oil lands of California undoubtedly will yield to those who have faith in them.

Do you know that many of these companies have only begun, that their future earnings will justify equally as great, and possibly greater, dividends than in the past.

Remember that oil is a necessity, a commodity that is greatly in demand, the demand far exceeds the supply. California is a veritable storehouse of wealth, which she is offering to those who have faith in her wonderful natural resources. It has been said by eminent geologists that California has a great deal of (oil) liquid gold, as it has been so fittingly called, waiting the magic touch of man to give the many who are willing to share this gift, in addition to her numerous other riches which she has given.

You are now offered an opportunity in the Puente Fields, right at the back door of California's most wonderful City, Los Angeles.

We offer subject to prior sale, 20,000 Shares of the Capital Stock of THE POMONA OIL COMPANY, a California Corporation that has passed the rigid rules of the Corporation Department. This company is managed by men capable and recognized authorities in the Oil Business. Men who do things and that can be relied upon.

Remember, this company has over 900 acres of valuable acres in one body which will accommodate a great many wells.

FORTUNES MADE IN OIL LEASES

Choice off-set oil leases for sale in the next great oil field of Texas, near the well now being drilled by the Capitol Petroleum Company. Some of the leases in the Burkburnett field that first sold for $25 to $50 per acre afterwards sold as high as $15,000.00 per acre and a great many sold from $5000.00 to $10,000.00 per acre. The chances here are equally as good and those who desire to speculate in leases should send for particulars at once as these leases will go rapidly. Address

RANGER OIL

That the speculative features of this popular monthly dividend payer are unusually attractive, is well emphasized by the following official statement, pertaining to only one of the many interests of the company.

"Rushing Production — The Company owns 1-32 interest in the Rushing tract, located at Desdemona, Texas. This is directly west of the famous Ellison lease. The first well on this tract is drilling at about 2300 feet, and should be completed in a few days. The first well on the Ellison lease, which is located about 600 feet south of the east line of this property, came in recently with a production reported to be over 10,000 barrels a day. Directly offsetting it on the south is the Daniels well which came in reported flowing 4000 barrels a day from the top of the line. We feel absolutely sure of a big well on this tract, and a well producing 6000 barrels a day will pay the company approximately $10,000 a month income."

We believe Ranger Oil presents one of the best speculative-investment issues available upon the local market, earnings are apparently on the increase, while the demand for the stock during the past week is indicative of a steady upward market swing. Both from a standpoint of investment and gratifying price increase, the stock in our opinion represents an unusual "buy" at prevailing prices, 16½-17c.

Offered in Amounts of Purchasers of this offering will receive first dividend December 1, 1919, and monthly thereafter on the first day of each month.

DESCRIPTION OF ROYALTY

This is a syndicated royalty, the title to which is vested in which institution, as Trustee, assumes full control of the property involved and receives and disburses the amount due the several owners monthly.

The Guarantee Title & Trust Company of Wichita, Kansas

Basis and Legal Description of Property:

This royalty is composed of 75,000 units or equal parts, of a par value of $1.00 each, and is based upon the full one-eighth royalty interest in and to the N. E. ¼ of the S. W. ¼, Section 1, Township 26, Range 4 East, Butler County, Kansas, therefore constituting a portion of the world-renowned "two miles square of oil," in which, it is claimed, more big gushers have been found, more barrels of oil produced, and fewer dry holes drilled, than was ever found in a like solid area anywhere else in the world.

Drilling Company:—The Largest in America

The lease is owned and is being drilled by the Empire Gas and Fuel Company, one of the largest, if not the largest producing oil company in America. The drilling company pays the entire expense of production, and receives seven-eighths of the oil and gas, the royalty interests getting the other one-eighth free from any and all expense or liability.

Developments:—Four Wells In—Room for 25

There are four deep wells on this lease, three of which were brought in between April and August, 1918, and one about the first of March, 1919. The fifth deep well, known officially as No. 14, is expected in by the first of December. Nine deep wells to the 40 acres is the rule in this field, so there are five deep wells yet to come in on this lease. There are two oil sands, the first being found at about 1600 feet, and the second at about 2600 feet. When the deep wells are all in, the rule is to put shallow wells between the deep ones, there being room for 16 such on each 40 acres, or a total on the 40 acres of 25 wells.

Production:—Over 300,000 Bbls. from 4 Wells

According to the official reports of the Trustee, original copies of which are on file in our office, subject to inspection, this lease has produced and sold from its four wells, up to and including Sept. 15, 1919, a total of 321,994.15 barrels of oil, one-eighth of which has been received by the owners of Triangle Royalty.

Dividends:—Have Averaged Nearly 8% Per Month

Under the trust agreement, the Trust Company must render a statement to all royalty owners on the first of each month, showing the amount of oil sold during each month, the price received for same, to whom sold, etc., to which a check for each owner's share is attached. According to the said official Trustee's report above referred to as on file in our office, the amount received by royalty owners from August, 1918, when the first monthly dividend was paid, up to and including October 1, 1919, reached a total of 117 1-3 per cent., being an average of 7.83 per cent. cash dividends per month.

Possible Production:—75,000 Bbls. or More

The possibilities of this field are unlimited, as any well put down is likely to be a giant gusher, and be worth millions of dollars. This has been proven over and over again in this field, and with five deep wells yet to come in on this lease, to say nothing of the sixteen shallow ones, the production is, we believe, quite likely to reach enormous proportions, making this royalty an exceedingly profitable investment. However, eliminating the possibility of gushers entirely, and estimating the remaining wells at only the average of present wells on the lease, which we believe anybody will agree is an ultra-conservative estimate—the lease should eventually produce approximately 75,000 barrels per month.

Possible Dividends:—25% Per Month or More

As is the case with all syndicated oil royalties, the whole amount received, less the small fixed expense, is not only available for, but must be paid to unit holders in the form of cash dividends monthly.

The possibilities from a dividend standpoint on Triangle Royalty are practically unlimited, the same as in the case of production, and assuming the foregoing estimate of production is realized, and gushers lost sight of entirely, this royalty would pay unit-holders on par as much as 25 per cent. per month, or 300 per cent. per annum.

Gusher Possibilities:

But why eliminate the gusher possibility entirely, when the two famous sections of which this lease is a part are dotted here and there with giant gushers, some of which are known to have paid millions of dollars to their lucky owners. One gusher of half the size of the largest brought in on these "two square miles of oil" would make the Triangle Royalty dividends as much each day as they have been each month up to date. There is one 40 acres in this two square miles that produced four gushers, the largest of which was reported in at 30,000 barrels per day. These instances of fact are cited only to show the possibilities, and when this is considered in connection with the fact that the wells already in and producing are settled and sufficient in amount to practically guarantee the principal involved in an investment in these units, the desirability of this offering will become apparent to even the most conservative and sceptical.

This Offering Is Exclusive and Limited

The amount of units offered is limited, and in order to accommodate a larger number of our clients in this territory, we are limiting the amount per person to 500 units, representing an investment of $1000.

Applications will be accepted in the order received, and in case of over-subscription, remittances will be promptly refunded.

Ask for Map and Descriptive Folder

We have prepared a folder, which gives maps, photographs of gushers, and complete data and details of the Butler County, Kansas, oil field, and this royalty in particular, a copy of which we will be pleased to forward to anyone upon receipt of the attached coupon, letter or wire.

To insure acceptance of your order, we recommend that you attach check for the amount desired with the understanding that same will be refunded promptly in the event that you are not satisfied after reading the folder.

I very much doubt whether advance notice of so important a coming event in the local speculative world has been made since the exciting oil days of ten years ago, in the Midway Field of California.

I confidently believe that whoever gives the following facts careful thought and personal investigation will readily agree with me.

Advance Announcement of "Montebello Crude"

Next Wednesday, October 29, at 9 o'clock, we will open our books for subscriptions to 100,000 shares of Treasury stock of the Montebello Crude Oil Company, a California Corporation, at $1.00 per share. We believe that this issue will be oversubscribed in such an unusually short time that we are, therefore, affording our clients and the general public ample opportunity to investigate the following facts:

NOTE—Applications from whoever is already personally acquainted with the facts will be filed in the interim in the order of their receipt and be given preference in the case of over-subscription.

Montebello Crude Oil Co. a California Corporation

Montebello Crude Oil Company is organized under the laws of California. Capitalization 500,000 shares, par value, $1.00.

The incorporators, officers and directors are gentlemen of exceptionally high financial standing and of trained experience in large enterprises and public undertakings. Our prospectus will contain more information to interested parties.

The total issued capital — including the offering herein announced of 100,000 shares—will be 256,025, leaving nearly one-half the capital stock for a strong future treasury. Not one share of "promotion stock" has been issued, the stock already issued being in payment of the Company's leases or for moneys expended in connection with No. 1 well.

The oil leases in the 55 acres acquired by Montebello Crude in the Montebello field have been bought and paid for and are a valuable asset in the company's treasury, this large area affording ample opportunity for the drilling of many more wells without the acquisition of another acre of land after No. 1 well is completed.

So soon as this issue is subscribed, application immediately will be made for listing on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. An active, rising market should follow.

Montebello Field Leads

Of the nine proven oil fields in Southern California, the Montebello field leads with a total production of over 1,130,000 barrels monthly. This production comes from 76 wells—or an average of 14,868 per well.

Montebello Crude Holdings Surrounded by Big Companies

Montebello Crude has secured leases totaling 55 acres in the heart of Southern California's richest oil field. The property is surrounded by the holdings of many of the largest oil companies of California, including Red Star Pet. Co. (Baldwin Leases,) Doheny Pacific Petroleum Co., General Petroleum Corp. and the Shell Company.

Montebello Crude's No. 1 Well Already Down 1200 Feet

Montebello Crude has not waited for the sale of its securities but has already expended about $45,000. A complete new combination standard and rotary drilling equipment has been purchased and fully paid for. No. 1 well located close to the Doheny Pan-American well, and on a direct line between the Red Star Petroleum wells and the Black Diamond gusher is now down 1200 feet, and three crews are working in eight-hour shifts. Drilling is being superintended by a veteran California oil drilling expert, whose last success was the above referred to Pan-American well.

Completion of No. 1 Well Guaranteed

The principal objection found in many oil investments has been removed from this security by a guarantee from the president of the company (name on application) to advance such sums as are required to keep operations continuously up to the total expenditure of $100,000, if necessary. This feature practically insures the completion of No. 1 well.

Average "Montebello Well" Would Earn 70% on Stock

It is safe to assume that the Montebello field is earning profits for its oil well owners as follows:

Monthly yield of 76 wells, 1,130,000 barrels.
Average monthly yield per well, 14,868 barrels.
Average monthly profit per well, at $1 net profit per barrel, $14,868.

An "average Montebello well" brought in on Montebello Crude would therefore earn approximately 70% on all outstanding stock, including this 100,000 share issue.

Montebello Crude Summed Up

With a corporation backed by financially responsible and experienced oil men, with actual assets for every share issued; with no "promotion stock," with 55 acres of valuable oil land in the heart of one of the world's richest oil fields, with a well already down 1200 feet and its completion practically guaranteed, and with apparently certain assurance of "bringing in" a well capable of earning $14,868 per month, or 70% on all its issued stock, Montebello Crude Oil Company, we believe, represents a "real investment privilege" which has only to be investigated to be fully appreciated.

Plant These Bulbs Now!

For extra early Spring flowers now is the time to make a first planting of the various sorts of bulbs. The stock which we offer is from our own bulb farms and first-class in every respect. They are large, plump, heavy and bound to give good results.

Daffodils

BARRI CONSPICUUS—One of the most satisfactory of all Daffodils. The stems are extra long and splendid for cut flowers. The blossom is a beautiful pure lemon yellow with the rim of the cup daintily edged with orange scarlet.
Per dozen, 75c
Per 100, $5.00

EMPEROR—A grand large flowered Daffodil. Trumpet and perianth rich golden yellow. A splendid variety with extra long stems. Per dozen, 75c
Per 100, $5.00

EMPRESS—Identical in every respect with the variety Emperor excepting color, the trumpet being deep rich yellow with a white perianth.
Per dozen, 75c
Per 100, $5.00

GOLDEN SPUR—One of the earliest of all yellow trumpet daffodils. Blossoms in advance of nearly all other varieties. Per dozen, 75c
Per 100, $5.00

Freesias

NEW RAINBOW FREESIA—A wonderful new strain of Freesias in shades of pink, lavender, rose, etc. The bulbs produce spikes of enormous size. Splendid for cut flowers or for a charming effect in the garden. Be sure and plant a few bulbs of this beautiful new strain. Our stock has just been lifted and the bulbs are of superior quality........Per dozen 60c
Per 100 $4.00

FREESIA PURITY—The best of all pure white Freesias. The stems are long, the flowers large and abundantly produced. Extra large bulbs—
Per dozen 50c
Per 100 $3.50

FREESIA REFRACTA ALBA—The older well known form with yellow shadings in the throat of the flowers. These are intensely fragrant and exceedingly free blooming. Per dozen 35c
Per 100 $2.50

Watsonias

Among the early flowering Spring bulbs there are very few more graceful or better adapted to garden ornamentation or cut flowers than these lovely South African bulbous plants. Spikes attain a height of four to five feet and are covered with innumerable flowers. Colors vary from white to deep rose. Blossoms about Easter time.
Each, 10c
Per dozen, $1.00

Dancing.

AN ENGLISH doctor who has made a study of things recently made the declaration that the reason London girls are not flat-footed is that they dance.

He says that English country girls are all flat-footed, and a great many of them are bow-legged, and all because in the rural districts of that country the girls do not dance. If they did dance their feet would not be flat, nor their legs bowed.

This is, indeed, a serious matter, and consequently an important matter. It may be all right for policemen to have flat feet, policemen and floorwalkers and Charlie Chaplin, because they make a living that way, but it is not desirable that girls in any country be so afflicted.

When a girl marries and starts in to have spats with her husband, as it is inevitable she will, he may cast it up to her that she has flat feet, and bow legs, maybe, and then she is liable to throw a flat iron or the frying pan at him; and right there you have another divorce.

So, if dancing is the cure, then for goodness sake let there be more of it. Nor can we imagine a cure that could be more pleasant.

Dancing is one of the oldest things that the human race indulged in. Even savages danced, and they do so to this day. The Egyptians, the Persians and all the old races danced, not to speak of the Irish and the Slavonians.

Dancing is an expression of joy. Of course, men have been known to dance with the toothache and with rage, but we really cannot call that dancing, any more than the antics of a cow in a pasture field could be called dancing.

Real dancing is the very personification of grace and poetry. Whoever has seen George Primrose dance, or Carmencita, or Neal Conway or Robert Quigley—ah, it is they who can tell you what dancing is.

Or, take ex-President Taft, for instance. Now, there is a fine dancer for you. Don't you remember a few years ago when he was down South and he "danced all night till broad daylight and went home with the girls in the morning?" And Mr. Taft is a fat man. But, the fact is that there are oodles of fat men who are good dancers.

We don't just know whether or not the same rule applies to fat women, but we don't see why it shouldn't. If a fat man can be a good dancer, and enjoy it, why can't a fat woman turn the same trick? No reason in the world, as far as we can see.

Now, we are strong for getting up a society when there is anything to be done, and we propose that a society for dancing be organized and that everybody, old and young, fat and lean, join this society.

And the first rule of the society is to be that when a man gets up out of bed in the morning, immediately after he says his prayers, he starts the phonograph on a nice, easy, old gliding tune like the "Suwanee River," and he lights into it with his slippers on. That's what George Primrose—God be with him and his merry feet—used to call "soft shoe" dancing.

Then speed up the Victrola, or whatever the music box is, and tackle a hornpipe—a sailor's hornpipe. You can do it, with all the motions, in your pajamas. Then wind up with an Irish reel. And, say, after you have finished that Irish reel you are perspiration from head to foot and then you are ready for your plunge in the cold bath.

If this society can be organized and everybody joins, and the rules lived up to, men and women in this country will not die hardly at all. There will be no use for undertakers and graveyards.

And there will be no flat feet and no bow legs. But, there will be health and happiness and the most graceful race of people on earth. The ancient Greeks will look like hogsheads compared to us.

Satan at Bay.

IT IS with no desire to be facetious or cynical that we make the statement that Satan is at bay. Instead, we state it as a fact. And we are glad to state it. The devil is in a corner with his back against the wall, and he was never harder pushed since the time he fell from the battlements of the high heavens at the point of Michael's flaming sword.

The greatest wave of religious enthusiasm the world has ever known is now in full swing. It is not confined to any country, to any single race or to any denomination of the Christian faith. It is universal, and it envelops the earth from end to end.

There have been great waves of religious enthusiasm before, but never anything to compare with this. In the time of the Crusades, and in the days of St. Francis of Assisi, there were great religious revivals, but they were more or less hectic and neurotic.

This revival is cool, serene and steady. It moves not like waves of fire, but like the glacier, crushing onward over everything that stands in its path.

The Methodists furnish one of the amazing features of the situation. One million Methodists in this country have signed away one-tenth of each of their incomes for the next five years to the church for missionary work. The enormous sum of $200,000,000 has been raised already.

All the other Christian denominations are hard on the heels of the Methodists. And there appears to be the utmost harmony and good will all around. No matter what anyone says, this is the fact. Old bigotries are dead. John Willis Baer, moderator of the Presbyterian church, has been chumming with Cardinal Mercier and coaxing him to come to California.

Yes, sir; if you see sparks flying, it is old Satan lashing his tail. They have him running and are beating him over the head. It is the hardest fight the devil has ever had on his hands.

FAITH AND HOPE

Deep in each immortal soul,
Though hid from mortal eyes,
Though none suspect a thing so fine,
A spark from heaven lies.

Oh, Master of the Universe,
Of every thing a part,
Touch Thou the dormant spark that lies
Close in the world's great heart.

The restless world, hard struggling through
The shadows of the night,
To find a pathway leading out
Into a better light.

Oh, Thou who walked upon the sea
And caused the storm to cease,
Stretch now Thine hands around the world
And whisper to it—Peace.

MARY STUART HAZEL.

Where Is She?

THERE are countless girls and young women in America vaguely wondering how they can secure an opportunity to express themselves in art. The majority of them, we fear, are turned toward the movies, and this makes them almost hopeless because it is the alleged big salaries of the movies that have fascinated them.

Now, there is absolutely no hope for a young woman to immortalize herself if she starts out after the dollar in the first place. No great book was ever written for money, no great picture was ever painted with the object of getting money for it, and no actress has become great whose inspiration was monetary wealth.

The money is a thing that comes afterward. It follows success and is not its inspiration.

The greatest opportunity we have ever known is open now for the young woman who has the genius and who will undergo the sacrifice to put herself in the place that was once occupied by such women as Rachael, Bernhardt, Neilsen, Mary Anderson and Julia Marlowe.

Their places are vacant. No one is in evidence to stand in their shoes. And the public is hungry for someone who can do it.

All that going into the movies really means is that the woman photographs well, that she can imitate the stock expressions for the camera, and that she has a picture charm.

But, to become a great speaking actress like the women we have mentioned were, means study, a God-given voice and a God-given genius supplemented by tremendous sacrifice. But, it is a sacrifice that will be well repaid.

Where is this young woman who is to take Mary Anderson's place? The people are waiting to shower her with gold when she comes.

Fine Work.

WE ARE not informed as to who the subtle press agent is that works for Santa Barbara, but whoever he is, he so far outshines all other press agents that there is no comparison. He outshines all other press agents as the sun outshines tallow candles.

Have you noticed that whenever there is talk of a president or a king or a prime minister, a secretary of the treasury, a billionaire or a world-famed author coming to California to visit or to settle down it is always for Santa Barbara that he is headed?

Why, it has come to be that when any great personage steers for this Land of Heart's Desire, it is naturally expected that he has rented a house in Santa Barbara. No other place is even considered.

Now, it isn't that Santa Barbara is superior or more desirable in any way than other places in California, although you can't beat Santa Barbara for beauty, climate, romance and all that; and that's a fact. But there are literally hundreds of other places in the State that have everything Santa Barbara has.

San Diego has all these things, so has Monterey; we have them here in Los Angeles, and there are many, many other places equally fortunate.

The thing is that Santa Barbara has a super press agent. It must be that. Indeed, what other explanation can there be? A subtle, soft-pedaling, purring, honey-mouthed press agent—that's what Santa Barbara has.

It's a wonder the movies haven't captured this person. The movies need him badly. For, the work of movie press agents has come to be so raw and crude that it grates on the nerves.

We congratulate Santa Barbara. It is a lovely old place. Its skies are so blue, its breath so balmy, and it has not yet lost the touch that was put upon it in the glamour of the old days of Spain.

The Negro.

THE hope that these squalid race riots between whites and negroes had come forever to an end in America has been rudely dissipated lately. The old, elemental hatreds have broken out worse than ever. It is a very sad and deplorable thing, too.

Through it all white people should keep their minds clear and not permit themselves to make the mistake of thinking that all negroes are alike. When some degenerate negro assaults a white woman and is lynched for it, white people who do not think deeply come to the conclusion that every negro would assault a white woman if he did not stand in fear of lynching.

Now, nothing could be farther from the truth than this conclusion. Anyone who knows the negro people knows it is not true. The negro who assaults or who desires to assault white women is the exception. We do not fear to say that this kind of negro numbers only one in 10,000. And that is just as good an average as white people can claim.

The fact is that the average negro is not at all attracted by white women. He much prefers his own women. We are to remember that there have been and still are white men who prefer negro women to their own race. One of the greatest lawyers America has ever known was one of these.

Neither are we to forget that during the Civil War the cultured white women of the South were left wholly at the mercy of negro guardians while their men folks were away in the battlefields. And these women were not violated. The negro then answered for himself, and his answer was sublime.

There are bad negroes, and there are bad white men. The negro has his faults, but he has also his virtues the same as all other races.

Your "Wee-wish."

IT IS now several weeks since we told all thin folks how to get fat. We are wondering how our patients are coming along.

The medicine we prescribed is not a medicine at all, but a food—a delightful, tasty, palatable food. It is the acorn ground to meal, cooked and served as oatmeal mush is served.

The Indians call it "wee-wish." And that's what we want to know about now. How are you coming along with your wee-wish, and how many pounds have you gained?

If you are fat already, do not eat wee-wish. If you do you will get fatter, and at last you will have to hire out with the side show of the circus.

The Income Tax.

practically exempt from taxation, as would of course all of the laboring class with a low wage scale.

If some political party is hankering after doing justice to the people and securing the good wishes of the voters, we believe this is a good hint to act upon. The knowledge that some of our fortunes that are running close to a billion were being so heavily taxed as to amount to partial confiscation, I am sure would not cause an ocean of tears from the common people. While this might, at first thought, appear radical, it is less so than many plans of the Bolsheviki and their ilk who at present so vividly menace the world.

A direct tax upon the wealth of the country at 9 per cent. or 10 per cent. would thus yield about the same amount that is sought to be produced by the New Revenue Bill, namely: $24,000,000,000 to $25,000,000,000.

Thus the burden would fall upon those who have wealth as well as upon those who are trying to get it. The weight of the great debt would fall in just proportion upon the great accumulated stores of capital and relieve the unjust toll upon the shoulders of the industrious and ambitious worker trying to make his way.

From those who say that a direct tax on wealth would be confiscation, we would like an explanation of the difference between confiscating a man's life or one-half of a worker's property and a tax that does not in many cases touch the property of the rich at all.

We refuse to believe that it would be very difficult for a government that has undertaken and carried through a project surrounded with so many difficulties as the conducting of the last war has been to very easily and readily find a just form of taxation.

the Rudolphium, the home of artists. The first at Vaclavske Nameski (Vaclav Square,) is a monumental, renaissance structure. It contains many rooms full of valuable collections, and a library of 300,000 volumes among which are many unique works. The hall of the museum is decorated with historical paintings showing epochs in the nation's life. Among others are the "Foundations of the University of Praha by Charles IV;" that great educator, "Komensky (John Amos Comenius) Teaching at Amsterdam while in Exile," both by Vaclav Brozik, the Czech artist who painted our "Columbus at the Court of Queen Isabella."

The fine National Theater is not far distant. It was built entirely by national subscription. The first stone was laid in 1868 but it was not completed until 1881. It was not enjoyed long for a fire broke out in it after but a few plays had been produced and the structure burned to the ground. With the same persistence seen today in the nation's fight for liberty, a new subscription was raised and the present beautiful building erected. Here the well known operas of the great Czech composers, Smetana and others, can be seen and heard to the greatest advantage

The handsome Rudolphium, of classic architecture, is in one of the newest parts of the city. It contains the famous Conservatory of Music, the scene at one time of Antonin Dvorak's labors, and also that of Sevcik, the unusual virtuoso-making teacher of the great Czech violinists, Kubelik, Kocian, and others. Here too, is the largest concert hall in Praha. Another portion of the building is devoted to sculpture and painting, and still another to a library.

Besides these buildings there are other museums, art galleries, theaters, asylums, hospitals, libraries of all kinds built within the last decade. Numerous schools are not lacking for the Czechs, who are among the most literate people in Europe, and venerate the memory of their John Amos Comenius, the greatest educator of modern times, wisely made education one of their weapons in their struggle for independence. In fact, it was the weapon on which their leaders laid the greatest stress.

Helen and Warren.

his nails—an unfailing sign that he was greatly perturbed.

Would they miss it after all? Warren was always so sure of making a train, and now his tense anxiety proved that it was most doubtful.

The delays were maddening. Helen almost screamed when at the third consecutive crossing they were held up. The harrowing trip seemed endless. Then at length the huge Waterloo station loomed ahead.

Her heart beating in her throat, she followed Warren as he sprang out and shouted to a guard.

"The 11:50 for Southampton? 'Fraid you're too late, sir. Gates are closed."

"Ten shillings if you put us through! Get another man to help you! Quick now!" as he rushed to the ticket window.

Promiscuous and liberal tipping accomplishes many things. It opened the gates and even delayed the train a few moments—for the whistle had blown as they dashed through.

Warren in action gave a vigorous demonstration of American initiative and energy. With held breath, Helen watched him directing the porters, guards and conductors, who seemed hypnotized by his flashing authority.

When the train drew out their trunks were in the luggage van, and their packages piled in the green plush seclusion of a first-class compartment, which they had to themselves.

For a moment Helen leaned back, limp with relaxing excitement.

"Yes, that was going some!" he drew out a cigar.

"Oh, dear, you were wonderful!" with glowing admiration. "No one else could have done it."

"Move fast when I have to." Then with a grin, "Guess we showed those Englishmen that Americans can hustle. Less than three hours to book passage and get off—I'll wager that's crowding the record!"

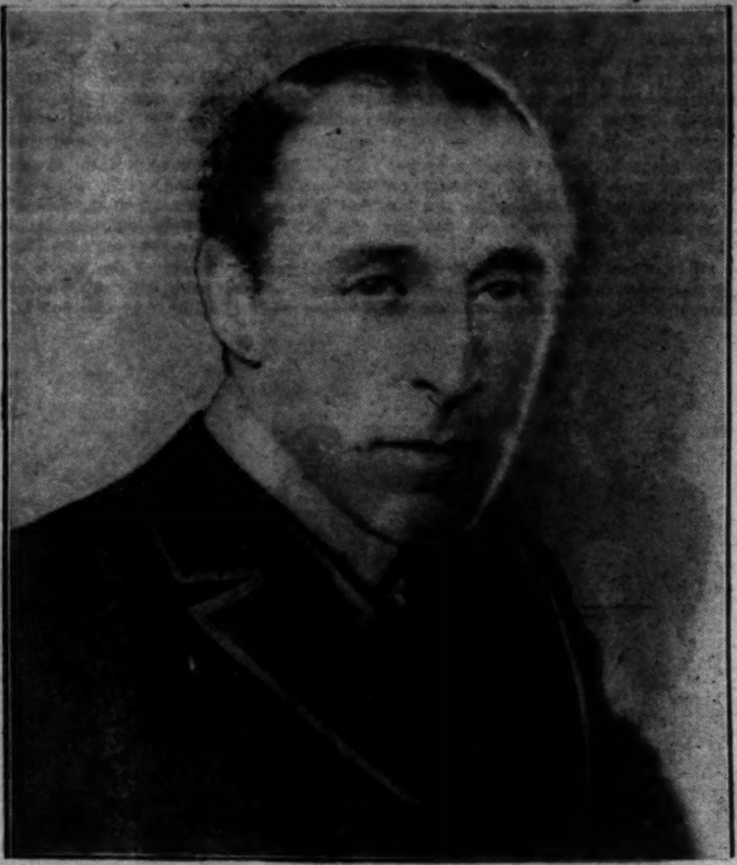
A CRITICISM OF THE INCOME TAX.

BY DAVID WARK GRIFFITH.



David Wark Griffith.

THE income tax now in operation in the United States is one of the most unjust systems of taxation known to modern civilization.

In making this statement we are not attempting to place blame on any lawmakers of the past when it was first conceived on a small scale. There is no doubt that it was a plan of much merit but at this time no one ever dreamed that it would be used to raise the enormous amounts made necessary by the war. Of course, while the war was going on, no one had time or thought to bother much how the money was procured so long as enough was raised to secure the great result for which all were working. We believe now that this has been done it is most necessary that this form of taxation be most carefully looked into

It is void of justice. It will establish an autocracy of wealth in the United States such as never has been known in this nation's history. Our soldiers who went abroad and offered their lives for their country have returned to a land where opportunity and freedom have both been largely taken away from them. The income tax in very large measure has absolutely shut the door of opportunity to the creators, the thinkers, the workers—in fact to all Americans excepting the rich whom the income tax does not in many cases touch at all.

Men who have achieved wealth in former years are permitted to keep their wealth. Young men, now ambitious to achieve wealth through their own efforts, find the way blocked. Their earned money is taken away from them in such fearful drains that they have not years enough before them to attain their ambitions in the face of this handicap.

The pernicious income tax is of advantage to the boy who has inherited his fortune from a rich father; but it is a blight upon the life and upon the efforts of the boy who is trying to make a fortune through his own genius and his own self-sacrifice

A ring of steel has been erected around the wealth and the opportunities of America. We have created an aristocracy of wealth. We have raised a barrier that none may cross. We have shut the gate. The sufferers will be the boys who fought in the trenches for us.

There are millions of dollars of property in the hands of the rich in America, that are not paying a single penny toward the maintenance of the United States government. The income tax does not weigh upon the rich in any way as heavily as upon the workers and the creators.

It leaves the man at the top practically without molestation; it exacts a crippling and prohibitory toll upon the man trying to get to the top.

Of importance to labor leaders and all who desire that the government take over railways and talk of division of profits to the people: the last year of government ownership the railroads lost nearly a billion dollars which had to be paid out of the people's pockets. This may be well enough if the rich are called upon to pay for this extra billion a year, as it goes into the hands of the deserving laboring man, but under the income tax it will only be taking money out of the pockets of fellow laborers—thus robbing Peter to pay Paul, which will not add much joy to the hilarity of our up-to-date democracy

Everyone Was Willing to Shoulder the Burden When Needed.

TRUE, the income tax was levied at a time when we needed money for the Great Cause; and no one took time or thought to pause and ask how the money was to be procured. Now that the work has been done, we have time enough to look around and see who shall continue to bear the burden of the Great Cause. Nothing needs more careful looking into than the animal that is to carry this big load for many years to come.

We all did our best to win the war; to crush autocracy and militarism. We wanted to give the peoples of the world wherever situated a chance to embrace liberty and democracy. This was not only the dominating factor in the thoughts and activities of our nation but of each individual in the vast number which compose it. To wage such a war meant sacrifice—every individual expected it and gladly gave it. We expected to be not only taxed but heavily taxed. Glad and willing support was given to the government in every measure it proposed for the successful prosecution of the war. He was unpatriotic indeed who opposed this in any way. We had to fight and we sacrificed without question.

The only thing we expected, however, in making our sacrifice was that one class of individuals should not have more to bear than another.

It is proper, therefore, for any citizen to examine new laws that have been made and new laws that are in the making to see if their provisions are just and equitable and if they give him the same chance as his brother, now that the war is over, to continue his business successfully and not find himself dominated by a class who have waxed fat in power and wealth during the war. In plain language it is the duty of every fair-minded citizen to see to it that no law is passed or that no law remains upon the statute book whose effect is to take money from the pocket of the soldier, returning war-worn from the trenches, and leave the bulging coffers of the munition profiteer untouched and unscathed. And this seems to be the error and the sin of the income tax—that is puts the burden of paying for the war upon the back of the returned soldier and the ambitious young business man just starting his commercial life, instead of upon the shoulders of the fat profiteer.

Now the Profits go for Taxation, Not Building Business.

THE inequality and inequity of the income tax can best be realized by the examination of the specific instance. Let us look at the young man who has reached the age, let us say, of 35. He has hit upon a remarkable invention which will revolutionize—let us say—the automobile industry. Before the days of the income tax, he could have begun in a small way, skimping and saving the income from his first products; putting the money that he made back in the business; fattening his capital and increasing his business the next year, and the next—each year putting most of his income back into his business until his capital has developed into a real working machine, capable of producing a fortune from his effort and industry.

That is the way the Schwabs began; that is the way the Rockefellers began; it is thus that the Astors and the Vanderbilts built up their great estates.

There will still be Astors; there will still be Vanderbilts, Schwabs and Rockefellers. But there never can be any new names in the charmed circle. The lists are closed. The gate is shut. The day of opportunity is passed.

This is not to speak of the enormous amount of property held by the rich such as municipal and State bonds which pay no income tax at all and through which a man might own millions and escape any taxation. Nor does it touch upon the very much discussed question of the enormous companies deferring dividends until a more opportune moment, it being stated by responsible people that one firm holds a billion dollars in these deferred dividends. Nor does it speak of the enormous amount of money that is invested in land and real estate which will not be sold or handled until a better time for profit arises and the taxes are lighter. Nor is there any danger of the food profiteers suffering from any rivalry so long as the income tax holds as at present for the simple reason that the heavy tax upon a new firm starting in any line of business would prevent them from becoming rivals even in a small way, of the firms already established.

Under the ban of the pernicious income tax, the young man of 35 who now makes a remarkable invention has a different experience. So cruel a proportion of his income is taken away from him every year that it will be utterly impossible for him ever to build up a great commercial institution by his own efforts. He will inevitably be compelled to turn over his invention for exploitation to men whose wealth has accumulated under more fortunate conditions and in a more fortunate day. From this time forth, the young man of industry and genius must work not for his own future but must keep on paying endless tribute to the rich.

In other words, the young inventor will be compelled to bring this precious product of his industry and his brains and lay it humbly at the feet of the young man who has inherited his money from his father. For that is the effect of the income tax. It favors the young man who has been born with a golden spoon in his mouth and acts as a ruthless bar to the young man with his own way to make in the world

Tax on Income From Brain Capital is Too Much.

FOR another instance, let us cite the case of a man who has written a play. He has been working all his life perhaps upon this intellectual task. Out of this play let us assume he makes the phenomenal income of $200,000 each year. The income tax will probably take more than half of it. In all probability this worker will never write another successful play. The divine inspiration upon which he drew for this one was his all and his capital. Yet Mr. Capitalist would pay on an income of the same amount, derived from $5,000,000 worth of idle unproductive property, less than the income tax paid by this man, because he would not be touched by the excess profits tax at all, and his capital would furthermore remain absolutely unimpaired.

In other words, this man, whose only capital is his brain, for the first time in his life realizes a profit of—say—$200,000 this year. This might occur from his having written a book which would be of great benefit to humanity or from an invention or from a new business that was furnishing a needed article of commerce. His income this year is $200,000; he has no property except his brain and knowledge The income tax on $200,000 income is approximately $101,270.

On the other hand, a young capitalist who has never had to do a day's work in his life has inherited $5,000,000 worth of idle, unproductive property. The government takes exactly the same tax from Mr. Capitalist, five times a millionaire, as it does from the inventor, the poet, the author, the young and progressive American—perhaps a returning soldier—more than one-half of all his property, $101,270, leaving one man less than $100,000 that he has earned by his own labor and the other man $5,100,000 that have not cost him a single effort. In other words, taking away half the capital and all the income of one man and leaving absolutely untouched the other man's property. It doesn't take a Solomon to see the injustice of this.

At least England's example might be followed, making a great difference between the income tax upon capital and estates and that derived from salary and individual effort.

It Steals the Load He Has Carried up the Hill.

IF IT were possible to visualize the conditions that the income tax has brought into America, the picture would be something like this: At the top of a hill sit the very rich and the sons of the very rich, dining upon ambrosia, protected by the thick bulwark of the Federal Income Tax. Halfway up the hill, staggers the young American worker with his burden upon his back, toiling to get to the top with it. But as he struggles the minions of the Income Tax Law keep taking his riches out of the pack upon his back; they puncture it with holes so that the priceless product of his toil dribbles out as he walks. By the time he has made his way to the summit, he is toil-worn and haggard, a worn out, work-weary old man—and the pack on his back is empty.

They who are at the top give airily from their comfortable surplus; he pays with his life's blood; with the blood of his ambitions.

With the crash of nations falling before the menace of Bolshevism around the world we believe it is a very good time to pause and take thought upon this matter. Bolshevism, in the old days, had small chance of gaining foothold in America because the American worker in any line of endeavor knew that the rich of America had begun just as he had. As long as the Rockefellers, Schwabs, Vanderbilts and our rich had themselves begun at the bottom and worked up, our laboring man could say to himself that he also had the same chance but we believe that the income tax makes it impossible to feel the same in this regard and gives a very potent reason for discontent.

Prof. O. M. W. Sprague of Harvard University, a recognised authority, estimates the annual income of the people of the United States at somewhere between $50,000,000,000 and $60,000,000,000. Assuming that this is a net profit of 20 per cent the total annual wealth of this country would thus be $250,000,000,000. By the most conservative estimates the wealth of the country would amount to about $225,000,000,000.

As a rough estimate of the amount needed next year is about five or six billion, a direct tax upon this wealth, could it be levied, would easily yield this needed amount. It would bear very heavily upon the man of enormous resources, but the man worth under $10,000 or $15,000 would be

THINGS FOR EVERY HOUSEKEEPER.

BY RETTA BADGER.

For Halloween.

Next Friday is the thirty-first,
And that's the thirteenth, just reversed;
'Tis Halloween when ghosts can roam,
Therefore I ask you to my home.
Come in the guise of some great shade,
Or like some noted spook arrayed.
And come prepared—you'll be expected
To tell about the "hant" selected
From history, romance, old wives' tales,
Whose shuddering allure never fails.

THIS is the form of invitation to send out for your Halloween entertainment. If you are clever with pen and ink or water color, decorate the margins with little skeletons and shrouded ghosts, some of them grotesquely minus heads where heads should be and bearing these necessary appendages under their arms, perhaps, or in shawl straps. The drawings naturally may be very crude, but if artistic accomplishment be entirely beyond you, a search may reveal pictures in old magazines which will look well when pasted upon the invitations.

No bright and merry lights should prevail at this weird function. If you like the Jack-o'-lantern effects which are honored by custom—and they are always good—have an abundance of candles thus subdued and no other lighting. Or your electric bulbs may be shaded by green crepe paper whereon black devils, witches and cats have been pasted. The green light resultant will prove deliciously "spooky."

The principal entertainment of the evening will naturally prove to be the costumes worn by the guests and the grewsome tales related by them; but, as no Halloween could be complete without the love tests and the sports, resort to all the time-honored ones: the three saucers, one empty, one filled with clear and the other with muddy water; the egg test, throwing the apple paring to form the initial of the lover's name, going down stairs backwards with a mirror, and a dozen other charming or crude old methods. A little search at the library will unearth many. Bobbing for apples is always fun and so is cutting the pyramid of flour, with the accompanying penalties.

Two blindfolded people feeding each other from large bowls of dry popcorn with tablespoons always look very funny, but if the two be famous and stately ghosts, it will be increasingly humorous.

Just before supper is to be served conduct your masculine guests into a darkened room in the middle of which a sheet has been suspended with a bright light behind it. The shadows of the girls should then appear one at a time on this sheet, the boys making guesses as to their identity. The first boy to guess correctly is to be the supper partner of the girl whose shadow has been exhibited. The girls may alter their head-dress in fanciful ways and are allowed to dance and gesticulate gracefully or grotesquely to suit the fancies and dispositions.

If you wish to prepare your supper with the minimum of effort, have it an original package affair. Serve such things as sardines, patties and deviled ham in cans, cheese in jars hard boiled eggs in their shells, bread in its oiled paper wrappings, butter and crackers in their cartons, milk, grape juice, root beer or whatever you please in ordinary bottles. Ice cream in cones and so on through any variety of edible delicacies.

Let doilies of brown wrapping paper decorated with black figures like those on the electric lights adorn the table and all things be served in crude style. Paper plates will eliminate future washing up and these could be embellished or not according to the time you wish to spend in preparation for the event.

A large carton of flowers should decorate the center of the table while nuts, apples and grapes piled in pyramids will be effective on the sideboard and buffet.

At supper all assembled might vote on the boy and the girl who have best carried out their ghost characters or who have most interestingly related their fearsome stories. The prizes could be things of value, but should be in some original package form, or they might be charms to keep off witches, as rabbits'-feet, horseshoe pins, or four-leaf clovers. But it would be funnier perhaps to have them just those "prize packages" which we all loved so as children.

PINEAPPLE JUICE RECIPES.

Pineapple juice is the newest of fruit juices nonalcoholic drinks. It is not only a drink, but is more particularly adaptable to fancy punches and a great variety of novel and charming desserts. This product of the Hawaiian pineapple fields has really reached the luncheon table by way of the medical profession. Some years ago medical scientists began experimenting with the juice of the pineapple to learn whether it had any therapeutic qualities. It has now been conclusively proved by those medical gentlemen and by the experts of the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture that the medical properties of pineapple juice are really wonderful. It has been unanimously decided by these experts that while the juice of the pineapple is by no means a "cureall" it is especially good for the digestive organs, a great benefit to sufferers from the various ramifications of what is commonly called sore throat, and it is now being used in at least one hospital home in Florida in the treatment of consumption.

From its use as an aid to the medical profession it soon became known as a delightful drink served either with or without carbonated water, as grape juice is served. The cooking experimenters and experts next took an interest in the juice, with the result that the following are a few of the recipes that have been evolved.

PINEAPPLE BAVARIAN CREAM.—Two cupfuls of pineapple juice, one cupful of sugar, half a cupful of boiling water, one and a half tablespoons of powdered gelatin, and two cupfuls of whipped cream. Dissolve the gelatin in boiling water, then add the sugar and the pineapple juice. When cool, mix in the whipped cream. Pour into a wet mold. Turn out when set and decorate with pieces of canned or candied pineapple.

PINEAPPLE JUICE ICE CREAM.—One pint of pineapple juice, two pints of cream, three-quarters of a pound of sugar, some whipped cream, and a few candied rose leaves. Bring one pint of the cream to the boiling point in a double boiler and add sugar. Remove from the fire and when cool add the other pint of cream and the pineapple juice. Freeze. Serve in glasses with whipped and sweetened cream on top, and decorate with the rose leaves.

PINEAPPLE SNOW.—Soak a half box of gelatin for an hour in a scant cup of cold water unless you use the instantaneous gelatin; in that case a shorter time will be required. Peel and grate a small pineapple, cover it with a cup of granulated sugar, and let it stand for an hour. Stir the soaked gelatin into it, turn all into a saucepan, set in a pan of boiling water, and stir until the sugar and gelatin are dissolved and blended. Remove from the fire and set where it will cool. Whip a pint of cream stiff, stand the saucepan containing the pineapple and gelatin in a bowl of cracked ice, and as the mixture stiffens beat into it the whipped cream by the spoonful. Whip until all the cream is in and the mixture is white and stiff, then turn into a glass bowl and put in the ice for a couple of hours. Serve cream with the snow.

PINEAPPLE PUNCH.—Add to the juice of three lemons and a pound of sugar three quart bottles of pineapple juice and six slices of canned pineapple cut into small pieces. Serve in a punchbowl with one full quart of plain or carbonated water and a large piece of ice. This will make a little more than a gallon and will serve fifteen persons liberally. It should be permitted to stand on the ice for a few minutes for proper dilution and must be served very cold.

PINEAPPLE FRAPPE.—Boil together for a quarter of an hour one and a half pints of water and two scant cupfuls of sugar. Pour the hot sirup over a can of grated Hawaiian pineapple, then add the strained juice of three lemons and permit to stand until cold. Strain and then add one pint of pineapple juice and one pint of ice water. Freeze to a mush.

DECIDED IN THE LAST QUARTER.

BY KENNETH CARLYLE BEATSON.

"BIG BILL" KENNEDY could scarcely believe his ears. It did not seem possible that "Midget" Blake, captain of the Oxy "Tigers," could be talking to him like this—the same Midget Blake who at the finish of practice just the day before had patted him encouragingly on the back and told him that he was showing more speed on end runs, and that he was getting into the interference better, and that that last tackle of his was the kind of a tackle a captain liked to see and the kind that always made 'em stop.

"You're not—joking, are you?" Big Bill asked doubtfully.

A frown settled on Blake's freckled face. "I wish I were, Bill," he said earnestly. "Your friendship means something to me, and it's not pleasant to have to tell you this. Some things come before friendship, though—the success of the team, for one thing."

"But—what makes you think I'm yellow?"

"I didn't say I thought you were yellow; that's a pretty strong word. I said that I—I just wasn't quite sure of your nerve. If this were any ordinary game, I'd never have spoken to Stanton. I'd have given you a chance to prove your nerve. But we can't take chances tomorrow, with the conference championship at stake. U.S.C. is going to give us the fight of our lives; one little slip-up could easily cost us the game. We've got to be absolutely sure of every fellow that goes in. And that's just the trouble, Bill—I'm not absolutely sure of you."

"But why aren't you?" Big Bill persisted.

"Because of several things, but principally because of something that happened the first night Stanton switched you over to the first team.

"If you remember, I took your place behind the line on defense and let you lag back as safety man. When practice was almost over I let 'Butch' Larson get through, just to see how you'd act when you found yourself the only tackler between a runner and the goal. Butch was traveling like an express train, and I guess he looked as big as one—but that didn't excuse you for shrinking back and not even trying to stop him.

"I got the idea then that you weren't to be depended on in a pinch, and somehow I've never been able to get rid of it since. I've watched you pretty close, and every once in a while I've seen something to remind me of that day you let Larson through."

Big Bill Kennedy looked down at the floor of the dressing-room, his ears and cheeks afire. Why, it was ridiculous to hold that one failure up as proof that he lacked nerve—a failure made when he had been in a highly nervous state because of having just been put on the regular eleven for the first time, and when he hadn't known how to tackle properly, anyhow! It was simply absurd to think that he would ever shrink back from a runner that way now.

"Maybe I'm wrong, Bill," Midget went on. "I don't suppose you will believe me, but I hope I am. You'll have a chance to prove whether I am or not next year. For that matter," he added, after a momentary pause, "it's possible, of course, that you may have your chance tomorrow; that you may get in against U.S.C. after all."

"But if you've told Stanton how you feel about me; if you've told him you're afraid I've got a streak—"

"I told him; but you know 'Fox' Stanton. He's got a way of relying largely on his own judgment. Naturally, the captain's opinion carries a good deal of weight, but it's possible he may put you in. I don't think he will, but still it's possible."

For a moment neither spoke. Outside on the bleachers, the yell leader had a crowd of rooters practcing Oxy songs and yells. Their voices floated into the dressing-room through an open window. Midget Blake waited until they finished the song they were singing; then he got abruptly to his feet.

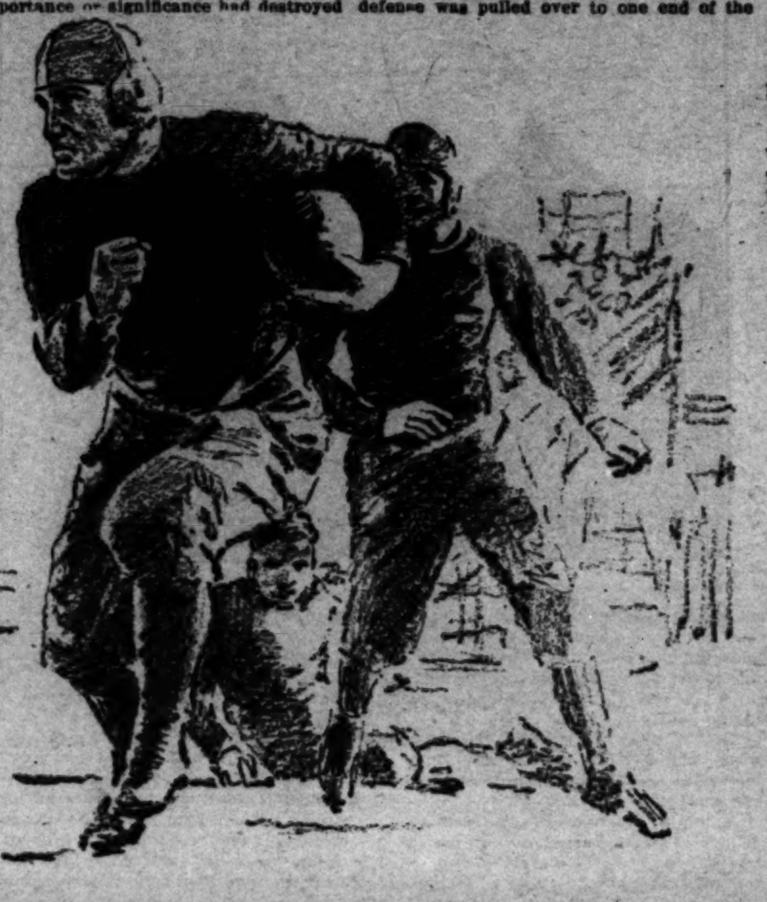
"You and I have been pretty good friends, Bill," he said. "I'd hate to have this make any difference between us. I hope you won't let it; and I don't see why you should. As long as I felt doubtful about you, I simply had to tell Stanton. Why, I'd have done the same, Bill, if you'd been my brother!"

The captain turned and strode out the dressing-room door. Big Bill gazed after him, a tiny wrinkle between his eyes.

When Frank Hathaway, the regular Oxy fullback, had been taken down with the measles two days before, Big Bill had felt sure that he would be put in at the other's place against U.S.C. He'd had every reason for feeling sure. Hadn't he improved during the last few weeks until he was generally considered the "class" of the backfield substitutes? What other sub deserved precedence over him?

But apparently he wasn't going to be put in at Hathaway's place. Apparently he wasn't going to get this chance to win his "O"—this chance he'd earned and was entitled to.

And all because, back there in the early days of the season, some little incident of no importance or significance had destroyed Midget Blake's confidence in his courage.



Down in his heart, though, Big Bill couldn't blame Midget for what he'd done. And he agreed with the other that this shouldn't be allowed to come between them, to interfere with their friendship. Midget had merely done what he'd felt duty-bound to do. His very frankness proved his sincerity. If the captain hadn't valued their friendship so highly, he'd have kept the whole matter a secret between himself and the coach; he could have, easily enough.

No, Big Bill could hold no grudge against Midget Blake for what the latter had done, but—the youth's teeth came together with a click.

"If Stanton only would put me in tomorrow," he breathed—"if he only would—I'd show them whether there's any yellow in my system or not!"

II

Big Bill Kennedy sat hunched up on the ground at one end of the Oxy bench, hugging his knees and watching intently the two sweating, straining, panting teams out on the white-lined field.

All afternoon he had sat there, silent and motionless. He had bestirred himself only once—when the whole squad had retired to the dressing-room between halves for one of "Fox" Stanton's famous vitriolic lectures.

In the first two quarters, Big Bill had seen the two elevens battle desperately up and down the field see-saw fashion, neither ever getting the ball dangerously close to the other's goal; in the third quarter he had seen Wilcox, the giant U.S.C. fullback, kick a perfect field goal from an almost unbelievable distance; in the first minute of play in the final quarter he had seen Starbuck, Oxy's right halfback, dash forty-five yards through a scattered field for a touchdown. Now, being on the safe side of a 7-3 score, Oxy had only to hold their opponents until the final whistle to win.

This, however, Oxy was apparently failing to do. A play which the U.S.C. quarterback had just unearthed had gone through Oxy's defense for three disastrous gains. Oxy seemed completely baffled by that play. Midget Blake was tongue-lashing his men unmercifully, and they were doing their best to respond, but the U.S.C. gains continued.

Big Bill studied the new play. It proved, under close inspection, to be an ordinary end run from an extraordinary formation, with big Wilcox usually carrying the ball. That formation, as bewildering as a Chinese puzzle, was the secret of the play's effectiveness. Almost invariably the whole Oxy defense was pulled over to one end of the line, only to discover Wilcox and his interference skirting the other end.

Surely, Big Bill mused, there must be some way of breaking up the play. All plays, in his experience, had their weak spots, and the ones appeared most complicated at first were often the ones most easily foiled, once a solution could be found.

He turned the possible solutions over in his mind. Perhaps if Morrison, the substitute that had been put in at fullback in Frank Hathaway's place, was sent out to help smash the interference—but that would leave the center of the line weakened, and, anyhow, they could not know which side to send Morrison to. No, that would not do. Perhaps——

Suddenly the youth was on his feet, every nerve in his body aquiver. Why, he knew how to stop that play! It had come to him like a flash. It was simple—as simple as the sum of two plus two!

He started toward Stanton, who stood some ten feet away. Then he paused. A new problem confronted him. Could he go to the coach? Wouldn't Stanton doubt his sincerity; wouldn't the other be apt to think he was just offering an excuse for getting into the game, and turn him down without listening to what he had to say?

Big Bill frowned puzzledly. Something had to be done. Something had to be done in a hurry—a whale of a hurry. He couldn't stand there and let his team be defeated, when he knew a way to prevent it. Maybe he could——

He whirled about suddenly and hurried over to where "Uncle Jimmy" Brown, the old negro trainer, sat. Briefly, tersely, concisely, he explained how that trick play of U.S.C.'s could be broken up. Right at the start, before the play got under way, was the time. Let an Oxy end dash in the instant the center passed the ball and dive into just the right spot, and he'd stack the U.S.C. backfield up like so many sacks of flour.

"You'll have to tell Stanton, Uncle Jimmy," Big Bill finished. "I can't. He'd think I was just trying to push myself into the game. And if he didn't think that, he'd feel he had to put me in because I discovered this; and he doesn't think I've got nerve enough for the first team. You tell him, and let on like you'd discovered this yourself. Then he'll put anybody he wants to in, and——"

A hand fell on his arm. Looking up, he found Stanton standing beside him.

"You—you heard!" he gasped.

"Yes," the coach said quietly, "I heard. Go on in, Kennedy. Take Hurd's end. And—break up that play!"

Big Bill trotted out on the field, and Midget Blake, seeing him, halted the game. Big Bill's breath was coming jerkily and his heart was thumping wildly. It all seemed like a dream, somehow—the players waiting for him to take his place, Blake coming over to meet him, the rooters up there in the pennant-decked stands calling his name encouragingly. Big Bill pinched himself to make sure that he really was awake, and then he laughed at the childishness of the action.

As quickly as he could, he explained to Midget Blake how it came that he had been sent in.

"And—Stanton said you were to play end?" the captain asked in frank surprise.

Big Bill felt the muscles of his lower jaw tighten.

"Yes, he did," he said shortly.

"All right," said Blake; and he sent Hurd to the sidelines.

III

Big Bill reported to the referee, and play was resumed. U.S.C. had the ball. It was the third down and they had five yards to go; and as Big Bill crouched lightly at the extreme left end of the line, he had a premonition that they were going to try to make those five yards with their trick play.

The instant the ball was passed, he raced forward. He knew then that his premonition had been a true one, for the opposing team started to fall into that baffling formation. They did no more than start, however. At the instant he thought the time ripe, Big Bill leaped into them; and the entire U.S.C. backfield went down in an unsightly heap, with big Wilcox at the very bottom of it.

U.S.C. was slow in lining up for the next play. The men seemed a little stunned at having their trick play foiled so completely. The Oxy men, on the other hand, perked up wonderfully. Where a moment before they had slouched half-heartedly about their work, they now went at it with spirit and pep.

Big Bill suddenly found himself a target for praise and compliments. There was scarcely a man on the team but had something nice to say. And best of all, Midget Blake came up and slapped him on the back.

"Mighty pretty work!" he said; but he added doubtfully, "If—if you can only keep it up."

"Don't worry!" Big Bill snapped back. "I'll keep it up, all right."

Again that play was started, and again Big Bill nipped it in the bud. Then Oxy took the ball, U.S.C. having failed to make the required ten yards.

Being within his own fifteen-yard line, Blake promptly punted. Wilcox received the punt and started back with it. Starbuck was the first tackler to reach him; and as the two went to the ground, the ball slipped from beneath them and bounced crazily out of bounds.

Big Bill, who had been but a scant six feet behind Starbuck, followed the ball. It would belong, of course, to the first man to reach it; and Big Bill meant to be that man. Hearing the thud, thud of rival feet close behind, he dived blindly—and crashed into something that certainly was not a football.

Dazedly, he got to his feet. He found that "something" to be a post of the fence which surounded the field; and he found, also, that his right shoulder was aching like an ulcerated tooth.

Midget Blake hurried over, an anxious look in his eyes.

"Hurt, Bill?" he demanded.

"No," Big Bill replied shortly, striving to keep the pain he felt from showing on his face. "I lost the ball, though."

"Well, you shouldn't have lost it," criticised Midget, nettled by Big Bill's brusque

Strange, is it not, that it is necessary to form an organization against efforts of the American Medical Association and the Red Cross to injure the health of the children of the country by unnecessary and harmful "minor operations," enforced or recommended under the guise of "physical examinations."

Houses and Taxes.

THERE is a shortage of houses here, as elsewhere, and efforts are being made to induce lot owners to build.

One of the most effective means to this end would be to increase the tax on unimproved land. At present, a man is punished for making improvements.

The single tax goes too far, but a higher tax on unused land would be just and reasonable, and would encourage improvements.

Japanese in California

NOTWITHSTANDING their many admirable qualities, Japanese and North American civilization cannot exist side by side.

In place of "notwithstanding," perhaps I should have said "because of," for the untiring industry and frugal habits of the Japanese are intolerable evils in the eyes of a large majority of American workers on the Pacific Coast. It is not desirable that men and women should work from sunrise to sunset. In the East the Japanese question is no better understood than is the negro question in the northern States. In the British colonies it is understood.

On the other hand, Japan must expand, or burst. Japan is the Britain of the Orient. Britain has colonies, as a safety valve for her surplus population.

The area of Japan is only 163,000 square miles, or less than that of Texas, while the population is more than half that of the United States, or 380 to the square mile, and is rapidly increasing. There is no "race suicide" in Japan.

Evidently, therefore, Japan must expand in some direction, or her people will starve. All but abject slaves will fight for life, before they starve. The Japanese are not abject slaves. They are a proud, sensitive and aggressive people. Every Japanese esteems it an honor to be permitted to die for his country. A nation like that may be defeated, but can never be conquered.

Such being the case, we should, for our own interest, if not for theirs, and for the peace of the world, seek to aid the Japanese in finding some outlet for their rapidly increasing population—some place where they are not unwelcome, whether in the Orient, in South America, or elsewhere.

The man or newspaper that seeks to kindle the flames of hatred against our neighbors across the Pacific is as great a menace to the community as an incendiary who starts a forest blaze.

Camouflaged Alcohol.

A RECENT number of the North Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station Food Department's Special Bulletin contained an analysis of a widely advertised patent medicine, that is said to effect wonderful cures of all kinds of diseases. A half pint bottle retails for $1.15. It contains water, flavoring matter, and 17% per cent. of alcohol, or half as much as common whisky. Hence its popularity—especially in prohibition circles.

A Crazy World.

POLICEMEN have formed unions. Some persons are talking of unionizing. In Berlin prostitutes met, to form an organization.*

We were told that this would be a different world, after the war, but we were not warned that it was to be a crazy world.

Material for Vivisection.

IN SAN FRANCISCO, the canine pal of an Airedale dog was killed by an automobile. The dog refused to leave his friend's body. For many days he guarded the corpse of his mate, declining food and drink that were brought to him. A police officer tried to take the tag from the dead dog's collar, but the faithful animal would not let him approach.

Such instances of devotion are more common among dogs than among human beings.

CURED HIS RHEUMATISM!

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army, over 50 years ago. Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called 'cures' and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until I could almost taste it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change." You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as try to get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints by taking treatment supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out the truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries," now being distributed free by an authority who devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this trouble. EYES
WHY

Many intelligent persons fail to understand why one pair of spectacles should be worth more than another. They fail to understand that a difference in the strength of the eyes or the presence of astigmatic conditions requires specially made lenses, without which, while the vision may be improved, the health of the eyes is not improved. Only a careful test of the eyes will determine this question. It is better to be right than wrong on such an important question. The correct fitting of eyes calls for knowledge, experience, careful attention and proper facilities. My patients receive this care. Special attention paid to fitting Toric and Kryptok (invisible double vision) lenses.

DR. GOMEZ
213 South Broadway Los Angeles

IN ROMANTIC BOHEMIAN PRAGUE.

BY CLARA VOSTROVSKY WINLOW.

Tyn Church in Old Town Square.

I HAVE used the word Prague for my title, but we shall soon have to get used to another name, and that name is not the German Prag. It is Praha, which the Czechs of Bohemia (Bohemia is the chief of the Czech-Slovak lands) themselves call their beautiful and historic capital.

There is an interesting legend to account for the name, which is derived from the Czech word prah, meaning threshold. In the past of mists and shadows, legend says that the first ruler of Bohemia was a prince named Krok. Krok had three exceptional daughters. The eldest, Kazi, was renowned for her knowledge of herb lore and skill in herb medicine; the second, Teta, was a priestess who taught the people how to worship; the youngest, Libusa, was superior to all in pure wisdom and at her father's death was chosen ruler.

That she was noted for chastity, justice, and kindliness the old chronicler Cosmos tells us, but she had another gift that he did not seem to think so praiseworthy. It was the gift of prophecy.

One day, so the story goes, as she stood on a cliff before the elders of her people, gazing at the dense woods around, the spirit descended on her, and she uttered these words: "Lo! before me I see a city whose glory shall reach to the skies. In the midst of the forest a man is building the sill of a house. There go ye and build." The people did as directed, and the foundations of Praha were laid.

An American Woman is First Lady of the Land.

THERE is one building in which all who visit Praha must take an unusual interest today and that is the ancient castle which was the royal abode when Bohemia was an independent and vigorous kingdom. It has been selected as the official residence of the newly elected President of the Czecho-Slovak republic, Thomas Garigue Masaryk, and in it an American woman of rare charm, Mrs. Masaryk, is now chief lady of the land.

It was constructed after the model of the Louvre in Paris, by the beloved Czech King Charles IV (1346-1378.) During the lifetime of Charles it had an especial importance, for he was also Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire and made Praha not only the capital of the kingdom, but also the capital of the empire. It was occupied while Bohemia maintained its independence and even after when Austrian emperors made it occasionally their home. But for long years its chambers and numerous courts have been practically deserted; its numberless windows have stared blankly down on the seven hilled city from which it seemed strangely cut off; the long years in which an Austrian Emperor repeatedly broke his promises to make his title of King of Bohemia something more than a name by actually going through the ceremony of being crowned in its halls.

A part of the fiery romantic history of Bohemia, what wonderful and varied stories the castle has to tell: of feasts and joys; of gorgeous state receptions; of faith and treachery; of ambitions and determined struggles against great odds; of bombardments, destructions and terror. How the memories crowd and jostle one another from the castle windows! On the mountains opposite once stood the stronghold of Vlasta and her Amazon band, women so strong and daring and beautiful and dangerous that King Premysl feared them even after he had conquered them. "Off with every head in this band of sorceresses," he commanded, "their charms and allurements are of the devil."

Where John Hus Once Led His People.

ACROSS the River Vitava (Moldau,) with its numerous bridges, in the section called Stare Mesto (Old town) once was heard the soul-stirring eloquence of the religious martyr and true patriot, John Hus, a man whose love of justice, hatred of foreign oppression and scorn of evil stirred up a spirit in the entire nation that, though sometimes slumbering, has never died. For how could it die with the Old Town, still medieval, constantly repeating in stone the tales of the Hussites?

There is the Old Town Square which was once the busiest market place in all of this part of Europe, and facing it the Tyn Church, with its two unique slate belfries, where the followers of Hus used to assemble. And there is the white stone pavement which marks the spot where twenty-seven nobles met execution "as if going to a banquet."

There is one thing that is not ancient in this square and that is the gigantic statue by the sculptor Ladislav Saloun of "God's Witness—John Hus." It is cast in bronze. The great reformer's face is impressive in its simplicity and earnestness. It is the face, as some one has said, of one who is more severe to himself than to others.

Although there are other traditions, the Hus tradition dominates all of Old Town. There is the university, for instance, founded by Charles IV, the first university in all of Central Europe, antedating the German universities by half a century. President Masaryk was head of the department of philosophy in it before the war. Here, too, we come in contact with Hus's spirit, but he is honored not as a President, but as one of its rectors, and because of his services to his country and to the national language which he helped to purify.

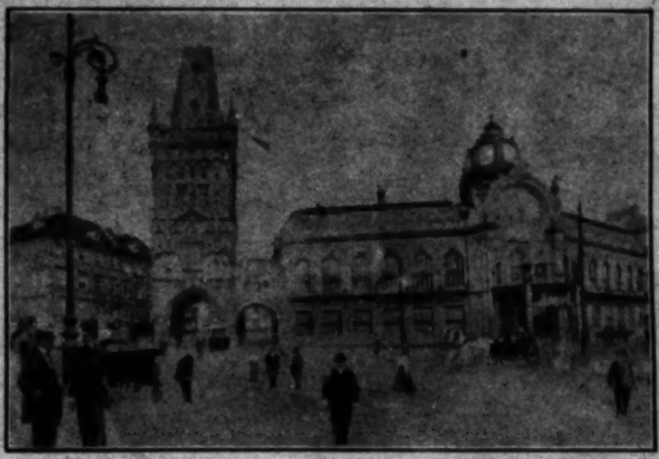
Some little distance from the university is the famous Prasna brana (Powder Gate,) covered with the coats of arms of countries once connected with Bohemia, the only part left of the old fortifications. After the terrible Hussite wars that followed the burning of Hus at the stake at Constance, the royal castle, which has been used as a fortress, was so badly damaged that Bohemian kings lived for many years here, and this gate, with its richly decorated vault, was part of the King's residence.

Old Town is not the only preserved medieval part of Praha. At the foot of the royal castle is Main Strana (Little Side,) where once lived the true Czech nobles. To reach Little Side from Old Town one must go under numerous arcades, through crooked, narrow winding streets that often lead under mysterious looking houses and sometimes end in a blank wall, until one reaches the famous Charles Bridge. At both entrances of the bridge are towers, the one leading into Little Side being an exceedingly picturesque double tower, the lower part dating from the thirteenth century.

In a Colorful Old World Atmosphere.

ONCE through this tower we are in another atmosphere. On every side are old palaces, dark-hued most of them, many strangely and fantastically adorned. There are gables and dormer windows, red and brown mansard roofs, white chimneys, a variety of color and form that are a perpetual delight to the artist and that can be found no where else in Europe. Little Side seems just as ancient, but the atmosphere, as I have already said, is different from Old Town. There is not the air of stern determination, of suppressed passion, but something softer, more yielding. We recall a restaurant serving some of the best meals in Praha; the town pumps at which the servant girls loved to gather, glad of a moment's gossip, and the numerous chimney sweeps, blacker than our blackest negroes.

Many were the delightful days that we spent in one of the Little Side mansions, in intimate companionship with the family of President Masaryk, when we were in Praha shortly before the war. It was in a quaint, somewhat melancholy building in which he then lived, with surroundings that were enchanting. Just opposite loomed the palace built by Count Waldstein, that mysterious personage of the Thirty Years War, "a sovereign in all but name." Twenty-three houses were leveled to make room for it. "In this place," remarks Dr. Lubos Jerabek, "assembled brilliant embassies of foreign monarchs and princes, the officers of Waldstein's armies, the agents of different political parties, and representatives of divers courts and governments. For such visitors, rows of splendid rooms were prepared, among them a large audience hall taking up two stories of the palace and ornamented with beautiful frescoes, in which Waldstein himself is represented as Mars in the panoply of war."



"The Powder Gate."

Opposite this palace are the beautiful gardens of Count Furstenburg. Our favorite way to reach the royal castle, which is just above the gardens from President Masaryk's, was up a steep street bordered by high gabled houses whose balconies projected above us. At the top of this street we would pause to look down on a succession of parks and gardens, on the silvery curves of the Vitava River, immortalized by Dvorak, on the numerous towers and spires that have given Praha the name of the hundred towered. The neighborhood of the mass of buildings of the Hradcany, as the heights in which the castle stands is called, seemed to connect us with the varied aspects of historic Praha and yet somehow let us view them from the outside.

We once found ourselves comparing the most ancient part of the castle that has been preserved, the Gothic Hall built by King Vladislav in 1484, with some of the splendid Waldstein halls. It must have been a notable addition in its day, for a sixteenth century chronicler says of it: "There was no building like it in all of Europe, none longer, higher, broader and yet without pillars." We read further of the assemblies here of the Czech nobles "who were perhaps the richest and proudest in all of Central Europe."

The Charm of the Streets of Praha is Indescribable.

WE WOULD sometimes linger in the Lion's Court the scene of a notable poem; sometimes we would go through the orangery to the tower of Daliborka in hopes of catching some of the ghostly music said to haunt it, and again stroll through Zlata Ulice (Golden Street,) lined with the tiniest, quaintest, most brightly colored houses imaginable, once the homes of the alchemists of the brilliant court of King Rudolph II (1576-1612.)

Near the castle is the magnificent Gothic Cathedral of St. Vitus, begun by Charles IV in 1344, interrupted by Hussite troubles, bombarded by the Prussians when they beseiged Praha. It shows perhaps the fighting spirit through which the Czechs have preserved their nationality, that here the statues are all of men in armor.

Who can estimate the enormous influence that all these fascinating old parts of Praha have had on the inhabitants, ever keeping before them a glory to which they might again aspire, a glory that history tells them was only taken from them by overwhelming force.

But there is another division of the city that has had even a greater role to play in the emancipation of the country and that is the large and rapidly growing modern portion. They stand side by side, the old and romantic and the new and progressive, and although Czechs love the former, they are justly proud of the latter, knowing what it has cost them.

This modern section, Nove Mesto (New Town,) shows that for along time the people have not been satisfied with living on past glories, however dear these glories might be; it shows how industrial Praha has helped in the fight for liberty. Twenty years ago the city was dominated by the Germans who had gradually got control and kept it. German was the language of commerce.

The Determined Czech People Learned Commercialism.

THOUGH the Czechs have naturally no more of the commercial spirit than have other Slavs, they were wide enough awake to realize that commercialism was a weapon that they must work hard to learn to use if they would be free, and so did they learn to use it, so much strength of will and determination did they come to apply, that the Czechs before the war owned all of Praha; banks, business houses, factories were all in their hands; the Czech language, so unrelated to the German, was spoken everywhere.

Among the newer buildings that testify to the virility of the nation are the National Museum, the National Theater, and

MARRIED LIFE OF HELEN AND WARREN

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

Warren's Vigorous American Energy Accelerates Their Departure From London.

"MIGHTY good kipper," approved Warren, buttering his broiled herring.

"It's really a wonderful breakfast for three shillings," Helen selected a crisp toasted muffin. "It would be twice that at home."

"Yes, and you get decent service here—that's more'n you get in New York."

"Dear, it's a very impressive room," surveying the immense restaurant of the Palace Regent, London's newest Picadilly hotel, where they were staying since their return from Edinburgh.

"Three eighty-nine! Three eighty-nine!" called a page coming down the main aisle.

"Isn't that our room?" glancing at the number on the brass-tagged key by her plate. "Dear, that's for us!"

Warren's signal brought the boy to their table.

"A cable!" fluttered Helen tremulously. "Something's happened!"

As he tore open the message, from across the table she made out the six typewritten words.

"Bradwell case on calendar for seventeenth."

"What does it mean?"

"It means that we catch the first boat," grimly.

Unheeding her breathless questions, he snatched up the London Times that lay by his plate.

The next moment he was scanning the fine-typed sailing list.

"Jove, the Laxonia sails from Southampton at 3 o'clock today!"

"Today! Why, dear, we couldn't—"

"Here's where we move fast! I'll go right over to the Cunard office—there may be a room given up the last moment. I've a hunch I'll get something. Now you start packing."

"Why, Warren, it's impossible! We can't get ready—we couldn't if—"

But he was gone before she could finish her protest.

Dazed, she watched him as he strode down the long dining-room and out the glass doors. Even if he did get passage—they could never make it!

Too distraught to finish her breakfast, Helen signed the check and hurried up to their room.

Packing, always a formidable task, at this breathless notice seemed an impossible one.

She had intended buying an extra canvas roll to hold the things they had purchased. How could she ever get them all in?

"Can I do the room now, ma'am?" The maid was at the door.

"No, I'm packing. Just spread up the bed so I'll have some place to lay things. And help me lift out this tray."

Helen was not an orderly packer, she had to get everything "out" before she could put anything "in." By the time Warren returned, the room was in cyclonic disorder.

"We're going!" he waved a long envelope. "That hunch was all right."

"You didn't get passage that quick?" amazed Helen.

"Yes, those Cunard people are mighty decent. They phoned to Southampton and found a stateroom had just been given up. It's down on deck D—but we're lucky to get anything." Then explosively, "What in blazes have you been doing? Not a blamed thing packed."

"Warren, we can't do it! We never can get all these things in."

"Then we'll leave what we can't take. That Southampton train goes at 11:50, and we're going to be on it—if we don't take a damn thing."

"What about all your engagements?" distractedly. "And the Bentons! Dear, we were to dine with them tonight!"

"I'll attend to all that. I'm going down now to do some 'phoning and send some telegrams. Now you get busy here—cram 'em in any old way."

In the nerve racking hour that followed, Helen's flurried haste added to her confusion. Nothing was right. Their two steamer trunks, suitcases and roll would not begin to hold the additional bulk of their purchases.

The maid, stimulated by a half-crown tip, had brought some brown paper and heavy cord for extra packages.

"Everything's all cleaned up!" announced Warren when he finally strode in. "Got Harding on the wire. Everything O.K."

"What about the laundry?" anxioused Helen. "We just sent it yesterday."

"Now we're not going to worry over a few shirts. What's all this?"

"Our raincoats, bathrobes, your old suit and sweater, and my blue suit—you'll have to put them in the roll with the steamer rugs."

"Never get all that in! Give my old suit to the porter. What's this?"

"Your shoes. They'll have to go in a bundle—they take up too much room. That? Oh, that's the old needlework picture I bought in Edinburgh."

"Huh, you will load up with a lot of antique junk," he snorted. "Thought I told you to buy nothing bulky."

"All I bought doesn't take up as much room as your three new suits."

"See here, this paper isn't strong enough for all this stuff!"

"Dear, you'll have to make it do. It's all she could get."

With much growling and some profanity, Warren succeeded in doing up the two packages and strapping the roll to its bulging capacity.

"Now we leave here in fifteen minutes," scowling at his watch. "We'll take no chances on missing that train. You finish up—I'll run down and pay the bill."

"Wait, dear, lift in this tray first—your trunk's all ready to lock."

But the lower part was too full. Some underwear and Warren's bedroom slippers had to be taken out before the tray would set in.

"Where can I put these? There's not an inch of room in my trunks."

"Then leave them. We'll carry no more bundles," as he slammed out.

The underwear Helen finally crammed into the corners of the already bulging suitcase. With everything overfull, there still remained his bedroom slippers, a bottle of toilet water and a jar of cold cream.

The slippers she thrust into his overcoat pockets, the toilet water and cold cream into the pockets of her own coat. That took everything but a bottle of cleaning fluid and some shoe polish, which she reluctantly left.

"The gentleman sent me for the luggage, ma'am." She had opened the door to the porter. "Those packages go too?" as he dragged out a trunk.

"No, just the two trunks, suitcase and roll. We'll carry the rest."

"All ready?" Warren brisked in a moment later.

"Yes, he's just taken the trunks. Oh, I forgot to give him that suit!"

Shrugging on his overcoat Warren gathered up the bulky packages, leaving Helen to carry the umbrellas and the suit for the porter.

Down the hall, into the lift, through the imposing marbled rotunda to the side entrance, where their trunks were waiting.

The porter was having a heated argument with an obdurate taxi driver.

"He won't take them, sir. He says they're too heavy for his cab."

"Then get another—quick!" ordered Warren. "We've got just twenty-five minutes to make Waterloo!"

The porter ran down the street shrilling his whistle. Several anxious moments passed. Warren strode up and down, his silence grimly ominous.

"Dear, we won't miss it? You don't think we will?" anguished Helen. "Oh, here comes a taxi!"

"Twenty shillings if you get us to Waterloo in twenty-five minutes!" shouted Warren as the man drew up.

"Yes, sir. I think we can make it, sir," jumping down to help the porter lift the trunks up in front.

The hand baggage inside, Warren thrust some change into the porter's expectant palm and they were off.

"Oh, I forgot to give him this," dismayed Helen, staring at the suit she was still clutching tight.

"Give it to the cabman," shrugged Warren.

Regardless of speed laws, they were now whirling down Picadilly.

"Dear, how far is it? Oh, we will have time, won't we?"

Warren did not trouble to answer. He was leaning forward, his face flushed, biting

As I have said, in almost all cases of drug addiction the will is weak. Therefore, to get the best results, the patient should be under restraint.

If only one per cent. of the money expended by millionaires in founding institutions for useless experiments on animals and men were spent in establishing rational cures, thousands would be redeemed, not only from drug habits, but also from insanity.

Fishy Milk.

A LOCAL fish packing company is perfecting a process whereby the wastage, hitherto used for fertilizer, will be turned into cow fodder.

For those who like that sort of thing, it is, I suppose, about the sort of thing they like, but cows are clean feeders, until they have been forced by man to eat brewery swill and that sort of thing, and it may not be so easy to get them to pass on to the ultimate consumer the fishy product.

Tuberculosis.

THE Southwestern Tuberculosis Congress, held in Long Beach, Cal., early in October, lasted three days. Fifty-eight papers were read, yet not one of them dealt with the most important subject of diet.

All tuberculosis begins in the stomach. There never was, nor ever will be a consumptive with sound digestion.

Notwithstanding this, menus served at consumptive hospitals show no more regard to health than those of a third-class restaurant. Menus sent me by patients at such places are almost unbelievable.

The enormous amounts of mixed and messed up mucus and acid producing foods, with eggs and milk in between, would sicken a woodchopper.

If the patient could digest this food he would die of apoplexy. As it is, it ferments in the stomach and keeps him sick.

And with all this, no system of exercise.

There is only one cure for tuberculosis. Fresh air, graduated exercise, development of the lungs, a spare, abstemious diet, rich in organic salts, as found especially in raw, green stuff, the diet to be adapted to the powers of digestion, and gradually increasing, as the digestion improves, air and sun baths.

Under such a treatment, all who are not altogether too far gone will rapidly recover. Under the present unnatural system millions of dollars are wasted.

All talk of "stamping out" tuberculosis is foolishness. If you could cure every consumptive tomorrow, more would immediately develop, through wrong living.

Teach the people how to live right. That is the only way to "stamp out" tuberculosis. That, however, does not seem to be on the medical programme.

Shocking.

FOLLOWING coarse and brutal attack on the medical profession is from a recent editorial in the Los Angeles Examiner:

"Railroad experts are like medical experts who testify as to the state of mind of a very wealthy person, whom somebody has an interested motive in proving insane.

"The desired expert testimony is given and the expert is paid a very large fee.

"It is always possible to get expert testimony of any kind by paying for it."

To say that I am shocked is putting it mildly.

Protecting School Children.

FOLLOWING bulletin has been issued by the Public School Protective League (Los Angeles:)

"The State Board of Health has recently announced a campaign to 'popularize' vaccination and has issued a bulletin directed to all physicians in California stating that 80 per cent. of the school children are unvaccinated and suggesting that immediate steps be taken to secure their vaccination.

"The City Health Officer of Los Angeles has filed with the Board of Education a demand that all unvaccinated children and employees be excluded from the Los Feliz school. This demand is based upon an alleged case of smallpox in the Los Feliz school district.

"The law also provides that when the State Board of Health shall make its finding that smallpox exists in a community and the local health officer files a certificate requiring it, all unvaccinated students and employees may be excluded from exposed schools.

"The law also provides, that when unvaccinated students or teachers are excluded they must be transferred to a school which has not been exposed.

"Under no circumstances can compulsory vaccination of teachers or students be ordered.

"The league has since brought suit against the Board of Education to compel admission of the pupil to another school."

The Red Cross—practically controlled by the American Medical Association—recently attempted compulsory "examinations" of school children in San Diego. In answer to a complaint, Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, wrote:

"Health inspection can be carried on by authority of and under the direction of the Board of Trustees or Board of Education.

"Actual inspection can be done only by people who are certificated according to law.

"The law does not give the school board

Some Good Short Stories from Everywhere.

Compiled for The Times Illustrated Magazine.

Some Shell Game.

SIR MARCUS SAMUEL of London has bought Berkeley Square, the most aristocratic residence section in the world, from Lord Berkeley. Sir Marcus is a self-made man, par excellence.

He began life, in fact, as the proprietor of a tiny shop in Houndsditch where he sold little boxes that he made himself out of sea shells. He is so proud of this beginning that he is now called "Shell" Samuel by his friends The nickname delights him.

With the money he gained from his shell box shop, Samuel went into the oil trade, and the Shell Motor Spirit firm, of which he is head, is now one of the most important concerns in England.

The millionaire Sir Marcus likes people to ask him why his firm is called shell, for this gives him a chance to tell the story of his humble start as a shell box dealer—a start that is commemorated in the name of his great oil business.

The Bareback Gown

JAY GOULD is noted in New York society for his witty remarks. At a Newport Beach party last month, apropos of a discussion, he put this conundrum to the guests.

"How do our American belles in their daring evening gowns resemble Lot's wife?"

After several unsuccessful guesses by those present, Mr. Gould came to their aid.

"Lot's wife looked back," he said, "and our belles look almost all back."

Finally, she turned to a tall, lank gentleman and asked: "And how many languages do you speak, Mr. Blank?"

"Three, ma'am," drawled the southerner: "Poor English, fair Virginian, and perfect nigger"

Hard Luck Too.

CARL EMIL JUNCK, the Chicago millionaire importer, said at a sangerfest:

"Only an incurable optimist like my friend Wash White could regard Germany's future as promising and hopeful.

"I met Wash the other day with a big raw gash in his forehead.

"'What does that gash mean, Washington?' I asked.

"'What does it mean?' grinned Wash. 'Why, Mr. Junck, it means good luck, dat's what it means. Dog Fish.

ED WENTWORTH, the famous play builder, is in California for a vacation and not so very long ago took a girl down to Santa Monica where they went fishing. Next day Will Wyatt of the Mason remarked:

"Ed, I don't see how you could stand going fishing with a girl. Didn't she make a lot of protests about being cruel to the fish when you unhooked them?"

"No," replied Wentworth, "she insisted that they must be perfectly happy because they all wagged their tails."

SENATOR JOHNSON advocating in a San Francisco political speech the "back to the land" movement for returning soldiers said:

"It is not enough to give our doughboys farms. We must give them agricultural training as well. Otherwise they will make mistakes like the Canadian farmer."

Senator Johnson smiled.

"An Englishman," he continued, "seeking to better his fortune, went to Canada. He decided to go in for chicken raising, so bought from a neighboring farmer a hen and thirteen eggs for setting purposes.

"About six weeks later, he met the farmer, who asked:

"'Say, Mr. Brown, what luck did you have with that hen I sold you?'

"'Oh,' was the reply, 'both good and bad. I got twelve chicks, but they all died.'

"'Died! What did you feed them?'

"'Feed them!' exclaimed the astonished amateur. 'I didn't feed them. I thought they suckled.'"

"'I was wondering if all that stuff about milk and honey in heaven wasn't bunk.'"

Great Scott!

AN OLD Englishman, James Scott by name, traveled about on business until he was nearly eighty years of age. He became celebrated for his punctuality and methodical habits. Upon one occasion a gentleman stopped at an inn much frequented by Mr. Scott and saw a fine fowl cooking.

"That looks very good," said the hungry guest. "You may serve that for my dinner."

"You cannot have that, sir," replied the landlord. "That is being cooked for Mr. Scott, the traveler."

"I know Mr. Scott very well," said the gentleman. "Is he stopping here?"

"Oh, no, sir," answered the landlord. "But six months ago he ordered a fowl to be ready for him at precisely 2 o'clock today, and we are expecting him every minute."

Playing Safe.

HOLAND DE WITTE ROBERTS, while visiting in Los Angeles recently told a story of the early days when he was a cub reporter on one of the Chicago dailies.

Seems he was sent to cover a wedding and when he came back, included in his copy the following line:

"The blushing young bride, as she stood by the altar, revealed the proportions of a Jumbo."

"Young man," said the editor, scowling at him, "if you value your life and my reputation, you will change that 'Jumbo' to 'Juno' whether it's the truth or not."

In the Last Quarter.

manager. "If you'd kept your eyes open, and watched where you were going, you'd have had it easy."

Big Bill thought his shoulder was only slightly sprained; he felt sure it would be all right in a minute. It wasn't, though. On the contrary, it was aching worse than ever. And it continued to ache worse and worse still.

U.S.C. discarded their trick play, being evidently reconciled to the fact that Big Bill had solved it. They began using straight plays only. These straight plays did not meet with startling success, however. The first three of them netted a total of five yards. Then an end run was sent around Big Bill's side of the line.

The tackle broke through and smashed the interference, leaving the runner unprotected. Big Bill closed in. When the runner was some five feet away he tackled. He was prepared for a shock as his injured shoulder met the other's knees, but he was scarcely prepared for the shock he experienced. It seemed as if his shoulders were being torn to shreds, and he could hardly hold the U.S.C. man's legs. He did hold them, though. He held them until the referee came up and bellowed. "Down!"

Oxy took the ball, ran it up the field some twenty yards, and lost it on a fumble. Then U.S.C. directed another end run at Big Bill.

Big Bill tried his best to stop it. He ground his teeth, dashed in, and threw himself headlong into the runner; but just when he should have closed his arms about the other's knees, the pain in his shoulder suddenly increased until it was almost unbearable. He relaxed momentarily—and the runner sped on for a twelve-yard gain.

Sick and deeply ashamed, Big Bill arose from the ground. He was so dizzy he could scarcely stand, and he would have shouted for joy if he'd had the strength when the U.S.C. captain called for "time out."

While he was resting, he glanced up to find Midget Blake standing above him.

"What on earth happened, Bill?" the captain demanded. "Why didn't you tackle that fellow?"

"I did tackle him," declared Big Bill, speaking through clenched teeth. "My shoulder hurt so bad that I couldn't hold him, though. I—"—

"Your shoulder?" Midget raised his eyebrows skeptically. "What's wrong with your shoulder?"

"I hurt it that time I dived into the fence. I thought it was only a strain, but it must be worse than that. I—I never knew anything could hurt the way it's hurting."

Midget rubbed his chin.

"Do you want to quit, Bill?" he inquired. "Do you want me to put a substitute in?"

"It isn't what I want to do," Big Bill replied with spirit. "It's what I think I ought to do. I can't put up any kind of a game, with my shoulder aching the way it is. I—" He broke off suddenly, flushing scarlet. "Oh, I know what you're thinking!" he exclaimed. "You think I've lost my nerve—that my yellow streak is showing. If you only knew . . ."

"Well," Midget said patiently, ignoring the big fellow's outburst, "what do you say—shall I call the sub in?"

"What if they try that trick play again? Do you think you could break it up now, after seeing me do it?"

"All you did was to dive in just as the play started; just as Wilcox got the ball from Hasard, wasn't it?"

"Yes, but—listen, Midget. Why can't you take my place when they've got the ball, and let me drop back as safety man—like you did that first night I played on the first team, when I let Butch Larson through. There's only a minute or two more of play, and U.S.C. is pretty apt to keep the ball till the game's over."

"All right," Midget Blake agreed, after a moment's hesitation.

A moment later, play was resumed, and Big Bill dropped back some twenty yards behind the line of scrimmage.

IV

Despondently, Kennedy watched the teams line up. A signal was called, and a play was started—and Big Bill caught his breath with a gasp. Dizzy as he was from the horrible pain in his shoulder, he could not mistake that baffling formation. The U.S.C. quarterback was using his trick play again!

Big Bill saw Midget race in, just as Big Bill himself had done, and poise for a dive. Then, just at the critical instant, he saw him hesitate—and fail utterly. Wilcox was finally stopped, but not until he had gained a full dozen yards.

Big Bill was puzzled. U.S.C. was sure to use the play again, but he didn't know whether he ought to go up and offer to try to stop it or not. He wasn't sure he could stop it, with his shoulder setting him half crazy; and he wasn't sure, either, that the offer would be kindly received. Perhaps Midget would do better next time.

Midget didn't though. He hesitated again when he should have acted promptly, and failed as completely as he had before.

Big Bill waited no longer. Fighting down a groan at every step, he hurried up and caught the captain's arm.

"Let me try it, Midget," he begged, his words coming jerkily through his white lips. "You're diving too late. You're—"

Blake whirled about.

"Let you try it?" he repeated. "Why, you couldn't stop an ordinary end run a minute ago, so I don't see—"

"Well, I stopped this play before, didn't I? And I couldn't do much worse than you're doing, could I?"

"No," Midget admitted slowly, "I guess you couldn't. Another gain like that last one will just about cost us the game. Go ahead, then. Maybe they won't use the trick play again when they see you're back there; they know you've got its number."

However, they did use the trick play again. And Big Bill, gritting his teeth savagely, closed in to meet it. For one brief instant, he thought he was going to fail. It seemed that he simply could not bring himself to slam his injured shoulder into Wilcox's wicked-looking knees. But before it was too late he gained control of himself and dived; and as the U.S.C. backs crashed down upon him and about him, he heard the referee's whistle announce the end of the game.

For a while after that, things seemed strangely blurred and distorted. Big Bill was vaguely conscious of the fact that somebody was helping him off the field, but he had no idea who that somebody was. When he became himself again, he was lying on a rubbing table in the dressing-room and Midget Blake was bending over him.

"What—what's wrong?" Big Bill asked blankly. "Am I hurt?"

"Torn ligament," Midget replied. "Uncle Jimmy says it's more painful than a broken bone, but not at all serious. You'll be all Jake again in ten days or so."

A confused memory of the finish of the game came to Big Bill.

"I—I stopped Wilcox, didn't I?" he demanded anxiously.

"You certainly did. You dived into him with that hurt shoulder as unconcerned as if you'd been diving into a swimming tank. You—got an apology coming, Bill. A mighty humble one. When the pinch came, I was the one to show yellow."

"You just didn't know when to dive, that was all. You—"

"No, that wasn't all—by a darn sight. I knew pretty well when to dive, but I couldn't bring myself to dive quick enough. I'd look at Wilcox, and he'd seem so big and bulky that I simply couldn't help but hesitate a little before smashing into him. And then it'd be too late."

For a moment neither spoke.

"Where's Stanton?" Big Bill asked finally, when the silence began to be awkward.

"The last I saw of him, he had the newspaper fellows cornered and was warning them that if they didn't each give that last play of yours a half-column write-up, he'd see that if they ever got into this field to witness a football game again, they'd pay their way. They weren't arguing with him, either."

Big Bill forgot his aching shoulder and grinned happily up at the dressing-room ceiling.

CARE OF THE BODY

CONDUCTED BY HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N. D.

Habit-forming Drugs.

LAST week I discussed the subject of drugs and drug diseases. This week I shall say something about what are commonly known as habit-forming drugs, although properly all drugs come more or less under this designation. There are said to be 500,000 drug addicts in the United States. I believe there are far more.

While prohibitionists have been bringing their batteries to bear against one habit-forming drug—alcohol—even when used in the mild and comparatively harmless form of light wine or beer, the use of these far more dangerous compounds, such as morphine, opium, cocain or heroin, has increased by leaps and bounds, especially since the use of alcohol has been cut off, or made more difficult. Incidentally, it may be remarked that all these deadly drugs have been introduced by the medical fraternity. Even distilled alcohol was brought from Arabia, by an Italian physician, and popularized as an "elixir of life." Absinthe was first introduced in Algerian hospitals, as an anesthetic. Medical journals admit that a great many physicians are drug addicts.

Physicians have been shamefully reckless in prescribing morphine to patients. I know a few conservative men who will not prescribe it under any circumstances, but alas, they are an insignificant minority. R. L. Alsaker, M.D., writes:

"Unfortunately, the medical profession is careless, and is responsible for the existence of many of the drug addicts. A patient has a severe pain. What is the easiest way to satisfy him? To give a hypodermic injection of some opiate. The patient, not realizing the danger, demands a pain-killer every time he suffers. He soon learns what he is getting, and then he goes to the drug store and gets a hypodermic outfit and drugs, and the first thing he knows he is a slave, in bondage for life.

"This is no exaggeration. There are hundreds of thousands of victims to the drug habit who trace their downfall to the treatment received at the hands of reputable physicians, who do not look upon their practice with the horror it should inspire, because it is so common. Doctors do not always bury their mistakes. Some of them walk about for years.

"In spite of laws against the sale of various drugs, they can be obtained. There are doctors and druggists of easy conscience who are very accommodating, for a price.

"There is no legitimate need for the use of one-hundredth of the amount of these drugs that is now consumed. A local injection of cocaine for a minor operation is justifiable, but none of the habit-forming drugs should be used in ordinary practice, to kill pain, for the proper application of water, in conjunction with right living will do better, and there are no evil after effects. Massage is often sufficient.

"The medical profession furnishes more than its proportion of drug addicts. They know the danger of the drugs, but familiarity breeds contempt. If the public but knew how many of these advisers, who should always be clear-minded, are befuddled by drugs, there would be a great awakening. One eminent physician, who has now been in practice forty-five years, and has had much experience with drug addicts, has said that according to his observations about one physician in four contracts the drug habit. I believe this is exaggerated, but I am acquainted with a number of physicians who are addicts."

Most of the "soothing syrups" contain opium in some form. To give babies opiates is a crime, laying the foundation for a deadly habit, while an overdose often kills outright.

Many of the "remedies" for nasal catarrh and hay fever contain much cocaine. Cocaine is an astringent and a painkiller and people mistake the temporary lessening of discharge from the nose and disappearance of pain for curative effects. But there is nothing curative about it. In a short time the mucus membrane relaxes again and then the discharge is reestablished. The nerves which were put out of commission resume their function, and then the pain reappears.

Opium, or one of its derivatives, is generally present in the patent medicines given for coughs. Opium is also an astringent, and will suppress secretions, but this is not a cure. Excessive secretions are an indication that the body is surcharged with poison and food. Let them escape, and then live so that there will be internal cleanliness and then there will be no coughs and colds.

These deadly drugs are far more serious in their effects than alcohol. It is quite common for an alcohol drunkard to abandon its use, but the confirmed drug addict is almost hopeless. He is a moral and physical wreck, utterly lacking in will power.

At the instance of physicians, a clinic is to be established in Los Angeles, for the treatment of drug addicts. Having got the administration of alcohol away from the saloons, the medical fraternity now aims at control of narcotic drugs. However, the main point is that drug addicts cannot be cured in such manner—either by trying to gradually reduce the amount, or by substituting some other, and perhaps equally harmful poison.

It is suggested that those enslaved by this habit may continue at their usual occupations during a cure. This cannot be. Giving up a drug habit involves an awful physical and mental strain, and unfits a man for business. In his "Confessions of an Opium Eater" De Quincy has shown what suffering it entails.

He writes: "I no longer take opium for the pleasure it first produced, but to be delivered from the torments of the damned."

It is impossible to avoid this suffering as long as the stomach is irritated with stimulating foods. Confirmed smokers all know how, after a banquet, the craving for a smoke is irresistible, while after a milk meal of milk and bread, or a little fruit, it is quite different, and still more so after a few days' fast, with a thorough cleansing of the colon.

This points the way to a safe, sure, comparatively easy and lasting cure. With this should go hydrotherapeutic treatment—water scientifically applied, externally. After a removal of the sheets, following a wet pack, the odor of a drug from a patient's body will permeate a house. And after every such application the craving for more, caused by the presence of the drug in the blood, is lessened.

In brief, then, here is the only rational, effective and permanent cure for a drug habit, whether it is alcohol, nicotine or one of the other narcotic poisons:

First should come a fast of at least a week, followed by a fruit fast for another week. Then may follow a month of milk and fruit—say not over two quarts of raw, not sterilized, milk, in four meals. Then, for at least a month there must be an exceedingly bland dietary of such things as strained oatmeal, bananas and milk, buttermilk and baked potato, etc., avoiding all condiments and cane sugar. Having thus laid the foundation, the patient should then continue to avoid condiments and highly spiced food and should eat little meat.

For elimination there must be water treatment, consisting of wet packs, steam baths, also sun and air baths, and friction of the skin. This should be combined with proper breathing and moderate exercise, also oiling of the body, after a warm bath.

The mental side must not be overlooked. There should be helpful suggestion, and the patient's mind should be turned in the direction of wholesome, stimulating thoughts.

Campin

by Ra

ONE time four of us fellers went camping. I was the oldest, I was supposed to be a moral censor. I wasn't really qualified for the job but I was so innocent looking that folks often fooled themselves about me. Ma always said I should become a preacher. I suppose it was because she saw me studying the Bible a good deal. I was hunting for cuss words but she didn't know that.

The feller that I was to keep an eye on most was rich. His father ran a general store and this feller helped him. That's how us fellers got our small change. The other two fellers was just boys. One was called Stump and the other one Slivers. That tells you what they looked like. The fellers called me Skinny and the rich feller was Buck to his friends. His real name was Billy, and he was a he goat if you ask me. He'd butt in anywhere. He was our leader. We depended on him for most everything. He could read better than the rest of us and the way he'd read a pirate story was mighty fine. He'd act it out as he went along. Whenever it came to where it told about killing we'd have to dodge or get hurt. It was great.

Buck had us fellers pretty near ready for anything. He had a room in the attic all to himself and he had a mighty fine lot of stuff in it. Guns and knives and fishing rods and pictures and grub and everything. He was fixed up right. He was the one that started us on this camping trip. He had a big trunk in his room and he filled it with grub that he swiped from his father's store a little at a time. When he got it filled there was everything in that trunk a feller could want to eat. Pickles and herring and cheese of all kinds and nuts and candy and canned stuff of all kinds. It was a bully selection.

Buck's father was the finest man I ever knew. He knew everything that Buck was doing but he never let on. He was a wise father and he knew his own child.

About 12 o'clock on the night we started on this camping trip. I got the boys all herded in Buck's backyard. We had a covered wagon with cots and bedding and a tent loaded in it waiting in the yard, so Stump and Slivers climbed in and went to sleep in a minute. Buck and me didn't care. We had to bring that trunk full of grub downstairs and we didn't want to be bothered. Buck said we'd have to go mighty careful so his old man wouldn't hear us. I knew Buck's paw was wise but I never said a word.

We got the trunk down to the first flight of stairs all right and got it past Buck's father's bedroom door in good shape We rested a bit at the top of the next flight of stairs. Buck had been in [illegible]ad coming down and I held back. [illegible] wanted to change off with me and like a fool I let him do it. I started with the front end of that trunk. Buck must of forgot to grab his end. I beat it to the bottom of the stairs, not much, but enough to save my life. It made an awful racket but it didn't bust open. Buck was pretty white when he got down to where I was. He was scared his paw might hear us and come down. I knew he wouldn't, but I had to look scared, too, or it would spoil everything.

It was pretty quiet when we passed through town and the horse's feet went "calump-calump," loud enough to wake up all the dogs in town. We all sung "Good night ladies" and the dogs barked until the policeman said he'd run us in if we didn't shut up. Buck wanted to lick him but I wouldn't let him so after awhile he quieted down and we all went to sleep, the kid drove.

We'd hired the horse and wagon from an Italian and he sent his kid along to drive and take care of the horse. It was the smallest kid and the biggest horse I ever see, but the horse could pull, and the kid said he could drive, so off we started. The kid was kinder scared of us. We had on black shirts and cowboy hats and red handkerchiefs around our necks and some red cloth around our waist for sashes. It was Buck's idea and the stuff all came out of his father's store.

I woke up about daylight and we was way up in the mountains. I could see for miles and miles. It was a beautiful sight with the sun coming up and I would have enjoyed it only Buck bit me on the leg. I'd been sitting on his face. I thought I felt something hard under me but that sunrise was so beautiful that I hadn't paid any attention to where I was sitting. I didn't get mad—I couldn't, being moral censor I had to hold my temper. I made a crack at Buck and missed him and hit Stump square in the eye, that woke him up and he thought Slivers had bit him so he started to clean Slivers up. Slivers woke up and started to do his best to save his life.

It was pretty lively for a minute or two but I got things straightened out after a while. We all took a drink out of a bottle Buck brought along cause it was a kind of chilly sunrise. We didn't want to catch cold and maybe die of pneumonia. Our parents had great hopes for us and we didn't want to disappoint them.

Buck's girl had made a cake for him and it was up on the seat beside the kid. Buck put it there to be safe. We decided to have it for breakfast. That is Stump and Slivers and I did. Buck said we'd have it for supper. It was a mighty fine cake. But it was a sight after we got done fighting for it. Nobody got much cake. It was all in the wagon but it was mixed up with the bedding and other stuff so that it just about disappeared. Stump said it was most marvelous. Stump was fine in a fight but he never said much, when he did he used big words for choice.

It had clouded up a bit while we was scrapping over the cake and pretty soon it began to rain and we all sang about it being always fine weather when good fellers was together. When we got to our camping place it was still raining so we said we'd have breakfast in the wagon. I said we'd better wash up first but nobody paid any attention, so we opened up the trunk. The smell that came out was beautiful. Especially the herring and the cheese. Things was pretty well mixed up in the trunk but we grabbed what we wanted and ate it with thankful hearts. We are growing boys and we was hungry.

After breakfast the rain began to ease up so we thought we had better set up the tent. So we hauled her out—that is Buck and Stump and Slivers hauled —I stood in the wagon and shoved. She came out fine. I jumped down out of the wagon when she was out to help set her up. The fellers was nowhere in sight. It was most marvelous, as Stump would say. While I stood there the tent began to jump around like it was alive and pretty soon out come the fellers. I was mighty glad and I couldn't see why they all wanted to jump me. I'd done my part. When they hollered "shove," I shoved and that was all there was to it. I explained it maybe a dozen times and in a different voice every time, but it didn't do any good so I give it up.

Everybody cooled down after a while and we pulled straws to see who'd dig the hole for the center pole. Buck lost but he made the kid do it. The kid wanted to look after his horse. He said that was his job but after Buck argued with him a little while he dug the hole. Buck superintended the job and the rest of us was inspectors and it was found to be a good job. We all set to and got the tent up. She was pretty wabbly when we got done. We was tired and the ground was hard and the sun was hot so we didn't drive many stakes to hold her.

The kid went for the water. He was a good kid and mighty obliging after the first few times. In fact he got so he'd almost fly when any of us asked him to do anything. He didn't need to be scared of us and I told him so but it didn't do any good. I suppose we was a hard looking crowd. He was a good kid and done his best all the time he was with us and I wanted him to be happy.

We sat around and smoked and sung while we waited for the spuds to boil. Every once in a while the fire would go out. The fellers would yell at me like I was deaf every time it happened. After it went out three or four times I asked the kid to tend it. I was getting pretty tired of the fellers so I said I'd go for a stroll. They said "All right, hurry back." I went down the road through the woods for a mile or so and I heard voices, female voices. I went along pretty quiet till I came to a little brook. There was a swimming hole in it with bushes growing all around and some girls was in swimming. I didn't want to disturb them so I didn't make much noise. I don't suppose they thought there was a boy within twenty miles of them. They was in the water up to their necks but it was mighty clear water. They must have heard me coming cause when I peeked through the bushes they was all standing still and listening. They ought to have had something thicker around them, than that water, if you ask me. I said, "Hello girls," and come out of the bushes.

Would you believe it they made more fuss than though I was a bear. They raised the very deuce. And cats couldn't beat them for yelling. I didn't stay. I got up and left, I wasn't no bear. I was a gentleman.

I went back to camp. Buck was sitting on the ground with all the bottles we had between his knees. There was ketchup bottles and a vinegar bottle and a big bottle of ink I'd brought along to keep a diary with and some other bottles Buck had brought along for colds. He had 'em all. And he had a revolver. He'd grab a bottle with one hand and shoot the gun with the other.

I couldn't see the idea until I looked up in a tree that Buck's gun was pointing at. The kid was way up in the top hanging on for dear life. Buck's shooting was rank so I see the kid was safe enough. Stump and Slivers was behind trees and they waved their hands at me and hollered for me to look out. He looked funny but I didn't laugh. I walked up behind him and cuffed him on the head and grabbed the gun and threw it as far as I could.

When Stump and Slivers pulled Buck off me I must of been a sight. I wasn't mad though. If I'd a got mad Buck's father would of been shy a son and I'd promised to take good care of him. We tied him to a tree with the halter rope and he fizzled like a soda fountain. After while we put him on a cot and wrapped him up in a lot of blankets. But we hid his clothes. He went to sleep like a baby, not at first though. In fact it was Stump that put him to sleep. Stump don't say much but he's sure got a punch. I didn't kiss Buck good night. He looked peaceful enough and maybe his father expected it of me but I just couldn't do it.

The day was pretty well gone by the time we got Buck to bed and we was tired and hungry. We dug down in the trunk and got out stuff for supper. We ate a bully supper and then had a smoke. We was pretty comfortable. The moon came up over the treetops and pretty soon an owl began to hoot. It was mighty spooky. I thought of that kid up in the tree and tried to coax him down with grub. But it was no use. He was too scared. I left the grub at the foot of the tree for bait anyhow.

We set around until the moon went down and then went to bed. I dreamed I was a sailor and I was out to sea in an awful storm. I thought the wind was blowing the mainsail right out of the ship. I could feel it wrapping around me in spite of all I could do. It was such a vivid dream it woke me up. I was fighting like the deuce and there was canvas wrapped all around me. I got scared.

After I fought maybe a minute I heard Buck yell and Stump and Slivers cuss and then I knew right away what was wrong. It had rained and the wind had got up and the blamed tent had blown down. We got out after a while. I wasn't mad but I wasn't as cheerful as I could have been and when Slivers laughed at the way I looked I just whanged him in the eye. After Buck and Stump pulled us apart we shook hands. But we didn't look any better. Buck and Stump was sights too.

We lost the kid then. He must have come down out of the tree and skinned for home during the excitement. We missed him a lot, he was a mighty useful kid. When morning came we decided we wouldn't put up the tent. We got the trunk out and had breakfast. We wasn't very hungry. That is not for the stuff in the trunk. I said I'd give a million dollars for some buckwheat cakes, and sausage, and hot coffee, and maple syrup, and I was going to say more only Buck got mad. He said he'd stole grub for pretty near a month and he didn't like my talk.

I didn't get mad. I shut up. But I was getting tired of camping. So was the rest for that matter. We'd fixed camp for two weeks and more if we liked it. I could see that we'd all had about enough. I didn't quit first though. I just said "d——n this camping anyhow. I can't see how any one in their right mind would want to camp out if they had any place to stay. Nobody but a born fool could see any fun in it. It was as near nothing as anything I ever saw," and so on, and so on.

But I didn't quit. In fact nobody did exactly but the stuff got on the wagon somehow. I was too blame disgusted to think much about it. I had to hitch up the horse, I remember, and I made a kick at him that would have caved in all his ribs if it had landed. He jumped sideways just in time and I sat down on the ground so hard I thought my spine would come out of the top of my hat. We left all the grub except the canned stuff and started for home.

The sun came out and the old horse jogged along. We all four sat on the seat. Buck and I sat in the middle. We all tried to sing, "Merrily we roll along" but it was a failure. We blamed each other for everything that had happened. It got pretty hot and so when the fight started it was Stump and Slivers that fell out in the road. The rain had made some mud and Stump and Slivers lit light. But they looked bad and felt bad. Buck and me tried to make the horse trot but it was no use.

That was the best fight we had. Sort of a running fight so to speak. Stump and Slivers threw mud and rocks and Buck and I fought with canned goods out of the trunk. After our ammunition ran out and we was pretty well covered with mud, Buck and I surrendered. All the fellers sang "For he's a jolly good fellow." I felt proud to think of how well I had taken care of Buck. His father would be glad he had trusted me. Take it all around it was bully.

We came back through town just as school let out and you'd have thought we was a circus the way the kids followed us. We drove into Buck's yard at the head of a parade. Buck's father met us and congratulated us upon our safe arrival. He'd been worried a little. The kid had come right to him when he got home and the way he told it Buck's father thought we had killed each other. So he was glad to see us. His face was all smiles. He laughed right out when we got off the wagon and lined up in front of him to tell the truth. I thought he'd bust himself a laughing. I suppose we did look funny but we didn't feel funny.

We didn't get mad at Buck's father. Nobody could. He treated us fine. He took us all in the house and turned us loose in the bathroom with plenty of soap and hot water and we all took a fine bath. And then he gave us a bully supper while our clothes were being cleaned up. We was wrapped in blankets when we ate it. It was an informal affair. Buck's father ate with us and to show you what kind of a sport he was he ate in his bathrobe. Buck's father was sure one fine man. Of course he used to blow up once in a while and whale the living tar out of Buck, but Buck knew it was for his own good. It never changed Buck none so it didn't do no harm.

I've never gone camping since that time. I got kind of weaned away from it I guess, so when friends of mine ask me to go camping I say "No thank you"—polite like that. They coax me pretty hard sometimes but I'm firm. Camping is all right for those who like it but I can camp in a bath tub if it gets too hot. I can lay a board across the tub and have a smoke and a drink and some grub on it. I'll be cleaner when I come out than when I went in. I want everybody to have a good time and I'm willing to help all I can but I can't go camping with them. No sir. Not by considerable much, I can't.

ARCH PRESERVER SHOES—

for Men and Women

The "arch" in these scientifically correct shoes bridges the gap between the ball and heel—just as a well-built bridge spans the distance between two points.

This special arch construction, combined with correctly designed last, holds the instep firmly in place, properly distributes the weight of the body over the entire walking surface and gives the wearer absolute foot comfort. Unlike most orthopedic footwear, Arch Preserver Shoes are smart in appearance. There's a style for every occasion—and a shoe for every foot.

Arch Preserver Shoes are obtainable in Los Angeles exclusively at Gude's.
